UNBURNED WOODS MODERATE DROUGHT

Montgomery, Ala., May 12.—Abundant soil water retained in the earth under a rough ground cover of leaves, pine straw and other forest litter greatly offsets the effects of drought, points out the Alabama Commission of Forestry. This feature is especially important in view of the fact that for the state of Alabama there has been a deficiency in rainfall for each month since November.

During the winter and late spring farmers who have permitted their woodlands to burn over lost most of this moisture due to the rapidity with which the rainfall runs off and evaporates from the bare earth. On the other hand, those who took appropriate care of the wooded slopes and uplands found that the water retained under the rough cover seeped downward into the cultivated ground and placed their fields in a much better condition than in the other cases.

The movement of the water in the earth below the topsoil is a matter of very great importance in agriculture and forestry. Anything that permits surface run-off or evaporation tends to alter moisture conditions in the soil. A winter fire burning slopes above a field may spell the difference between a successful and an unsuccessful crop from the cultivated land.

Percy Pitts and family went to Jacksonville last week end to spend Mother's Day with his mother, Mrs. Ada Pitts. Mrs. Pitts is matron at the dormitory of Jacksonville State Normal College.

MINERAL SPRINGS

Our Sunday school is doing very well, but there are lots more who should attend. We would like to see them out next Sunday; we especially ask the older people to be out and help us.

We want the young people to go to work and build up the B. Y. P. U., for you know we can. Don't one wait for another, but let us all meet next Sunday night and have the best lesson we have ever had, and don't forget that next Saturday night and Sunday are our regular preaching days. We hope to see a large crowd out.

STATE CAPITOL News

Barbour county has raised the child welfare unit, which will leave only one county in the state, Russell, without such a unit, according to information from the state child welfare department.

The last legislature largely increased the state appropriation for child welfare work, and tremendous progress along this line has resulted. Under the present administration, 52 of the 67 counties of Alabama have set up county child welfare organizations; at the beginning of the present regime there were only 14 organized counties, of which three, Jefferson, Montgomery and Mobile, had been organized under special local acts.

Road mileage completed in Alabama during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1929, comprised 987.-71 miles of state projects, costing $8,794,526.86, and 374.08 miles of federal aid road, costing $3,664,-602.64, or a total of 1,360.79 miles of highway at a cost of $12,459,-129.50. These figures are from the annual report of the State Highway Department, copy of which has just been received from the printer. The mileage of State projects completed during the last fiscal year was divided as follows: 185.68 miles of graded and drained; 111.12 miles sand clay and topsoil; 336.48 miles gravel and chert; 32 miles bituminous surface treatment; 10 miles bituminous macadam; 24.96 miles rock asphalt; and 104.57 miles cement concrete. The federal aid projects completed consisted of 127.27 miles graded and drained, 14.34 miles sand clay and topsoil, 127.90 miles gravel and chert; 18.60 miles bituminous concrete; and 62.05 miles cement concrete.

There was under construction on October 1st, 1929, at the beginning of the present fiscal year, 710.92 miles of State projects, to cost $6,-171,051.60 and 242.92 miles of federal aid projects, contract price of which was $2,805,809.16, or a total of 953.84 miles under construction to cost $8,976,860.76. State projects under construction embraced 228.37 miles of grading and draining; 201.70 miles of sand clay and topsoil; and 245.68 miles of cement concrete. Of the federal aid projects, 88.12 miles were grading and draining, 16.95 miles sand clay and topsoil, 33.39 miles gravel and chert, 17.20 miles surface treated limerock, 17.37 miles asphalt and 69.89 miles of cement concrete.

That Alabama is making progress toward the goal of a completed system of roads is shown by the fact that the total mileage of State highways built under the Graves administration will equal, and probably exceed, the total mileage of such highways in existence at the beginning of the present administration.

Hostilities between Alabama and Tennessee over trucks of one state crossing into another have been terminated, to the general satisfaction of business men on both sides of the border of the two States.

The trouble started when the attorney-general of Tennessee ruled that Alabama trucks making occasional trips into Tennessee must register and take out Tennessee license tags. A number of Alabamians were arrested under this ruling. Alabama authorities reciprocated and began dealing in like manner with visiting trucks from Tennessee. This action was dictated by the Alabama State law which provides that this State shall extend the same courtesy to visiting motor vehicles as is extended to Alabama vehicles in the state from which the visitor comes. A rather tense situation developed along the northern border, with considerable feeling manifested on both sides. Chambers of commerce and business men of both states acted on behalf of a peaceful settlement, began negotiations looking to a satisfactory settlement with the Commissioner of Finance and Taxation of Tennessee. The attorney-general of Tennessee was induced to reverse his original ruling, and peace and harmony restored. Much of the credit for the solution is to be found in the Alabama law, which is regarded as eminently fair, in that it provides for giving outsiders the exact consideration which they accord to visiting Alabamians.

Progress in the right against illiteracy in Alabama is shown by the fact that since October 1st of last year a total of 55 counties of the State have made requisition for aid from the State and the Rosenwald Fund appropriation to carry on the work. Figures on total enrollment in the schools for adult illiterates are not yet available, but partial reports show an enrollment of 8,193, of which 1,534 were white and 6,662 colored. Jefferson county headed the list with an enrollment of 2,946; Dallas was second with 630, and Etowah third with an enrollment of 584 reported to date. Other counties ranking high in the list included: Tuscaloosa, 575; Etowah, 448; Pike, 388, and Crenshaw, 382.

A comparison of the length of Alabama school terms, during the past forty years at ten year intervals, shows a steady improvement. In 1888 the average term was 3 months; in 1898, 3.6 months; in 1908 6.2; in 1918, 6.6; and in 1928, 7.9. The 1928 term was 163 per cent longer than the term of 1888.

Interpreted in terms of the present generation of school children, this gain in the length of the school year means that the boys and girls of today go to school more than twice as long as did their parents, provided they take advantage of the opportunity for schooling provided by the State. Back in 1898, when the parents of today were school boys and girls, the school term was 72.76 days or 3.6 school months, as revealed by the report of State Superintendent John O. Turner. As stated above, the term for 1928 was 7.9 months.

MARVIN LOWERY WRITES FROM COLUMBIA, S. C.

Columbia, S. C., May 10th.
Dear Folks Back Home:

I am feeling fine and would like to be at work, but we have not received our office desks yet. Guess they will be in the first of next week, as we got the bill on them this morning.

We got back to town last night and have now been in every county in the State. I will be here in Columbia for two or three weeks before I start on the road again. Mr. Foshee is planning to go back to Montgomery just as soon as we can get the office equipment and get a stenographer started in the work.

Talking of the pretty towns in the State, they are all pretty that I have been in. The seaport towns are not clean, but that is to be expected of them. Charleston is a pretty town with lots of large buildings and beautiful scenes, but has that displeasing odor like all seaport towns.

My choice of the summer resorts is Myrtle Beach. It is located in an ideal place for a summer resort. You have a good view of the ocean, lots of things for entertainment, fine hotels and permanent tourist camps, and the place is kept as clean as a pin.

South Carolina has more cotton mills than any other State in the Union. There is from one to seven in almost every town. Spartanburg, with a population of 25,000 has 7 mills located there. There is lots of truck farming carried on here, the counties around Charleston having the lead. The two products grown most are cabbage and Irish potatoes.

Have already written dad about having the Union-Banner sent to me. Seems funny since I don't get it as I have always been used to reading it.

Hope you have had rain by now; we are having rain all over the State, and believe me they were needing it too. It rained on us all the afternoon Thursday. Mrs. Foshee writes that they had a little rain in Montgomery one day this week.

Well, I will close for this time. Love to all.—Marvin.

COOPER REUNION

As a surprise for, the relatives and friends of Aunt Susan Cooper gathered at her home last Sunday to celebrate her birthday, which was to have been on Tuesday, the 13th. Some of the relatives held positions that they could not get off from during the week, so they decided Sunday would be the best day, and it was Mother's Day too. So each one present wore a rose as a symbol of Mother's Day.

Aunt Susan is 84 years old and has already cut her third set of teeth.

Many of the relatives could not be there; some were sick and others were unable to come from other reasons. There was a good crowd and twice as much to eat as was needed. Dinner was spread on a truck in the shade, and everyone stayed and ate just as much as they cared to. The blessing was invoked by little Miss Elizabeth Ann Chasteen, 5 years old, of Birmingham, a niece of Aunt Susan. Others present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Chasteen of Birmingham, Miss Myrtis Chasteen of Wylam, Mrs. Essie Swint, Mrs. Ruby Guinn, Miss Myrtle Lowery, Lee Wells, Russell Milford of Columbus, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Cooper and children, Raymond, Laverne, Nell and Ezelle, Mr. and Mrs. Odie Cooper, Mrs. Maria Henley, Ruby Chasteen, Alonza McCary, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cooper and children, Willie, Pearl and Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bates and children, Annie, Lee and Raymond, Mr. D. Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Cooper and Mrs. Susan Cooper.

Many nice presents were presented to Aunt Susan, with tender thoughts and wishes for many more happy birthdays.

COTTON SPACING

During the period of 1924 to 1929, a cotton spacing test has been conducted at Auburn on Norfolk sandy loam soil, with and without fertilizer, to determine the spacing in the drill and the number of plants per hill that will produce the highest yield of cotton per acre. All plots in the fertilized section are fertilized alike.

Average yields for the six-year period of the experiment show that a spacing of 18 inches in the drill with 2 plants per hill has produced the highest yield on the fertilized section. Spacings of 18 inches with 4 plants per hill and 24 inches with 3 plants per hill made within 2 pounds of the yield on the leading plot. On the unfertilized section the highest yield was produced on the plot spaced 6 inches in the drill with 1 plant per hill. Yield on the plot spaced 24 inches apart with 3 plants per hill was less than 2 pounds of seed cotton per acre below the leading plot. Results obtained in this experiment, indicate that it is safe to recommend spacing cotton 18 to 24 inches in the drill with 2 to 4 plants per hill.

SIDE APPLICATION OF NITRATE OF SODA

The fertilizer tests conducted by the Alabama Experiment Station show that the best time to sidedress cotton is just before it begins to put on squares. Best results have been had with corn when the soda was applied around the corn when the corn was knee to hip high or about 40 days old.

FLOYD SINGING

Last Sunday was our regular singing evening at Floyd. We had a real good singing, but directors were scarce on account of meeting day and all day singing at Walnut Creek. Some of our singers went to the reunion dinner.

For the benefit of our neighbor singers we changed our singing to the third Sunday evening; so all of you good singers remember the new singing day on the third Sunday in June and come to our singing in the afternoon.

Also last Sunday was our regular preaching day, and we had a real good sermon by our pastor, Rev. J. L. Culpepper. Communion service was held, and all were glad to commune for our Master and follow His commandments. We had a mighty good Sunday school lesson and the attendance was good.

Last Sunday Miss Cardue Prickett and Mr. Tarple Prickett motored to Montgomery and reported a good time.

Mrs. Mary Smith and Mr. Harry Davis attended B. Y. P. U. at Pleasant Valley Sunday night.

Misses Louella and Estella Williams also Messrs. Leroy and Alvin Williams attended the B. Y. P. U. at Pleasant Valley.

Next Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock there will be preaching at Floyd by Rev. E. A. Norris. So everybody come for I am sure he can tell you something that will be worth while.—P. H. Headley, Secy.

F. R. JONES
JONES SERVICE STATION

Our readers surely will agree that Jack Douglass did a nifty job when he made the face of F. R. Jones. But why shouldn't he? One may ask. Mr. Jones is a good-looking young man of keen countenance and fine personality. The artist said he is one of those rare fellows who strikes the eye with a force that makes a definite impression, hence he was termed "easy to draw."

Now just a few words of introduction for Mr. Jones. He is a new man in Clanton. He came here last February from Tuscaloosa, where he was born and reared. He is only 21 years old. He is not related to any of the many families of jones name who are natives of Chilton County.

He came here to operate the Woco Pep business on top of the hill north of town, where John Ellis used to be. For his business he adopted the name of Jones Service Station. He stresses the fact that "Service" is the middle name of his business, which is a fact in both writing and practice. He sells Woco Pep, and along with it he throws in a big chunk of pleasing "Service" with every order.

Mr. Jones is married, and has one baby, which is the pride of his life.

The place of business of Mr. Jones is one of the most beautiful of its kind in Clanton. It was built by Mr. John Ellis some years ago. Situated in a shady grove alongside the highway, the place stands as an invitation to the passing motorists to stop and enjoy the delightful surroundings. In the latter part of 1929, Mr. Ellis sold the property to the Wofford Oil Company, makers and distributors of Woco Pep products. Mr. Jones is operating the place under lease from the Wofford Oil Company.

Mr. Jones wants to get acquainted with everybody who comes to Clanton to trade. He wants to do business with you, and is prepared to render you extraordinary service with the famous Woco Pep line of Gas and oils. A visit to his place will be appreciated by him.

L. H. BEAN WRITES

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a small space in your paper to say just a few words in regard to my candidacy for member of the County School Board of Education, Chilton County. I am a candidate for this place on the Republican ticket and want to ask all the voters who feel like they can support me with the intention of trying to better the school conditions in his county. I want your support, and the following is what I stand for:

I am a friend to the rural schools. I believe the rural schools ought to have the preference, if there be any. The rural schools are the place to educate your children; and without the rural school your community will never prosper. I believe the patrons of each and every school should have the right to elect their own trustees, and let them be the bosses of that school, assisted by the County Board, in every way possible to make the school a success. The County Board of Education cannot handle the situation in these places like the people who live there. Every community knows best what they need. The County Board should not try to be bosses, but should accept the place as an humble servant of the people who elect them to office, and in order to get along with all the people give them what they want just as near as you can, and co-operate with them in every way possible, and you will see better schools and better satisfied people in Chilton County.

There are schools in Chliton County charging excessive incidental fees. The patrons of the schools are not satisfied. For this reason the officials of the school try to keep the money matter a secret from the patrons. The incidental fees paid in at these schools are not public funds. They are private funds paid in by the patrons of the schools, as incidental fees, and this belongs to the respective schools where it is paid in, and the county board has no right to this money at all, not even handle it. Each school should have a treasurer and all the incidental fees should be paid to him and the treasurer should pay all incidental expenses, and when the school is out, have two disinterested men to audit the school books and post the results where it can be seen, and if there is $739.46 left in the treasury when the school debts are paid let that money be there when school starts again in the fall, and reduce the incidental fees for that term for that respective school.

All public funds should be handled in a business way and a true and correct record kept of them so when any question comes up in regard to this fund, it can be showed in a satisfactory way. There have been a great many patrons of the Jemison high school asking me fuestions in regard to the incidental fees at this place, and for that information I am going to ask the trustees of the Jemison High School to appoint two disinterested men to audit the school books and show to the public just how their money is being spent. I am sure this will be a pleasure to these men to do this, for we regard them as our very best citizens. Now gentlemen, when the school is out see that these requests are carried out and by doing this the patrons of this school will feel honored and will not feel like they are being mistreated. Now, if the patrons of the schools of Chilton County want to be represented, or have a representative on the school board, just vote for me. I will help you share your school troubles, as that will be most of my mission. I want to give the people better schools for less money. I disapprove of the school trucks hauling the baby children out of the rural schools. My policy is to run trucks where there are enough high school students, and no grammar school students at all ride the truck.

I stand for responsible men over the age of 21 years to drive the school busses and then pay them for their service. There's no fun in tampering with the lives of our children. And when you put them on a school bus with a 10 or 12 year old boy under the wheel you are flirting with their lives, this is being done.

I stand for re-establishment of all the rural schools. What money is to be spent for building purposes, use it to repair the rural school buildings, where they need it. You can have your children taught at home cheaper than you can run a truck. It is to the interest of every farmer to keep the rural schools. When your school leaves your neighborhood the value of your home leaves with it.

For the information of the teachers of Chilton County, I want to say I feel like a great number of the teachers are being mistreated. In other words, they are underpaid, according to their work. My policy is to pay a teacher better wages and then demand better service. A few of our teachers are over-paid. I stand for cutting wages along this line. I believe in equalizing the wages. This might hurt some of the big boys, but it will benefit a great number of our main teachers.

I noticed in the county papers of May the first, that our present school board has made some good resolutions. It seems that they want to get down to business and that they will expect a teacher to carry a maximum teaching load. I want to congratulate them on this move.

I believe seven months is plenty long to run the school. This will give all the schools the same chance. The students are only allowed one grade a term, and if they are properly taught they can make these grades in seven months, and that will suit the people on the farm better than a nine months school. Nine months is too long for any child to sit in a school room. They get worn out and lose all energy, and do not try to learn. A seven months school with plenty of pep behind it will be much better.

Give the teachers the nine months pay in seven. This will mean a raise to them, yet it will not cost the county any more, and 2 months of other expenses will be saved, and you will have better results from your schools. I stand for the County Superintendent's office to be audited at least once a year, so all the people can see just how their money is being spent.

We also have too many drones drawing county funds. We need to clip their wings. This is the way the little bees get rid of the drones in their hives. When they have too many, and they begin to eat up all the honey, they take them off from the hive and cut their wings off so they can't get back. Is it possible that the bee has better knowlege than people? Now business is cold blooded and knows nobody.

Now in conclusion I want to say I would like very much to see all the voters and patrons of the schools and shake hands with them, but it will be impossible as I have to work. I am depending on my friends to help me. Now if the patrons of all the schools and tax payers want a representative on the Chilton County School Board, just vote for me on August 12th, 1930. I will do all I can in your behalf to make the school condition better in Chilton County.—L. H. Bean, Jemison, Ala.

War Nurse Sends Sargon to Mother In Far Off London

MRS. A. J. PAYNE

"Sargon did so much for me that I'm sending a treatment to my mother in London, England.

"I'm a trained nurse and served overseas in the World War, but I never in all my life saw anything like Sargon. I was almost a nervous wreck, was put on a strict diet of milk, for months and I was constantly having to dose myself with drastic laxatives, and finally after long suffering I was down to 95 pounds. I started Sargon about a month ago and now my appetite is splendid and I haven's a trace of indigestion. My whole system is wonderfully strengthened and invigorated, I sleep fine and am gaining weight every day. Sargon Pills overcame my constipation completely."—Mrs. A. J. Payne, 214 N. 75th St., Birmingham, Ala. Alred Drug Company, Clanton, Ala., agents.

IN MEMORY OF ELOISE BURKHALTER

Our Heavenly Father called our dearly beloved sister, Mrs. Eloise Burkhalter, to her eternal rest on the same day his father was taken, May 8, 1930.

Her home was at Billingsqley, but at the time of her death she was at Selma with her children and relatives. She leaves a husband, Willie D. Burkhalter, three sons, Clarence Burkhalter of Montgomery, Mason and J. N. Burkhalter of Selma, and one daughter, Miss Vera Burkhalter of Billingsley, and a host of friends to mourn her death.

She was laid to rest in the Billingsley cemetery, at 2:30 o'clock, May 9, 1930, in charge of Brislin Brothers.—Mrs. R. C. Burkhalter.

Miss Emma Sue Morris will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Warr during the week-end after the close of Clanton Grammar School.

Miss Mary Lucy Burdett, of Alabama College, Montevallo, will be the guest of Miss Janice Danforth this week-end.

NINE-TENTHS PREVENTABLE

Nine-tenths of all the diseases of the American people can be traced directly to constipation, doctors say. Constipation throws into the system poisons which taint and weaken every organ of the body and make them easy victims for any germs which attack them. Prevent constipation and you wil lavoid nine-tenths of al ldiseases, with their consequent pain and financial losses. Herbine, the good old vegetable cathartic, will prevent constipation in a natural, easy and pleasant way. Get a bottle today from Upchurch Drug Company.

TALKS TO VOTERS ABOUT POLITICS IN THIS COUNTY

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to state the following to the voters of Chilton County: We have so many true, honest and just Republicans in our county that I think it is time for some of them that have been there for years, to give some one else a chance. Here we have now aspiring for the office of Tax Collector, W. G. Culp, Alf Mims, J. A. Raines and Mr. Billingsley. You can look the world over and you can not find a finer set of men. Either one of these men can come to you and ask you for your vote and influence, and it is hard to say no.

But, Mr. Voter, if you have promised either one of them, stand firm by your word. A rash promise is a bad thing. Now, in regard to Mr. Rockett. He is a fine man, but I think he has held the office long enough.

Now, let's get down to the Tax Assessor. Can you find a finer man in Chilton County than Mr. Akins I. Collins? I will guarantee every vote you cast for this young man on August 12th, you will be proud of it and you will never regret it. May God help this good Christian young man in his untiring efforts to serve the people of Chilton County. Mr. Pate is a good man and has been faithful to his duties while serving as Tax Assessor; but he has held the office for many years and ought to be willing to rest for one term any way. If the tax officer were put on the same basis as sheriff, it would give all good Republicans a chance. One term and not over two.

We have one of the best counties in the State, controlled by Republicans, and we certainly ought to be proud of our party and do everything in our power to give all a fair chance. I am well known all over the county; am a carpenter by trade, and as all know, I am always ready and willing to help any good cause. So, hoping this will meet with your approval, I remain, yours very truly, —Chas. H. Rober, Clanton, R. 4.

NATURE THOUGHT OF EVERYTHING

Nature thought of everything when the human body was made. When the body is about to become ill, nature planned danger signals to warn us. Thus, if our children grind their teeth when they sleep, or lack appetite, or suffer abrominal pains, or itch about the nose and fingers, we should know that they may have contracted worms. Then, if we are wise, we buy a bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge and safely and surely expel the worms. Thus we avoid the danger of very serious trouble. White's Cream Vermifuge costs only 35c a bottle, and can be bought from Upchuruch Drug Company, Clanton, Alabama.

IN MEMORY OF J. H. BURKHALTER

At 2:20 o'clock, on the morning of May 8, 1930, our heavenly Father saw fit to take the sweet spirit of our dear father so gently to that beautiful city not made with hands.

Father Burkhalter was born July 27, 1849. In 1869 he was united in marriage to the loving and devoted wife and mother, Adline Mims, unto whom were born the following children: Willie D. and John A. Burkhalter, of Billingsley, Ala., Reuben C. Burkhalter of Verbena. Also five daughters; Mrs. Havaner Belle, Mrs. Mandie Norrell, of Billingsley, Mrs. Fannie Courtney, of Verbena, Mrs. Emma Latiker, of Rockford and Mrs. Annie Henry, of Anniston.

This faithful Christian wife and mother, who was born May 2, 1852, was laid to rest May 25, 1908.

In later life he was married to Mrs. Beatrice Payner, of Prattville, Ala., who has been a faithful and devoted wife until his death. He was a good and honest husband and father.

He finished his task and was called to higher, better, and happier realms.

The family, friends and loved ones will miss his kindly words. His place can never be filled.

All will think of him at rest just waiting there in that blessed land so fair. We'll see him again in the end, for we know His promise is true: "I'll go and stay a little while, then I'll come back for you."—A daughter, Mrs. R. C. Burkhalter.

WOULD YOU KNOW ONE IF YOU SAW IT?

If you ever came face to face with a germ, would you recognize it? Of course it is not likely that you ever will see a germ, unless you own a tremendously powerful microscope, for you would have to magnify one over a thousand times to make it as big as a pin head. But you should recognize the fact that these tiny germs can get into your bloodstreams through the smallest cut, and give you typhoid fever, tuberculosis, lockjaw, blood poisoning, and many more dangerous and perhaps fatal diseases. There is one sure safeguard against these dangers—washing every cut, no matter how small, thoroughly with Liquid Borozone, the safe antiseptic. You can get Liquid Borozone at Upchurch Drug Company, Clanton.

HOW THE CANDIDATES VOTED IN 1928

In compliance with the requirements of a resolution of the Republican Executive Committee of Chilton County, Mr. J. N. Dennis, Chairman of said Committee, has delivered to The Union-Banner, copies of the affidavits of the several Republican candidates, setting out under cath, a statement of how each of them voted in the general election of 1928.

It is no surprise to us that every candidate on the Republican ticket has complied with this request of the committee by submitting a statement of how he voted in 1928.

Despite efforts of some individuals, mostly of the Democratic political side, to make a scarecrow out of this resolution of the Republican committee, the fact remains, and is now evident, that every Republican candidate is willing for the world to know how he stands on political party matters, and particularly how he voted in 1928.

As we have stated before, we do not see why any candidate on the Republican ticket should object to compliance with this request of the committee. The Republican voters of the county are justly entitled to know something about the political records of their candidates. One of the first things a voter may properly ask of a candidate is about his faithfulness to the party. However, it seems that with all the bolting and crossfiring that has taken place in recent years, that subject is one which some folks want to shy around. It is important still, however, in the structure of political party affairs. In fact, we believe it is more important now than ever before.

If Republican voters think anything of the Republican party, and care anything about maintaining the party, they well may scrutinize their candidates to be sure that they nominate and elect men who will stand true to the party in the future.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

America is never without expert political advisors of foreign nationality willing to teach us just how we ought to conduct our international affairs. Typical examples of recent note are M. Andre Geraud, noted French writer better known to the reading public as "Pertinax," and H. Wickham Eteed, British publicist, who appeared recently in Washington at the annual banquet of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, at which President Hoover was the guest of honor. Although the two noted visitors were to speak on French and British journalism, both of them devoted the greater part of their addresses to international affairs in which Uncle Sam came in for a great deal of advice and critism because of his supposed aloffnes from the trials and tribulations of Europe. The League of Nations and its Court were not specifically stressed. What was particularily urged was that Uncle Sam take some sort of hand in the international game.

There was nothing new or startling in the messages of Pertinax and Mr. Steed. They were only parts of a general attack on the American fundamental policy, some coming from abroad and some from within our national gates. The ultimate object is in itself not to get us into the League or a League Court, but to secure some sort of an internationalization so far as possible of national resources and the wealth of nations. Uncle Sam, because he has the most wealth and the greatest resources is naturally required to do most of the international liquidating and so the immediate object is to get him into a liquidating frame of mind. If getting him into the League by the front door or by a back door or even a cellar entrance can accomplish this, all well and good. But getting him into the European combination is not the end. It is merely the means to the end, the end being a super-government which will control not only international political policies but international resources and wealth, to an extent at least.

European publicists and propagandists appear to be painfully puzzled at the hesitancy of Uncle Sam in joining the international combination. They do not seem to realize that he takes pride and comfort in the fact that he has the most prosperous country with the best wage scale and the highest standard of living in the world. For centuries and centuries, European nations have been quarreling and fighting, one against the other. Even today they have been unable to get over this bad habit. Yet although they well know this, our European critics profess to be stupid enough not to understand why the American people hesitate about plunging into such a maelstrom of suspicion, jealously and intrigue.

But because Europe feels that something must be done about it we have campaigns, not only to get us into Enropean political commitments, but campaigns to destroy our tariff to induce us to cancel the war debts, and to modify our immigration laws. Fortunately these campaigns have not yet succeeded, but it is up to the American people to keep informed on what is really going on.

America has done its share toward disarmament, peace promotion and international amity during the past decade. It is willing to do more, but not through sacrifice of its political independence. If Europe really wants disarmament let it reduce the size of its armies, in keeping with the size of the American army. If it wants to do away with tariff barriers, let it adopt the American idea of production, and work toward raising the living standards of its people to the American standard. When the workers in Europe live as well and are paid as well as the American workers, there will be no need for a protective tariff, and perhaps not for so strict immigration barriers either. For if the people in Europe can do as well at home as abroad, they will stay at home. They come to America because they think they can better themselves. The solution of the problem is not to drag down America to the European economic level, but to improve conditions in Europe. And this cannot be done by destroying America. If Europe wants peace and prosperity let it not forget that peace and prosperity begin at home. They can best be secured by constructive work at home and not by destructive propaganda abroad.

BUT STOWAWAYS WERE FEW ON ARMY TRANSPORTS

Early in the summer of 1919 in a small town of the middle west, a prominent man of the town entered a barber shop to get his shoes shined. He engaged in the following conversation with the porter, who was a former employe of the shop and who had just returned from France.

"Well, Ebenezer, I see you have returned from France, and apparently without any scars of battle."

"Yes suh! Mistah Jones, Ise feelin' fine."

"Did you get up to the front where you could hear the big shells and bullets whiz through the air?"

"Yes suh! Ah wuz dere long nuf to satisfy me, 'n' ah heard some o' dem whiz-bangs, too."

"Well now, Eb, what I'd like to know, is whether you killed any Germans while you were over there."

"No suh! Ah nevah killed no Germans, Mistah Jones."

"Now, Eb, if I'd been over there I'd got myself a 'Dutchman'."

The conversation ceased without any signal.—Exchange.

The early histories said something about government being divided into executive, judicial and legislative departments. Now it is executive, judicial and investigating.—Exchange.

After reading his statement we come to the conclusion that one of the main reasons Mr. Libby is not in favor of the naval pact is that in it we don't admit that we want a navy inferior to those in Europe.

Some editor has compared the salt party in India to the famous tea party in Boston. Maybe so, but anyhow it is fortunate for Great Britain that so far Mr. Gandhi has not developed any of George Washington's qualities for leadership.

We often wonder how it comes that the installment collector always manages to come around on the days when we have the least money.

Speaking of straw votes, when is the Literary Digest going to take one on the anti-salt law in India.

The pacifists would like to name the national emblem the 'possum instead of the eagle.

According to telephone statistics there are eighty million phone calls in the United States every day and sixty per cent of these are carried on with a vocabulary of only fifty words. We know what ten of those words are—"Central you gave me the wrong number." "Excuse it please."

More than 1,000 economists, representing 179 colleges throughout the country, joined in a letter to President Hoover and Congress protesting against enactment of the tariff bill and asking that it be vetoed if passed.

Knox and Lombard Colleges have voted to consolidate, which means that a lot of students will have to learn a new college yell.—Indianapolis Star.

IN BAD TASTE

We dislike to charge a distinguished guest with impudence, but we feel that no hesitancy should be experienced in declaring that H. Wickham Steed, of the editorial staff of the Londom Times, was guilty of shockingly bad taste when he registered with American newspaper editors at Washington the other day, a querulous and almost insulting complaint against American foreign policies. In the first place, there is no foundation for his complaint that we are isolationists. Steed wants to know "how soon will it be if we all set out in the spirit of the Kellogg pact, that anybody who runs against that movement will be told that they will not have American newspapers for their friends." The answer to that is that whenever Europe actually accepts the spirit of the Kellogg pact and pays it more than mere lip service, there will be universal respect for it in the United States. Until then, we cannot afford to believe in fairy stories and blind ourselves to the stubborn realism with which Europe seeks to hypnotize the New World into saccharine idealism to her own selfish advantage. We are not disposed to set all the examples, especially since so few of our examples are cheerfully followed in Europe.—Ft. Wayne News-Sentinel.

Jake Wallace, postmaster at Maplesville, was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday. He reports a good rain at Maplesville Monday night.

Local showers have been reported from different parts of the county this week, breaking a general dry spell of more than a month.

Rev. E. A. Childs, pastor of Clanton Methodist Church, will preach the commencement sermon of Isabella high school next Sunday morning at eleven o'clock.

THE JACK POT

BY "JACK" HIMSELF

THE HOUR OF THE MILLENIUM IS HERE—WHEN—

Farmers will get together, pull together, push together, and stick together. Come to think of it, that will be the 8th wonder of the world.

Candidates will remember to fulfill every promise made to the dear voters during the campaign. Maybe they CAN'T fulfill all of them.

You can find a place to park your car most anywhere that is convenient. This is especially true of Saturday afternoons in Clanton.

All radio listeners will tune out a good snappy jazz band in favor of some program put on by a church or welfare organization, led by a good lecturer or a "wake them up" evangelist, no matter what the denomination.

Truck and bus drivers will take extra care to give you half the highway when you meet them. That is, if the truck or bus happens to be small enough to allow the driver to do so.

The lion and the lamb lie down together in peace, and Ford and Chevrolet salesmen agree to let each other's prospects alone—and stick to it.

Baseball fans agree with and are satisfied with EVERY decision of an umpire at a baseball game. Pretty near an improbability, eh?

Democrats and Republicans agree on all questions. We'd like to see or hear tell of just a FEW instances of this kind. That's stretching the imagination.

Both drivers will voluntarily assume his share of responsibility in all auto wrecks. Notice, we said ALL. They do, SOME TIME, but hardly ever.

It will rain and stay dry according to your exact needs. That couldn't be, we reckon. Not all the time, any way.

You can feel as young and spry on Monday morning as you do on Saturday afternoon. That is, if you get your weekly pay check every Saturday.

Reckon that'll do for that kind of stuff for this week. You know, after all it is said that "any fool can ask questions that the world's smartest can not answer."

About this fire station business, now—the POTTER has been making inquiry as to the difference in rates as would effect a town of this size. We find that the difference in rate would be approximately 30% if Clanton kept a ready-for-action fire station.

Of course, the present fire insurance rate in Clanton is not as high as it would be if we had no fire-fighting unit, but an organized unit would lower the premium rate another 30%. Take your own fire insurance premium and figure your savings under such a system, and see if you think it a worthy project for the city fathers to undertake. If you think so, then join us in the fight for it. Do something about it! Say something in favor of it!

Another thing—we find that we have several ex-firemen right here in the town who are competent men and could serve on the "force" and so give Clanton a fire squad of home boys who really "know their stuff" if given a chance.

These good old warm days are certainly ideal for the various checker tournaments. It's an every-day affair. Getting to be quite a few fairly good players now, too. And, of course, a few near-perfect players.

Old Man Dry Weather certainly dealt a dry hand to our farmers this time—the strawberries were a half failure. Last year the Clanton Berry Growers Association shipped 25 cars, besides local shipments. This year, with much more acreage in, the shipments totaled 14 cars. Better luck next time.

The part failure of the berry crop just goes to show that our new way of farming is the stuff. Diversify! Keep several irons in the fire, so to speak. You see, supposing that the berry crop had been good and the cotton crop should fall through, farmers wouldn't be so bad off, after all. As it is, they STILL have their regular crops to fall back on, even if the special berry crop DID fail.

Farmers still have a chance to make good on watermelons, and maybe other crops. Surely ALL of them won't fail. Some are bound to hit, and any one of several different crops will keep the farmer in pretty good shape.

What a difference between now and a few years ago. Then, if the cotton crop went bad, we had nothing to off-set it. But not now. Our farmers have waked up to the fact that the more legs they have to stand on, the firmer they stand . They are taking advantage of it, too.

We heard a Democratic aspirant for one of the seats in the Commissioners Court as he told the world at large just how badly the road problem has been handled. He had an array of figures all worked out to show that every mile of road and so-called road in the county had received appropriation of about $100.00 a year during the last five years.

He asked several if their road had received it's share. Nobody nodded. He went on to prove (by HIS figures) that the most of the money had been taken by the grafters. The same old, old story. That one is so old it smells. And as the good old brother unreeled his tale of woe, we just couldn't keep from thinking of another miscalculation of road costs made some time back.

In fact, those figures he gave out listened just like they came from that same calculating machine. You remember about that big error, don't you. Well, you'd think they would have their calculator repaired and in good condition, but it doesn't seem that they have. Some of the cogs need repairing—maybe it just needs another general overhauling, with replacements here and there.

It doesn't listen like good campaign material, either, to try to prove anything by the condition of the roads, right now, good as they are. Somebody is way behind with his material for argument. He missed his chance back in the winter. What a shame.

We don't see anything for the Democratic aspirants to begin to harp on unless it be that old worn-out negro question again. After all the others fail, they usually fall back on that. You just listen for it—it'll be coming through in a few days—it's as sure as January, and that's reasonably certain. Never knew it to fail.

Well it's about nap time again. Now for another snooze.—"JACK."

It is said that wild life is vanishing in the wide open spaces. Maybe most of it has gone to the cities to carry on.

ALL DAY SINGINGS

For the next several weeks there will be an all day singing nearby almost every Sunday. Next Sunday, the third Sunday in May, come annual singings at both Refuge and Corinth. The fourth Sunday brings the oldest annual affair in the county—the 31st session of the Salem May singing, which has been held at Providence, Beat 16, for the past eight years. The fifth Sunday in May comes one at Maple Springs. The second Sunday in June Lige Glass will have dinner for everybody at Oak Hill and will sing all day. The third Sunday Akins Collins will do the same thing at Collins Chapel. Then comes the biggest of them all the first Sunday in July—the Chilton County Singing Convention at Jemison.

Singers will not need to worry about some place to go for the next several weeks. And there will be good quartets and class singing at all of these places; and more than apt, there will be plenty of dinner too.

AMERICAN TRADE ROUTES

The merchant marine act in support of American owned ships is bearing fruit. Sailing from New York recently on her maiden voyage the new Grace liner Santa Clara was scheduled to arrive at the Panama Canal in five years, at Callao in nine days, and at Valparaiso in sixteen days, as against six, twelve and twenty-one days, respectively, under the old schedule.

This quickened intercourse with the other Americans is the result of the new national shipping policy. The mail contracts and construction loan provisions of the Jones-White merchant marine act of 1928 are at last giving American shipping an equality of opportunity. Congress has provided the means of equalizing the competitive disadvantages and assuring the rebirth of the American merchant marine.

The reduction of the voyage time to Valparaiso by five days is a notable accomplishment. It is not generally realized that Valparaiso is almost directly south of Washington. Closer neighborhood is a need of the Americas, and this new fast service, with sailings every fortnight, should serve that need.

Eighty years ago when the foundations of the Grace Line were laid on the west coast of South America, the most traveled route was around the Horn by clipper ships. When the Panama Railroad was built there began some transhipments south from the Isthmus, but windjammers remained the chief carriers. Steamers began to navigate the Straits of Magellan, but the way was too long for trade with North America. Then came the Panama Canal, rendering more accessible the opportunities for trade between the United States and sister republics to the south. American enterprise and capital have from the time of the Panama Canal sought to make the most of the mutual advantages offered, and the present policy of Congress now insures rapid development of these advantages.—Washington Post.

REPREHENSIBLE IDLENESS

After the lady wakes up everybody in the house, dresses and bathes the children, gets them off or takes them to school, does a day's washing, plans menus for the day, cleans house, makes a party dress for June and a costume for Junior, buys the groceries, cooks a couple more meals, sets a Dutch lunch for some of the neighbors who track a slush on her new rugs, and dresses up for dad, it certainly makes her happy to have the census-taker put down in the blank oposite her name under 'occupation' the flattering word, "none."

HICK TOWN DEFINED

A hick town is where men meet on the streets and do not try to sell each other something.

Mrs. E. O. Barnett of Jemison is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Boyd in Bessemer this week.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw—and Some He Saw Not.

Shorty Miner and his wife are still interested in Clanton. They came all the way from Montgomery last Sunday to be in the Clanton Baptist Sunday School in the hope that they could help to swell the total attendance to 500. The attendance did not reach the goal, but it was a record-breaker, going to a total of 453. That is, I believe, just one more than our highest figure of the past.

The many friends of Mr. L. A. Calloway were delighted to see him able to be out at Sunday School last Sunday. For many months past he has been sick in a government hospital at New Orleans. About a year ago he had to give up his business interests in Florida and go on a quest of health. We hope he has gotten over the danger line.

The death of his grandmother last Friday brought Mr. Leonard Kemp here from Newnan, Ga., for the funeral. During the past year or so Mr. Kemp has been through a lot of dark places, so to speak. Protracted illness in his family caused the loss of his wife and one of his children. Things are better with him now, he says, although the scars of sorrow still are evident in his countenance.

Uncle Hugh Foshee of Clanton and Uncle Billy Walker, of Mulberry went to Sunday School together last Sunday morning. They told me as they came up together that they were swapping memories of the times when they went to Sunday School at old Isabella seventy years ago. As I thought of the friendship of these two men as it stretches over the long years that have passed since they were boys together, I was convinced that after all, age can have its charms.

I am sure that Dr. Ezell enjoyed the fine attendance at Sunday School last Sunday morning, although it was short of the 500 he hoped to see. But there was a sign of sadness with him. It was Mother's Day, and his dear old mother was sick far away in South Carolina. He left Sunday afternoon on a trip to see her. I know that he did not rest a single moment until he had landed his Ford in front of the old home gate.

I went to the Methodist Church Sunday night to hear Rev. Childs preach. I was impressed by two things: The good sermon that was delivered, and the few people that were there to hear it. We people in Clanton are too neglectful of our church attendance. Ezell is continually getting after us Baptists for not coming to church Sunday nights; and I expect Childs does the same for the Methodists. They have a right to raise sand. If I were pastor of one of the Clanton churches, I think I would get entirely disgusted at this Sunday night business. I guess that kind of a disposition is why I am not a preacher. I don't see how they put up with us folks anyhow. It is good that the Lord has endowed His preachers with enough patience to keep on pleading and preaching and praying with neglectful church members.

The reds were 16 ahead of the whites in the Mens Class of the Baptist Sunday School Sunday. Sartor still contends that Pipes and his goats have fleas on them.

Did you see any trucks in Clanton Monday? There were trucks everywhere, and all kinds of trucks. The county commissioners were considering the purchase of some trucks to put on the roads, and I think every truck dealer in Alabama had a sample of his machines here for a demonstration.

One of the trucks was a new one on me. Its name is Relay. Saw it do its stuff, and it was some stuff too. The demonstrator carried it up to John Ellis's lumber yard. The hind part of the thing was buried in a pile of sand. A cross tie was placed on the ground in front of it. It came out of sand, over cross tie, and everything, without skidding a wheel or slipping a cog.

Among the interesting celebrations in honor of mothers was the meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton last Thursday. Many of the mothers of the city were there as guests of their sons and other members of the Club. A number of the boys who didn't have a mother to bring invited somebody else's mother. It was a most delightful occasion.

Government experts announce that all of the large sized currency is now about out of circulation. So is most of the new sized so far as we are concerned.

MORE NEW SHIPS

Our merchant marine is still looking up. A few days ago the Postmaster General at Washington signed five contracts with the United Fruit Line and Grace Steamship Company for carrying the mails by water. These five contracts mean that in due time $25,000,000 more will be spent in the American shipyards for new tonnage which will add to the size and importance of the American merchant marine. Under the terms of the contract ten new passenger and cargo vessels will be constructed and this work will be commenced in the near future.

Three of the contracts are with the United Fruit Company and provide for the building of eight passenger and cargo vessels of not less than six thousand tons each with a speed of not less than sixteen knots an hour. Three of these vessels will run between San Francisco and Puerto Armuellas, three between New York and Port Limon and two between New Orleans and Puerto Columbia.

Two of the contracts are with the Grace Steamship Company and they provide for two passenger and cargo vessels of not less than eight thousand tons with a speed of not less than eighteen knots an hour. One of these ships will sail between New York and Valparaiso and the other between Tacoma and Valparaiso.

It will be noted that by these new contracts ports on the Atlantic, the Pacific and in the Gulf of Mexico will benefit.

It is, of course, the policy of the United States government to aid the United States merchant marine through mail contracts. The news regarding our new merchant marine has been altogether encouraging during the past few months. It is to be hoped that it will continue to be encouraging.

Of course if the merchant marine is to be a success it must have the cooperation of American travelers and shippers as well as the aid of the government. When yo ugo abroad, use American ships, and when you ship abroad use the American merchant marine wherever possible.

Swap 200 Lbs. "Soda" For 18 Bushels Corn

Yields Increased 100 Per Cent in Demonstrations on 526 Southern Farms.

That corn yields in the South may easily be doubled is conclusively shown by the results of 526 side-dressing demonstrations conducted by Southern farmers during the last two years.

A summary of the tests shows that these farmers added 18.2 bushels to their yields and $13.08 to their net profits from each acre. They side-dressed the corn with Chilean nitrate of soda at an average rate of 200 pounds an acre when the plants were about knee-high.

The average increase in yield resulting from the side-dressing was just about the equivalent of the average corn yield in the South, as shown by Government figures.

Four generations of American farmers have used commercial fertilizers to improve their crop production. The first of the inorganic fertilizers used in this country was nitrate of soda, now widely known as Chilean nitrate. This product occurs as a natural deposit only in the barren rainless plateau of northern Chile. It was introduced into the United States in 1830, at a time when only lime and marl of the inorganic substances now used for farm purposes were known to the pioneer farmers.

Time to Side-Dress

One of the most critical times in the life of cotton and corn comes about 35 to 40 days after planting. Experiment stations have shown that these plants are in particular need of nitrate nitrogen at this stage of growth. The use of quick-acting nitrogen as a side-dressing at this time keeps the plants green, vigorous and fruiting during July and early August.

FOR SALE

Hasting's and Whatley's seed corn. Laredo and Otootan soy beans. Iron, Brabham and mixed cow peas. Sudan grass and sorghum seed.

Now is the time to plan for plenty of feed for another year. Any of the above may be planted until last of June.

CLANTON'S CHANCES FOR HOSPITAL STILL HOPEFUL

On their trip to Washington last week, Judge Reynolds, H. G. Boyd and Omar Reynalds called on General Hines and other officials of the Veterans Bureau, in the interest of the veterans hospital in Clanton.

While nothing definite was learned, Judge Reynolds and Mr. Boyd state upon their return that they are yet in high hopes for Clanton's chances. It is stated that General Hines will come to Alabama with a committee of the Veterans Bureau to look over three or four sites before the final location is settled.

It is believed that General Hines and his committee will come to Clanton on this trip, and look over the proposed sites in this section.

County Farm Agent's Notes

FOUR-H CLUB GIRLS WIN COVETED CUP

Auburn, Ala., May 12.—For high achievement as 4-H club girls, Sarah Duncan, of Winterboro, Talladega County, and Ruth Pope, of the Sand Cut 4-H club, Butler County, have been awarded trips to the National 4-H Camp at Washington, D. C., June 18 to 24. Announcement of this is made by Miss Bess Fleming, state leader in girls 4-H club work, who will accmopany the girls to the national capital. Expenses of the clubsters representing Alabama will be paid by the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation. Each year this organization makes this and other contributions to 4-H club work in Alabama.

Sarah Duncan is 16 years of age and has done five years of excellent work under the direction of Miss Harriett Ployder, home demonstration agent. By vote of all the girls at the Talladega 4-H club camp Sarah was declared the best all-round club girl in Talladega County, the most prompt, and the most original. She has a splendid personality that makes her an excellent leared among her club members. She has an excellent scholastic record and was valedictorian of her graduating class in Winterboro.

Ruth Pope is 19 years og age. Her five years as member of the Sand Cut 4-H club include splendid work in foods, clothing, home improvement, poultry, gardening, food preservation, health, and community service. Mrs. Thelma Frazer is her home demonstration agent.

The keynote of Ruth's work seems to be "others." The effort she has made as a club member has always been to strengthen her club and make it one of the best. Individual achievement has always been secondary with her.

Both Sarah and Ruth have served their clubs in many offices, including president. They will continue in club work after returning from Washington.

COLBERT PLANTING IMPROVED COTTON

Tuscumbia, Ala., May 12.—Farmers of Colbert County have manifested much interest in better varieties of cotton. Through their farm bureau they have purchased cooperatively more than 900 bushels of D. P. L. No. 4 and Cook 1627 from sources outside of the county. In addition, approximately 10,000 bushels of pure seed grown in the county are being planted. John F. Yarbrough, county agent, expects the good seed to result in increased yields and better prices.

Mr. Harwell, principal of a school at Jasper, spent Sunday with his father and mother in Clanton.

BRICK BROODER IS PROVED EFFICIENT

Camden, Ala., May 12.—The homemade brick brooder has proved efficient to the farmers of Wilcox County, W. A. Cammack, county agent, states. Ninety-two per cent of the chickens mothered in this type of brooder have been raised to ages ranging from six weeks to twelve weeks, he said. Nearly all of these chickens are being fed according to recommendation made by the Experiment Station at Auburn. In spite of low prices for broilers, poultrymen of Wilcox realized a profit of from 9 to 10 cents per bird.

BALDWIN BUYS CAR PUREBRED HEREFORDS

Bay Minette, Ala., May 12.—There is much interest among Baldwin County farmers in purebred cattle. They recently bought a carload of purebred Hereford bulls. Since that time many farmers have expressed desire for more purebred sires, and arrangements are being made for the purchase. E. E. Hale, county agent, says farmers are of the general opinion that better sires will more than pay their cost in developing a better type of stock. He expects this to result in increased profits from livestock enterprises.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A machine for testing the tenderness of meats has been designed by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture and is now being used in a research program.

Dr. O. E. Baker of the U. S. Department of Agriculture thinks that in 30 years we will have a population of around 150,000,000 and that we shall not go very far beyond this point. It seems that the birth rate is now going down so rapidly that there are very few more children under five years of age today than there were five or six years ago.

An international telephone directory, listing 60,000 European subscribers who talk from one country to another, will make its appearance in Copenhagen in June. It is the third edition of the "Annuaire Telephonique International."

Discount rates in the leading money markets of the world were simultaneously reduced in early May, bringing the price of credit to the lowest levels in years and testifying to the world-wide endeavor of central banking authorities to revive activites in business through the stimultant of cheap and abundant money.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless thay may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Shooting Exhibition In Clanton, May 30

MR. AND MRS. TOPPERWEIN

For those who like their thrills early and often, the shooting exhibition to be given here on May 30 by the Topperweins, Mr. and Mrs., will provide a measure of satisfaction that can seldom be equaled. Topperwein, a veritable magician with rifle, shotgun and revolver has roused audiences all over America to vigorous enthusiasm for the past third of a century. He is acclaimed the world's greatest fancy shot.

But, while Topperwein is a whole show in himself, local residents are to have the opportunity of a real double header, for in Mrs. Topperwein, they will see a woman shot as sensational in her breath-taking stunts and accurate quick shots as her famous husband himself. Together they make a shooting team never to be forgotten and, once seen, never to be missed if opportunity presents them again.

Mr. and Mrs. Topperwein have been shooting partners for a great many years. Right after their marriage Topperwein began to teach his lady the science of shooting and so apt a pupil did she prove that she was soon a headliner in her own name. In hundreds of exhibitions all over the country this marvelous shooting pair appeared in individual and combination shooting features that have made their audiences gasp.

In recent years Mrs. Topperwein has devoted most of her shooting time to trap shooting in which she holds all kinds of records not only for women but also for shooters of either sex and all ages. She is today one of the outstanding trapshots of America.

In consequence, the Mr. and Mrs. act has not been seem for quite some time. But now with new features and the sensational skill that is theirs the Topperweins are presenting a limited number of exhibitions that no lover of a freak show can afford to miss.

One of the thrilling team features which has been often exhibited by this husband and wife is the shooting of empty shotshells off the fingers of Topperweins hand one after another by Mrs. Topperwein. Another of their playful little stunts is to have the wife shoot sticks of crayon or a cigarette from her husband's fingers or mouth.

You'll have to admit the Missus must be phenomenally good to do such stunts as these and that Topperwein knows full well how accurate and dependable, when shooting, the lady is.

Mrs. Topperwein has shot before many of the leading gun clubs of the U. S. and Canada. Not only are her feature stunts superb and almost beyond belief but her trapshooting endurance and accuracy are wonderful. At Montgomery, Alabama, some years ago she set a record that has never yet been equaled by man or woman, when she broke 1952 out of 2,000 targets thrown from regulation traps in 5 hours and 20 minutes. Her actual shooting time was 3 hours and 10 minutes. She has broken 100 straight targets more than a hundred times and holds a straight run mark of 280.

Mrs. Topperwein is one of the few women who can do things equally well with rifle, pistol and shotgun. Like her husband, Mrs. Topperwein thinks nothing of bringing down four or five targets at the same time. With her Winchester she shoots single or double targets, tin cans or marbles with surprising ease.

Topperwein has a remarkable varied program of thrillers. He throws into the air all varieties of small targets, such as small pieces of brick, blocks of wood, marbles, tin cans and washers, hitting them with revolver or rifle shots in marvelous manner. Sometimes he takes five eggs, throws them up, picks up his .22 automatic from the ground and breaks all five with five successive shots before they reach the ground.

One bit of shooting which cannot be done everywhere but which is a very effective feature of his program when shooting arrangements permit, is that of placing two targets, one 20 yards in front of him, and the other 20 yards behind. Sitting on a chair in the center of the space between the two targets, top sights at one of the targets and gets the range of the other with a mirror attached to his shoulder and when he has secured the exact range he shoots two pistols simultaneously and shatters the two targets at once.

The Topperweins have no set programs. Their wonderful stunts lend themselves to an infinite variety of programs, all equally marvelous and interesting. Much depends upon the size of the grounds as limited space sometimes makes it impossible to use some of the features which can be given when space is unlimited.

The Topperwein exhibition is open without charge to all who are interested.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

GOD IS LOVE

We read in God's inspired word the thrilling sentence: "God is Love," meaning that His actions are love, His nature is love, His purpose is love, His plan is love, His justice is love, His relationship to us is love. That is, God is the source and the fountain and the spring of love. There is no other source, fountain, and spring of love. Think of the great meaning of that one sentence: "God is Love." What does it mean? What does it mean to me?

This love of God is everlasting. God says, "I have loved thee with an everlasting love." This love of God is great because does He not also say, "Greater Love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends? For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life?" God gave the son of his bosom, his only begotten son, to leave the glories of heaven and come down to this old sin-sore world where he would be persecuted, rejected, and even crucified on Calvary that we might partake of his great love in the pardon and remission of our sins and at last eternal life with him.

This love of God is strong. God says, "I will draw thee to me with the cartropes of my love," meaning that He will press us to His heart, put His arms of love about us in the great storms of temptations which sweep into our lives. Like as an earthly father pitieth his child in trouble, so the Lord pitieth His children during storms and temptations and trials and troubles. But we are to remember that this love of God is far stronger than we can comprehend. His love for us is so strong that He does not allow us to be tempted above that we are able to withstand.

As we think of this love of God in that it cost Him the only son he ever had we see yonder Bethlehem of Judah. I stood at the church of the Nativity one hot afternoon in August, and I'm sure that I saw the very manger in which Christ was born. I see this Christchild lying there in the manger wrapped in swaddling clothes. That is God's love in the deepest humanity. A few years later I see the same personage Jesus Christ walking the hills of Nazareth. I see him on the Sabbath going into the synagogue. I see him carrying water up the hill to Mary, his mother. I see him in the village carpenter shop, a young apprentice under the supervision of his step-father, Joseph. I see him subjected to his parents, growing in physique, increasing in wisdom and in favor with God and man.

Then I look out over those hills and plains of Palestine a few years later and see God's love there as Jesus Christ walks about with stone-bruised feet which are to be nailed to Calvary's cross. Yes, he is there refused and rejected of men, sleeping on those cold mountain sides with a stone for his pillow, the grass for his mattress, and the canopy of heaven for his blanket. I see God's love as Jesus pours out his heart in prayer all night long on those mountain sides. He is love, the love of God for you and me.

I see God's love in Gethsemane under those gnarled olive trees. He is kneeling in prayer by a rock in that garden of about an acre. There on the cold, frosty earth that chilly night I see great drops of blood pouring from off his forehead as he agonizes in prayer for you and for me. The weight of your sins and the weight of my sins are beating upon his storm-beaten breast. I hear him say, "Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass, nevertheless, not my will but thine be done."

Come with me to Calvary. The cross is uplifted, and O, that awful click of the hammers as the iron spikes are driven through his hands and feet. The lightnings flash, the thunders roar, and the earth is rent. "Elio, elio, lama sabachthani?" "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" "It is finished." "Father, in thy hands I commend my spirit." This is God's love dying on Calvary for you and for me that we may have life eternal. He loved me and gave himself for me.

Now before I think of love for my friends, I must have this love. That is, I must be a friend of Christ. Remember that he says, "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." I must first love him and whatsoever he commands me. He commands me to love my friends as he loved me. Friendship is the holiest relationship of life. The reason friendship changes is because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts and lives. There is no love without expression. McCall in his mission to France was impressed with the fact that men and women were perishing for an expression of love for them. He had cards printed with these words, "God loves you and I love you." These cards he had placed near the boarding houses and lodging places where thousands could see and read them. He was their friend and he expressed his friendship to them. Thuly there is no friendship unless is expresses itself and is based on love and is faithful to the object of love.

My "self" life must be crucified. The Greek word for self in this expression means "flesh." My flesh life, the desires of the flesh must be crucified. You cannot mix selfishness with love. Someone has no doubt truthfully said that love is the silken cord which links humanity to humanity's heart. Love is the mighty force that gives helpfulness, vigor, courage, kindness, liberality, and all other beautiful attributes of human character. Then we would say that love is a great force in the art of Jesus Christ. Love looks up into the face of a friend and says:

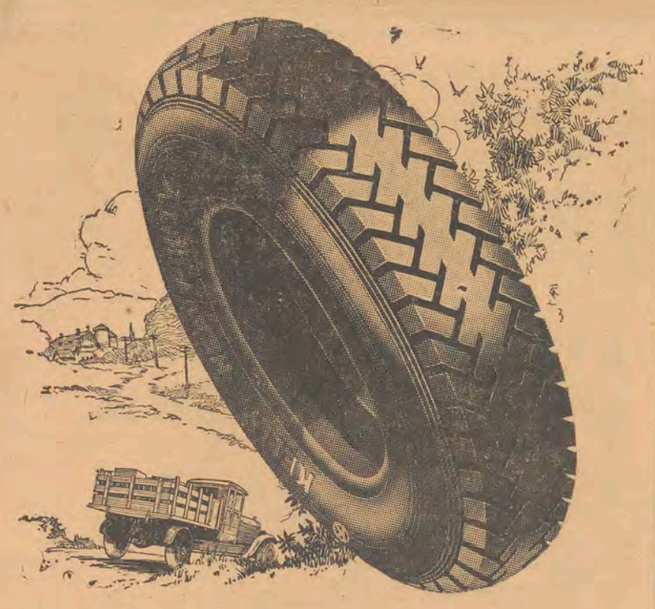
"If God's chillren are His thoughts,
And this I think is true;
What a beautiful day it must have been,
The day God thought of you."

The reason there are so many broken up homes, so many shattered marriage relationships is just selfishness. How sad it is for selfishness to rule and reign in the home. You can't mix selfishness and a happy home. Friendship is based upon love. Matheson wrote to his friend, "O love that will not let me go, I rest my weary soul on thee." Friendship is understanding each other. We are Christ's friends when we understand to do and obey his commands that we may please him and retain his friendship. We are a friend to each other when we have that broad understanding of a friend and that which we know will please our friends. The cause of broken friendships is misunderstanding each other.

Just here we would not forget that friendship-love is not based upon criticism, misjudging, moninance, but it carries with it true constancy and fidelity. Remember that Christ our great friend says, "Having love my own which are in the world I will love them to the end. I call you no more my servants but you are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." It means so much to reach out for and take into our lives this love and great friendship of Jesus Christ. Are you doing it? Think of the great reward which he gives to those who accept it. You will not have that resolve of conscience, and resolute will to walk daily in the love of Jesus Christ who is so far, far above us and yet in mercy so near, so near to us?"

Back Quit Hurting

"I WAS in a very weak condition from a serious sickness," writes Mrs. I. Leonard, 571 Joseph St., New Orleans, La. "I was so weak, I wanted to sleep all the time. I did not have strength to do anything. My back ached nearly all the time. I was just in misery.



"My mother told me I must arouse myself from the sleepiness, and take something to help get my strength back. She had taken Cardui and had been helped, so I decided to take Cardui, too. After my first bottle, I could see that it was helping me. I took four bottles at this time. My strength came back and I gained weight. Pretty soon, I was my old self again.

"My back quit hurting, and I haven't had any more trouble since I took Cardui."

DAVIS FAMILY REUNION LAST SUNDAY

The children of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Davis, gathered at their home near Maple Springs last Sunday for a most enjoyable Mother's Day and birthday celebration. Last Friday was the birthday of Mrs. Davis, and Sunday was the birthday of Mr. Davis. They are each 46 years old.

The following are the children, all of whom were present with their families: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ware, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Powell, Ernest and Chester Davis. Ernest and Chester have no families, the wife of Ernest having died a few months ago, and Chester is the youngest of the children. He still lives at home with his father and mother.

At dinner time the tables were spread under the trees near the home, and the whole family, together with a number of other friends and visitors, enjoyed a most delightful repast together.

In the afternoon Rea. Tucker preached to the gathering composed of the Davis family and many other friends who had gathered for the occasion.

JESUS TEACHING IN THE TEMPLE

(Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 22:1-22, 34-40.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. The second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself (22:37-39).

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaching in the Temple.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in the Temple.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Who Is a Good Citizen?

In the previous parable, the responsibilities of the subjects of the kingdom were set before us in the light of the obligation to render to the householder the fruits of his vineyard. In this one the emphasis is placed upon the privileges and blessings of the king. Christ's kingdom is infinitely more than a system of laws and regulations to be obeyed.

I. The Marriage Feast (vv. 1-14).

The benefits of the kingdom are set forth under the figure of marriage. The highest ideal of love and friendship known to the world is expressed in marriage.

1. The king's invitation despised (vv. 1-7).

The previous parable showed the attitude of the Jewish people toward the king up to the crucifixion. This one carries us beyond the cross, even to the present age of the Gentiles. The marriage feast which the king made for his son and to which he invited guests, represents the gracious offer of God to give joy and blessing to His creatures. This feast has been made in honor of his son, and is an exceeding rich one. The repeated invitations show God's earnestness in seeking to bless men. They not only neglected it, but made light of it and hurried on to their worldly business, showing their disregard for the salvation of their souls. Some did violence to the messengers of the king, even killing them. Primarily, this is a picture of the attitude of the Jews from Christ's crucifixion to the destruction of Jerusalem, but it has its counterpart in the present day.

2. The king's invitation accepted (vv. 8-10).

When those first invited refused the king sent his servants to others, for his table must be provided with guests. The Lord's table has been prepared at infinite cost.

3. The king inspecting the guests (vv. 11-14).

As a result of this inspection, one was found without a wedding garment. Failure, therefore, to conform to the regulation of the feast was an insult to the king. The wedding garment provided for each one invited to the Lord's table is the righteousness of Christ.

II. The Wonderful Wisdom of the King (vv. 15-22, 34-40).

That which called forth this wisdom was the effort of the leaders to entrap Jesus.

1. The tribute money (vv. 15-22).

The Herodians sought to test His loyalty to the Roman government; therefore, they came to him with the subtle question, "Is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar, or not?" For Christ to have answered "Yes" would have conveyed the impression of endorsement of the Roman government, and "No" would have brought him into conflict with the government. Christ's reply to this question is the final word on the Christian's relationship to civil government.

2. Concerning the resurrection (vv. 23-33).

The Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection. To entrap Him they placed before Him a hypothetical case of a woman who had had seven husbands—as to whose wife she would be in the resurrection. The Scriptures make it clear that marriage is only for this life; that in the resurrection human beings will be as angels of God.

3. The great commandment in the law (vv. 34-40).

(1) The first commandment (vv. 34-38). "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." Supreme and undivided love to God is the first and great commandment. (2) The second commandment (vv. 39, 40). This is like the first, in that it centers in love. The measure of love to my neighbor is my self-love.

4. The question put by Christ (vv. 41-46).

The mystery of Christ being the son of David and at the same time being David's Lord put to silence all those who had sought to embarrass Him.

Our Prayers

Our prayers are ships. We send them to no uncertain port. They are destined for the throne of grace; and while they take a cargo of supplications from us, they come back argosies laden with the riches of divine grace.—Presbyterian of the South.

Our Supreme Duty

Our supreme duty is to give ourselves to Christ, and with ourselves all that we possess.—Bishop E. E. Hoss.

Mrs. Newt Aldridge of Birmingham is spending this week with Mrs. Annie Armstrong, in Clanton.

"Clear up your skin, dear, and you will be popular, too"

If you desire a clear skin you must keep your blood in good condition.

A lovely, clear skin is within your reach

may be found in every good drug store in America. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. Seek energy, vitality and a clear skin through the remedy which is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test for over 100 years. Sold in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

WITH the last blemish gone, confidence returns. More friends, more invitations—more good times. With the joy and pride of possessing a clear skin, self-respect increases.

A lovely, clear skin is within the reach of all. To you who have lost it, hope is offered, that you, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of skin eruptions as being an indication that the body's power of resistance is low.

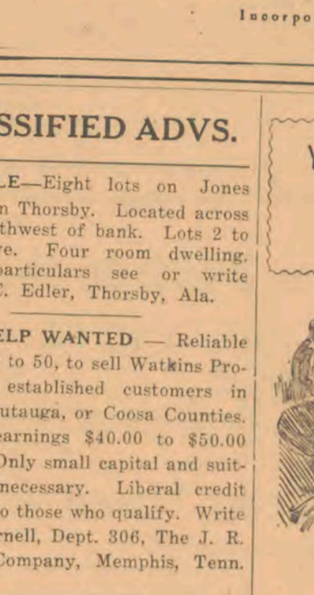
This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful skin annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.



S.S.S. helps Nature restore the blood to its normal state. Healthy blood nourishes the body and works against infection and disease.

Without plenty of rich, red blood there would be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or healthy, beautiful women.

If you are troubled with so-called skin disorders, take a few bottles of S.S.S.

A Clear Skin Comes From Within

I wouldn't be without it— not if it cost twice as much

When Don and I first started keeping house we felt that we couldn't afford a telephone. There was the furniture to buy—linens—and a dozen and one little things that cost no end of money. Then one day after we had been married a couple of months I was left all alone. I expected Don for dinner but he didn't come—seven o'clock came but not Don—eight o'clock and still no word. I was frantic. Usually when Don was late he called Mrs. Brown next door or sent word by a friend who lived close by. After I felt that I couldn't wait any longer I ran to Mrs. Brown's to call Don's office, but Mrs. Brown wasn't there. Then I couldn't understand why I hadn't heard from Don through our friend.

If Don hadn't come when he did I believe that I would have gone crazy. He had tried to call Mrs. Brown but no one had answered, and our kind messenger friend was out of town. That incident cured us. We ordered a telephone the next day—my dear, it was a pleasant surprise to learn how reasonable the cost really is. But if a telephone cost twice as much I wouldn't do without it—not for a single day.

Why take a chance on any such thing happening to you when a telephone costs so little? Call the business office, or give your order to any one of the company's employees, and a telephone will be installed immediately.

YOU HAVE A DOCTOR'S WORD FOR THIS LAXATIVE

In 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he saw the harm in harsh purgatives for constipation and began to search for something harmless to the sensitive bowels.

Out of his experience was born a famous prescription. He wrote it thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, feverishness, nausea, gas, poor appetite, and such disorders, are relieved by the prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original effective and harmless formula. All drugstores have it.

Mrs. A. M. Piper Dies

Mary A. Piper, wife of A. M. Piper, a confederate veteran, died at the family home in Thorsby Saturday, May 10, age 87 years. Mrs. Piper leaves a husband, one son, Ed Piper of Thorsby, one brother, S. F. Abbet and one sister, Mrs. G. B. Shockley, both of Alexander City, Alabama.

Mrs. Piper was born at Griffin, Georgia, in 1843, married Mr. Piper at Shelby, Alabama, April 11, 1870. Both Mr. and Mrs. Piper were prominent members of the M. E. Church, South, in Shelby and Jefferson Counties for many years. They moved to Thorsby from Ensley in 1919, and finding there, no church of their denomination, united with Thorsby Congregational Church, where the funeral was held Sunday afternoon, May 12, attended by a large concourse of friends in and out of Thorsby.

A beautiful funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. E. Each, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of Thorsby Baptist Church.

Mrs. Piper was a member for 55 years.

A male quartet consisting of John and David Childress, Marvin Davenport and E. N. Steiner, sang "Abide With Me," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Nearer my God to Thee." Miss Helen C. Jenkins playing the organ accompanyments.

There were many floral offerings. Burial was in charge of Mell Martin and was held at Thorsby City cemetery.

People from out of town who attended the funeral were: Mrs. C. L. Coker and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Marrah, of Bessemer, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Sheehan of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Taylor and son of Wilsonville, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Kroell of Montevallo, D. J. Flummer, Mrs. Ralph Wilbanks and Dovey Tatum of Ensley, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Lucas and Mamie Woods and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gorng of West Blocton.

The ladies guild of Thorsby have presented to Thorsby Institute a large and beautiful national flag for their campus flag staff.

Mr. Wallace C. Edler who has left Thorsby to reside with a grandson at Seattle, Washington, has presented to Thorsby Institute Library 100 books of modern fiction, which are greatly appreciated. Mr. Edler was for many years a great reader of books from the Institute Library.

In passing to and fro about Thorsby during the past week we noted considerable activity around freight cars on side track at Thorsby. On inquiry we found that farmers of this section are getting in nitrate of soda for their summer crops, coming with a variety of vehicles to haul it home. Upon inquiry at the station we learned that nine carloads, averaging 50,000 pounds each, or 450,000 pounds have already been received and distributed with the price running about $50 per ton, a total of $11,250. When will our farmers learn to grow their own fertilizer?

Rev. Thomas Bakke and family, who have been residents of Thorsby for several years left early this week with all their household goods to move by motor transport 1,150 miles to Fremont, Neb., 37 miles from Omaha. This reminds one of the days of the covered wagon, with the distinction that modern methods will enable them to cover the distance within a week instead of months on the road. A large truck which came from near Fremont made the trip in four days actual driving, they stopped nights. Mr. Bakke and his interesting family will be missed among their Thorsby friends.

J. D. HARRELL IS AGAINST L. H. BEAN

Editor Union-Banner:

I notice that Mr. L. H. Bean has made his announcement as a candidate for member of the County School Board. It appears to me from the stand Mr. Bean takes against our superintendent and county board for the past few years that he feels that he would be in better position to fight our officers and school system if he was on the board.

Of course, there is room for improvement in our school system, but I think our county board members are doing everything possible to improve and make Chilton County better educationally.

We, as citizens of our county, are doing ourselves and our children a great injunstice to knock and fight our schools and the things that would advance and make them better just because we are not satisfied with some of our county officers or the way in which our schools are being run. We should try to improve the conditions of our county, and make our school system better instead of trying to run it down.

Now, Mr. Bean has already shown what he would do if he had the school business in his hands. So let us go to the polls on August 12 and cast our votes for Mr. McDowell, a man who will take an interest in the betterment of our schools.—J. D. Harrel.

DAILY ROUTINE SCHEDULE

The following schedule can be your guide for routine care of your chicks from the first to the twelfth weeks.

Bear in mind, throughout this entire period, to keep the mash hoppers filled with starting mash, and to keep water fountains filled with fresh, clean water, as mentioned before. The things that are to be varied from week to week, however, are as follows:

First week: Brooder temperature, 95 degrees. Enlarge circle hover after the first two or three days.

Second week: Brooder temperature, 90 degrees. Let chicks outside if weather permits. By the end of the second week you may start adding a chick starter scratch to the ration, only about a fifth of a pint per hundred chicks at first, fed each day at noon. Also add finely chopped greens each day. Remove circle from about hover.

Third week: Brooder temperature 85 degrees. Increase noon ration of starter scratch to about a third of a pint, also continuing and increasing ration of greens and outside exercise as practical, from here on.

Fourth week. Brooder temperature, 80 degrees. Start feeding scratch grain three times daily, about 7 a. m., noon, and 6 p. m. Continue this daily feeding schedule from here on, starting this week with a third of a pint three times daily.

Fifth week: Brooder temperature about 75 degrees. Start raising hover but keep reaesonable and even warmth in brooder house.

Start breakineg to roost on low wire roosts. Increase scratch grain to one-half pint three times daily. By this time the scratch grain may be scattered among the litter to make the chicks exercise to get it. Always be sure to keep litter clean and dry and as free of droppings as possible.

Sixth week: Continue as before, lifting a trifle higher and increasing scratch grain to three-fourths or a pint three times daily.

Seventh week: Increase grain to 1 1-4 pints three times daily.

Eighth week: Hover may be removed altogether and chicks get along without artificial heat unless unusually cold. Scratch grain may be coarser now at first, making it a developing scratch. Increase ration to 1 1-2 pints three times daily.

Ninth to twelfth weeks: Increase grain gradually to 3 pints three times daily.

WOODMEN GAINS NOTED IN STATE

Alabama Takes Lead For Third Month In Growth Of Fraternal Order

Alabama Woodmen of the World again led all the other states in the membership gains, according to reports received by L. D. Holliway, state manager, from Omaha. During the month of April more than 600 new members were added to the roster of Woodcraft. This makes three out of four months of 1930 in which Alabama took the lead.

Much of the credit for this is given by Mr. Holliway to Head Consul, John N. Cochran, field deputies S. S. Wiggins and W. M. Davis, along with several others who have been quite active arranging for field days or W. O. W. raillies.

Last Monday a delegation of Montgomerians motored to Clanton where a big class initiation was staged under the direction of Head Consul Cochran, who is directing a membership campaign at that place. About 40 men were in this class and another initiation will be staged within a few weeks.

Over in West Alabama reports say that one of the biggest clases ever assembled around the stump will receive the degree of the order on June 19 at Carrolton, when a joint meeting of the West Alabama Log Rollers Association will be held with a field day for the Uniform Rank. On June 12 a field day program will take place at Enterprise in Southeast Alabama. Other events are scheduled for convenient times during summer.

Magnolia Camp No. 2 will meet tomorrow night and begin making plans for a membership campaign on a small scale. This is the largest camp in the state and contniues to hold its own despite the fact that no "drive" on an aggressive scale is ever conducted. Officers of this camp make a practice of assisting near-by camps with initia tory ceremonies andthe team is always in demand.

POPULATION FIGURES FOR CHILTON COUNTY

The population of Chilton County, according to the figures announced during the past week for the 1930 census just cmpleted, is given as 24,671. In order that our readers may get an accurate and intelligent idea of the growth of our county, we have dug up from our files the census figures of the county for the past half a century as follows:

1880	10,703
1900	16,522
1910	23,187
1920	22,770
1930	24,671

From the above it will be seen that the growth of the county's population has been steadily recorded by every census, except that of 1920, when the number was 417 less than in 1910. The greatest period of growth was from 1900 to 1910, during which time the total of the county's population increased 6,665.

Wm. T. Kilpatrick, age 62, died at Central Alabama Hospital here last Friday. The remains were buried Saturday at New Harmony, Lomax. Mr. Kilparick's home was just north of Lomax, near the Reynolds swimming pool. Martin was in charge of the burial.

ALL DAY SINGINGS

The singings at Corinth and at Refuge last Sunday were rather damp most of the day; however, reports from both places say that the singing was good.

Next Sunday comes the oldest annual singing in the county—the 31st session of the old Salem May singing, which will be held at Providence, Beat 16.

We do not know of a singing the first Sunday in June, but Oak Hill, near Jemison claims the second Sunday in next month, and Collins Chapel the third.

The fourth Sunday in next month comes the annual singing at Cane Creek, five miles north of here on the Lay Dam Road. The fifth Sunday in June is claimed by Maple Springs, who have had that date announced for the past several weeks.

The Chilton County Singing Convention meets at Jemison at the high school building the first Sunday in July. This promises to be the biggest musical event of the year; arrangements are being made to have some big singers present at this convention. It is almost a certainty that J. R. Baxter of Chattanooga will be there, and invitations have been extended several of the leading singers of Sand Mountain and DeKalb county.

WALLACE C. EDLER GONE TO SEATTLE

Mr. Wallace C. Edler, of Thorsby, has gone to Seattle, Washington on a visit to his daughter.

Mr. Edler came to Chilton County about thirty years ago and established The Union, a weekly Republican newspaper at Clanton. He continued publication of that paper until 1912, when he sold out to a group of people who effected a consolidation with The Banner, forming The Union-Banner.

After concluding his newspaper activity in 1912 Mr. Edler moved to Thorsby, where he acquired some property. He has lived alone there ever since.

Owing to his advanced age, Mr. Edler is now very feeble. He is doubtful if he will be able to come back to Chilton County any more.

FREE CLINIC FOR CRIPPLES MAY 29

Will Be Held At The Baptist Church In Clanton Next Thursday

The Clanton Baptist church will be open at 9 o'clock for the clinic, which will be conducted by Dr. J. D. Sherrill, Orphopedic specialist, of Birmingham. This clinic will be conducted very much as it was last year. It is Free and the docter will give a thorough examination, and will suggest what might be done in each case, but no treatment is given at the clinic.

Every parent wants to know what can be done with their cripple child or deformed child, as the case might be, and they would like for a bone speeialist who works with this type of cases all the time, tell them.

There are numbers of children who had infantile paralysis last summer who would like to come to the clinic to see what Dr. Sherrill would suggest—maybe a brace of some kind or possibly an operation or maybe just observation and particular treatment.

The clinic is absolutely free and does not obligate anyone in any way whatsoever. It is made possible by the Alabma Cripple Children's Society, in order that every child in Alabama will be within 50 miles of a free clinic at least once a year.

POPULATION OF BEAT 4 IS 6,365

The population of Beat 4, Chilton County, in which the town of Clanton is located, has been announced as 6,365, according to the new 1930 census just completed. The population of Beat 4 ten years ago was 5,124. There were 833 farms enumerated in this area.

Beat 4 contains an area of 54 square miles, with Clanton in almost the exact center. The beat line is exactly three miles north and three miles south of Clanton. On the east it is four miles to the beat line and on the west it is five miles from town.

Auburn Speaker Talks About South's Future

Dr. Edwin Mims Decries Continuance Of "Solid South," Calls For Two Parties To Restore Vigor Of Public Leadership; Says Freedom Of Thought and Action Is Demanded

Auburn, May 20.—Dr. Edwin Mims, professor of English language and literature, Vanderbilt University, in delivering the commencement address at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute today expressed the hope that there may develop two strong political parties in the south "that will restore the vigor of public leadership."

"I can see no reason for the continuance of the solid south," Dr. Mims said. "The great days of political leadership in the south were when there were contests between federalists and republicans, and lafer between democrats and whigs. Let us hope that there may develop two strong political parties that will restore the vigor of public leadership."

Isn't Even Virtue

Solidarity of opinion is never a virtue, Dr. Mims said, explaining that as a growing section the south today demands variety of opinion, free discussion of vital issues, open-mindedness and, above all, freedom of thought and action.

"A man's conscience and patriotism should not be overwhelmed by a public opinion that demands party regularity at any price," he said.

Turning to the economic progress which he said is evident of a new day, he referred to Robert E. Lee, not only as the consummate flower of old southern civilization, but also as the leader of the new south and the present south.

"Anyone who would know the south of today should distinguish between two souths, at least," the speaker said. "There is a south that lynches and justifies lynchings, and there is another sonth that looks upon lynching as an unjustifiable. There is a south that boasts of the Ku Klux Klan as an original contribution to American life.

There's Another South

"There is another south that believes that klan is un-Christian and un-American, and that holds out the helping hand to men of every race and every creed. There is a south of earnest believers and ecclesiastical demagogues, who would put into our laboratories a warning to scholars. 'Thus far shalt thou go, and no further,' and there is a south of enlightened religious leaders and educational leaders, who believe that truth must be found whatever it may cost and wherever it may lead."

Dr. Mims described three types of southerners, speaking of those who are ashamed of their origin and speak with condescension of the backward country. These he called expatriated southerners.

"I would lay emphasis," he said, "not on the expatriated southerner, nor on the professional southerner, but on the type so largely represented in this audience—the man whom circumstances, accidentally or deliberately chosen, have caused to live in the south.

Education the Agency

Presenting the work of the educational field Dr. Mims said that he held up education as the greatest of the agencies that will bring about the development of the south's resources and the promotion of sound public opinion.

He said that southerners with characteristic optimism are apt to exaggerate the progress that has been made; mentioned that the southern states are still at the bottom of all statistics that register the actual educational conditions of the country.

"It is also true that there is not a single university in the south that has adequate resources for advanced graduate work," he said. "These are facts that cannot be gotten around by 'hifalutin' talk about the beauty of southern women and the chivalry of southern men. Nor can the much heralded industrial prosperity atone for the comparative neglect of intellectual and artistic excellence.

"We need and want all that modern science can bring to us in the way of invention and of developing our natural resources, or in the development of the scientific method of dealing with any situation or problem to counteract certain tendencies of the southern temperament, but we do not wish to be scientific at the expense of spiritual values of life. Frankly, the south needs and wants industrial prosperity but not at the expense of the grace and charm of life."—Montgomery Journal.

Marbury To Have New High School

Clanton Contractor Expects To Have Building Ready By September

Prattville, Ala., May 14.—Reports have been received from the office of the County superintendent of education that bids were received Saturday for the new high school building to be erected at Marbury.

The contract for this building was awarded to J. L. Crawford, of Clanton. His bid being the best of a number of bidders. Building will begin at once and is expected to be completed by September 1, 1930, which will enable its being used for the coming school year.

The structure will have six rooms and an auditorium. It is to be built of solid brick, with steel windows and a rigid asbestos roof. It is estimated that the building will cost approximately $21,000.

The County Board of Education held a special meeting Monday to make definite arrangements for the financing of this building.

Among other business that the Board had under consideration was the nomination of new local trustees for the next year. Mass meetings were authorized to be held in the various communities for this purpose.

Superintendent McDaniels also reported that he did not have a complete list of the teachers of the county for next year, but would be able to give the list in a week or two. Only four or five vacancies are left in the county and for the most part the teachers of the previous year are being returned to their same positions. In the selection of new teachers, their training and special fitness for the positions have been consedered first.

Rev. W. H. Kamplain, and Mr. Lee Robinson of Verbena were in Clanton Wednesday in the interest of the Seymour-Kamplain evangelistic campaign now going on at Verbena High School auditorium.

Jersey Calves To Be Distributed

Club Boys Of Chilton County Will Get Prize Winning Cattle

County Agent, C. E. Stapp, announces that the fourteen Jersey calves bought for the club boys recently will be distributed Saturday at eleven o'clock. Mr. Stapp went to Tupelo, Mississippi two weeks ago and bought 7 registered Jersey heifers and 3 registered Jersey bulls. The price ranging from $100 to $210 each. The owners of the calves were preparing for a Jersey show at Tupelo last Friday and asked that they be allowed to hold the calves bought until after the show.

Messrs. Stapp, W. L. Popwell, Lum Wilson, Horace Popwell, Clyde Popwell, Ralph Mims, Luther Mims and Walter Popwell went back to the show Friday. They were much pleased to see the bulls bought by Mr. Stapp the week before win first, second, and fifth places in the show.

Mr. Stapp bought three more nice heifers after the show, making a total of eleven heifers and three bulls.

Mr. Stapp is making an effort to organize a bull association in the county, using only bulls from cows with records of more than 400 pounds of butter fat per year.

SPECIAL OFFER OF INTEREST TO BOYS OF THIS TERRITORY

Mr. Reedie Taylor of the Capitol Dry Goods Company is making an offer this week that will surely attarct the attention and catch the eye of the boys of Clanton and vicinity.

Elsewhere in this paper we are printing a coupon for Mr. Taylor. Every boy who clips out the coupon and brings it to the Capitol Dry Goods Company will be able to buy for 50 cents one regular 50c baseball and one regular 50c bat.

LEON EHRMAN VISITOR HERE THIS WEEK

Mr. Leon Ehrman of Birmingham is spending a week's vacation in Clanton. He will be joined by his wife the latter part of this week. While here Mr. Ehrman is staying at the Wilson Hotel.

Leon Ehrman is a son of R. Ehrman, who was one of Clanton's pioneer business men. The old store house occupied by Mullins and Moore was built by R. Ehrman about forty years ago. During his business career here R. Ehrman was owner and operator of a large lumber business. His mill was located about three miles southwest of Clanton.

It has been twenty years since Leon Ehrman was in Clanton. During that time he has been superintendent of industrial plants of the Sloss-Sheffield Company in Pennsylvania and Birmingham.

DR. THREADGILL HERE SUNDAY

Dr. H. C. Threadgill, pastor of the First Methodist Church, of Tuskegee, preached the commencement sermon of the Chilton County High School, at Clanton Methodist Church last Sunday.

All the congregation of the city united in the service and the attendance was unusually large.

The lesson of Dr. Threadgill, drawn from the life history of Moses, was most interesting. It was delivered with particular application to the young men and women of the graduating class, 35 of whom were seated in front of the minister as he painted with beautiful language the story of a man whose life, though lived many centuries in the past, yet wields a great influence in the shaping of modern world affairs.

MACK WYATT NOW SHELL GAS DISTRIBUTOR FOR CLANTON

Mr. Mack Wyatt, formerly of the Clanton Service Station, has acepted the job as distributor of Shell Gasoline in this territory. He began his duties with the company the first of this week. He suceeds Mr. Luther Williams, who has been distributor for the Shell people since they opened up here.

Mr. Wyatt will operate the truck serving retail filling stations in Clanton, Thorsby, Jemison and down the line about half way to Montgomery.

For many years past Mack Wyatt has been connected with the retail business here, being associated with his brother, G. M. Wyatt, at the Clanton Service Station. HEFLIN PLANS STATE RALLY

Mass Meeting Called In Birmingham On July 4th To Form New Party

Washington, May 19.—Plans for a state-wide mass meeting, July 4 in Birmingham, to organize the Jeffersonian Democratic party of Alabama, were announced today by Senator Heflin, who returned to Washington after a three-weeks speaking campaign throughout the state.

Associated with Heflin in starting new Democriatc organization in Alabama for announced purpose of taking control away from present state executice committee, are Horace Wilkinson and Crampton Harris and others who sought to stay committee's ruling by court action.

Every county and precinct, it is understood, is to be represented at the Birmingham meeting. When organization is launched, an entirely new set of political machinery will be established to contest control of party in Alabama.

Issues Statement

Heflin today issued a statement on the situation in his home state, following his recent trip, on which he made talks at 10 different towns and addressed upwards of 40,000 people, according to his estimate. In utterance, he attacks "the O'Toole-Brown-Gunter-Pettus-Smith - Raskob ring" and declares it can control but 42,000 Democrats out of a total voting strength of 290,000 Democrats in the state.

"I will win re-election by 150,000 votes," said Heflin, today. "Unless there is a change in the situation and I am admitted to the primaries, I will run as an independent Democrat.

"I have now addressed over 40,000 people and not more than 50 out of that number voted to sustain the committee's action.

"There were rumors in Alabama circulated by friends of F.I. Thompson that a deal had been made between him and myself, by which I would not run if he obtained the nomination but would accept the Montgomery judgeship. I denied and denounced those rumors and made it plain that I am a candidate no matter which of my adversaries is chosen in the primaries if I am not admitted to them."

Citing the action in the other southern states, in which Democratic party bolters of 1928 have not been debarred, Heflin declared Alabama is now the only one in which attempt is being made to penalize those who did not support Smith in the last election.

RAIN BRINGS BETTER PROSPECTS FOR FARMERS

During the past week, Chilton County, and in fact nearly every part of Alabama, has received plenty of rain, bringing to an end the unprecedented spring drought of more than thirty days. The rains began to fall here about the middle of last week, but were spotted here and there. But the one which came Saturday seemed to cover the whole world. Since Saturday, showers have been plentiful.

A statement from Auburn Monday says the agricultural situation in Alabama is showing marked improvement as a result of the rains which covered most of the state the past week.

With the exception of a portion of southeast Alabama, every section of the state received rain during the past week.

The rains came at an opportune time for cotton, corn, and other field crops, although strawberries, gardens, and other truck crops have been damaged severely by the drought.

WILL SING AT COURT HOUSE AGAIN TUESDAY NIGHT, 27

Sheriff Collins asks The Union-Banner to announce that there will be singing at the courthouse in Clanton on Tuesday night of next week, May 27th, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, and continuing for about two hours. There have been two such singings here this spring, and they proved so successful and met the approval of so many people that the third one has been called.

The courthouse is a very suitable place for such gatherings for everybody is at home there. People from all over the county are usually in attendance and a general good time is had. So remember that everyone who likes good singing is welcome to attend this singing. Bring your Showalter and Morris-Henson books, and any others that you wish to use.

Al Jolson, the man who made the talking screen a success with two of the most famous pictures ever filmed, is coming to the Alabama the week of May 26 in his latest Warner Brothers Vitaphone production, entitled "Mammy," which is hailed by critics as even greater than "The Jazz Singer," or "The Singing Fool."

"Mammy" is a story of the old minstrel days, the kind of shows that used to be the annual event in every southern town and city, but which in the last three years have fallen off. It was written especially for Jolson by Irving Berlin, and with it are six new songs for the famous singer, also composed by Berlin.

Jolson is cast as an end man in the show, in love with the owner's daughter and watched over by his own mother. The trials and tribulations that beset him and that are solved by the mother form the basis for a drama of the most appealing sort, colored by the songs that he sings in his own inimitable manner.

The six songs that are new are "Let me Sing and I'm Happy," "To My Mammy," "Call of the South," "Knights of the Road," and "Across the Breakfast Table Looking at You." Besides these, the famous mammy singer will be heard in several of his old favorites.

A number of the sequences of the story are made in technicolor, while a cast of stellar importance apears in Jolson's support. Lois Moran is the girl whom he loves but who loves Lowell Sherman, the interlocutor of the show. Louise Dresses plays the part of Jolson's mother, while Hobart Bosworth is the owner of the show and the father of Lois Moran. Mitchell Lewis plays another end man in the minstrel troups and is the villain of the story.

DIET NEEDS FOODS RICH IN VITAMIN B

Auburn, Ala., May 19.—Our knowledge about vitamins has been undergoing constant expansion. It is still far from complete. First came recognition of the fact that in natural food materials there existed, in minute quantities, certain substances other than proteins, fats, carbohydrates, and salts which appeared to be essential for normal nutrition. Further investigation showed that these substances, or vitamins, also prevented various pathological conditions or "deficiency diseases." Early in the work three separate vitamins were identified, and called A, B, and C. Each one has functions peculiar to itself. Several years later two more vitamins, D, and E, were discovered. Comparatively recently it has been found that another vitamin named G, occurs in a great many foods which are also rich in vitamin B. The identification of vitamin G was obscured for a long time because of this parallel occurence.

The functions of the two vitamins differ, according to nutrition specialists at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Vitamin B prevents beriberi, while Vitamin G prevents pellagra. An abundance of both vitamins is essential for growth and well-being at all ages, but partilularly necessary for nursing mothers and young children. As both occur to a large extent in the same foods and in a very wide variety of foods, a varied diet, containing fruits and vegetables, will usually be satisfactory in respect to these two factors.

The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture suggests the following foods as good sources of vitamin B: asparagus, beans (fresh and dried), brains, cabbage, carots, cauliflower, celery, cowpeas, egg yolk, fish roe, grapefruit, kidney, lemons, lentils, whole-grained products, lettuce, liver, milk, nuts, okra, onions, oranges, parsley, parsnip, peas, potatoes, pineapple, rutabagas, spinach and other greens, tomatoes. With so long a list from which to choose, the diet may be pleasingly varied and yet always meet the requirements for an abundance of vitamin B.

FORD INTRODUCES ONE AND ONE-HALF TON TRUCK

Te meet the demand for Ford trucks with longer chases, the Ford Motor Company today announced the introduction of a one and one-half ton truck with 157-inch wheel base. This is twenty-five and a half inches longer than the present wheel base.

The new truck is mechanically the same as the present one, the only changes being a lenthening of the frame and coupling shaft.

The longer chassis is used with bodies designed to carry loads of bulky nature nature. It is particularly useful in hauling furniture and livestock. It is designed also for bus bodies.

One of the advantages of the longer chassis, officials of the Ford Motor Company point out, is that it provides a complete Ford unit which can be serviced entirely by Ford dealers and which carries the standard manufacturer's warranty. Heretofore frame extensions have been installed in the present chasses to obtain chasses of this length.

Thin, Pale, Weak

"I HAD been through a bad spell of sickness which left me very weak," says Mrs. Virginia Spruce, of Stapleton, Va. "I was pale and felt lifeless, and my strength did not return.

"I spent most of my time on the bed. I was very nervous, and the least thing upset me. I did not have strength enough to lift a broom. At times I would have bad headaches, which would hurt me until I could hardly see.

"Someone asked me why I did not try Cardui. I had read of it, so I thought I would see what it would do for me. It was really remarkable how I came out. My strength returned, and my health was better than it had been in years. I gained in weight about ten pounds. My color was good, and I ceased to suffer from headaches. I have told my friends about Cardui because I was benefited after taking it."

ALABAMA WOOL GROWERS TO MARKET THROGH ASSOCIATION

Alabama wool growers have agreed to market this year's clip through the National Wool Marketing Association and take advantage of the provisions offered by the Agricultural Marketing Act and the $500,000,000 revolving fund, it was announced yesterday afternoon by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, and J. D. Moore, marketing specialist of the extension service.

At the same time that this announcement was made Mr. Moore stated that arrangements have been made to take up the wool of the Black Belt during the week of June 2, and the wool of the South Alabama counties during the first of July. When the wool is pooled the growers will be advanced 90 per cent of the prevailing market price, which is to be determined by the Federal Farm Board and its associates. The wool wil lthen be stored in the United Wool Growers Association warehouse where it will be carefully graded and sold when the demands are greatest.

Plans have been completed for Florida and Mississippi farmers to handle their wool through the Alabama Farm Bureau pool. Mr. Moore announced that each of these states have approximately 100,000 pounds of wool which makes a total of some 450,000 pounds which is expected to be handled through the Alabama pool.

The wool from these three states will be sold by the National Wool Growers Association which is the central sales organization for all the wool cooperatives, along with most of the other wool produmed in the country. The central organization already has inprospects over 100,000,000 pounds.

It is advised that growers in Alabama, Georgia, and Mississippi with wool to sell keep in touch with their cooperative association manager, their county agents, and marketing specialists.—L. O. Brackeen.

CANE CREEK

The 1930 Showalter Hymnal and Crowning Hymns No. 10 will be used. We invite all singers and lovers of music to come and help sing and to attend Sunday School every Sunday. Come and feel welcome when you get here. Secretary.

Calhoun County grew its best crop of vetch and Austrian winter peas last winter. S. R. Doughty, county agent, attributes this to early planting and the application of phosphate.

POULTRY Tips By LEONARD L. BROWN

NORMAL CHICK DEVELOPMENT

There are a lot of little incidental things that make or mar the success of any one's chick brooding, and that are usually learned only by many long years of painful experience. We have already gone over the more obvious matters of essential routine care. Here are some things that are just as important, but frequently overlooked.

Give the chicks plenty of room. Crowding brings on tone and tail picking and other vices.

Get the chicks out of doors as early as practical. This may be even the first week if the weather is warm and balmy enough. The chicks need the sunshine but must not be chilled. If you can't get the chicks out by the third week, watch closely for any signs of leg weakness, and if you find it, add a little more cod liver oil to their mash. The oil not only acts as a laxative but also gives the chick many of the benefits of natural sunshine itself.

Keep the chicks of different ages separated. The chief reason for this is that with two different ages of chicks together, the older chicks crowd the younger ones from the feed and drink, resulting in stunting the younger ones.

Always avoid frightening the chicks. Children and animals may do this without your realizing it.

Observe every rule of sanitation. Scrupulously clean brooder houses, good, clean, fresh yards that have not been used by poultry before, or at least not for two or three years, will probably save you from serious epidemics of disease among the chicks.

Break the chicks to roost as early as possible. This can best be accomplished by building a very low roost of wire mesh just a couple of inches off the floor of the brooder house. After the weather gets warm enough so they do not have to stay right near the hovers for heat, the chicks can be induced to take to these low roosts. The sooner they do this the safer you will be from "pile-ups." It is a convenient arrangement to have a roost suspended on wires so you can raise it slightly from day to day. By the sixth week the roost can be about 12 inches off the floor. Be sure to have them well broken to roost well before removing the brooder stove.

In feeding and in all general care, the items to watch, in addition to general livability and health, are as follows: Exercise—give the little fellows lots of chance for exercise so they can develop their muscles and bodies. Feed—start in early to develop large feed capacities. It takes lots of feed to give lots of eggs, and the digestive systems must be developed while the chicks are young.

STATE CAPITOL News

Only ten per cent of the pupils enrolled in Alabama schools were in one-teacher schools in 1929, accordinb to figures from the State Department of Education. That steady progress is being made in eliminating the one-teacher school is shown by that fact that as late as 1921, 21 per cent of the pupils were taught in schools of this type. In 1928, 68 per cent of all the school children enrolled in Alabama attended schools taught by three or more teachers, and 38 per cent of them were in schools with six or more teachers. The number of one-teacher schools in the state decreased from 2,280 in 1920 to 1,261 in 1929.

Educational leaders state that because the one-teacher school is lacking in vitalizing activities, in supervision, equipment and general community interest, it is inefficient when compared with schools having two or more teachers. An enlarged faculty brings a more flexible administration, more easily adapted course of study, more opportunity for purposeful student activities, and consequently better teaching.

Governor Bibb Graves has appointed Theodore Swann of Birmingham, Otto Agricola of Gadsden, and Isadora Weil of Montgomery, to constitute the Board of Censors of the Alabama State Docks. The legislative act creating the State Docks Commission provides for appointment of the Board of Censors, whose duty it shall be to make inspection of the books, business and general activities of the Docks Commission, and report their findings to the Governor with such suggestions and criticisms as they see fit. Of the three men named on the Board of Censors, Swann is a widely known industrial leader, Agricola a leading banker and business man, and Weil a member of the firm Weil Brothers, one of the biggest cotton concerns in the south. The Alabama State Docks at Mobile passed from the construction state to the operation stage April 1st last year.

Lieutenant-Colonel John C. Persons of Birmingham has been appointed by Governor Graves as Brigadier-General commanding the 62nd Infrantry Brigade, which is composed of the 167th Infrantry, Alabama National Guard, and the 124 Florida Regiment. General Persons is president of the American-Traders National Bank of Birmingham, and is a World War veteran. He saw active service in major battles in France, and received the distinguished service awarded for his conduct in action. He succeeds as Bridadier-General, General Walter E. Bare, who resigned to accept a promotion with the Southern Bell Telephone Company, which took him to Atlanta.

John J. Flowers of Dothan, Prominent Houston County citizen and Auburn graduate has been appointed by Governor Graves as a member of the Auburn Board of Trustees. He succeeds Charles S. McDowell of Eufaula, who resigned.

45 bales out of every 100 bales of cotton were untenderable on future contracts, because of short staple, according to figures compiled by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician with the Department of Agriculture.

This means that nearly half of the 1929 crop was under 7-8 inches in length and therefore was sold at a penalty to the spinners. Only 4 bales in every thousand was 1 inch staple or better.

From the above it is easy to see that Alabama produces very little of the longer lengths of staple. Alabama is producing more and more of the shorter lengths of staple every year. This is in spite of the demand for more and more longer fiber.

Long fibered, strong elastic staple cotton is needed in increasing amounts in America today. Such fine fabrics, but for high pressure cotton not only is used for lace and high duty purposes such as tires of powerful automobiles, fire hose belts etc.

Illustrative of the demand for stronger cotton fibers than the market can supply, is the demand for tires on racing cars. No manufacturer will undertake to construct a tire for the fastest racing car, such as hold world's records at Daytona Beach, which will last more than 15 minutes at speeds of 3 miles per minute.

Although the public demand is for longer, stronger and more elastic staple, Alabama is growing percentage of shorter staple. Half and half is the most popular variety of cotton and this is seemingly on the increase.

Dr. Joseph Lignieres, noted French bacteriologist, says that he has discovered a vaccine against foot and mouth disease in cattle and will report the details to the international congress of veterinary medicine which will meet in London, August 4 to 9.

FARM MARKET NEWS

Alabama farmers were never getting better market news service than at present, acording to S. P. Storrs, Commissioner of Agriculture. Each day prices of Alabama livestock, hogs, poultry, butter, eggs, fruit, vege.ables, etc., is broadcast over Stations WAPI and WSFA, at 12:30 p.m. This not only gives the prices received in this state, but the prices in various cities of the nation. For example, during the present strawberry, cucumber and Irish potato season, price quotations from Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburgh, New York, Cincinnati, St. Louis, and many other cities were given daily. The movement of carloads to these points was also given and this enabled shippers to avoid shipments to crowded regions and where low prices prevailed.

The movement of cucumbers began May 13th, with 5 carloads from the Gulf Coast. The Alabama crop is reported somewhat hampered by the lack of rain, but recent rains helped conditions markedly. Quotations range from $2.75 to $3.00 per bushel hamper.

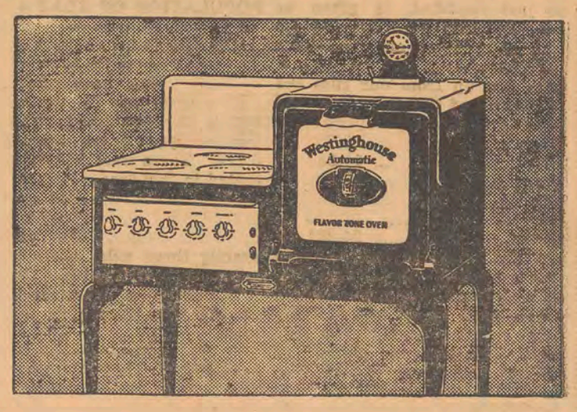
The first week of cabbage shipments saw over one hundred carloads leaving Alabama. Hundred pound crates brought as high as $4.50 to $5.00.

Farmers of Conecuh County have placed an order for one-half carload of calcium arsenate to poison boll weevil. They are expected to buy more.

How I coaxed him to eat!

"ONCE I was worried. Mealtime was getting on my nerves. I prepared many appetizing dishes, but John simply would not eat—just 'minced' at his food. Perhaps sometimes a little grouchy. I began to fear he was 'slipping.' What was I to do? Love, home, happiness, business success—all depended upon an improvement in his condition. The blood-tonic idea suggested itself to me. My Druggist recommended S.S.S. He told me that S.S.S. was a great blood tonic; that it had been successful for over 100 years; that it was made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and was beneficial to the most delicate system. Also that it would build up the blood and improve the processes by which the body is nourished. I brought home a large size bottle. John agreed to try it. Well, in just a few days I could see the difference. His improvement has been so rapid he is going to take several more bottles, and not only that, but he is now telling his friends to take S.S.S.

It is a known fact that when a man's system gets "run-down," he hasn't the resistance to ward off diseases. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play. It is dangerous to let the red-blood-count remain below normal.



S.S.S. is daily helping people to regain their strength. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. It promotes a keen appetite, gives vitality to the body, clears the skin and wards off diseases. All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical. © S.S.S. THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. Norton, Manager)

Mr. and Mrs. Coy Gibbons motored to Birmingham last Thursday afternoon, attending the Birmingham vs. Memphis ball game. They report the game well worth the trip.

Last Thursday morning, while J. A. M. Bosworth better known as Jim Bosworth, who occupies a responsible position in a club at Lay Dam, composed of some 400 employees of the Alabama Power Company was speeding along the highway, returning to his work, he sounded his horn for a man in a car to let him pass; both cars were on the side near the edge where they belonged, but the man ahead either did not hear the horn or turn out, until the Bosworth car was closer. When he attempted to pass the car ahead turned so as to cross his path. A quick twist of the wheel cut the Bosworth car in behind the car ahead, but with such momentum that it left the pavement, struck the soft dirt alongside, threw Bosworth through the top of his car and he landed in the dirt clear of the car which turned double somersault, struck and knocked down a telephone pole and stopped right side up on its wheels. The car was so little damaged that it was run to a garage of its own power.

Mr. Bosworth was somewhat stunned scratched and bruised. The man in the car ahead stopped and took him to a hospital at Clanton, where he was looked over without finding any serious injuries. In the afternoon Mr. Bosworth was returned to his home where he has since remained, nursing a lame back and a few bruises. It seems a miracle how a man of his age and weight could go through such an experience and get out alive. He hopes soon to return to his work, but we predict that he will feel the effects of the jolt for months to come.

Mrs. Bosworth, who has been quite ill for several weeks, is reported as much improved, though not yet well.

Last Saturday evening the many friends of Mr. Martin Petersen gave him a surprise party in honor of the 67th anniversary of his birth. About fifty people of varying ages, carrying oodles of refreshments, made up the party, including the Petersen's daughter, Clara, with her husband, Lewis Self of Birmingham, enjoyed the festivities and social fellowship.

Prof. C.M. Williams returned from Guntersville Monday evening, where he has been teaching in high school for the past school year. Thursday morning he drove to Calera to meet his daughter, Martha, who has just graduated from the State School for the Blind at Talladega. Miss Martha is a lovely young woman, greatly admired by all who know her. She is not totally blind, being able to see enough to get about wherever there are no obstruction or shadows, but in order to preserve such vision as she has she is forbidden to use her eyes for reading or any work that will cause strain.

During her school course at Talladega she has learned to use her fingers and hands instead of her eyes to do a lot of things. This morning we were shown at her home a wicker basket and cover, both lined with silk, which she made. A beautiful and substantial piece of work that anyone might be proud to own. Having learned to do such work, it has ocurred to the writer that it would be a work of love and gerat help if people would help her to secure orders and start something that would aid her to at least earn her own support, as any self-respecting young lady wants to do in these days. Go see her, and find out for yourself what she can do for you and others.

While on this subject we want to call your attention to the fact that one of our fine young men has finished a course in electrical work and is prepared to take jobs in that line. We refer to Cecil Each. He has recently completely re-wired Mrs. Villadsen's green bungalow, in a satisfactory manner, besides other small jobs in that line, and those who know say he understands his business. It seems too bad that our young people must all go away from Thorsby to find employment. We need them right here to help make Thorsby full of new life and vigor.

Rev. and Mrs. Jones returned last Thursday from a trip to Georgia, where they went to visit Mrs. Jones's brother.

Frank Thompson, son of Dudley Thompson, has bought from John Marler a barbecue stand on the highway between Thorsby and Clanton, and employed the man who was operating Thorsby Cafe to manage the place. Mr. Apperton has closed his cafe to take up this work.

Miss Winnie Garrick of Newman, Ga., is visiitng her brother, Howard Garrick and other kinsfolk in and near Thorsby.

Lucile Each went to Lay Dam last Thursday as the guest of her former teacher in Thorsby public school, Miss Primm, who has been principal of the school at Lay Dam for the past school year. School closed Firday and on Saturday morning she and her guest returned to their respective homes in Thorsby.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Bice spent part of last week in Atlanta; they report a nice trip and good roads.

We are pleased to hear that Mr. J. Bice is recovering the sight of one of his eyes, from which Dr. Thigpen of Montgomery recently removed a cataract.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Franklin spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Walker.

Mrs. Anna Parnell and Mrs. A. C. Watts of Birmingham spent several days last week with Mrs. S. C. Wood. Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Parnell and Mrs. Watts spent Friday and Saturday visiting Mrs. King in Selma.

Rev. and Mrs. Each has as their dinner guests Sunday Mr. Sutlive and his mother, also Misses Thoroman and Ruth Gerald.

The Misses Daisy, Eva and Odell Rowe, Aline Hybrant, were dinner guests of Mrs. W. H. Raybon last Sunday.

Fred Howard went to Montgomery last Thursday to see the movies in which he appears catching big fish at Dolphin Island. This film is one made by the State for exhibition of industries and education, and is produced in schools and colleges throughout the State.

Miss Mabel Johnson returned to Akron, Ohio last week, after spending several months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norwood Johnson of Thorsby.

Howard Brothers are clearing out their greenhouses, as carnation season is about over. They carry out all the dirt used to grow flowers the past year and will refill the benches with fresh earth for their new plants late in the summer.

Miss Bertha Littleton and Mrs. Emmett Billingsley have been making extensive repairs and improvements on their home in Thorsby, greatly enhancing its appearance and value.

SMITH - MARTIN

A marriage of interest was that of Miss Jewel Martin daughter of Mrs. Cary Martin, and Marion Smith of Collinsville, Ala., which was quietly solemnized Sunday, May 18, at 3:30 o'clock, at the home of the bride in Thorsby. The house was beautifully decorated with fern and spring flowers. Rev. B. Lawrence performed the ring ceremony. Mrs. C.E. Stapp played the nuptial music. The bride was becomingly gowned in blue chiffon with acessories to match, carrying an arm bouquet of snapdragone. After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Smith left in their car for Collinsville to visit the parents of the groom.

TRUSTEES OF JEMISON SCHOOL REPLY TO L. H. BEAN'S LETTER

Mr. L. H. Bean, in his article in last week's paper, requested the trustees to have the incidental acounts of the Jemison High School examined. For his information we wish to call his attention to the fact that so far as our school is concerned, this has already been done by a State auditor. The report of this audit is on file in the office of the County Superintendent, and if he wishes, he or anyone else may see this report. We have found that the Superintendent's books were audited a short time ago also, and anyone desiring to see this report may do so. The incidental fees of the Jemison High School is $1.00 for each semester in the grammar school and $5.00 each for the high school grades, such fees having been approved by the County Board of Education. This school has grown from an enrollment of 153 to an enrollment of 472 in the past six years, and the indications are that the enrollment will exceed 500 next year.

The continued co-operation of the community means the continued success of the school. People, let us co-operate with our county officials on an upward trend and elect men to office on their merits.—W. C. Erwin, E. L. Lenoir W. G. Atkinson, Trustees.

"THE SACRED FLAME" AT THE WADESONIAN THEATRE

Starring Pauline Frederick, with Conrad Nagel and Lila Lee, "The Sacred Flame" is the big picture of the week at the Wadesonian Theatre. This is another all-talking affair, and has proved very popular wherever shown.

"The Sacred Flame" is reported to be "the perfect film," containing many tense situations, a plane crash, slices of London life as it really is, and all together is a real good play with a good plot and directed by a master, Archie Mayo. These three, —great actors, a great story, good directing, work together to make a picture you'll want to see. At the Wadesonian Theatre Thursday and Friday nights of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox & Thorsby Cash-Carry

Mr. Cox is a young man of pleasing personality and high ideals, one of the kind who makes and holds friends among good people, trustworthy and efficient.

Mrs. Cox was born in Prattville, Alabama, where she grew to womanhood. She is a daughter of Mrs. G. Roy of that city. As a girl Mary Roy attended the public school in Prattville. She received her high school education and graduated at Marbury High School, after which she took a business course in stenography, typewriting, book-keeping, at Jones Business College in Montgomery. After graduating there she secured for a time as a clerk in Montgomery Ward Retail Store in Montgomery. Later she held a position as office assistant to a lawyer in Prattville, until her marriage to Mr. Cox in August, 1929, since then the couple have lived in Thorsby, where Mr. Cox had a position in a leading grocery store. After making two moves from rented rooms, between the end of December and the beginning of April, they fixed up a neat and comfortable home for themselves in the rear of their store which they think will answer their present need. Most young married people set up their home in close quarters.

Here we have the elements for a succesful business. A man and a woman, young, ambitious, healthy, vigorous, affable. Both "paid the cost" in time and money to secure training and experience, or rather, practical experience in the business they have established. They also know the clas sof people whom they expect to attract and serve as customers. A careful examination of their stock reveals the labels of firms having a nation-wide reputation for high class products, put out by corporations standing at the head of, in specialties they produce. Here you will find a good line of Heinz goods, some of the "57 varieties" they widely advertise. Then for lovers of coffee they have the well known "Maxwell House" brands. For tea, you get the pack of Thos. J. Lipton of Hobokon, N. J., who has just celebrated his 80th birthday anniversary, and as a sportsman is still going strong, using a part of his fortune in stimulating yacht races. Having twice failed with his noted "Shamrock" to wrest the "cup" from the New York Yacht Club, he now has issued a third challenge, and is having built a third "Shamrock" with which he hopes to win the trophy next fall.

In canned goods, fruits and vegetables we find on their shelves the well known "Sunday Dinner" brands, always high grade stock, as an accompaniment, for those who love chocolate or cocoa, the well known "Hershey" varieties are present, and in all kinds of sugar one is apt to get the product of this same corporation who have in Cuba probably the greatest area for producing cane sugar of any in the world. The writer has seen their ships in port at Brunswick, Ga., with an almost unbelievable cargo of raw sugar, which they import for their own use in their refineries and chocolate products and to sell to other refineries in this country. In bakery goods, one cannot help but notice the neat paskages and labels of makers of first class goods.

A grocery business, well conducted, is a necessary adjunct to feeding the world. It is the market place of the people. When the writer was a boy there was nothing for food to be had in cans or bottles. Whatever was grown of vegetables or fruits that could be kept in cellars in its natural state had to be dried or preserved. The preserving of food products in tin cans, cooked, ready for use, or otherwise, is an industry employing millions of people, which has entirely developed since the civil war. This the writer knows because he had a lot to do with its development, and the wonderful change it has made in providing our homes with the best of foodstuffs. Among the early pioneers was a man the writer has often met, Gail Borden, of Chicago, who established a condensed milk business at or near Elgin, Ill., in the midst of one of the most noted dairy districts of this country. His "Pet" brand of condensed milk was one of the first on the market. More than fifty years ago, and still holds a prominent place on the shelves of any well ordered grocery store. And Borden owned dairy products are spread all over the country with millions of invested capital and thousands of workers. Carnation condensed milk is another favorite brand, which comes from Oconomowoc, Wis., another great dairy region, and is found at Thorsby Cash and Carry Store.

Thus there young people have embarked in a business which is a unit in the business of feeding humanity. Hudling commodities for which there is always something to do. Along with it they have feed for animals, poultry.

The people and the goods at the Cash and Carry Store are of such character as to make trading there a pleasure. Both Mr. and Mrs. Cox are alert and their stock is so arranged that there is no fumbling to get quickly what you want, and when you get it you can feel confident that it is of good quality. You can also be sure that your trade is appreciated, then too you are giving encouragement to these young people in a venture that is extremely important to them, as well as to yourself, because they are the kind of folks one likes to deal with.

As one enters the store they find in orderly array fresh vegetables, flanked by neat boxes of bakery goods and a glass case containing a tempting array of candies. In a place prepared for it we find tobacco and cigars. On another counter there is a variety of dried fruits. One also finds a good stock of standard makes of bread, crackers, and cheese, macaroni, spaghetti, etc.

Ranged alongside one wall there are bins of apples, oranges, grapefruits, lemons, while hanging near by the luscious bananas, fruits from all parts of the country and others imported from foreign lands. A long row of shelves are well filled with a great variety of the best of canned goods, also glasses and jars of table delicacies. Farther back in the store one finds good brands of flour, breakfast cereals and breakfast foods. Still further back are stored grain and animal and poultry feed.

Coming back to the front, and glancing over the display on the other side of the store we find ready made garments for men, women and children. Not a large stock, but well selected for the needs of ordinary folks. No party gowns or swallow tailed suits, but serviceable garments for people to work in. There is too, a pretty good line of notions, and Mrs. Cox will be pleased to show you whatever they have in stock that you may want.

ALTON A. COX

THORSBY CASH AND CARRY STORE

Thorsby Cash and Carry Store is a comparatively new enterprise at Thorsby. Located in the store adjoining Thorsby Post Office, formerly occupied as a grocery store by D. L. Ward. About February 1st, of the present year, Mr. Cox bought the depleted stock, which Mr. Ward had for some time been preparing to sell, as his business was not satisfactory. Mr. Cox closed the store for two weeks and when he re-opened on February 15th, the whole place had undergone a mervelous transformation, under a master hand; one who had modern ideas as to what his place of business should look like and got it.

Dingy old counters, unsightly boxes and barrels that cluttered the space were fired out, shelving was remodeled, both sides of the room, and neat stands were installed on the middle floor space. All were finished in artistic light colors, and filled with a new stock of goods, so entrancingly displayed that it was like stepping into an exposition or an art gallery, as only vistas of beauty greeted the eye as soon as one stepped inside the door.

The packing or packages of food stuffs in these days are modern works of art as conducted by label makers, and shelves or tables filled with such goods attractively displayed impress one very favorably. Most folks are more or less particular about the appearance of what they are to eat, and anything that looks good leads to the thought that it will taste good, and since "order is one of nature's laws," an orderly display of goods looks right to most people, and produces a sense of satisfaction and esteem, mighty helpful to any mercantile business.

How come? There is always a moving cause or spirit for whatever is done, and in Thorsby Cash and Carry Store we find not one but two such influences, Mr. and Mrs. Cox, both fitted by nature supplemented by training and practical experience for the work they are doing, both young, healthy, energetic. Mr. Cox was born at Coopers, Chilton County in 1907, received primary and secondary education in Marbury and Verbena schools, graduating from High School in 1926, served an apprenticeship of three and a half years in mercantile business, before he undertook to manage such an enterprise on his own account.

REFUGE SINGING

The expression was made that we could have had more people but we couldn't have had a better singing.

The opening song was sung by the chairman, O. R. Robinson, prayer by M. Lockhart. The arranging committee for the day was composed of M. Lockhart, T. L. Mims, and Ben Jones.

Directors for the morning were: T. L. Mims, J. E. Miner, Marion Easterling, Jodie Connell, O. L. DeVaughn, S. V. Miller, M. Lockhart. Then the noon hour, a bountiful dinner was spread. It was the opinion of more than one that there was as much left as was eaten.

Directors for the afternoon were: C. H. Robinson, S. L. Baker, Bill Coggins, Akins Collins, R. M. Robinson, Archie DeVaughn, Herbert Lowery, W. G. Culp, J. W. Clackler, R. E. Powell, G. C. Powell, all singing from one to two songs each.

The Clanton Quartet was with us in the afternoon; composed of Archie DeVaughn, Renfroe Jones, Aknis Collins, Herbert Lowery. It is uselss to say, their numbers were enjoyed by all present. It is a great honor to Clanton and its adjoining communities to have such a quartet.

Pianoists were: W. G. Culp, Mrs. Renfroe Jones, C. H. Robinson, Marion Easterling, Mrs. Annie Robinson.

All are welcome to come to Refuge again.

By request of the Superintendent of the Sunday School let us meet next Sunday promptly at 9 o'clock for the benefit of those who would attend the annual singing at Providence, Beat 16.—O. R. Robinson, Chairman, M. Lockhart, Secy.

A GREAT DISCOVERY

When Pasteur discovered, in 1852, that the infection of wounds was caused by malignant bacteria, he performed a service of inestimable value to mankind. Since then medical science has been producing better and better antiseptics, to kill these germs that may enter the smallest cut and give us diseases such as typhoid, tuberculosis and lockjaw. Now, all you have to do to be sure that these dreadful germs will not infect a wound, is to wash that wound, however small, thoroughly with Liquid Borozone, the modern antiseptic. You can get Liquid Borozone, in a size to fit your needs and purse, from Upchurch Drug Company, Clanton, Alabama.

JUST LIKE AN OSTRICH

A medical authority says that a person who tries to cover up skin blemishes and pimples with toilet creams and powders is just as foolish as an ostrich that buries its head in the sand to avoid danger. Skin eruptions are nature's warning that constipation is throwing poisons into your blood streams and weakening your whole constution. Remove the constipated condition and you will strengthen your system against disease and clear up your disfigured skin. The best way to do this is with a course of Herbine, the vegetable medicine that acts naturally and easily, which you can get at Upchurch Drug Company, Clanton, Alabama

FACTS ON COTTON SPACING ARE GIVEN

Auburn, Ala., May 19.—Results of experiments conducted by the agronomy department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute show that there is very little difference in yield of cotton spaced from 12 to 24 inches in the drill with from two to four stalks to the hill and the rows three and one-half feet apart. Cotton spaced 12 inches apart in the drill with two plants to the hill in three and one-half foot rows produced 1037 pounds of seed cotton per acre while cotton spaced 24 inches in the drill with four plants to the hill in three and one-half foot rows produced 1038 pounds seed cotton per acre.

1137 LAMBS SOLD AT CO-OP SALE

Farmers of the Black Belt section of Alabama held a cooperative lamb sale at the Union Stock Yards, Montgomery, on May 8 and sold 1137 lambs. Top ewe and weather lambs brought farmers 10.75 and buck lambs 10 cents per pound. This price compared facorably with the market at the leading livestock markets of the country. On the same day better grade tops sold at Cincinnatti from 10 to 12 cents.

Announcement has been made that the second cooperatively lamb sale of the season will be held on May 29 with the final clean up sale the latter part of June.

FEEDING POULTRY BETTER

As never before Alabama farmers are feeding their poultry as recommended by the Experiment Station, Auburn, reports Edward A. O'Ueal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation. "They have found that feeding the proper ingredients at the right time pays them bigger returns."

County Farm Agent's Notes

FARMERS BUY FOUR BETTER BRED BULLS

LeFayette, Ala., May 19.—A Jersel bull association has been organized in Chambers County. It has 30 members and is divided into four units, each of which keeps a bull from a regiseter of merit dam. The bulls were bought by the Bank of LaFayette and the Central of Georgia Railroad and have been placed in LaFayette, Rock Springs, Abanda, and Seroyer communities.

County Agent, H. C. Heath and F. W. Burns, livestock specialist of Auburn, assisted the farmers in organizing the association. Heath stated that 4-H Jersey calf club work has stimulated much interest in betetr stock and more dairying.

BIBB PLANS TO GET MORE EGGS

Centerville, Ala., May 19.—to add an additional source of income 25 Bibb County farmers are starting this spring to go into the production of eggs on a commercial scale. They are following an example set last year by a group of enterprising farmers, said County Agent T. P. Lee. The poultry will be fed according to recommendations from the poultry department at Auburn. Mr. Lee stated also that complete records are being kept on 8,000 chickens in Bibb County and that data on mortality, feed cost, and the like will be available. On chicks hatched this spring the mortality was less than eight per cent.

NITROGEN IS REMEDY FOR CORN SHORTAGE

Auburn, Ala., May 19.—By top dressing every acre of corn in Alabama with 100 to 200 pounds of either nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime farmers can increase the production of corn enough to offset the state shortage which amounts to 13,000,000 bushels on the 1929 crop. A statement to this effect has been issued by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He said that this recomendation is being made to Alabama farmers by county demonstration agents in 64 counties of the state.

This statement is based upon work of the Experiment Station which shows a substantial increase in the yield of corn as a result of fertilizing it this way. Lowery used the minimum of six bushels increase per acre and applied it to 2,676,000 acres planted to corn in Alabama last year. Total production was 37,400,000, this being 13,000,000 bushels short of farm needs within the state this year.

If the 1930 corn acreage is increased—as recently estimated by F. W. Gist, of the State Department of Agriculture and Industries, Montgomery—the same method of top dressing with nitrogen fertilizer should be applied, Lowery declared. The rate of application for either nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime is 100 to 200 pounds per acre; and the time to apply it is 35 to 40 days after planting.

Lowery explained also that all of the fertilizer should be applied at the same time, because nothing is gained by dividing it.

The Red Cross may establish a highway emergency service. Speaking of it, James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations, predicted that auotmobiles would kill 400,000 and injure more than 10,000,000 within the next ten years. He explained that the service would not be a substitute for medical care, but would meet the need until the physician arrives on the scene.

HENRY COUNTY TO PLANT MORE SOYS

Abbeville, Ala., May 19.—Farmers of Henry County will plant more soybeans this year than ever before. County Agent C. S. Keller states that in the past few years soybeans have been grown in this county but that 20 farmers have agreed to try four to five acres for hay. They will plant seed of the Otootan variety. Other farmers will grow soybeans of the Mammoth yellow variety for feeding to hogs.

"I was in such a nervous condition that the least noise would startle me and sound sleep was almost impossible. I suffered with indigestion, lost weight, strength and energy and my back hurt me all the time. I was continually taking laxatives for constipation and sick headaches nearly drove me distracted. Sargon restored my appetite and the indigestion is ended. The pains in my back are gone and the headaches have disappeared. I'm not at all nervous, I sleep the whole night through and get up full of life and enthusiasm. I'm gaining in weight and have so much new strength and energy. I'm like a different person.

FARMERS JOIN WHEN TOLD CO-OP PLAN

Montgomery, Ala., May 19.—When told of the work that the farm bureau and the farm board are doing to assist farmers in solving their problems Alabama farmers are becoming members of their farm organization, says Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation. To bear him out in this statement he reported that last week S. B. Mullins talked with 70 farmers about the farm organization program for the betterment of agriculture and 65 of these joined the farm bureau immediately. J. D. Giles, also talked with 40 farmers and 33 of these became members of the farm organization.

TELL HOW TO STOP PESTS OF PECANS

Auburn, Ala., May 19.—Diseases and insects are great enemies of the pecan tree. Hoping to enable farmers to reduce damage authorities at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute have made spraying recommendations.

Bordeaux mixture plus one pound of arsenate of lead and one-half pint of nicotine sulphate to 50 gallons of spray solution is recommended. The Bordeaux mixture is for diseases, the arsenate of lead for the fall webworm and other chewing insects, and the nicotine sulphate for aphids and other sucking insects.

To prepare Bordeaux mixture the authorities say dissolve four pounds of copper sulphate in 25 gallons of water in a wooden container and five pounds of lime in 25 gallons of water. Then pour these two solutions together, letting the streams mingle as they enter the new container. The arsenate of lead and nicotine sulphate should then be added. These recommendations are made by Prof. J. M. Robinson, Dr. C. L. Isbell, of the department of horticulture, and Dr. J. L. Seal, of the school of gariculture.

DOCTORS DISAGREE

When children are irritable and peevish, grind their teeth and sleep restlesly, have digestion pains and disturbances, lack of appetite, and have itching eyes, nose and fingers, doctors will not always agree that they are suffering from worms. Many mothers, too, will not believe that their carefully brough up children can have worms. The fact remains that these symptoms will yield, in a great majority of cases, to a few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge, the sure expellant of round and pin worms. If your child has any of these symptoms, try this harmless, old fashioned remedy, which you can get at 35c per bottle from Upchurch Drug Company, Clanton, Alabama.

BIG COTTON CO-OP NEARING COMPLETION

Montgomery, Ala., May 19.—Cotton farmers will have a giant organization, the American Cotton Cooperative Association, with a paid in capital of at least five million dollars through which to sell their 1930 cotton crop, reported Allen Northington, president. It will be owned and controlled by the state cooperatives, which in turn are owned and controlled by the members.

Mr. Northington explained that Alabama farmers can receive the assistance of the Federal Farm Board, and the American Cotton Cooperative Association by selling their cotton through the Farm Bureau Cotton Association, which has this year handled 163,000 bales of cotton for some 17,000 Alabama farmers. 'In the future cotton delivered to the state cooperatives will be sold thru the central organization," Mr Northington said. "Thus there will be central control and power to do the job."

"Already the American Cotton Cooperative Association exists in the formative stage and to some extent in operation. It will supplant the American Cotton Growers Exchange which was a cooperative body of the state association," he asserted.

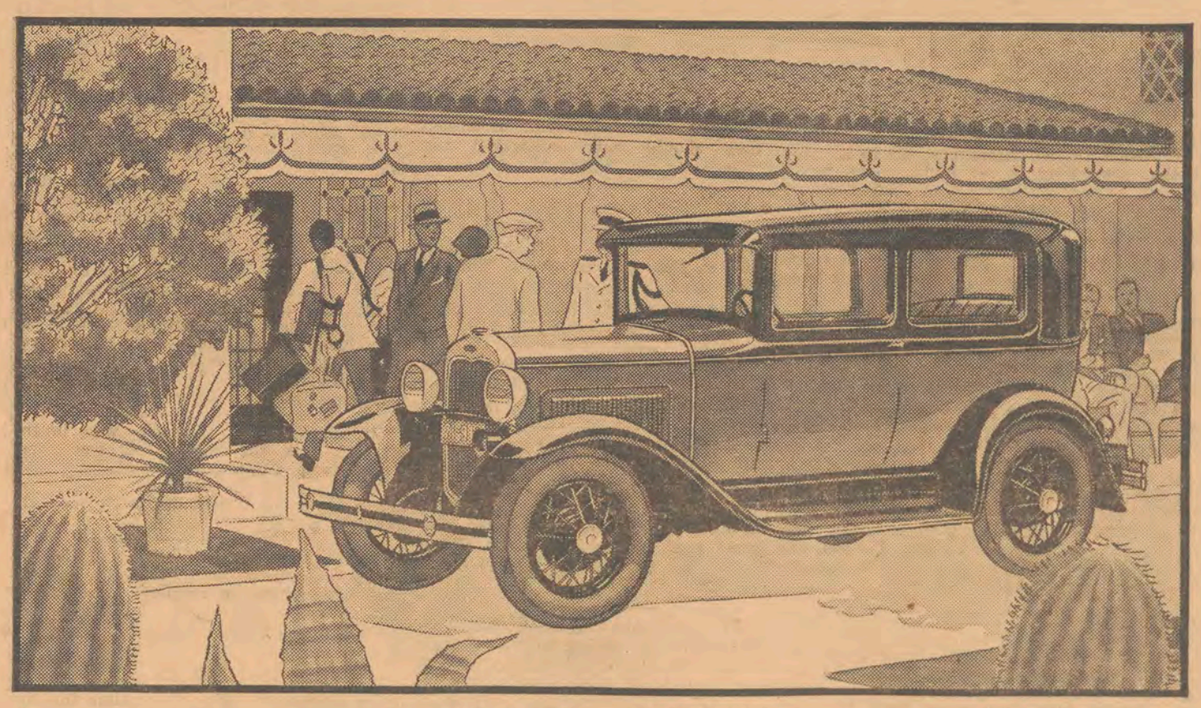
"The new association will be unlike the old exchange in several important features and will function on a larger scale. For example it may buy cotton or deal in cotton if it chooses to do so. This the exchange could not do.

"It will also have the supervision and direction of the Federal Farm Board, back of which Congress seems willing to place almost unlimited funds for revolving purposes. And the board may decide to reach out and bring into service other lines of credit, and also other lines of government service. In brief, the aim apparently is to bring into the system all the money and all the help needed to do the job in a big way.

"In another fundamental the association will be unlike the exchange. It will have control over the state associations. This will be attained through loans made by the parent organization. Here-in was a fatal weakness of the exchange which was never able to koop the state associations functioning along the same lines. Each insisted on its own way of doing business and at times what one did conflicted with others. Furthermore, individual action lacked unity of strength, a vital necessity. Heretofore, the state associations have done as they pleased about selling but this will not be done under the new plan.

"Along with selling, the central organization will handle finances. In fact it will attend to all overhead matters, leaving it with the state organizations to get members and keep in touch with them through service." Mr. Northington said.

FARMERS PLANTING MORE SOYBEANS



Indications are that Alabama farmers are planting more soybeans for hay this year than ever before. They have purchased some 13,000 bushels cooperatively through the farm bureau as compared with less than half this amount purchased last year.

J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of Auburn, reports that indications are that at least twice as many beans are being planted this year than last.

David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, predicts that instead of the 20,000 theatres now operated in the United States, there will be in the future what he termed 20,000,000 home theatres, where radio sets will receive vocal and visual entertainment through television.

ONLY A DOCTOR KNOWS WHAT A LAXATIVE SHOULD BE

Danger lies in careless selection of laxatives! By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach and bowels, lack of appetite or energy warns of constipation, you risk forming the laxative habit.

Depend on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach disorders. Its originator tried it in thousands of cases; found it safe for women, children and old folks; thoroughly effective for the most robust man. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It is composed of fresh herbs and other pure ingredients. You can get it, in generous bottles and ready for use, at any drugstore.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

To note the steady drift in sentiment of the American people against foreign entanglements in our international policies, nothing is more significant than the official declarations of the two great political parties. Both of the platforms in 1928 declared against foreign entanglements. In view of past history, the most significant change, perhaps, is that in the official Democratic declaration. It will be remembered that back in 1920 the Democrats, officially, were for the League of Nations, and advocated adherence to the League in the campaign. While the Republicans did not do this, there were a number of leaders who were regarded at the time as friendly to the League and who were not heartily in favor of making our independence from the League the paramount issue. After the election there was no question as to where the American people stood. Ten years have passed and public sentiment has become much more firmly fixed against foreign entanglements. The League issue and the World Court issue are no longer partisan questions.

It is interesting to note therefore, the Democratic party's declaration on foreign policy in the last national platform. While criticizing the policy of the Republican administration, as was natural, the Democrats declared for "outlawry of war and an abhorrence of militarism, conquest and imperialism," "freedom from entangling political alliances with foreign nations;" "non-interference with the elections or internal political affairs of any foreign nation." In favor of international agreements for the reduction of world armaments; in support of the Monroe Doitrine as a "cardinal prinnple of this government." In the matter of foreign cooperation the platform recommends: "full, free and open cooperation with all other nations for the uromotion of peace throughoue the world."

It will be noted that there is no direct mention of the League of Nations or the World Court. There is no direct mention of either of these two institutions in the Republican platform except for the following paragrahp: "The Republican Party maintains the traditional American policy of non-interference in the political affairs of other nations. This government has definitely refused membership i the League of Nations and to assume any obligation under the covenant of the League. In this we stand."

Truly, it may be said, times have changed since 1920. The old issues are changing, too, not only in our foreign policies but in economic affairs. The tariff is a political issue is changing. The oponents of protection have altered their motheds, and assaults are being devised in new directions. The tariff is no longer the partisan issue that it once was. Neither is the problem of keeping Uncle Sam out of foreign entanglements.

LONG WAY TO GO

Dr. William E. Rappard, Swiss Delegate to the League of Nations, said in New York recently that while the London naval conference is a step in the right direction, it must not be regarded by Americans as a promising precedent for a general world disarmament. Dr. Rappard declared:

"It does not follow because three powers have been able to agree on a limitation of their naval armaments at London that all the states represented at Geneva will be able to agree on a limitation of all armaments. Indeed, the political and technical difficulties which confront those engaged in the pursuit of this much more ambitious goal would seem insuperable. No ratio of relative needs and possibilities, such as that which the United States, Great Britain and Japan agreed upon at London, can be devised in Geneva to satisfy the conflicting views of European powers."

He continued that "the delative potency of land armaments cannot be measured and controlled as easily as that of naval forces. Therefore, if progress on the road to general disarmament is effectively to be promoted in Geneva, the methods adopted will have to be radically different from those successfully applied in a limited field in London."

There is doubtless a great deal of truth in the above assertions. We have had two naval limitations conferences which have been able to reach agreements because the United States, a growing naval power, was able to use its potent influence for naval disarmament. But when it comes to land armaments the situation is different. Uncle Sam does not have a big army, not so large in comparison as many of the third rate powers in Europe. He cannot insist on land disarmament because he has nothing to offer in the way of sacrifice.

Now if the nations of Europe, with their tremendous armies, are as much interested in peace as our own internationalists profess to believe, let them keep up the good work started by Uncle Sam and cut down their armies in proportion to ours.

Will they do it? Not so anyone can notice it. They would perhaps be willing to listen if Uncle Sam were to guarantee each of them and promise, in case of trouble, to send a few million of our boys over into Europe again. But unless Uncle Sam agrees to this—and he will not agree—there will be nothing doing about ruducing the size of the armies.

Our own piffling pacifists and internationalists have often tried to picture Uncle Sam standing, with his efficient navy, in the way of peace. Now with his tiny army Uncle Sam is not standing in the way of peace. Somebody else is doing that so far as land armament is concerned, and it is now up to our pacifists to try to remedy this situation. Let them try it and see how far they get.

WE GUARANTEE NO NATION'S SAFETY

Before she will modify her demand for a fleet tonnage of 724,000 tons, France must have a guarantee from nations signatory to the proposed five-power pact that they will go to her rescue with arms in case she becomes involved in war. That is the block upon which delegates to the London conference today are stumbling.

Perhaps France should understand, and does understand, that at least so far as the United States is concerned our national policy forbids any such entangling alliance. Far better from our standpoint that France be permitted to build all the ships she wishes and that we do the same than that this country enter into an agreement in advance to ally herself with any nation in the latter's wars.

The United States anticipates no trouble with France nor with any other country, while France has same reasons to expect trouble from more than one source, due to the complicated political situation in Europe. Always hanging over her is the menace of Italy, and in time Germany may become powerful enough to be feared again.

Such an arrangement as France suggests could be of no interest to the United States, for it would be wholly one-sided. The United States, to be sure, is not immune from attack, not beyond the possibility of engaging in a war, but at least she has no traditional foe to fear and only in some remote event could benefit by a military alliance with any nation.

It is improbable that the American delegates would be willing to enter into any deal such as France proposes; certainly not if the delegates know the temper of their countrymen; and if they should, the Senate would not ratify any such treaty.—Munice, Ind., Press.

HOW, INDEED?

How, in the name of common sense we ask, can our pacifists urge that the United States afford to take second place as a sea power? We do not urge that we have supremacy. Mind you that. We don't want to be bigger than Britain, but we do maintain that we should be as big. The United States is the richest nation on the globe. It has, therefore, a tremendous stake on the seas. Our ocean-going commerce epuals that of Britain, and it is bound to expand. Our prosperity is dependent upon an ability to keep the seas open in the event of an international war from which we may choose to stand aloof. Upon the United States depends the defense of neutral rights against the depredations of war-crazed powers. And under the principle of parity we can achieve the maximum of naval strength not incompatible with a British neutralization policy. Parity saves the pride of both this country and Great Britain, and enables the United States to gain the maximum of security at the minimum of cost.—Ft. Wayne News-Sentinel.

THE JACK POT

BY "JACK" HIMSELF

Who said "It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo' "—just who said it? Maybe it won't where he is, but that ain't here. These showers make us think of the good old days of last fall, when we had just about decided the rain tank up above had a big split somewhere in it.

Most of the farmers have their planting seed in the ground, but those seed will have to hurry or the grass and weeds will beat them out of the ground. You know, that's a funny thing—the cultivated plants have to struggle like the very Old Nick to beat the poor little grass plants, even though the farmer himself is all the time helping one and working against the other. Ain't it a pity it isn't the other way 'round.

Did you ever stop to think why the collection plates in the churches have the nice little velvet pads in the bottom of them? One fellow says they're there so that nobody can tell what is dropped in—"beans" or buttons.

Have you attempted to walk along the sidewalks of that part of town near the railroad, particularly on Saturday afternoons, and more particularly near night-fall. Roy Cohen has made 18th Street in Birmingham famous by his description of that particular street at 8 o'clock on Saturday nights, but we just wish he could see our own Second Avenue, near the railroad. He'd take a new start.

We have reference to the number of negroes who gather there, and seem to consider it private property, the way they block the walks. Now, we reckon negroes have as much right to walk along the sidewalks as anybody else, but NOBODY has a right to block them. Just try to go from the "Fair" corner to the railroad without rubbing your shoulder against negroes or being stepped on several times by them.

And the bad part of it is, you don't dare speak about it, or you'll be told straight off the bat that it's a free country. Maybe it IS a free country, but the POTTER don't think the proper place for a confab or general convention is in the middle of the sidewalk, by whites, blacks, or any other color.

Well, here it is summer again, with its flies, mosquitoes and snakes, and the swamp isn't drained yet. A little while ago we had high hopes of seeing that bit of improvement gone through with, but we've about lost hope again. In the winter the swamp pests don't bother us, and in the summer it's always too late to begin. Do you suppose it will ever be done,

Now that the post office has been moved and everybody is about to get used to going to the new location for their mail, just look back and think how little interruption in the extra service there was. That speaks well for everybody concerned. The public and the office "force" could have made the move a matter of much trouble for each other, but such was not the case.

On the one hand, the patrons of the office could have made the going hard for those in charge of the office, as is the case lots of times on such occasions in different towns. "Rushes"—senseless demands for uninterrupted service, even though hampered by the new equipment with which postal employees, themselves, were not familiar, would have worked needless hardship on the employees.

But it speaks well for Clanton people that they co-operated in every way possible with the postal force. It shows that our people appreciate the quality of service they have received from the postal employees in the past, and were willing to do their part and bear their part of the general handicap due to the newness of the surroundings, and which was unavoidable to some degree.

On the other hand, we are quite sure that Clanton people apreciate the way the "force" has co-operated with them, also. At all times the postal employees have responded to the numerous requests to "open my box, please" in a manner which only shows over and over again the excellent service these men have always made it a point to render.

Mr. Wiley M. Bean, the postmaster, and his "force," Mr. Luther Bean, and Mr. Sutley, are certainly to be commended for the class of service they have given while working under the handicap as described above. Not every town has the class of postal service Clanton has—not by a long shot.

Great jumpin' Jupiter! The way the boys have been catching fish for the last few days. Seems like most anybody could go out fishing and come back with a big string—all but the POTTER—we can't catch 'em. That's all there is to it.

There's something strange about that, too. There's an art to it. It looks like they just bait the hook, hang it out in the water, and the "crappies" come and get on—yep, it LOOKS that way—but there's something else to it. Just what that something is, we don't know, but it makes the difference between a nice string of fish and the well-known "fisherman's luck". You know.

And you just ought to get in a boat and take a trip up or down the Coosa. If you didn't know better, you'd vow that was a thickly setled region. Fishing camps line the bank almost solid--nice ones, too. A few years ago, when the waters of the river were first impounded, a rough cabin here and there was all. But not now. The camp houses are nice ones--all painted and screened, and touched up here and there with modern conveniences that make real pleasure trips out of the visits out in the "wilds".

Good roads lead to most of the camp sites, too. Of course there comes a guy once in a while with a bad case of the "gripes" because the road machines go in there and work those roads. But that's just the old story of the man, his son, and the donkey in the third reader all over again—you can't please everybody.

Chilton County's play grounds are doing much to advertise the County and its posibilities. The "big boys" come down to play in the water, notice the general up-to-date aspect of our County, and go back home with a good impression of the region. Pretty soon they come back inquiring where they nan find some site for sale—who can tell—on account of Chilton's sporting possibilities it may some time become mighty popular as a resort. "Great oaks from little acorns grow." You've heard that one, haven't you?

By the way—what's become of the "hard times" grouch of a few weeks ago? Gone again, as usual? Now that we're through with that annual spell, we can all get to going again. After all, somebody says, prosperous times don't come to you—you go out and get 'em. Remember what the POT said along this line a few weeks ago? Well, it's happened. Just as soon as the green plants got up so that they would look like greenbacks—aw, you know how it is.

Au revoir.—"JACK."

THE CONSTITUTION AFLOAT

The American frigate Constitution rides the waves again. The famous warship has been made over from a recaying hulk into a semblance of its gone glory. "Old Ironsides" is afloat because the children of the United States piled millions of pennies into a fund that grew to be $400,000. It was only right that hundreds of school children should have looked on as the Constitution sat again upon the water.

Shades of the men who contributed to the forty-two victories achieved by the Constitution must rejoice that the old frigate has been resurrected from a grave in mud, that her dead spars and timbers have been replaced with new, that she is restored to seaworthiness, prime to move about the seven seas. "Old Ironsides" dates from 1794 when President Washington signed the law authorizing her construction. She first tasted the sea October 21, 1797.

The restoring of the Constitution is an eloquent gesture. She will have no practical duty in the navy. Her usefulness is in summoning up scenes of years when battles on the high seas frequently develop into hand-to-hand death grapples. She was the pride and the glory of the American navy in its earliest seasons. For years while the Constitution was the American flagship, pirates continued to infest the seas in parts of the world, and privateers were still legitimate.

"Old Ironsides" takes Americans back to the beginnings of their republic. She is emblematic of American skill, ingenuity and resourcefulness in building war vesesls capable of defeating the proud men of other nations. Should the Constitution be sent on a tour of American ports, interest in the navy would be quickened. Sight of the old craft would stimulate thought of what a new-born nation achieved in defense of its rights.—Charleston News and Courier.

RUSSIA AND RELIGION

There is a double hypocrisy in the replies of Soviet Russia to the foreign protests against the Rusian anti-religious campaign. Firstly, the government and its sympathizers declare that people are not being prosecuted and punished in their religious capacities; it is only when they transgress the laws that they have anything to fear. But this assertion belied by a thousand manifest facts. Why has every church in Chita, eastern Sibera, been shut? Why is The Godless One, the weekly journal of the Moscow Godless League (which is offered by Communist leaders), demanding that all the churches in the great province of Moscow be likewise shut?

The second hypocrisy is the Russian assertion that the protests against the anti-religious campaign are a prelude to armed intervention in Russia. They are nothing of the kind. If Russia wants to shed more blood within its own boundries it will not be forcibly intercepted with. But certainly the churches throughout the world have a right to protest when their members, comunicants, or co-religionists, in Russia, are persecuted on religious grounds.

One of the most amazing aspects of the situation is that the protests have been so long withheld. But perhaps even more amazing is the fact that some of the most vociferous demands for American recognition of Russia have come from clergymen. Of course they are clergymen of the pink or red variety, whose main interest in the church is to use it for the promotion of radicalism.—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Why not envy the Swiss people a little? They don't have to worry about any naval conferences.

Two Massachusetts boys who ran away from home to become avaitors were betrayed in New York by their Bostonian accent. If they wanted to remain in Manhattan unnoticed they should have cultivated the "Thoid Avenue" dialect.

Americans spend a staggering sum at soda fountains for drinks. It is estimated that they spent $725,000,000 in this way in 1929. This figure does not include fountain food service which is estimated to have totaled close to $250,000,000.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

You remember a few weeks back I mentioned something about how much better Clanton would look if the old metal sheds in front of the stores were torn away. What results do you suppose came from that suggestion? Answer: None of the sheds torn down, but one more new one built. Now I will know better how to make the next suggestion.

I have noticed sometimes that a good way to keep a child from doing something is to suggest and insist that it do the very thing which you don't want it to do.

My friend Wallace C. Edler, of Thorsby has gone to Seattle, Washington, to visit his daughter. Somehow I feel that I shall never see him again. Mr. Edler is an old man. He has already lived well past that space of years which is man's allotment in this world. In recent years he has talked freely to me right out of his heart. The manner in which he looks upon the termination of his long life in this world marks him as the big, strong, and courageous man which his career has proven him to be. A strange feeling of awe creeps over me as I see him walk bravely and unflinchingly into the shadows.

But I am by nature endowed with hope in spite of the certainty of the end of all life. Maybe he will come back. For all I know, he may be given a season of respite for a pleasant sojourn with his relatives, and after that be able to come back to his adopted home before the end.

I have been intimately acquainted with Wallace C. Edler since the years of my boyhood. I have seen much that I admired in his rugged strength and everlasting determination. He came here under circumstances that offered bitter opposition to his plans and purposes. He was a soldier in the active years of his life. He went through the Civil War in the army of General Grant. Later he spent a number of years fighting indians on the Western frontiers. He was a fighter, and he fought his opposition here, never yielding an inch.

After all is said and done, the one big fact remains: He stuck to his guns and did not run away. His newspaper "The Union," which he founded in 1903, took firm root under his direction, and in spite of all opposition, it gained friends and grew more and more popular. In 1912 The Union was able to absorb The Banner, thereby bringing together the two newspapers that had been bitter enemies for a decade.

The universal opinion prevails that Chilton County High School has just closed the best year in its history. After a long season of mediocrity, it is encouraging to see the capstone of our county educational system coming into a place of eminence and confidence with those whom it serves.

A THOUGHT ON THE CENSUS

As the new census figures all over the country are announced, many towns and cities begin again to overemphasize mere size. The argument is apparently that a city of 25,000 is bound to be better than one of 24,000. The additional 1,000 population is offered under the doctrine of majority rule, as the proof.

Personally it has always seemed to us that the quality of the people in Clanton has been a bigger civic asset than the number. We would prefer to see 100 cultured, respectable, hard-working men and women move into our community than 1,000 people of doubtful purpose, morals and intentions.

Good homes are the backbone of any community. And in the long run, one good home is most likely to prove of more value to the community than a great number of people who can be classed as only giving a swell to the census figures.

Naturally the population determines in a large degree the business of the town. But very often the back-country that trades within a city or town is as important in the commercial life as are those who live within the municipal limits. The character of these citizens is an important factor in the desirability of the town or city from many viewpoints.

Clanton and Chilton County have been blessed, we should say, with people of fine characteristics. These traits should be appreciated, and our young people should emulate them. Everyone, who is called upon to choose a town or city in which to live or in which to trade, should be on his guard and not be led astray by the typically American insistence upon size.

In the last ten years the town of Clanton has increased in population 436. You may ask where did these people come from or when did they come? Doubtless you can not find the answer to that question. They did not come in response to any boom of any kind. In fact, the increase is so small that it is noticeable only in the census report.

That Clanton is 436 people bigger now than it was ten years ago, we take to mean that there are now living in our midst that many more of the good, honest, intelligent, hard-working folks that are typical of this section of Alabama. They have come here unheralded and unnoticed, just a few now and then. They have added to the stability of our town by doing business here, by rearing families here, and by building a wholesome home atmosphere which they may enjoy and cherish as their own part in a community existence that is peaceful, happy, and perhaps as prosperous as the average of the country.

Dr. Stephen M. Babcock, who invented the test of milk for butter fat, was receiving a medal from Governor Hoard, of Wisconsin. "Doctor," said the Governor, "your new test has made more honest dariymen than the Bible has ever done."

It is reported that Joseph Stalin, secretary of the Communist Party in Rusia, has purchased nine automobiles in England at a cost of from $13,000 to 15,000 each. Of course these are for the proletariat.

New York City suffered a cold wave recently and a temperature of 29 degrees on April 24 broke all record. Up to this time the New York World has failed to blame it on to the Volstead act.

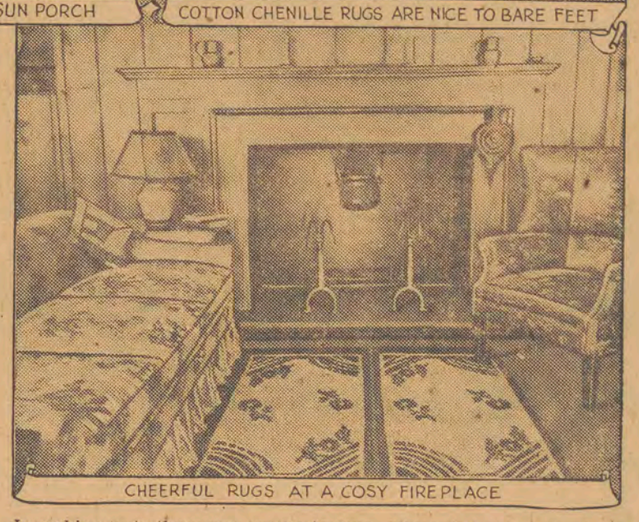
Sun-Fast, Washable Cotton Rugs Brighten The Household and Lighten Housework

A GAY FLOWER RUG FOR THE SUN PORCH

COTTON CHENILLE RUGS ARE NICE TO BARE FEET



By VIRGINIA SMITH

WITH improvements in other phases of modern housekeeping have come improvements in attractive floor coverings. Cotton rugs in the most charming colors and interesting designs have come to the front. They are a real joy to the woman who likes to express her own individuality through color combinations in home furnishings.

The modern tendency is to simplify housekeeping wherever possible and it is quite certain that the vogue of the polished hardwood floor, or the painted floor of less perfect wood, has come to stay. Rugs that may be taken up and replaced at a moment's notice are the popular choice. Because they are easier to handle the smaller rugs are often preferred to the larger sizes.

Can Be Laundered

Outstanding among the new and economical rugs chosen by the modern home maker are the washable and reversible cotton chenilles. The illustrations in this group show what charming results may be obtained by using these cotton rugs, which come in many designs and color combinations. The rugs pictured here are guaranteed by the manufacturer to be sun-fast and laundry-proof, no matter how harsh the laundry may be. We have had washable cotton rugs before but none like these, which lie perfectly flat on the floor immediately after they have been cleansed in either the home or the commercial laundry.

CHEERFUL RUGS AT A COSY FIREPLACE

In making tests these new cotton chenille rugs, manufactured by a special weaving and dyeing process, have been boiled in far stronger solutions than are used by any commercial laundry, and have emerged triumphant, without any perceptible loss in color and without in any way losing their shape or beauty. That seems almost too good to be true, but numerous laboratory and practical tests offer convincing proof.

All Are Reversible

One of the striking and most popular designs is the floral pattern shown in the sun-porch illustration. Another popular floral pattern is that shown in the cozy fireplace scene, where colorful rugs always lend charm to the setting. A more severe pattern is the squared rug in the old fashioned bedroom interior. There are many other patterns, simple and elaborate, floral and geometric in motif, too numerous to mention here. The favorite colors seem to be rose, green and blue. They come in dark and pastel shades of blue, yellow, purple, rose and green. They also are made in a color combination of black and silver. All are reversible.

In some the designs are embossed, that is, raised above the surface. Their cost is slightly more than the others, but all are unbelievably reasonable in price.

Evangelistic Campaign At Verbena is Now Going On

Dr. W. R. Seymour of Selma and W. H. Kamplain of Montgomery Conducting Services Nightly

Beginning Tuesday night of this week, an interdenominational district evangelistic campaign was launched at the Verbena high school auditorium. The peraching is being done by Dr. W. R. Seymour of Selma, former superintendent of the Baptist Hospital at Selma. The singing is in charge of the pastor of the Verbena Baptist church, "Sunny Bill," sometimes known as "The Singing Parson," and otherwise referred to as Rev. W. H. Kamplain, of Montgomery. Rev. Kamplain will be assisted in the singing by Mr. Lee Robinson of Verbena, Mr. Ralph Grant of Coopers and Miss Bertie Grant of Coopers.

In conversation with Rev. Kamplain Wednesday morning, he said: "We were mighty well pleased with the crowd the first night, but there will be more people to attend later. Tell the folks of Verbena and all about to come on out and be with us. We have something in store for them that is worth while."

Thursday night, May 22nd, will be designated as "Farternal Night."

Friday night comes the big night of this week—"Coopers Night." The people of Coopers will be given special recognition at this time. The big feature on Friday night's program will be the appearance of the Clanton Quartet, with several appropriate musical numbers. Be sure to attend this service; not only the people of Coopers, but from everywhere else.

These services will continue thru Thursday night of next week, May 29th. Try and arrange to attend part or all of these services.

H. C. COLLINS WILL LIKELY ATTEND SING CONVENTION

The following letter has just been received by the secretary of the Chilton County Singing Convention:

Cairo, Ga., May 20th, 1930.

Mr. T. E. Wyatt, Clanton, Ala:

I received your kind invitation to attend the Chilton County Singing Convention, which is to convene on first Sunday in July at Jemison. I want to thank you heartily for your kindness in remembering me. Just now I cannot say whether I can accept the invitation or not. Most pobably I will, as I axpect to teach some in that section of Alabama this summer.

Am sure I would enjoy being there. I was thrilled over the opportunity of being at Maplesville, as I met so many of my former pupils of that section.

Trusting it will be my happy privilege to attend, I am, very sincerely yours,—H. C. Collins.

That if you can beat your wife continually, she will love and respect you, and will go through hell at your slightest command.

That if a man refuses to change his mind, it shows that he possesses determination.

That if a woman refuses to change her mind, she is pig-headed and shrewish.

That a woman cannot drive an automobile because she is too nervous and frail.

That women are meant only to be wives, and that men know life and are better ones to make decisions.

That women have no sense of humor.

Get $29 Extra Profit From Acre of Cotton

Knowing what and when to feed cotton for heavy fruiting and profitable yields is no longer a secret. For years experiment station workers have known that the cotton plant, in order to fruit heavily, needed an abundant supply of nitrate nitrogen. It has been found that this need is greatest about 35 or 40 days after planting, or not later than the appearance of the first blooms.

In 1928 and 1929, 1,007 cotton farmers conducted side-dressing demonstrations for the purpose of measuring the additional cotton made through this method of fertilizing. Fields where the usual planting-time fertilizer was applied were selected for making these tests. At the second cultivation after chopping, a part of each field was side-dressed with 150 to 200 pounds of Chilean nitrate of soda per acre. These farmers kept a careful record of the two parts of the field to determine the additional yield made from the side-dressing. The average increase from the 1,007 demonstrations was 416 pounds seed cotton per acre, worth at current prices approximately $29.12.

Its A Wise Judge

"Next case" called out the judge, ad a middle aged Irish couple was ushered into the court room. They made a pitiful picture as they sttod there before the bar of justice—the strong, healthy, two hundred pound woman and her poor, meek, battered little spouse.

The judge adjusted his glasses, then turned to the man and said: "You are accused of beating your wife. Do you wish to plead guilty or not guilty to this charge?"

"Guilty, sir," came back the little man, without a moment's hesitation.

"Five dollars or five days," demanded the judge.

After the session was over one of the court officials asked the judge if he hadn't been a little bit severe in sentencing the little fellow.

Oh, no," explained the judge," I had to give him something for braggin'."

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

THERE STOOD BY THE CROSS HIS MOTHER

I ask you to pray while we think of the honor which God has conferred upon mother. We think of these three verses: Honor thy father and mother that thy days may be long upon the earth." "My son, forsake not the law of thy mother." "There stood by the cross His mother." The poet write these words:

A mother is a mother still,
The holiest thing on earth.

The three sweetest words in any langauge are these: Heaven, Home, Mother. Mother and home are the tenderest words on the chords of the human heart. If the word "mother" does not appeal to you and inspire you to the best things in your life, as Robert Burns has written, you ought to go back to nature's mint and be made over. Mother, that name comes to us from the garden of Edan down through inspired history garlanded with the flowers of gratitude and love.

God put so much emphasis on the idea of mother that He let His only Son be born of a mother. The Son of prophecy, the Son of the ages, the Messiah was born of a mother. God put so much emphasis on the idea of mother that He turned over the training physically, mentally, spiritually, to a mother. That is, He placed the training of the only Son He ever had, the Son of His heart, the Son of His bosom to a mother, Mary of the hill country of Galilee.

To those of us whose mothers have finished their earthly course and are gone from our presence:

I have missed you, mother of mine,
I have missed your smile of love divine,
I miss the soft, swift tread of your feet here and there,
I miss the gentle touch of your hand on my brow,
I miss your heavenly cares you always gave,
I miss the sympathy you gave to me at your knee,
I miss your kind and understanding plea,
But most of all dear mother of mine,
I miss your kind, your patient daily smile.

Who fed me from her gentle breast,
And hushed me in her arms to rest,
And on my cheeks sweet kisses prest?
My mother.
When sleep forsook my open eye,
Who was it sung sweet lullaby,
And rocked me that I should not cry?
My mother.

When pain and sickness made me cry,
Who gazed upon my heavy eye,
And wept for fear that I should die?
My mother.

When thou art feeble, old, and grey,
My healthy arm shall be thy stay,
And I shall soothe thy pains away,
Dear mother.

And when I see thee hang thy head,
'Twill be my turn to watch thy bed,
And tears of sweet affection shed,
My precious mother.

I ask you to prayerfully think of some mothers of the Old Testament. On the banks of the Euphrates River was the garden of Eden in which were placed a father and mother to dress and keep it beautiful. God named this mother Eve which name in the Hebrew language means the "mother of all living." We can speak of her as the mother of humanity. She was the mother of the boys and girls, men and women on down throughout the ages.

The next mother we think of was Sarai. She was the mother of faith in God. Are you a mother of faith? Have you enough faith in God to know that He will keep that child of yours which you have committed unto Him? Have you faith that assures you that God will keep your child from falling along the dark, rugged pathway? It was faith in God that led Abraham and Sarai to journey into a land they know not where. It was faith that made her leave an idolatrous country, tear the dearest idols she had known out of her heart and life.

Next we come to the broken-hearted mother. Her name was Hagar. There was no law to protect Hagar from Sarai's desire that she and her son, Ishmael, be cast from Abraham's household, and God spoke to Abraham that her wish be granted. I see Abraham rise early in the morning and fill a jar with water and wrap up a nice loaf of bread and give it to Hagar and send her away. I see Hagar and Ishmael traveling lonely and sad through the wilderness of Beersheba. Hagar gives the last water and the last morsel of bread to Ishmael. They travel on a while and then in despair Hagar places her hungry, thirsty child under some scrubby bushes and walks away that she might not see him struggle in death.

As she wept bitterly the angel of God called unto her, "Hagar, what aileth thee? Fear not for God hath heard the voice of thy son. He sees and knows where he is. Do not despair, but go over there to thy son and lift him up; I will yet make of him a great nation." Then God opened her eyes and she beheld a well of water. When you are in the desert with a bleeding, broken heart, O to have God come and say to you, "Here bring thy wounded, broken heart. Fear not, for behold I am with thy child. I know where he is. Only trust him to Me."

We now come to Jochebed. I would say she was a wise mother, a mother of genius, ingenuity, enterprise, and greatest of all a loving mother, a mother of love. This mother of genius in her love for her child devised a method of preserving his life when it was hanging in the balances. She did not know that God had the special plan for his life but she loved her child and wished to save his life from the decree of Pharoah that he be drowned in the Nile River. She prayed to God just like your mother and my mother did. I imagine she kissed her little baby one morning early and walked out of that little cabin on the Nile to gather some reeds. With these reeds she wove a little basket with a prayer in her heart that God spare the life of her baby. She goes back to Miriam and the baby and says, "Miriam, tomorrow Pharoah's officers will be here to drown your little brother. So I have made this little basket and filled in each little space so that it can floa like a little boat on the water. I am going to place it among the bulrashes on the Nile and you must hide over near it and watch that nothing harms Moses when I have safely and comfortably placed him in." That was mother's love. I see her kiss him tenderly and with great tears rolling down her cheeks walk back to that humble little cabin on the Nile. I think of that loving caress my own dear mother placed upon my cheek as I went forth from that humble but happy home out in the world away from her tender care. I just pray every day that I never betray my mother's desire for her son, that I live for my mohter's Saviour. "My son, forsake not the law of thy mother, but bind them continually about thy neck."

We think now of a mother named Jezreel, whose husband was Ahab. With this mother you pass by one of the darkest, most terrible pages of Old Testament history. She sat on the marble porch of that grand palace. The ruins of which I saw while in Palestine, and twitted her husband into the murderous scheme to get Naboth's vineyard. I see her husband come up as she sits here coveteous and rudely says, "I am tired of sitting here with pretty cheeks looking over at that wonderful vineyard and longing for it. It ought to be ours. You ought to be ashamed to let Naboth, one of your subjects keep it when I want it myself. You certainly have little brains to let such an insignificant creature outdo you." So Ahab yielded to her saying, "Well, I will get it for you. Just keep quiet and I will do as you say." So she became the murderess of Naboth and her husband also a murderer of Naboth. O what an awful thing it is to be a coveteous mother!

When you think of the word great you think of God. When you think of the word length you think of eternity. When you think about darkness you think of sin. When you think of meanness you thing of hypocrisy. But when you think of the word love you think of the greatest thing in the world. "Faith, hope, love, these three, but the greatest of these is love." So with love we associate the sweetest and dearest thing on earth, mother. Love is not covered up but expresses itself. O how mother expresses love. Her love expressed itself in her sweet, patient, gentle, self-sacrificing life for you. She is the angel spirit of the home. If her love will not make you a better man or woman I am sure that I cannot describe what kind of creature you are.

No position in life is superior to that of mother. No influence is more potent for good or evil than the influence of mother. We now think of Hannah. I would name her the praying mother. She with her husband Elkanah walked seventeen miles to church. Then only record of her not attending worship service was when Samuel, her son, was being fed from her gentle breast, before he was weaned. After that she took him to the synagogue at Shiloh and dedicated him to the Lord. That si, she gave the best she had to the Lord. She longed so for a child that she prayed for his advent into the world so fervently that the people in the synogogue thought she was drunk. Right along here we find a wonderful definition of prayer, "Hannah spake in her heart to the Lord."

TIRES as good as these USUALLY COST A LOT MORE MONEY

But this is the Goodrich Cavalier . . . amazingly high quality at low prices

MEAN THAT? Of course, we mean it! And we can prove it, too . . . any way you want to name!

Find a tire that matches the Cavalier point by point and you'll find a tire that costs more!

That's because Cavalier is made by Goodrich. Made under the strictest standards in the business. Made to stand up as only Goodrich Tires stand up.

For instance . . . it's bigger in cross section to give it riding comfort. It's thicker through the tread . . . to give it long life and high mileage.

Its carcass is of weftless cord . . . to cut internal heat and friction. Its tread rubber is dense and fine in texture . . . for slow wear. And the whole tire is water-cured to give it equal toughness all the way through.

Yet with all that, Cavaliers cost less than just ordinary casings. Because Goodrich cut costs wherever they could without lowering quality. Because Goodrich set out to build an outstanding tire at a sensationally low price.

And . . . at the moment . . . because we want every car owner in town to see how good a tire Cavalier is! We've put special prices on them for a limited time only.

So if you want to see a good tire . . . see Cavalier. Your size in stock now . . . and two sizes for trucks. Come in quickly. Tomorrow, sure.

D. H. GENTRY WRITES ABOUT HIS CANDIDACY

Dear Friends:

You have probably noticed my announcement in this paper for Commissioner of the Second District, but I am writing a few words to say to you that I shall appreciate your vote and influence.

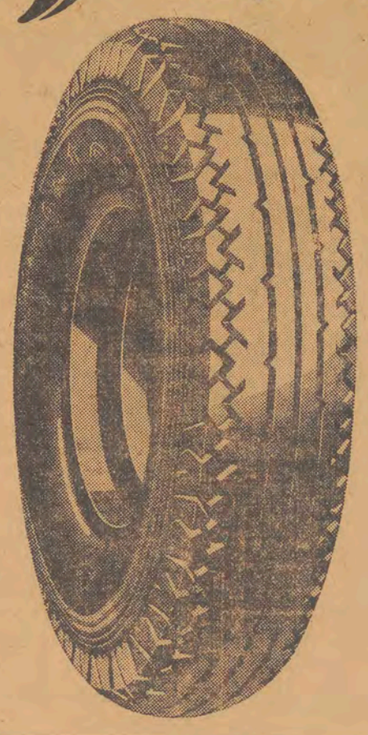
I have served you once before as Commisioner and did the best I could under the circumstances. The morning I took office the county was in debt $238,000.00, which was beyond the constitutional limit. Soon the court house burned and then immediately the tick eradication law was passed, which ,together, cost the county about $100,000.00 more to be added to the debt. The next year we put the county on a cash basis. I am not asking for all the credit that was done but I do say that as a commisisoner I helped and did all I could.

At that time our income was only about one-half of what it is now, so you can see how difficult it was to pull the county from where it was back to a cash basis.

If I am nominated and elected, it shall be my policy to redeem the outstanding Chilton County bonds; to continue improving the roads, and if possible to reduce the rate of taxes, as this will benefit every tay payer.

I hope to see every voter and talk to you personally, but if I do not, I want to say again that I shall appreciate your vote and influence and if I am the nominee I shall do all in my power to be elected and shall act in a way to try to cause you to not regret having voted for me, as my loyalty to the Republican party cannot be questioned. However, if I am not the nominee on August 12th, your verdict shall be mine and I will do all I can to help elect the nominee.

Your very sincerely
D. H. GENTRY.



R. M. BUTLER, VISITOR

Our good old friend, R. M. Butler of Montevallo Route 2 was in our office Monday giving some instructions about how to send his Union-Banner. Mr. Butler is an old reader of this paper, and he says he and Mrs. Butler always look forward with much anxiety to Thursday morning when they know the Banner will be left in their box. Mr. Butler says they especially enjoy reading the Sunday school suggestions and Brother Bryan's Bible lecture every week. He says he also likes to see who gets married, the deaths, etc. We are glad that Mr. Butler enjoys The Union-Banner, and it is an encouragement to us to have him tell us so.

The Clanton Friends of Mr. Raymond Duffey were glad to have him as a visitor at the Clanton Baptist Sunday School last Sunday. Mr. Duffey is a good worker in Sunday School and church. He lives at Mountain Creek where he is rural letter carrier on Route 1. During recent months he has taken a great deal of interest in the location of the new school building at Marbury. We are sure he is greatly pleased that the matter has been successfully accomplished and that Marbury is soon to have a fine new school building.

18-Year-Old Girl Makes Highest Cotton Record

More Than 3 Bales of Lint Produced From One Acre in Arkansas 4-H Club Contest

FAMILY OF CROP CHAMPIONS. Seated: Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Beall; standing, Blanche, Elstner and Charles. With the exception of Mrs. Beall, all the family have been consistent winners of crop contests—and no one will question her part in these winnings.

The high-water mark in cotton production during 1929 was better than three bales from one acre.

The honor of setting the new record goes, so far as is known, to Blanche Beall, 18-year-old girl of Wilson, Arkansas. Her actual production was 1,579 pounds of lint cotton from one acre.

Profit From Acre $342

Enrolled in the state-wide 4-H Club Contest, Blanche kept a careful record of her project, putting down every item of expense that entered into the making of the crop. Her figures, which have been checked by the contest officials, show that she produced a pound of lint at the remarkably low cost of 6.6 cents. After the growing and harvesting expenses have been deducted, her net profit amounted to $342.56.

The use of good fertilizer applied at the critical time played an important part in the new champion's record. As she lives in the famous delta region she used only a nitrogen fertilizer. Delta soils generally contain sufficient phosphate and potash for the crop. She applied before planting 300 pounds of Chilean nitrate of soda and side-dressed with another 300 pounds after the cotton was chopped.

Plants Kept Green and Fruiting

The use of the quick-acting nitrogen before planting helped the cotton get off to a good start and the side dressing kept the plants green, vigorous, and fruiting during the critical period of July and August.

In winning her new honors, Blanche has really followed a family tradition. The Bealls of Arkansas are known throughout the South for their high crop records. While she was making her record last year, her father won the state-wide 5-acre corn contest with an average yield of 130 bushels an acre, and her brother, Charles, topped both the vocational cotton and corn contests with yields of 1,090 pounds lint and 135.53 bushels corn per acre.

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or even increasing the dose.

GOOD FARM PRACTICES REDUCE WEEVIL LOSS

Close spacing of cotton combined with the judicious use of fertilizer is helping thousands of farmers to outsmart the boll weevil. These two practices make it possible to hurry the development of a large number of bolls so that they are out of danger when the weevil begins to do its worst damage.

Where weevil infestation is heavy it is always difficult to mature the bolls on the upper half of the stalks. Experiments have shown, however, that a full crop of cotton may still be grown by spacing the stalks closer and by leaving two stalks per hill instead of one.

An abundance of plant food is necessary to form and develop the bolls on the two stalks in half the time as was formerly required to mature the same number of bolls on one stalk. The best way to supply this food is to side-dress with quick-acting nitrogen fertilizer at the first or second cultivation after chopping. The extra plant food speeds up the formation of squares and the development of bolls before the heavy weevil attack begins. Although the weevil will likely destroy the bolls at the top of the stalk the large bolls at the bottom, set early in the season, are safely out of danger.

The side-dressing is applied 35 to 40 days after planting or at about chopping time. The common application is 100 to 200 pounds of Chilean nitrate of soda per acre. The nitrate dissolves in the soil just like sugar and is absorbed at once through the roots of the plant.

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that!. It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

WEST CHILTON

The long drouth is broken. During the last few days heavy rains have fallen in this part—the heaviest of the year thus far.

Last Sunday was a disappointment to a goodly number here. A truck load was in readiness to go to the singing convention at Lomax, but owing to high waters and the stormy appearance of the day, they had to give it up and forego the anticipated pleasure of hearing the fine singing for that day.

Luther Ward of Thorsby has purchased the Walker farm and timber here. He is now farming on the place and expects to begin sawing the timber in July, when he will erect buildings for his store and his home. This property is located on the line between Beats 2 and 14, adjoining the Mahan and Johnson farms. It has a fine body of timber.

Yes, the candidates came up like men and told us how they voted in the last election.

A letter from southern Illinois states that Isaac Waldrop, true to his old time inclinations has been on a big fishing trip, having fine success in catching the finney tribe. They pitched their camp in the shadow of a great rock one hundred feet high.

Last Sunday Mother's Day was observed at Macedonia. A nice time is reported, quite a number of former residents of this community being present. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. T. I. Ward of Hamburg, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Nix of Maplesville and others.

Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson and Mrs. Belle Hubbard motored to Union Grove last Sunday. They report an enjoyable time.

Mr. Garner and Mr. and Mrs. Martin of Birmingham were recent visitors at William Robinson's.

Mr. E. G. Cofer has just returned from a visit to his old home in Georgia. His daughter and grand daughter of Birmingham accompanied him.

Nice item from the "Man on the Corner" last week relating to Messers Walker and Foshee on the good old days. Yes, age has its charms.

PROVIDENCE

Just a few word in your good paper to say a few things in regard to our service at this place. We feel sure it was enjoyed by everyone that was present. Especially the morning service, as the older people had the glad privilege of meeting with a great number of their friends. We all know that it brings joy and gladness to our hearts when we meet in one of these Home coming days. It brings to us sweet memories of the days gone by as we meet with our old friends. Singing in the afternoon was fine, considering the weather. We had with us a number of good directors, they were: J. F. Lowery, Mr. Hayes, E. L. Glass, A. H. Glass, Ellie Martin, Mr. Spivey, Mr. Sherley. Organists were Miss Violet Martin, Unice Bean, Mrs. Splawn and Mrs. Jewell Varden.

Our B. Y. P. U. met at seven o'clock and we are sure that everyone that was present enjoyed the program, as it was rendered so nicely. Miss Ruby Merschant was in charge. We invite more of the older people to help us to make our B. Y. P. U. and Sunday School bigger and better.

FORESTRAL BODY MEETS

Montgomery, May 20th.—At the regular semi-annual meeting of the State Commission of Forestry, held recently at Montgomery, a number of important matters were taken up. Among these were the transmission to the Governor of the Commission's Annual Report for 1929, a discussion of the feasibility of offering substantial prizes to high school pupils for essays on forestry and preliminary consideration of needed forestral legislation.

The commission is composed of members selected solely for their standing in the forest industries and affiliated interests and on account of their first-hand acquaintance with the problems to be solved. The law provides that three of the commissioners be lumbermen and that two be chosen from the farmers of the State. The Governor is ex-officio chairman and the other two members are Mr. E. F. Allison of Bellamy; Mr. James B. Ellis, formerly of Selma but now of Birmingham; Mr. E. C. Gates of Lockhart; Mr. John L. Kaul of Birmingham and Mr. W. M. Spencer of Gallion. The Commissioner of Game and Fisheries is also an ex officio member. The State Forester serves as secretary.

Cora—"Gracious, are you going to shoot him?"

Madge—"No, I'm going to spend his money."

JESUS DESCRIBES THE FUTURE OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 24:1-25:13 (Print 25:1-13).

GOLDEN TEXT—Take ye heed, watch and pray; for ye know not when the time is.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being Ready to Help.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Being Ready.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being Ready.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Preparedness.

I. The Prophetic View of the Course of Time from Christ's Crucifixion to His Second Coming. (24:1-51).

The order of events in this time are in general as follows:

1. The moral condition of the world during Christ's absence. (vv. 1-14).

2. The appearance of the Antichrist (vv. 15-26).

3. The great advent (vv. 27-31).

In connection with this advent there will be mighty convulsions of nature, the mourning of the tribes of the earth, and the gathering of the elect.

4. Warnings to God's people in view of the great advent (vv. 32-51).

The time of this advent is unknown and on the part of many unexpected.

5. Instruction to believers in view of the unexpectedness of Christ's coming (25:1-30).

II. Behavior of Believers in View of the Coming of the Lord (25:1-13).

The teaching in the parable of the ten virgins has continuous application in the present time (I Thess. 16:18; Titus 2:11-13).

1. The equipment of the virgins (vv. 1-5).

(1) The foolish virgins took lamps, but no oil with them (v. 3). Lamps signify Christian profession (Matt. 5:16) and oil the Holy Spirit (Zech. 14). Having lamps but no oil shows that they were professors of religion, without possessing its reality. The Christian life is sustained by the Holy Spirit. As soon as a man is regenerated, the Holy Spirit takes up His abode with him. The Spirit's indwelling therefore, is an advance work upon regeneration. The proof that one is a child of God is that he has the Holy Spirit dwelling within him. (Rom. 8:9). The foolish virgins were professors, but not possessors. (2). The wise virgins possessed both lamps and oil (v. 4). They backed their profession with a real life of righteousness. Both the wise and the foolish virgins slumbered and slept. This shows that as the present age lengthens, the real and the professing church will cease looking for the coming of the Lord. It is unspeakably sad that so many, even of God's chosen—the wise virgins—should give up the expectancy of the return of the Lord.

2. The coming of the bridegroom (vv. 6-12).

(1) The midnight cry (v. 6). In the midst of the night when all the virgins were asleep the cry was heard. "Behold the bridegroom cometh." Who knows but that the time of this cry is now close upon us? (2) Activity of the virgins (v. 7). They all arose and trimmed their lamps. There will be great activity when the Lord comes on the part of both believers and those who only make a profession. It will be a day when the reality of one's faith will be tested. (3) The foolish virgins' request of the wise to share their oil (vv. 8, 9). The revelation of Christ will make manifest the genuineness of our faith and expose the folly of mere profession. When the Lord comes, it will be too late to mend one's ways. (4) The wise enter to the marriage (v. 10). While the foolish were seeking to amend their ways—trying to buy oil—the bridegroom came, and those who were ready were admitted to the marriage. (5) The pitiful petition of the foolish virgins (v. 11). They begged the Lord to open the door. (6). The awful judgment (v. 12). The Lord declared, "I know you not."

3. The solemn obligation (v. 13).

"Watch, for ye know not the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh." Two solemn facts should engage the attention of every one. (1) Entering with Christ to the marriage depends upon faithfulness to the end. If oil and light be wanting when Christ comes, no admittance will be granted to the heavenly banquet. (2) Borrowed religion will not avail at that day. Despite the value of godly companions and associates, they can render no service in the day of Jesus Christ. Personal contact with the Lord Jesus through faith in His blood is the absolute essential.

Those Who Do Not Sleep

While many are sleeping and taking it easy, we, as overseers, are struggling under the burden resting upon us, weeping and warning and begging for help to battle against the forces of evil around us.—Jonas Mininger.

FROM O. H. McDOWELL

To the voters of Chilton County:

Due to the sickness of my father, and my farm work, I have been unable to see all the voters throughout the county. I hope it will be my privilege to see every voter before the election.

I wish to express my thanks to those who have offered me their support and co-operation. Will say that I am making the race clean and straight, and on my own merits and qualifications. I am willing for those who know me and know of my interest in school work to say whether or not I am the man for the office I am asking for.

I solicit your vote and influence and if I am elected, I will do my best to conduct myself and the affairs of the office in a way that you will always be glad you voted for me.

In regard to my platform and policy, the best I can say or do is this: "I will do my best to see that every child of school age in our county gets equal consideration, and full value for every dollar expended in the cause of education." Our children deserve the best we have, so let's give them all we can ,while we can.

Thanking you again for your vote and influence, I remain.—Yours for the education of our boys and girls.

—O. H. McDOWELL.

Aged Man Killed By Automobile

J. R. Johnson of Jemison Killed Almost Instantly Tuesday Night

About 10 o'clock Tuesday night Jim R. Johnson, prominent citizen of Jemison, was struck and almost instantly killed by an automobile. It was Mr. Johnson's 71st birthday.

Reports say that Mr. Johnson had attended the closing exercises of the Jemison high school Tuesday night, and had just come out of the house, and was hurrying to his home three blocks away near the Jemison depot. It seems that Mr. Johnson had come out of the house ahead of most of the crowd and was trying to get home before so many automobiles began leaving the place and stirring around. But he had barely gotten on the cement highway, nearly in front of the school house when a Ford car driven by two boys going south struck him and gave him a fatal blow. The boys, sons of D. L. Ward and Ernest Brown, both of Thorsby, are said to have driven their car on down to the stores on the highway at Jemison and stopped there. The front of the Ford was said to be quite a bit crumpled and mashed up from the impact.

Martin's ambulance at Clanton was summoned, but the old man died on the side of the highway where he fell, about twenty minutes after the accident. The body was brought to the undertaker's parlors here and prepared for burial. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon and interment made in the Pine Hill cemetery, Rev. Metcalf of Verbena officiating.

Ed Brown, the boy who was driving the car, was arrested Wednesday morning and placed under a $1,000 bond.

Mr. Johnson was a half-brother of Dr. R. B. McNeil of Jemison, and is survived by his wife, three sons and two daughters. Prof. R. B. Johnson, who taught school this past year at Mt. Pleasant, is one of the sons.

The place of their exhihition will be near the store of Will Watson on the Maplesville Highway. There is plenty of parking space, and Mr. Renfroe Jones invites you to come. It will be worth seeing.

JOHN T. ELLIS OPERATING FILLING STATION AGAIN

Mr. John T. Ellis is again in charge of the operation of the Woco Pep Filling Station on top of the hill in the north edge of town. He took charge of the business last week, succeeding Mr. F. R. Jones, who has been there since the first of the year.

Mr. Ellis built and operated this station for several years. He sold the poperty to the Wofford Oil Company, last year. Since February of this year the place was in charge of Mr. Jones, being run by him under lease from Wofford Oil Company.

GEORGE POLK RETURNED FROM ROCHESTER

Mr. George C. Polk, of the firm of Polk Brothers Motor Company, local Chevrolet dealers, returned this week from a stay of more than a month at the clinics of Mayo Brothers, at Rochester, Minn.

This is the third trip Mr. Polk has made to Mayo's. He has undergone various surgical operations and other treatments, in the hope that he could get himself properly repaired physically.

His many friends in Clanton and Chilton County hope that his efforts will prove successful, and that he may in the future enjoy good health.

Commencement At Verbena School

Exercises This Week Close Seventh Year Of School

Friday evening, May 19, closed the seventh session of Verbena High School with the graduation of eight boys and girls.

On the preceeding Friday evening Mrs. Gordon presented her pupils in the annual piano recital. Wednesday evening the graduation class presented "Polyanna," a four act drama, as its final offering for the school, and a splendid one it was. Little Miss Mamie Meroney, one of the Junior II Class, was especially good in the role of the child Pollyanna.

Thursday evening Miss Bernice Peeples presented her pupils in expression in a very enjoyable program. Friday evening the pupils of the Senior II class gave "Phoebe Cleans House," a three act comedy drama, and as usual with Verbena commencement plays, it was indeed will presented and well received.

Sunday morning at eleven o'clock a. m., Rev. J. A. Price, of Birmingham, preached the commencement sermon.

Monday evening at eight o'clock the graduating exercises were held. Miss Ruth Dennis gave the salutatory and Miss Jessie Dora Pinson the Valedictory, Mr. S. L. Gibson gave a violin solo, accompanied by Miss Bertie Grant. The speaker of the evening, Dr. B. L. Parkinson, of the State Department of Education, delivered a masterful address on "Change," and applied it particularly to the changes in the life of children. Miss Addie Sue Sharp, of the Senior II Class, was awarded the bronze key as the highest honor of the school for scholarship, loyalty, and achievement. The following students were awarded diplomas: Misses Bertie Grant, Lucile Colley, Jessie Dora Pinson, Mabel Wilkins, Ruth Dennis, and Messrs. Bennie Pinson Glenn, John Askew Rockett, and Edward Davis.

DENIES STATEMENT OF L. H. BEAN

This is to certify that the statement of Mr. L. H. Bean to the effect that the superintendent and county board of education had falsified about matters pertaining to the Union Grove School was made without authority and did not meet my approval; and so far as I know the board has not made any misrepresentations about our school.—G. L. Glasscock.

PAY CENTRAL FEES FOR PEOPLES TELEPHONE CO.

The attention of phone holders of the Peoples Telephone Company is again called to the necessity of paying central fees for the last half of this year.

Some have expressed a doubt as to whether the central office will run or not. Such doubts should not enter into the matter, as Mr. Lomer Giles, the operator, gives us absolute assurance that he will operate the switchboard for the balance of this year. Therefore, those who pay are assured that the central will continue to operate, and that they will be given the very best service possible with the system as it is.

Mr. Giles states further that he expects to make such improvements as he is able to make in order to improve the service.

Folks out in the rural districts had better take into consideration the fix they will be in without the rural telephone system. They can't afford to be without it. Therefore, they had better keep it going while they have it. If they let it go dead, they will be sorry of it, without a doubt.

In Alabama the annual salary for teachers was $320 in 1913, $484 in 1920, and $747 in 1928. The fifteen years between 1913 and 1928, therefore, yielded an apparent increase of $427, or 133 per cent. Because or the rapid loss in the purchasing power of the dollar during this period, however, the $747 of 1928 bought only as much as $438 did in 1913. The actual increase in the average salary las, therefore, only $118, or 37 per cent.

Alabama ranked 43rd among the states in average salary for teachers in 1913, rose one step to the 42nd place in 1920, and fell back to 45th place in 1928. In 1928 the average Alabama teacher received 55 per cent of the amount paid to the average United States teacher.

BETHSALEM

Our Sunday School is progressing nicely. A large crowd was present Sunday and every one seemed to enjoy the lesson. Subject was, "What is a good citizen," every one should know what a good citizen is, and strive to be one. There are several others in this community we would like to enroll in our Sunday School, and cordially invite everybody to come and help us out. We need your help.

They have been in Chesnee for more than a week visiting Dr. Ezell's mother, who has been very ill. The card Tuesday said her condition is somewhat improved.

TRUCK DAMAGED BY FIRE

The delivery truck of Clanton Building Supply Company caught on fire last Saturday afternoon as it was on a trip down the highway in South Clanton. The driver, Hardy Jones, fought the blaze with mud and water, and kept it under control until the city fire truck got to the scene. The truck was considerably damaged. After spending Monday and Tuesday in the repair shop, it was able to go on duty again Wednesday morning.

Mr. Winston Huddleston, State solicitor was in Clanton the first part of this week attending to his duties in court.

The Oldest Twins

So far as we know, the oldest pair of twins in Chilton County, are George W. Mims of Thorsby and Mrs. Sarah Murrah of Clanton. These two were 73 years old on May 11th, and are both reasonably healthy.

Mr. Mims and his twin sister are children of Elijah and Millis Mims, and were raised at the old Mims Cross Roads in Beat 12, near Mineral Springs.

If there are older twins in the county than these, The Union-Banner would like to hear of them. Or as for that matter, we would like to know of those who are nearly as old as those mentioned. In mentioning the old twins you know of, please give about the information concerning them that we have used in the foregoing article about Mr. Mims and Mrs. Murrah.

Poultry Specialist Here Next Week

Mr. Bailey, extension poultry specialist, working out of Auburn, will be in Chilton County with County Agent Stapp, for three meetings, Monday, June 2nd. The meeting hours and places are as follows: Mr. Stapp's office at Clanton, 10 a. m., Jemison High School building, 2 p. m., Isabella High School building, 7:30 p. m.

Mr. Bailey is a highly-trained, experienced, and very practical poultryman. Mr. Stapp is very anxious that as many as possibly can will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear Mr. Bailey at one of the meetings. The meetings will be in the form of round-table discussions, as many questions pertaining to profitable poultry production will no doubt be asked those attending the meetings. Make out your list of questions and if Mr. Bailey fails to answer your questions in his talks, then you can ask your unanswered questions during the open discussions. Many of the poultrymen of long experience, as Dr. O. C. and Frank Mastin, and numerous others are expected to attend the meetings. Mr. Stapp hopes to make these the best poultry meetings ever held in the county.

High School Building Now Being Repaired

Walker Will Coach Athletics Next Year; Graduating Class Has Financial Balance; 22 Received Junior High School Diplomas

It is with a great degree of satisfaction that we announce work began on the roof of the Chilton County High School Monday morning. The entire material has been torn off down to the decking, including the tin, etc., that is attached to the perpendicular walls. This will be replaced with new material. A twenty-year guarantee by the National guarantee and Surety Company will make this contract first class. This will be passed upon by Mr. R. E. Ledbetter, State High School Inspector of buildings. In that this work is being done according to state specifications, we will receive one third state aid in financing the new roof. The contract was awarded to the Acme Roofing Company, of Montgomery.

Horton Walker Will Coach Athletics In C. C. H. S. Another Year

It is with pleasure we announce that Mr. T. H. Walker will be head coach and director of high school athletics in Chilton County High another year. It will be recalled that Mr Walker was a four-letter man at Bibb County High at Centerville, where he graduated in 1924. After graduating, Mr. Walker entered the University of Alabama, taking an A. B. Degree from that institution in June, 1928. Since that time he has been more or less connected with high school athletics in an advisory as well as directly coaching and working with young men. Mr. Walker holds two special certificates received while under Coach Wade.

Horton Walker is one of the cleanest man the writer knows of in athletics. He is absolutely impartial in any situation. During the past year as a member of Chilton County High School faculty, he has won the utmost faith and confidence in every boy and girl in this school. This goes without fear of contradiction. This will be substantiated by the boys and girls representing this school. We are glad to have one at the head of our athletic association who has this faith and confidence in the student-body as a whole.

Senior III Graduating Class Carries Over Financial Balance

Around $800.00 passed through the hands of the Senior III Class of 1930. We are more than glad to announce that they financed everything during this year, and have a balance of $10.50. This has been voted to be used next year in further ebautifying our campus. One admirable feaeture the class did was to take care of the expenses of the commencement speakers. With the exception of the offertory made Sunday morning at the Methodist Church they took care of everything else. The principal personally thanks again the entire Senior Class for their splendid spirit of loyalty and co-operation during this year's work.

Twenty-Two Receive Junior High Diplomas At C. C. H. S.

The following twenty-two boys and girls received the Junior High School diploma and will begin next September their first year senior high school work:

Gray Carter, Jasper Cox, Gladys Hand, Tina Hyman, Janie Beth Johnson, Margaret Johnston, Clyde Jones, Margaret Jones, Flora Jones, Lois Miller, Alton Murrah, Eunice Murrah, Elizabeth McSwain, Morris Pyron Mary, Robinson, Dorothy Sessions, Imogene Simms, Gladys Thomas, Floy DeVaughn, Pearl Vinson, Dewey Williams.

Cleve Armstrong With A&P Store

Mr. G. C. Armstrong took up a position with the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, the A. & P. Store, in Clanton Monday morning. The connection with Mr. Armstrong in this store will mean increased popularity for A. & P. in this territory, because Mr. Armstrong is one of the best store men in Clanton. For many year past he has been in the store of the late Jas. C. Jones, in which capacity he has become intimately acquainted with practically everybody who comes to Clanton to trade. Since the death of Mr. Jones a few months ago, Mr. Armstrong remained in charge of his store until the affairs of same were finally wound up a few days ago.

The people of Clanton and Chilton County already know what the A. & P. Company will soon find out, that Mr. Armstrong is one of the best business men in Clanton. He is not only a good business man, but he is one of our best cititzens. He takes a leading part in the affairs of the community. His connection with the A. & P. Store will give them a point of contact with the people of this trade territory which will prove very valuable.

The many friends of Mr. Armstrong will find him ready to welcome them to the A. & P., where you will find him to be the same, affable, courteous old "Cleve' which he has always been.

TRAFFIC SHOULD STOP WHEN THE FIRE ALARM IS SOUNDED

Fire Chief, Macy Jones, makes a very timely suggestion that people should be more careful to give an open right of way on the streets of Clanton when the fire alarm is sounded.

Every driver of an automobile on the streets when the alarm is sounded should park his machine promptly until the fire department has had time to pass or get to the fire. The driver of a car perhaps will not know where the fire is, nor which way the fire truck is coming or going. Therefore, the more reason that he should get under cover until he is sure that the fire fighting apparatus has gotten away.

Mr. Jones states that an accident was very narrowly averted Tuesday night when an automobile going along ahead of the fire truck cut in ahead of the machine and came very near getting bumped. And say, if you happen to get a bump from the fire truck, it will be some bump.

Clanton has a good fire fighting apparatus, and a good bunch of boys in charge of it. The best service the public can possibly render is to stay out of their way when the fire alarm is sounded and when they are fighting a fire.

The co-operation of everybody in this respect will be greatly appreciated by Mr. Jones and the firemen, as well as the city officials, and the safety of persons and property will be better served in that way.

Sunday School Conference At Thorsby

Sevedal state-wide Sunday School conferences are to be held during the next few days. One for this section will be held at Thorsby Baptist Church Friday, June the sixth. This conference will be held especially for the adult and young peoples department. Some of the leaders appearing on the program will be Mr. Davis Cooper, secretary of the Educational Department of the Baptist work in this state, and Mr. W. P. Phillips, secretary of the adult and young people, Nashville, Tenn.

At least one representative from each Sunday School in the Unity-Chilton Association is desired. The program will begin at ten o'clock in the morning and lunch will be served by the Thorsby people, and there will also be an evenig session beginning at seven-thirty.

Several Arrested By County Officers

Sunday morning Sheriff Collins, Deputies Murrah, Loss Robinson and Billie Foshee caught a white man by the name of Burns Lowery, 2 miles east of Jemison. Lowery had five gallons of wine, which he was carrying from his house into the woods near by. He was arrested and released on bond.

About noon Sunday the officers were called out near the home of Joe Logan, where it was thought a crap or poker game was going on; but when the officers arrived all they found was Kermie Murphy and seven other men and boys gathered together in the woods. Murphy had fifteen bottles of home brew in a sack, as well as several empty bottles. Murphy was arrested and placed in jail; at this writing he has not made bond.

About dark Sunday night the officers were notified that Harve Willis was drunk and was raising a rough house at his home at the cotton mill. Willis was arrested and placed in jail, charged with public drunkenness. He was later released on bond.

Sunday night about 10 o'clock Ed Dawson and Frank Adden, white men of near Mt. Creek, were arrested for public drunkenness. They were placed in jail and were released on bond Monday morning.

Two negroes, John Henry Williams and Willie Webb, were arrested in Frog Level, West End, Clanton, on Monday. They were placed in jail, charged with assault and battery.

Isabella School Closes Successful Year

The Isabella School has had the best year in its history. Fifteen boys and girls received their diplomas last Monday night. Two others, Myrtle Durbin and Arberry Williams, were in the Senior Class, but did not graduate. They were in Senior I last year and decided to take extra work and meet all the requirements for graduation except Senior III English. They did the work in a highly creditable manner. They plan to work off this subject this summer and get their diplomas next year. I am sure that they will do this, for they are good students, not afraid of work.

Our commencement exercises were fine. The Senior play and class exercises were pronounced to be the best we have ever had. The sermon by Dr. Childs was as good as any one ever heard anywhere, and the baccalaureate address by Dr. Hobbs was fine indeed.

I predict that there is no way of keeping a school like this down, if revenue can be provided for its maintenance. And why shouldn't it? A school that serves the educational needs of such an excellent class of citizens?

The prospects for next year are flattering. We have as good a faculty as can be had in Chilton County, every one of whom will attend summer school in the various colleges and universities of the state.—J. D. Griffin.

COURT UPHOLDS 5-GALLON LAW

Constitutionality of Alabama's "five gallon" law was upheld by the Alabama supreme court Thursday when petition of Joe Hayes, of Cherokee, for writ of certiorari to the court of appeal was denied. Hayes, sentenced under act of 1927 which punishes with heavy penalty transportation of more than five gallons of illicit liquor had appealed, attacking constitutionality of the statute.

All boys under 17 years of age who are interested in joining the American Legion Junior Baseball Club in Clanton are invited to report to the High School baseball park Friday, May 30, at three o'clock, or see Mr. Joe Calloway, M. C. Jones, or George Tippet before Friday.

BIG FIRE HERE IN BUSINESS SECTION

Store of The Leader, Offices of P. M. Pitts, L. F. Gerald, Dr. Gowan Damaged

A fire in the heart of the business district of Clanton Tuesday morning entailed a damage of perhaps $20,000 to the store of The Leader, law offices of Percy M. Pitts and Lawrence F. Gerald, and the dental offices of Dr. J. Earle Gowan.

When firemen reached the scene about four o'clock, it was impossible to tell just what part of the building was on fire, due to the smoke which prevented them from entering. It was evident that the blaze was in the upper story. From adjoining buildings the fire hose was turned in at the second story windows, and the spread of the flames was kept down.

When the fire was extinguished and entry into the building was possible, it appeared that the blaze must have started in the back room of Dr. Gowan's office, or in an adjoining vacant room, for at about this location the damage was heaviest. It was there that the second floor was burned out, and where the fire came through to the dry goods store of The Leader on the first floor.

Except to the building itself, most of the damage done was by smoke and water. A great deal more water than necessary was used but this was because the firemen could not tell at which point in the building the fire was centered.

The building is owned by Dr. Napoleon S. Johnson. We understand that the damage to the building and the contents was fairly well covered by insurance.

SERVICES AT THE JEMISON BAPTIST CHURCH NEXT SUN.

ALL DAY SINGING AT VERBENA FIFTH SUNDAY IN JUNE

The Union-Banner has been asked to add to our schedule of all-day singings that of Verbena, to be held the fifth Sunday in June. In connection with this announcement we are authorized to state that the Clanton Quartette will be at Verbena on that day. Personal invitations have been extended a number of singers. Complete announcement will be made at a later date.

Baxter Will Attend Singing Convention

It will be interesting news to the singers and music lovers of Chilton county to learn that Prof. J. R. Baxter, Jr., of the Stamps-Baxter Music Company of Chattanooga, Tenn., has agreed to attend the Chilton County Singing Convention to meet at Jemison the first Sunday in July.

In a letter written to Jesse Baker Prof. Baxter has the following to say: "I will promise to be with you at Jemison if nothing unforseen happens. I see no reason now why I can't be there, and unless sickness or something turns up that I know nothing of I will be there. Mrs. Baxter and some others will be with us, and I will write to some of my friends who live near enough and will try to get them to come."

Prof. Baxter is one of the foremost singers, writers and publishers of sacred music in the South, and the county singing convention feels very fortunate in getting him and Mrs. Baxter to agree to meet with us. We feel sure that the convention at Jemison is going to be the greatest success of any convention ever held in the county.

As announced through the paper last week, Prof. H. C. Collins, formerly of this county and Coosa but now of Cairo, Ga., has promised to attend. A special invitation has been extended Prof. John M. Dye of Birmingham, as well as all the other leading singers of the State. It is hoped to have the Stamps Quartette with us, but that is not certain yet. However, there will be some quartet bands present, and you may rest assured of that.

CEDAR GROVE NEWS

Sunday School hour has been changed from 10 o'clock to 9 o'clock, in order to give people a chance to attend other meetings if they wish to, except on preaching day—10:30 on preaching days.

Rev. Wilson filled Rev. Lynch's place last Sunday morning. We have preaching also every fourth Sunday night.

The singing society met here last Sunday afternoon with a very good crowd, whom we were pleased to have with us. Our president was not able to be with us, so the vice-president, Mr. J. W. Lowery took charge, and the following directors took part: J. W. Lowery, Houston Melton, Hiram Littlejohn and D. T. Melton. Organists were: Mrs. Zelma Littlejohn and Mrs. Leila Thornton. Two prayers were offered by Mr. D. T. Melton and Mr. Luther Nation.

Our society has been invited to Maple Springs church the second Sunday afternoon in June, and has accepted the invitation; so the singing at Liberty Hill on that date has been postponed. We would be glad that everyone who has planned to come to Liberty Hill will meet us down there.

Mrs. Eiland, known by her many friends as Grandma Eiland, was able to attend church last Sunday, after a serious spell of sickness. We were certainly glad that she was able to be with us again.

Mr. and Mrs. Harve Collins and daughter, Mrs. Amos Smith, spent a few days in Birmingham visiting last week.

Mr. Dewey Melton visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Melton, last Sunday.

FORD CARS AS POLICE CARS

Vast distances are covered in policing the streets of Birmingham and Alabama City and the roads of Jefferson County. The thirty-eight Ford police cars in city and county service are averaging more than 800,000 miles a year, or the equivalent of thirty-three trips around the world.

In their ceaseless vigil, some of these cars have run up vast mileages. Two of the cars have been driven more than 50,000 miles each, which is equal to five to seven years' service when reckoned on the basis of the average family car.

The total mileage of the twenty-three Fords in the Birmingham City Police Department exceeds 430,000 miles. This is an average mileage of 18,660 miles per car, with an average length time in the service of only ten months. The fifteen Fords in the County Police Department have been operated 340,721 miles, or an average of 23,048 miles per car, with a length of time in service of fourteen months.

Soundness of body and peace of mind depend upon the proper number of red-cells in the blood—5,000,000 to the cubic millimeter. They give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. It is dangerous to let the red-cell count remain below normal.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It helps Nature build rich, red-blood-cells. It promotes healthy body building.

Beautiful May days, and everybody so busy.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Nix were visitors at John S. Waldrop's Sunday.

Rev. Dyer of Randolph filled his appointment at Union Springs Sunday afternoon, and preached at Randolph Sunday night.

E. H. Waldrop and Pratt Crumpton went to Birmingham Sunday to visit Riley Smith, who is very sick.

They have a nice Sunday school at Macedonia. We were very much pleased last Sunday with the teaching of Mrs. Pearl Tubb.

Rev. Mr. Dyer was a caller at John S. Waldrop's Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Armstrong visited Mrs. Susan Johnson Sunday, who is sick in the Mars Hill community.

Joseph Smith returned from Birmingham Sunday, where he had been visiting his son.

Several interested listeners gathered at John S. Waldrop's Sunday afternoon to hear the fine lecture of Dr. James Edwards on the radio. The doctor came through very clearly. His subject was "The Doom of the Finally Impenitent—What it is and what it is Not." He is a Chilton county boy and a clear and forceful reasoner.

We read with more than passing interest the touching allusions by the "Man on the Corner" to Mr. Wallace C. Edler in last Banner. We remember the persistent efforts of Mr. Edler to establish "The Union." We recall too, some humble efforts on our part in assisting in the establishing of the paper. Those were very stormy days, with Judge Reynolds as the guiding star through it all.

Mr. Edler had some very devoted friends at that time, among whom were the late L. O. Vickers, T. J. Hubbard and others. In fact Mr. Hubbard can talk interestingly now of his pleasant experiences with Mr. Edler, socially and otherwise. Mr. Edler made one undying statement, that is "When you have to resort to personalities to defeat your opponent you are on the failing side.

Back in 1929 the work stock carried on farms amounted to 26,436,000 horses and mules. The January, 1930, estimate places the number at only 18,762,000. This disappearance of 7,674,000 head of work stock from farms has been accompanied by a valuation decrease of approximately one and one-half billion dollars.

A recent report shows that about 10 per cent of all persons living on farms engaged in non-agricultural occupations. Many of them work in surrounding towns or cities.

PLEASANT GROVE—JEMISON

There was splendid attendance at preaching services Sunday. Rev. Miller of Birmingham filled the pulpit at the morning service, using as his lesson the parable of "The Vineyard." Rev. Browder used as his topic for the evening "Why Go to Church."

The ice cream supper Saturday night was enjoyed by a large crowd. We want to take this medium to thank each one who helped in making it a success. We have raised $48.00 on the new piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cofer had as their guests Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. C. Ellison and family of Gantt's Quarry. Their daughter, Miss Louise, will be here for the next two weeks as the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Bonnie Davenport.

Mrs. Thula Gibson, after a long stay in Thorsby, has returned home.

Mr. Clarence Childress and Tom Childress and Mrs. Evie and Mattie Childress went to Birmingham Sunday to see Mrs. Childress, who is in the Woodlawn Infirmary. They report Mrs. Childress as getting along nicely but will have to stay three more weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller and daughter of Birmingham were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Clements Sunday.

Miss Miller, who has been singing over the radio, sang "My Heavenly Vacation" at church Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Deshazo and son, Guy, of Isabella, were the guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Franklin Sunday.

Mr. Julius Atchison and Miss Lora Bearet of Tuscaloosa visited Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Champion Sunday.

Miss Nora Franklin had as her noon guest Sunday Misses Louvine and Lucile Cleckler, Louise Ellison, Mrs. Bonnie Davenport, Messrs Tommie Zuber and Henry Hatcher.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cary of Providence spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Carroll.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Brantley of Birmingham spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Davis Hodgens.

One oyster cracker or one-half of a salted peanut has been found food enough to provide the extra calories needed for an hour of intense mental effort, according to Dr. Francis G. Benedict of Boston. "From the standpoint of dynamics,' he said, 'it is perhaps surprising that the extra caloric demands of mental efforts are so small."

Misses Elizabeth and Susie Griffin had as their guests, Misses Lois Driver and Louise Bach of Montgomery.

SEVEN MILLIONTH CHEVROLET CAR IS PRODUCED

Detroit, Mich., May 26.—The seven millionth car built by the Chevrolet Motor Company is on its way to its owner somewhere in America. The epochal car, which happened to be a coach, rolled off the assembly line Wednesday morning, May 28, in the company's huge plant at Flint, Mich. The car was the 1,845,938 six-cylinder car produced by Chevrolet since this model was brought out in January 1929.

Chevrolet's newest record-maker arrived without benefit of ceremony except for the cheers of the workmen along the final assembly line who halted work long enough to give it welcome and watch it being driven to the loading docks for shipment. Then work was resumed and not many seconds later car No. 7,000,001 went to join its historic companion.

Various dates in the life of the Chevrolet Motor Company on which the millionth car marks have been passed furnish a graphic picture of the rapid strides made by the company to its position of 6-cylinder leadership in the industry.

Nearly 12 years elapsed after the company's organization before the one millionth car was built, on Feb. 27, 1923, but the second millionth car rolled off the assembly line less than two years and five months later, on July 20, 1925. A year and six months later, on Jan. 13, 1927, the three millionth car was produced. Thereafter less than a year was required to reach each of the succeeding million marks. The four millionth was produced on Jan. 11, 1928, in 363 days; the five millionth, on Sept. 8, 1928, in eight months, three days; the sixth millionth on June 25, 1929, in 9 months, 17 days. The seven millionth mark, just passed, was reached in 10 months, 25 days.

Commenting on the production of the seven millionth Chevrolet, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the company, declared that building a million 6-cylinder cars in less than a year is an outstanding indication of the enthusiasm with which the public has received a 6-cylinder car in the lowest priced field. This class, he explained, offers to buyers to a greater extent than ever before the quality and performance formerly available only in cars of higher price.

American hamlets and small villages may be destined for the discard, but towns of from 1,000 to 10,000 population are doing more business than ever, in the opinion of Dr. C. G. Galpin, agricultural sociologist of the United States Bureau of Agriculture economics.

QUICK BAKING

The keynote of today is more leisure for women. Women today are just as excellent housekeepers as their mothers and grandmothers before them but they are not willing to spend every minute of the day hanging over the stove, the kitchen sink or the dish pan. They systematize their housework and so plan their meals that they have leisure time for reading, for club meetings, for playing with their children and time for their husbands.

From laboratory experiments we know that a cake calling for three cupfuls of self-rising flour can be mixed in 8 minutes against the 15 minutes required for the same cake of plain flour. This is easily explained. Self-rising flour has to be sifted only once, there is no baking powder to measure, the eggs are added unbeaten and the cake is mixed as quickly and gently as possible. This all saves time against the old method of sifting flour three or four times, getting out the baking powder and measuring it, separating the yolks and whites of the eggs into separate bowls and then beating them separately.

Women would make cakes oftener if they did not have to go to so much trouble. A package or bag of self-rising flour eliminates all this trouble and makes cake and pastry making simple and quick.

Here is a very delicious cake that can be made in seven minutes. The family will love it:

Quick Cake.

Sift three and one-third cups of self-rising flour into large bowl. Break two eggs into standard measuring cup. Fill cup with melted shortening or cooking oil. Put into flour but do not beat. Add two cups sugar, one cup milk and one teaspoon vanilla. Beat entire mixture two minutes. Pour into a greased and floured loaf pan or two large layer cake pans and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 30 minutes.

Subject of Famous Painting

Briefly, the explanation of the famous painting called "The Huguenot" is as follows: By order of the duc de Guise, issued before St. Bartholomew's day, "all good Catholics" were enjoined to wear a white scarf as a distinguishing badge. The young woman pleads with her lover as she strives to fasten the symbolic white scarf. The lover will die in the morning. As one writer suggests, the picture is reminiscent of the famous line. "I could not love thee, dear, so much, loved I not honor more."

Railroads' Police Forces

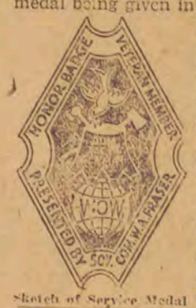
The Rock Island Magazine says that practically every railroad of any consequence maintains a special service, or police department, for the purpose of protecting its properties and its patrons against thefts, and the traveling public against the operations of pickpockets, confidence men, gamblers and other species of crooks. The larger trunk lines employ from 100 to 300 men in this department at an approximate cost of from $300,000 to $500,000 per year.

Founder of Vassar

Vassar college was established by Matthew Vassar who was born in the county of Norfolk, England, in 1792, emigrated to America, and settled at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where he made a comfortable fortune as a brewer.

In 1861 he gave the sum of $408,000 to found Vassar college, near Poughkeepsie. He died June 23, 1868, while reading an address to the trustees of the college. Besides the initial gift, he left the college a large sum in his will.

Thirty Thousand W. O. W. Veterans Honored



Celebrating 40 Years of Service

Thirty thousand members of the Woodmen of the World have received service medals signifying that they have been members of the Woodmen of the World for twenty-five years or more, W. A. Fraser, president of the Woodmen of the World, announced today.

The thirty thousandth medal was recently presented at a meeting of the Fort King Camp, No. 14, at Ocala, Florida.

The Woodmen of the World will be forty years old on June 6 of this year.

The twenty-five year medals have been given out to veterans of the Woodmen of the World for the past fourteen years, the first medal being given in 1916.

Sketch of Service Medal W. A. Fraser.

"When we first started giving medals out to veterans of our association, we never dreamt that we would be using thirty thousand of the service pins, said W. A. Fraser. "Our association has had a great growth since it was first organized with 135 members forty years ago."

"The pioneers of the Woodmen of the World had an inspiring vision of the future of their organization but never dreamt of the tremendous size and wealth that the society now has," said Mr. Fraser. "Today the Woodmen of the World is the strongest fraternal organization in existence. It was recently declared 104.6% solvent. It holds investments and securities of more than $100,000,000 with gross assets totaling approximately $128,000,000."

Membership Half Million

The membership of the Woodmen of the World is now estimated at approximately one-half million and the organization has paid in death losses and disability benefits during its forty years of existence approximately $175,000,000. Two of the largest enterprises that have placed the Woodmen of the World in the foremost ranks of progressive fraternal insurance societies are the War Memorial Hospital at San Antonio, Tex., and the radio station WOW in the headquarters building at Omaha, Neb.

The War Memorial Hospital is a million dollar structure and has taken in thousands of sick members and turned them out healthy and able to go back to their families to enjoy life.

The Woodmen of the World Radio Station was built in 1923. It has become one of the most popular radio stations in the United States. President Fraser developed the idea of the Woodmen of the World Radio Congregation, a religious congregation of radio listeners, which is the largest in the world, estimated at one-half million.

Hopes to Issue 100,000 Pins

"I hope that the Woodmen of the World will some day issue 100,000 twenty-five year service pins to its members," said President Fraser. "Our association is growing rapidly. It is becoming larger and of greater service to its members."

THE POLITICAL MUDDLE

Alabama's political muddle reminds me of a story I once read of a colored preacher just out from some theological school serving his congregation. Being a well groomed and educated colored gentleman, he was quite a power in the community, was looked up to and respected by all the members of his flock, and when information on any subject was desired he was consulted for his opinion. Things progressed very favorably. He grew in esteem and popularity, until he was discovered to be holding one of the lambs of his flock in his arms. As this lamb was an ewe lamb, and the most popular belle of the community, quite a commotion was stirred up over the affair, and charges were preferred against Brother Johnson, the preacher, for holding one of the lambs of the flock in his arms.

Conference convened, the charges read, and Brother Johnson was asked if he had anything to say in his defense. Brother Johnson says, "Brother Deacons, I wish to ask if you have ever observed any of the Ecclesiastical Works of art?" Brother Deacons reply, "We have." Then Brother Johnson says, "Then if you have, I wish to ask if you ever saw the picture of the Good Shepherd, excepting He held a lamb in his arms?" Brother Deacons reply, "We have not." Then Brother Johnson says, "If it is right for the Good Shepherd of all the sheep to hold one of the lambs of the flock in his arms, then why is it wrong for the Shepherd of this flock to hold one of the lambs of this flock in his arms?"

This was too much for the Brother Deacons, so they adjourned the conference to a called meeting. At the called meeting the chairman of the Board of Deacons read the following resolution: "Be it resolved by the Deacons of this church that we exonerate Brother Johnson for holding one of the lambs of this flock in his arms; but, be it further resolved, that if Brother Johnson must hold another lamb of this flock in his arms, that it be a ram lamb."

Likewise the action of the Democratic Executive Committee, by the majority vote of the members, have said to the voters of the state, that if any one desires to run for office in this state, that it be an Alfred E. Smith supporter for president.—Rural Advocate, Tuscaloosa.

Little Ruth had gone alone to church and she came home carrying a small bag of chocolate.

The little girl looked up in surprise.

"I bought it with the threepenny bit you gave me," she said. "The minister met me at the door and got me in for nothing."—Edinburgh Scotman.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

One of the most difficult hurdles for the internationalists to make in their efforts to induce the United States to take a more active part in international affairs by joining the League of Nations or some of the other agencies designed to embroil the United States in the affairs of Europe, or to erect a supergovernment to meddle with our international affairs given in President Washington's farewell address to the people of the United States. And this advice, it is to be remembered, was supported by the expressed views of the other founders of the nation and the early patriots.

All sorts of arguments are used to get around this advice of George Washington. The most common expression of the internationalists is that times have changed since the day of George Washington, that we are no longer weak, but a rich and powerful nation. This is undoubtedly true, but it is to be remembered that other nations have grown strong, too, and our strength and resources are only an additional temptation to involve us in those political affairs of the world which are no direct concern of ours. Another argument, and one which is even thinner, is that the development of the railroad, the telegraph, the fast steamship and the radio have changed human nature to such an extent that political and racial antipathies have gone out of date, or are rapidly being abandoned, and that we can therefore join a "super-government" with perfect safety and satisfaction to oursselves.

This of course is absurd. The nations of Europe are today as nationalistic as ever before. This is even true of communist Russia where the people are fed up with stories of how the capitalist nations are about to destroy them, and are taught that the Russian idea must sometime conquer the world. The nations of Europe have been fighting for trade and territory for centuries and the invention of the telegraph and the steamboat have not changed conditions. They have only made the various nations more efficient and better able to fight not only with arms of war but with that more insidious weapon, propaganda.

Therefore with nations more accessible than they were a century or two ago, and with the propaganda machines in the different countries working with an efficiency little dreamed of a generation ago, and all designed to break down the nationalist policies of the United States, Americans have more cause than ever to take seriously the farewell address of George Washington. As a correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune said recently:

"The need for following Washington's advice against political entanglement abroad is much greater today than in his time. What with all the modern facilities for propaganda for "framing" a situation and suddenly stampeding whole populations, then involving them quickly by means of a lot of international automatic self-starting political machinery, never before has it been so clearly to our interests to stand clear, independent and neutral, reserving to ourselves our disinterested and unentangled political judgement at moments of great crises."

The thinking American will not be deceived, therefore, by the assertion that modern invention and modern developments have made the advice of George Washington archaic. They will see that the danger of a supergivernment to regulate American policies is more acute than in the days when the only transAtlantic communication was the sailing vessel. They do comprehend the situation and for that reason they are against any commitments of any joining of superorganizations which will take from the President and the Senate of our own country, any of their power to formulate and direct the international policies of the United States.

NOT A NICKEL COUNTRY

Time was when the nickel was an impotrant piece of money in this country. It bought a quart of milk, a good cigar, a street car ride or a ham sandwich.

You could get an automobile ride for a jitney. A Jitney, you know, is a nickel. Only the name survives. The motion picture theatres were "Nickelodeons," another word that died shortly after birth. You can still buy a newspaper for a nickel, or less, but few of them are worth it at that.

There are those who mourn the shrinking purchasing power of the nickel and who wish for its return—not considering that such isn't a consummation devoutly to be wished. With its return to what folks consider normal would come $1.50 a day for unskilled labor, $12 a week for a skilled worker, and $25 a week for the top-notch goal in the white collar class.

Of course, you can take your nickel to France where it would be venerated. Drop a nickel on a Paris sidewalk and many a Frenchman would lose his dignity and risk a thumb and forefinger being trampled on to get it.

But here in America it isn't very much. It is Good Money, however, for they say it goes to church.—Ex.

It is said that there are twenty-one thousand lawyers in New York City. Maybe that accounts for the lack of law enforcement.

25 YEARS AGO

News Items as published in The Union and in The Banner, issues of May 25, 1905

"Forty-one years ago, this morning (May 16)," said J. W. E. Gulledge, "amid the roar of cannon and the din of war I lost my leg at the battle of Drury's Bluff, Virginia, and ever since have been hopping around with one limb, trying to make a living," and he stumped off on a business intent.

Among the sixty calls of the criminal docket of Circuit Court here the first of this week, only one was for liquor—Wiley Williams, charged with selling liquor. He was fined $50.

UNEMPLOYMENT BOOSTERS

Senator Borah of Idaho read into the Congressional Record recently a telegram to a Chicago newspaper calling attention to the fact that American corporations, financed by American capital, have acquired factories in Europe, and have become the strongest factors in driving American commerce from foreign markets. He declared that he did not know what could be done about it.

One thing that could be done about it is for Congress to decline further to encourage this export of American capital by closing our own markets to destructive cheap labor products turned out through the use of this capital, a great volume of which is being shipped into this country, displacing the product of American labor.

But when an effort is made to preserve the American market for the American worker, the howl is raised that the consumer is thereby being imposed on. Consequently we go on, through tariff rates which do not measure the difference in labor costs at home and abroad, encouraging and subsidizing this export of American capital to cheap labor markets. That thereby widespread unemployment is created does not matter.

There is only one remedy for unemployment in the United States, and those who oppose this remedy thereby give evidence of their insincerity in the matter of putting idle American workers back on the job. That is to impose a tariff on competitive foreign commodities equal to the difference in labor costs at home and abroad. Upon hundreds of articles neither the present nor the proposed tariff law provides tariff rates in conformity with this principle. Most of the ad valorem rates are rendered inoperative thru undervaluations.

There is no better illustration of the power wielded over Congress by the international financiers and industrialists and the importing interests than in this refusal to stop unemployment through the only remedial means at hand. Many of those who are now making the most complaint about unemployment are at the same time fighting the only method by which that unemployment could be relieved. There as an explanation of all unemployment in this country in the excessive quantity of imports produced by labor so cheap that the American wage earner cannot compete. To allow this vast volume of imports to displace enough American unemployment is to vote a premium on the degredation of labor and offer encouragement to American industrialists to go abroad and buy labor in the cheapest markets available.

BY "JACK" HIMSELF

Any time you want to get a good cross section view of humanity and human nature, just attend an all-day singing. If it is one of the "long standing" all-day singings, so much the better. They'll be there—all sizes and kinds—all types and dispositions—anything you're looking for, it's there.

There's the guy who tries to see how close to the front steps he can park his car. A little later, after the singing starts, he decides he could have gotten a little closer if he had gone about it a little different, so he proceeds to crank "Old Huldy" and race her wheezy old motor a few times, finally succeeding in choking her down two or three times before he gets her placed exactly as he wants her.

There are others who pull as close to the windows as possible, so they can sit in their cars and chat away the day. As he is so close in that he can be heard all over the house when he talks very loud, he will, of course, make it a point to holler to every Tom, Dick or Harry who passes, whether he ever knew him before or not.

There are those who, instead of trying to park so as to take up as little of the precious space as possible, seemingly try to see how wrong-set-on he CAN get. If he has to move around a dozen or two times to make room, so much the better—that'll give him a good chance to let everybody know how small a space he can turn his car in.

There's the guy who has a new one and don't want another parked in six feet of it, all ways, for fear it'll get scratched. He makes a point of staying close around and yelling when anybody looks like he might be thinking of pulling in pretty close.

And there's his exact opposite, who believes in "stacking 'em in," all sizes, shapes, and colors, sardine fashion. If he can get them boxed in so that two or three fenders and lamps get a nice extra crimp or two. If he can get a few pressed in so they have to be pulled apart—that's just dandy.

Of course there are some who don't park at all—keep moving—back and forth through the throng of people and cars. He scrapes a fender here, takes off a hub cap there. He gets a big kick out of it, too, and if anything is said about it, he wants to know if you want to "get on your head" about it.

Then there are the "horn tooters." If he has a peculiar whistle of some sort, so much the better. And if he happens to be one who is a combination of perpetual mixer and horn tooter—it's just TOO BAD. If any difference, he's the worst pest in the whole drove.

The seat testing brigade comes next. Every last auto cushion on the grounds must be tested. After bouncing around in one car a few times, the next one is in order. Lots of these have a mania for trying out horns, too. These testers are extra busy if they have a rainy day and a muddy yard to help the cause along.

Almost forgot the paint-testing outfit. Lots of fellows will walk across the road to strike a match to light his smoke, that is if a nice new sedan is over there for him to strike the match on. He doesn't seem to realize that the owner would have scratched up the finish of his car himself, and to his own taste, if he had wanted it done.

And, of course, it wouldn't be true to life to leave the boob who goes to this kind of an affair to drink his "joy juice." Happily, there is not as much of this as there once was. We think a desire among people to show a reasonable amount of common decency is one reason for this. Another good one is the 18th amendment. Who said it didn't do good?

And, trying to save the best to the last, there are those—a blessed and precious few—who go to singings to sing or listen to the singing. Few though they may be, maybe they make up for the others. There is nothing finer nor better than good singing. When you attend another singing, check up on yourself and see to which of the above groups you belong.

Didn't intend to have so much to say about the above when we first started out, but once started we couldn't find a stopping place without putting it all down for you to think over. After all, you've noticed it, now haven't you?

The POTTER passed by the farm of Mr. Wilbur Bean up in the Collins Chapel Community a few days ago, and took a look at his briar patch. Hold on, there. No time to giggle—he HAS got a briar patch, and a nice one, too. And he was gathering dewberries galore as we passed and stopped. Now, that may not be such an odd thing to some, but we must confess—we didn't know that briars were CULTIVATED in Chilton County.

From what Mr. Bean says, it would be a good thing for lots of farmers to follow his example. He has an acre in dewberries, and has contracted the entire crop at $3.00 per crate. He stated that he expected to get about a hundred crates from his acre this year, and MORE than that in years to come. Now, I ask you—is $300.00 a year per acre to be sneezed at? We didn't think so.

We heard a pretty good one the other day. Don't know why we never thought of it before, because, like the old prospector said, "it was there all the time, just waiting." After discussing the hard ground, cool weather, bad strawberry turn-out, politics, and things in general with a farmer who was plowing in his field, we cranked up and prepared to move on. The old fellow was pretty keen—he liked to talk about the political wrangle. "Well," he 'lowed, as he gathered up his lines and chuckled, "I'll get this old Democrat to going again. He's lazier than the most of the two-legged ones I know, but I don't believe he's half as foolish or hard-headed." Pretty good, eh?—"JACK."

THE TERSE AGE

It happened in Denver. A couple stood in front of a bishop. They joined hands. The bishop said, "Married"—that and nothing more. Denver attorneys say the marriage was legal. Possibly, some time, this same couple will stand before a judge seeking separation, and possibly the judge will merely look them over and say, "Divorced." Then may come a time when one or both of the interested parties will die and the officiating personage may merely remark, "Dead," and the earth will begin to fall into their resting place. We are reaching quite a terse age, aren't we?—Omaha World-Herald.

John Barrymore is reported to be disappointed that it was a girl instead of a boy, but a good many other people, who think the country is pretty well stocked up on Barrymore boys, are taking an amazing cheerful view of the matter. —Kansas City Star.

ACCIDENT PREVENTION NEED

The automobile accident record continues its upward trend. So important has this problem become that President Hoover recently called another conference to consider means for reducing fatalities.

One thing, at least, is clear—the methods of the past have failed. Compulsory insurance, heralded as the long-awaited panacea, has not decreased accidents. Traffic laws in most states are outmoded or are inadequately enforced. Traffic congestion on streets and highways is steadily growing more severe.

An authority on safety says that the most important single step is the licensing law for drivers. Thousands of automobiles are being operated by incompetent or reckless persons, all of whom are potential killers and destroyers of property.

Defective cars, turning in the middle of the road, cutting in, passing on curves, failure to give turning signals, etc., are leading causes of accidents. Every state should have a driver's license law and a modernized, rigidly enforced traffic code.

LIBRARIES ON WHEELS

Nearly eight times as many library units were purchased for Alabama schools in 1928-29 as were purchased in 1920-21. Not only were more books bought, but those purchased were made available to a larger number of children by means of the traveling library. This library on wheels is nothing more than a truck that transports books purchased by the county from one school to another.

In 1928 four counties, Calhoun, Cullman, Etowah, and Jefferson were using these traveling libraries. When a truck for the purpose was not available, the books were exchanged by the supervisors and teachers, as was done in Clay, Conecuh, Elmore, Marengo, Lawrence, Cleburne, Sumter, and St. Clair counties two years ago. During the present year Randolph, Greene, and Clark have added the circulating library, Randolph using the truck for the purpose, with a full-time librarian in charge.

The outstanding example of library facilities for rural children in Alabama is found in Walker County, where recently $25,000 was secured for the purpose of establishing a public library that will serve the schools. The books will be housed in a separate building. Full-time librarians will be employed, and special book centers will be established throughout the county. These will be served by the library truck. A special division of the library will be available for the negro schools.

An extension of library service to the hundreds of Alabama schools that as yet have practically no books is one of the urgent needs at the present time.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

It is my business to see sights. I saw one last Thursday. It was Charley McCall's campaign contraption. He parked it out on Upchurch's corner for an exhibition of his campaign acrobatics. It was an automobile rigged out with three loud speakers so that Charley can sit in comfort and without any extra effort scatter his voice all over a whole town at once.

This outfit was a true type of Charley McCall. Unique, odd, eccentric, I thought as I looked and listened. Charley's campaign outfit will gain attention for him wherever he goes. Whether it will get him the required number of votes remains yet to be seen.

Charley McCall might get to be Governor of Alabama. Under our peculiar election laws it can happen that a man may become Governor by the approval of only a small percentage of the votes of the State. But Governor or not, I think we shall never see the day when a majority of the people of Alabama will take Charley McCall seriously.

"If we knew more about the chemistry of foods, we could save ourselves a lot of physical discomfort," said Uncle Joe Hester Monday morning. He is just getting his system straightened out from a mix-up with some honey last week. With the honey and some other things he got the wrong combination in his stomach, and was miserably sick for a couple of days. What to eat and how to eat is a problem that holds the secret of health for a great number of people.

Rev. S. J. Ezell left Monday for Ashland, in Clay County, where he will spend this week and part of next conducting a revival meeting. In his absence there will be no preaching service at Clanton Baptist Church next Sunday and Sunday night. In the absence of our pastor, the Baptist folks will always find a hearty welcome with Brother Childs and the Methodist congregation.

Charley Wyatt said Monday that he sold out his franchise to operate the new ferry on the Rockford Highway below Mitchell Dam. We understand that the man whom he sold out to is an experienced river man who has been running a ferry on the Tennessee River between Guntersville and Huntsville. It is stated that the ferry will be in operation just as quickly as the new owner can get his equipment installed.

Tomorrow, May 30, Decoration Day, is the time for the annual picnic of the rural letter carriers of Chilton County. Raymond Duffey, secretary of the organization, has made the announcement for this occasion. It will be held at the place where the new Rockford Highway reaches the river, below Mitchell Dam. By way of the new road it will be easy to reach the place, and everybody is assured of a good time. The invitation of Mr. Duffey says: Everybody come and bring well filled baskets.

I saw Tom Bragg as he drove through Clanton Sunday afternoon on his return to Birmingham from a visit to Lay Dam. Mr. Bragg is one of the high officials in the power industry. He is the felow who, when he graduated from Auburn a few years back, is said to have faced the world with a most miserable uncertainty as to where he would find fame and fortune. Now he gets himself in the front-page headlines by contributing $10,000 to the new Auburn athletic stadium. Yes, indeed, the hydro-electric power industry has "made" those who were fortunate and farsighted enough to get in on the ground floor.

Mr. W. H. Sartor gives us a bit of interesting history about the first newspaper published in Chilton County. It was called The Chilton County Courier. W. A. Collier was proprietor. Robert A. Wright, brother of our Uncle Billy Wright, was editor. W. H. Sartor was devil. The printing office from which The Courier was issued was in the northeast corner room of the old courthouse which stood in the spot where Second Avenue now crosses Sixth Street.

Our baseball ground then was right where the present courthouse stands, said Mr. Sartor. When the boys began to gather for a game, the printing office closed and the force went out to take part in the sport. When we got the paper printed I would take some copies and go to the trains as they passed and cry Chilton County Courier. My recollection is that I sold two or three copies in all my experience. That was an accident, I guess.

An elderly man spectating on the fire Tuesday morning allowed that women are sights these days, anyhow, as he obseved a group of women in early morning attire watching the performance from the top of some other buildings near the one that was on fire. Time was when women were only to be seen now and then. Now it is all different. They must see as well as be seen. Well, why not? Especially since it takes a fire or an earthquake, or something of the sort to get lots of us out of the bed at four o'clock in the morning. I guess that fire Tuesday morning gave lots of us, men and women, boys and girls, a chance to see the sun rise for the first time in a year.

County Farm Agent's Notes

SEWELL ADVISES WEAN WITH CARE

Auburn, Ala., May 26.—Proper care of sows and pigs at weaning time will greatly reduce losses to Alabama hog growers in the opinion of W. E. Sewell, assistant professor of animal husbandry at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"At eight weeks of age is a good time to wean pigs because they are usually able to eat grain at that time," he said. "The sows's feed should be reduced and the feed of the pigs increased by slowly changing the pigs from a milk to a cencentrate ration. When pigs begin to eat from the mother's trough at three to four weeks of age they should be provided with a creep of slatted boards where feed can be kept before them at all times right up to weaning.

"They will eat more and more of the concentrated mixture and as the sow's ration is reduced from one week before weaning the pigs will replace their lessened milk supply with concentrates and hardly miss the sow the day she is removed. The sow's feed should be reduced from her full ration for one week before weaning, step by step, until the day of weaning when she should be receiving only a pound or two. This reduces the milk flow to the pigs and causes them to change slowly to concentrates. If the sow is continued on the light ration. For a week or so after weaning there is much less likelihood of caked or spoiled udders."

On the day of weaning the sow should be transferred to a lot where she cannot hear or see the pigs, Professor Sewell added. In his opinion it is best to leave the pigs in the lot where they were raised.

DAIRY COW USED TO BOOST INCOME

Tuscaloosa, Ala., May 26.—Evidence that farmers of Tuscaloosa County are using the dairy cow to increase their income is presented by the fact that the condensery here is receiving 29,000 pounds of milk daily with the supply steadily on the increase. R. C. Lett, county agent, recalls that this is 3,000 pounds more than was received on any day last year.

Mr. Lett is visiting dairymen in order to encourage them to plant more forage crops for their cows in a hope that a large acreage of soybeans, cowpeas, and sudan grass will be grown, he stated.

RADIO IN SCHOOLS IS AUBURN COURSE

Auburn, Ala., May 26.—A new and unique feature of the Auburn summer session which opens June 2 will be a course in the use of radio in public schools and high schools. Miss Marie Finney, who conducted during the spring a series of school programs over Station WAPI in Birmingham, will conduct this course. Arrangements will be made to give it to all students interested.

The school broadcasts presented over WAPI by Miss Finney were popular among students, teachers, and parents, as revealed by the large number of letters received. During her stay in Auburn Miss Finney will explain to teachers how they may use radio effectively in their school work.

EGGS BRING GROUP $100 INCOME DAILY

Columbiana, Ala., May 26.—Farmers of one community in Shelby County realize an average income from eggs of $100 a day, reports A. A. Lauderdale, county agent. The eggs are carried to the Birmingham market at the rate of 100 cases a week. The farmers receive from 25 cents to 30 cents per dozen. Some poultry also is being marketed.

CULLMAN HAS BIG CLUB ENROLLMENT

Cullman, Ala., May 26.—This county presents a large enrollment in 4-H club work with 980 boys as members. It is believed that Cullman is leading all counties of the state in enrollment. C. H. Bedingfield, county agent, says the boys are enthusiastic with their projects of growing cotton, corn, other crops, calves, and hogs.

FARMERS WILL SOON START WEEVIL FIGHT

Auburn, Ala., May 26.—Whether or not the battle between the cotton farmer and the bool weevil this year will be bigger than last will be determined largely by the condition of the weaher during June, July, and August, in the opinion of W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at Auburn. If the weather should be generally dry and hot it will do much to control weevils; if it should be cool with frequent rains farmers must either apply poison or allow much of their cotton to be destroyed, Mr. Ruffin said.

And a little dry weather is not adequate for control, he explained. assume that a few days of hot weather with the sun shining will kill weevils but this is not the case. Such weather may kill a few of them but enough will survive to make it very profitable for farmers to apply calcium arsenate to poison them."

Along with farmers, county agents are keeping an eye on the bool weevil situation and advising farmers to be ready to begin applying poison as soon as enough weevils are found. This is determined by counting squares. Squares ar collected at different points in a field and when it is found that as many as 10 out of a hundred are punctured it is time to begin poisoning.

The first application is followed by two others at intervals of four or five days. This series of three should be sufficient to check boll weevil damages. If, however, a heavy rain falls within 24 hours after the application is made another should be made. In making the application it is important to use the right kind of dusting machinery and it is important to buy calcium arsenate early, Ruffin said.

THERE'S MORE TO THIS TIRE THAN Mileage, MISTER!

Low price, for one thing . . . and that significant name "Goodrich" on the sidewall!

MILEAGE? Sure there's mileage in the Cavalier! Plenty of it . . . and every bit the kind that lets you forget you've got tires on your car!

There are low prices to think about, too. Real savings, in cold hard cash.

And right there on the sidewall . . . that significant name Goodrich! Assurance of quality . . . value . . . ability to take punishment!

For Goodrich puts its name on only one kind of tire . . . the kind that stands up in spite of punishment, high speeds, bad roads. The kind that takes its own good time about wearing out . . . and keeps you from worrying about it.

That's the kind of a tire the Cavalier is. Big. Husky. Oversize in air cushion and tread thickness. Stout in the sidewalls. Water-cured for through-and-through toughness. And mighty good looking on your car.

You can forget about mileage. That goes for granted with any Goodrich Tire. Just remember the low prices and the fact that they're backed by Goodrich.

Come in. We have them in all sizes . . . including a couple for trucks. All at special prices right now.

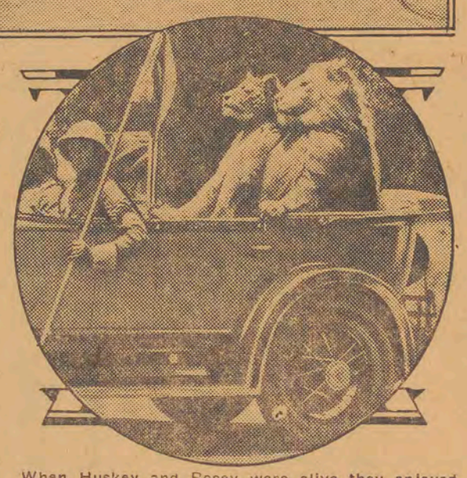
Numa, King of Movie Lions, Likes To Ride in Master's Automobile

Huskey and Rosey Also Were Motor Enthusiasts Often Seen On California Roads.

NOT every lion can sport an automobile.

But Numa does, or thinks he does, which is the same thing. As emperor of all motion picture felines, he appropriates what he wants in quite the kingly manner.

So it isn't strange that when the people of El Monte, or of any section in Southern California, spy one of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gay's three Lincolns coming along they disregard those in front and look beyond for a glimpse of Numa yawning complacently in the back seat.



Numa enjoys those drives as much as did Huskey and Rosey who played their last roles for the pictures some months ago. Huskey and Rosey were remotely related to Numa by devious jungle lineage, going back to some remote and common ancestor. Before she died, Rosey, during her sojourn of seven and a half years with Mr. and Mrs. Gay presented forty-six cubs to the lion farm.

That gave the feline screen colony a population of about a hundred great tabby cats and made it the largest in the world, in all that population Numa reigns supreme. He's the most famous of all Hollywood lions and during the past ten years has earned sums running into five figures.

Apparently, however, all he wants is just a ride now and then along the salubrious open roads and an occasional glimpse of some of his little worshipping friends playing along the roadside.

Numa is privileged to ride in any one of Mr. Gay's Lincolns, the two open touring cars, which he prefers, or the limousine which Mr. Gay bought in 1921 especially for transporting his lions from location to location.

There must have been lots of locations since 1921 because that car now registers well over 100,000 miles.

When Huskey and Rosey were alive they enjoyed riding in the lion farm's Lincoln cars. Above: Numa, the movie lion, negotiates for a ride in his owner's Lincoln.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. Norton, Manager)

Mr. J. A. M. Bosworth, who had a miraculous escape from death in an automobile accident last week, has returned to his work as club manager at Mitchell Dam. While still somewhat below par, he is able to attend to his duties, and trusts to time for full recovery.

Frank Nelson and August Larsen, whose business is making bored wells, have recently been working at the home of Mr. Suit, about half a mile east of Isabella school house, putting down there a three inch well. They struck a vein which gave them a flowing well, something never found in this section of the state. A flowing well is one that furnishes a stream of water without pumping. Mr. Nelson did not say how deep the well is, or what pressure it has, but will report details later.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Peterson and son, Jack, left Tuesday for a two weeks visit with their son, Albert, in New York City. During their absence Mr. Sam Pate will serve as acting mayor.

Last Saturday night a group of young people, 28 in number, 13 to 18 years old, boys and girls, chaperoned by Mrs. Each, provided with eats and games, gave Martha Williams a genuine surprise party, as a welcome to her, on returning to her home, after graduating at the State School for the Blind, at Talladega. Mrs. Each reports that the youngsters all behaved so well that it was a pleasure to be with them, and some of them told her they wanted her with them next time. Everybody had a splendid time and no "Rough House."

As an example of the spirit of amity which prevails among Thorsby people, we noted one day last week Mrs. Jones, wife of the pastor of the Baptist Church, and Mrs. Eeach Wife of the Congregational Minister, making calls together like a couple of old friends to the whole neighborhood.

The Y. W. M. Circle No. 2 met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. R. Franklin, who had been called to Greenville on account of illness of one of her kinsfolk, in her absence the place of hostess was taken by Mrs. Alton A. Cox.

We are credibly informed that a lease has been signed for a new store to be built for Thorsby Drug Company, on the ground now occupied by the home of W. H. Goodgame, who will move his house to the east side of the tract, facing Summit Ave.

"Community Dinner," following the commencement exercises Friday of this week, closes about noon. This dinner will be sponsored as usual by The Ladies Guild of Thorsby, who extend an invitation to all patrons and friends of the school to come with well filled baskets that will not only provide for themselves but for others who may be present and unprovided for, which the people of Thorsby and vicinity well know how it should be done.

Ice cream will be for sale on the ground in charge of a committee of the Ladies Guild.

Miss Agnes Gerald returned last week from Guntersville, Ala., where she has taught in High School for the past two years. Within a few days she will leave for Washington, D. C., where she has secured a position in the U. S. Census Bureau. She will make her home with Mrs. Lee Taylor, known in Thorsby as Harriet Swan.

Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald announces the engagement of her daughter, Iola, to Mr. Leonard Moody, of Birmingham.

Mrs. Lewis Howard had as her guests last Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams of Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Howard had as Sunday Dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Howard.

Wm. Each spent the week end at home, attending Thorsby Institute alumni party Saturday night and Sunday exercises at the auditorium.

Bothered with ants? Pearson's Ant Specific is guaranteed to rid your home of them in 24 hours.. Price 50 cents; mail orders filled.—Thorsby Drug Company. 1ch

The committee of The Ladies Guild, in charge of the park, desire to thank all the good people who contributed towards a recent clean up.

Mr. and Mrs. Raybon, Mr. Charley Raybon and children, Charley Jr., Sidney, Effie and Addie Bell, of Randolph; father, mother and brother of W. H. Raybon, and Mrs. John Wallace, of Randolph, were all guests of Mr. and Mrs. Raybon Sunday.

Mrs. Alton A. Cox has as her guest her cousin, Leonard Rogers, of Blocton.

Mr. J. L. Foshee and Miss Olene Mims, of Liberty Hill, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Garrick Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Hendricks, Mrs. Dunnilly and a student, all from Boaz, Ala., were visitors at Thorsby Institute Tuesday. Mrs. Hendricks is Dean of Women and Mrs. Dunnilly Matron of Girls Dormitory at Snead Seminary, a Methodist school at Boaz similar to Thorsby Institute.

Dr. F. R. Ensminger, supterintendent of Congregational Missions in Alabama and West Florida will be a guest of Thorsby friends during commencement at Thorsby Institute.

Robert Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Carlson is quite ill at the home of his parents in Thorsby.

Mr. J. H. Goddard is on the sick list, confined to his bed with kidney trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton A. Cox were Sunday visitors at the home of Mrs. Cox's mother in Prattville.

Mr. Foster Williams is a guest of his brother, C. M. Williams in Thorsby.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Norton had as guests Sunday Mrs. Norton's sister, Mrs. W. G. Payne, Mr. Yancy M. Kelly and little daughter, Audry, all of Birmingham.

Thorsby Institute News

On Saturday night the alumni of Thorsby Institute held their annual business meeting. At this meeting the following officers were elected: president, Ruth Martin; vice-president, John M. VanDerveer, Jr.; secretary, Lois Prim; treasurer, Mabel Howard. A sum of money was voted from the treasury and individual gifts were added to it toward the purchasing of the New International Encyclopedia for the library.

Sunday morning the baccalaureate services were held at Helen Jenkins Hall. The Sophomore Class, with Mr. Sutlive decorated the stage very prettily and differently from what it has ever been. The anthem rendered by the choir, the duet by the Misses Arthur and Gerald and the solo by Miss Esther Johnson were splendid. These three young ladies are Thorsby Institute graduates. Rev. Joseph Each, pastor of the Congregational Church gave an inspiring message.

Thursday night at 7:45 the Senior Class play will take place in the auditorium. The title is "The Mouse-Trap." The class exercises consisting of will, prophecy, etc., will be held that night too. Admission for adults and children is twenty-five cents.

On Friday morning at ten thirty o'clock the graduating exercises will take place. There will be special music by the pupils of the school. Rev. Russell Johnson, pastor of North Birmingham Presbyterian Church will give the address.

My Favorite Stories by Irvin S. Cobb

The Species Was Not Yet Extinct

BY WAY of a beginning, it is incumbent to me to explain that the negroes of the coast of South Carolina and Georgia have a distinctive patois which differs radically from the speech of members of their own race up country. "Gullah talk," as it is called, has but one gender—the masculine. Everything—a man, a woman, a bull, a cow—is "he." "Where" is "w'ar," "though" is "do," etc., etc.

With this bit of explanation, we may proceed. An Englishman, desirous of killing some big game during his visit to America, accepted an invitation to visit a plantation owner on one of the sea islands lying below Charleston. In honor of the visitor a deer drive was arranged. The Britisher, chaperoned by an old negro man, was assigned to a "stand" on one of the best "runs." Beforehand he had been told to shoot only at bucks, as the does and the fawns enjoyed protection.

Presently, to the ears of the nervous Englishman where he crouched with his black companion in a thicket, came the sound of the hounds' baying. The dogs had found a fresh scent. They were drawing nearer and nearer.

Fifty yards away, across an open glade, a darting patch of tawny brown showed in the undergrowth. The Englishman fired, and a convulsive thumping in the underbrush told him he had not missed.

The old negro left his covert and ran forward to see what it was that had been shot.

"Did I kill him?" called the excited amateur.

"Yeah, boss. You kill 'im," answered the darky, as he bent over the stricken game. Then, seeing that the fallen animal had no horns, he added: "'E a doe do'."

At this moment the host hurried up the trail, having heard the shot from his place of ambush a hundred yards or so away.

"Any luck?" he called out as he approached.

"Oh, yes," answered the Britisher, exultantly. "I thought I saw a deer and dropped it, but your black fellow yonder has just told me that it is a dodo—a creature which I thought was entirely extinct. Lucky, eh, what?"

FATS BEAT LEANS, 16-15

The "fats" beat the "leans" 16 to 15 last Thursday afternoon in a game of baseball sponsored by the Baptist Ladies Aid Society. The laughs came thick and fast throughout the contest, all parties concerned having a part in providing them. Maurice Lande's base running was a special feature. Diefenderfer provided the fans with several good laughs too, when he made attempts to steal bases. "Coos" Neighbors' "change of pace," while doing the mound duty for the "fats" was a good one. "Coos" said it was a change of pace, but most of the spectators had a notion that "Coos" just gave out and naturally slowed up a bit.

As was to be expected from a game played by men who practice no more than our fats and leans do, there were several errors. Base hits came thick and fast too. But the crowd got a great kick two or three times when a few of the innings were "three up and three down" affairs. "Vic" Heard gave the crowd a good laugh as an umpire, when he ruled that DeWitt Easterling might stand three feet in front of the pitcher's pot in order to be able to throw as far as home plate.

It was a great game—not as baseball games go, but in furnishing fun for the crowd. In fact it was so good that another one of about the same kind is scheduled for Thursday of this week (today) notice of which will be found elsewhere in this paper. Be on hand if you want to laugh and keep on laughing.

Besides being a success from the standpoint of entertainment, the ladies report that the occasion was profitable to their Society, also. Gate receipts, together with drinks, etc., sold during the game netted a nice profit.

GOING TO GREAT COUNCIL AT TALLASSEE

Hon A. H. Mixon, Great Chief of Records of Alabama, Hon. Clyde D. McKee, Great Senior Sagamore, and Hon. Milton J. Daniel, of Griffin, Georgia, representing the Great Council of the United States, were in Clanton Monday afternoon, on their way to Tallassee, to attend the annual meeting of the Great Council of Alabama, Improved Order of Red Men.

These gentlemen stopped in Clanton to make some inquiry about Waxahatchie Tribe, No. 9, which has been defunct for about a year. They expressed a hope that something could be done to revive the Tribe here, saying that the Great Council of Alabama would very gladly get behind a movement to revive Redmanship in these hunting grounds.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

"SOME MILE POSTS"

In Luke 13:6 we find Christ teachnig in a parable. Christ's parables are characteristic of the gospels of both Luke and Matthew. The sentence is "Jesus spake to them in a parable saying: 'I want to teach you an important truth. A certain man had a fig tree planted in a vineyard. And after a time becomes back but does not find any figs thereon.' The certain man is God and the fig tree is the case of Christ and His disciples. Primarily it was a Hebrew church and the vineyard was the world. Yes, my friends, the field is the world. Christ did not say, "Go ye into Jerusalem and all Judea and preach my gospel" but he said, "Go ye therefore into all the world and preach the gospel to all creatures."

I ask you to think of this. I remember distinctively the hot August evening I went to Mt. Olive with the pilgrim and study party. There about a mile from Bethany the guide and teacher says to you, "This must have been the place where Christ after giving the Great Commission and raising His hands and blessing the disciples ascended to the right hand of God, the Father." I do not doubt this location.

Looking down on the eastern side of Olivet I could see the location of what no doubt is Bethphage. Somebody has said that it cannot be located. I believe that is its loctaion just before one reaches Bethany going into Jerusalem. On its slopes I could see nine of ten fig trees but no figs. Christ comes along by the fig tree at the fruit-bearing season expecting to find fruit but finds only leaves. I wonder if He comes and looks over my life saving, "Your life is covered with the beautiful green leaves but where is the fruit?" .....

The laves on the tree may be formality in the church, no fruit; wealth, no fruit; egotism, no fruit; eloquent preaching, no fruit; fine singing, no fruit; a non-missionary church, no fruit. You know the beautiful secret of the Christian life is doing something for others, sending the gospel to the ends of the world. O, the barrenness of the church, O the barrenness of the fig tree, the fruitless Christian. If Christ should come

1. "Nothing but leaves; the Spirit grieves over a wasted life. O'er sins committed while conscience slept; promises made but never kept, Folly and shame and strife—nothing but leaves.

2. And shall we meet the Master so, bearing our withered leaves? The Savious looks for perfect fruit; stand we before Him sad and mute, waiting the word He breathes 'Nothing but leaves.'

3. Nothing but leaves; and memory weaves no veil to hide the past; and as we trace our weary way; counting each lost and misspent day; sadly we find at last, nothing but leaves."

If Christ would come today would He see no fruit in my life? O, to be a fruit-bearing Christian. What would make me fruit-bearing Christian? In the prophesy of Isaiah, God speaks of going away from him of the Hebrew people, His own children, saying, "You have wandered away from Me, forgotten Me, and turned your back upon Me." There was no fruit on the branch because it had pulled out of the vine. Then in the greatest tenderness I bring these words from God in this same prophecy: "In me is thy fruit." That is, if you are in me by faith, by love, by confidence, by a surrendered life, by submission, "In me is thy fruit."

So reading and studying the above teaching from God I also read God's Word written by tthe apostle, Paul, "Without me ye can do nothing." That is unless one is in Christ as the branch is in the vine, being rooted, brounded and built in Christ and tied to him by the cart ropes of his love he can do nothing. His life must be so built up in Christ that nothing can seperate him from the love of God which is in Jesus Christ.

The chruch needs to be quiet in God's love. It is a wonderful thing to be quiet and calm in God's love to bear fruit. I love to think of the hymn, Blessed Be Quietness when I am seeking quietness. Quitude with God is a great blessing to the Christian. Even in the greatest storm there is blessed quietness in Christ.

I used to preach at Oxmor every week. From those services God raised up a wonderful preacher. After the evening services there I would leave on the midnight train for home. But one evening as I passed out of the door a young woman clasped my hand and said, "Brother Bryan would you mind coming up on Shades Mountain to see my father and mother in the morning?" I assured her that I would and so I transferred my ticket until the next day. I arose early and walked up that mountain to find that humble home of a father eighty-two years old, and a mother seventy-nine, living with this daughter. The girl met me at the door and welcomed me into a room with an oak fire which drove away the wintry blast. I prayed with those kind, disabled parents who were being lovingly cared for by their daughter. As I bade them good bye and started home the girl walked to the door with me and said, "Pray for me that I may bear much fruit in my life." I could but say to her, "How could you bear more fruit than you are in your loving care and devoted life to your parents in Jesus' name?" So many people do not bear fruit taking care of their fathers and mothers.

The 15th chapter of the Gospel according to John brings us a little nearer to great thoughts of bearing fruit. Some have called it the "Abide Chapter" while still others call it the "Pruning Chapter." Both titles are true. But in reading it you are thrilled with the number of times much fruit is mentioned, and I think of it as the "Much Fruit Chapter." Jesus said, "Herein is my father glorified that ye bear much fruit. " He also says, "I am the vine and ye are the branches. The branch cannot bear fruit unless I am in Christ Jesus. I must keep myself in the love of Christ Jesus so that nothing can separate me from His great love."

This perfect love casteth out all fear. I believe the time has come when we have got to come to the point when we find more time to be quiet, alone with God in His love. The way is so hard, the road is so rough, and the thorns sting me so bad that I can only say, "Help me, O Lord for I had rather be with thee in the dark than alone in the light." We must have the faith in Him who is invisible. The reason Moses stood firm he endured as seeing Him invisible. No heartache is too great when we endure as seeing Him invisible. I could not preach this Gospel of Jesus Christ if my heart had not been broken on account of sin.

Every branch in me that beareth fruit He purgeth that it may bring forth more fruit. The Greek word for purge means cleanse. He cleanses the fruit-bearing branch. He clips it and bruises it. You and I have had sorrows. There have been dark days in our lives. God loves those He trims, prunes, and cuts the little dead leaves from the branch which is in the vine. You get life, vigor, sap, and power to bear fruit when in Christ Jesus. I must not talk so much about getting Christ in me. You must not talk so much about getting Christ in you. We must think more and talk more about getting ourselves in Christ.

He prunes the branch that it may bring forth more fruit. What kind of a fig tree am I? Am I bearing figs? These are very serious things in my poor life. Do you ever think about it? Is there fruit in your life? In this study I notice that I must bear fruit quietly. It is not the wagon which makes the most noise on the rocky road that carries the heaviest load. It is not the fellow who talks the loudest and rings the bell the loudest who is on time. There is not any faithfulness unless the soul lives quietly in Christ. You will never enjoy Christ unless you are faithful to be quiet and listen for God's way.

MOTHER'S FRIEND
LESSENS PAIN

THOUSANDS OF CARLOADS OF STRAWBERRIES GO TO NORTH

The Alabama strawberry season is about at an end. The crop is limited because of cold nights and a lack of rain. On the other hand, prices have been reasonably good, especially for the best quality.

To date of May 22, 1,924 carloads of potatoes have left Alabama for northern markets. This compares with a total of 1,541 carloads for last year. The movement for 1930 will doubtless run well over 2,000 carloads. The quality and price have been satisfactory.

To date of May 22, a total of 184 cars of cucumbers had been shipped from the Gulf Coast. These have brought from $1.50 to $2.50 per bushel hamper, in various northern cities.

25 carloads of cabbage left Alabama on May 21. Prices ranged from $3.50 to $5.50 per crate of 100 pounds net.

ALABAMA BEES BOOST NORTHERN FRUIT YIELDS

Alabama honey is flowing faster and bees are multiplying more rapidly than in many years, according to Thomas Atchison in charge of apiary inspection for the State Department of Agriculture. Mr. Atchison has been travelling extensively over the entire state and reports the flow of honey to be excellent with the exception of a few cold days in early spring.

Package bees began moving northward about the first of April. There is a great demand for bees to pollinate orchards of apples especially. Northern orchardists often rent bees at $5.00 per colony during the blooming season and reap a substantial reward in increased fruit.

The package bee business from Alabama is therefore being encouraged by northern fruit growers, as well as by honey producers. The orchard pollination of fruits is of immense advantage to growers who pay liberally for the rental of bees, or in many cases own them outright. Furthermore, these bees later return a handsome profit in honey.

A. F. LOKEY WRITES IN FAVOR OF A. A. JACKSON

Editor Union-Banner:

I have just learned that my good friend, A. A. Jackson, has been urged to become a candidate for the legislature, and that he has decided to do so, and that Elbert Taylor, of your county, who circulated a petition in the interest of my friend's candidacy, has received a letter from some fellow bringing many grave charges against the character of Brother Jackson. I was just astonished. The letter was headed at Helena, but asked Mr. Taylor to come to Birmingham where Mr. Jackson lived a long time and find out what an awful man he is. The man who wrote the letter was careful not to sign his name, but at the bottom of the letter he said, "Your brother in Christ."

All this makes me feel like saying something. I have been a citizen of Birmingham about eighteen years. I am a member of the First Baptist Church, a life-long educator, a voter, and a tax payer, and I have been intimately associated with Mr. A. A. Jackson fifteen years or more, and I know him to be a clean, high-toned Christian gentleman, and I brand every one of the charges made against him as absolutely false. The man who made the charges claims to be "in Christ," but I doubt it very seriously. I fail to see how a man can be "in Christ" and bear false testimony against his neighbor at the same time.

In conclusion let me say that Brother Jackson is well qualified to represent his county in the legislature. He has had successful experience as a farmer, as a labor foreman, as a merchant, and in other ways, and has a good supply of that rather rare article, common sense. Finally, and most important of all, he is as firm as adamant for the thing he believes to be right.

Yours very truly,
—A. L. Lokey.

L. H. BEAN REPLIES TO TRUSTEES OF JEMISON SCHOOL

Gentlemen:

You seem to want to dodge the real issue. We do not want a report from Clanton, we referred you to the Jemison school only. You say this report has already been made by a state auditor. How could you make this audit before the school was out and all the school expenses had been paid. You must have the cart ahead of the horse. However, we grant you this, why don't you post this report in the town of Jemison, or publish it in the papers, just come clean, all we want is justice. Now, this is what we want. How many dollars and cents have you collected as incidental fees last school term, and how many dollars and cents have you paid out for incidental expenses only, and how many dollars and cents have you to carry over to next term of school.

The incidental fees for the public school is $2.00 per term and $10.00 for the high school, this is what I payed. You state in your letter that the enrollment has gone from 153 to 472 in six years, and you expect to exceed 500 next year. Now, just tell the people how many rural schools you froze out to do this and how many more do you expect to freeze out to exceed 500. there is nothing smart in putting the whole county together to make a big enrollment. A wayfaring man, though a fool, could do this. You closed your letter by saying let us co-operate with our county officers on an upward trend and elect men to office on their merits. Gentlemen, this is my platform; I stand for good school and above all things honest trustees who will not falter by the wayside when called on to make a just report.

Just a few words to Mr. G. L. Glasscock. I noticed a denial statement of L. H. Bean, signed G. L. Glasscock. I deny making any statement about the Superintendent and County Board of Education, and demand that you prove I made this statement. You have just let Mr. Lawrence and Mr. C. C. Conway pull you in trouble. A failure to correct this will be a misdemeanor. Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Conway went to Mr. Pink Martin the same time to get him to sign a statement that he had lied. They failed to publish Mr. Martin's statement, which he made, so I am calling on you to publish what Mr. Martin said to you on that same trip. Mr. Glasscock made his denial. Now in conclusion, I want to say if I am elected this fall, as member of the School Board, I expect to fill the office in a way that will be approved of by all honest people. I have nothing to offer but justice as far as I have power to give it, and I will see that all necessary school reports are made when called on by the patrons of any school.

In the statement of Mr. Glasscock particular reference is made to the County Board of Education. This was apparently done to cloud the issue and divert public attention and is the first time their names have been mentioned in this controversy, to my knowledge. No denial is made by Mr. Glasscock on points of the real issue. Now, Mr. Glasscock, tell the people what you went to Montgomery for.—L. H. Bean

Honorary Class at Jemison High School

At the beginning of the past school term the demerit system was instituted in the Jemison High School. This gave each teacher in the Junior and Senior High Schools a chance to grade each student coming to her room on deportment. This was a distinct advantage over the method formerly used, and as a result, many students were very careful to do only what was right.

The above group of students have not received over ten demerits during the past year. Those in the front row did not receive any demerits. These students organized themselves into a club that they might have a part in the betterment of the school. The name selected for the club was "The Beta Club." Officers were elected as follows: Tommie Lee Sims, president; Irene Dennis, vice president; Rubye Merchant, secretary and treasurer.

It is hoped that these charter members will keep their good record and that many other students may win the honor of becoming members of the organization next year.

JERSEY CALVES WERE DISTRIBUTED SATURDAY

Fourteen purebred Jersey calves were distributed to members of the 4-H Club of this county, at the office of the County Agent here Saturday. There were sixteen lined up in the display in front of the office, two of which were heifers bought last year for James Dennis and Quinton Kelley. Three of the sixteen were bulls, the other heifers, and all purebred Jerseys.

These animals were shipped here from Tupelo, Miss. Two of the bulls exhibited were from cows that were imported from the Island of Jersey, the original home of the famous Jersey cattle, and were sired by a bull imported in dam, from the same island. The grandsire of one of the bulls shown here Saturday, is also a great-grandsire of the other two shown, and is named Exina's Sultan, and sold for $35,000 according to official records.

The names of the animals exhibited here Saturday, with the exception of two that were already owned, were placed in a hat and the selected owners allowed to draw a name from the hat to decide who got which animal. After the drawing, payment for the animal was arranged through the two banks here, for the boys. The following club boys received animals as follows:

Elbert Foshee of Clanton R 4 "Augusta Jean Lee" and paid $144. Renfroe Oden, Maplesville R 1, $109 animal. J. P. Culp, $109 animal. C. A. and E. J. Foshee of Clanton R 2 bought "Fairy Cork Screw," paying $85. Chester Messer, Verbena R 1, bought "Raleigh's Mary's Faunic's", paying $84. Claudy Bice bought "Brampton's Royal Fairy" paying $145. IN MEMORY OF LITTLE JOHN R. DONOVAN

On Friday morning, May 23, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Donovan and took from their midst their darling baby, who was born May 1, 1930. He was sick about 2 or 3 days before his death, but in spite of the untiring efforts of doctor J. J. Dubose and all that loving parents and friends could do to save him God, in his infinite wisdom, saw fit to call his sweet little soul to that celestial city not made by hands. The remains were laid to rest in the Donovan family cemetery, Friday afternoon with Rev. J. D. Deason officiating. There was a large audience of friends and relatives at the funeral to pay the last tribute of respect to this dear little babe.

Weep not dear friends and parents, for our loss is Heaven's gain. We all know that dear little John R. knew no sin, so let's all strive to meet him some sweet day in that heavenly mansion where there will be no more heart aches and farewells. We can go where dear little John R. is.

A gun duel between a negro highwayman and a farmer on a lonely road one mile north of Overton resulted in the death of the bandit and the serious wounding of Jack McCombs, 21-year-old farmer.

With a shotgun wound through his heart, the body of W. C. Thompson, prominent 65-year-old merchant, was found at Hartselle. The body was discovered by relatives who were aroused by the shot.

Four persons charged with murder in connection with the slaying of Prof. Claude F. Avant, principal of the Slocomb High School in September, 1928, will be arraigned in Geneva Circuit Court June 3.

With impressive ceremonies the Ross Chemical Laboratory at Alabama Polytechnic Institute was dedicated to science and the material and spiritual development of Alabama by President Bradford Knapp.

In a brief decision, the Alabama Supreme Court dismissed the motion for a new hearing filed by Horace C. Wilkinson, Birmingham attorney, in his suit to stop the August Democratic primary in Jefferson County.

Shot in the left side with a charge of buckshot and slugged as he attempted to flee from his assailant, Samuel Guy, of Wodstock, Ala., was found dead on a lonely road leading from the Jasper Highway near Robbins Crossroads.

A warrant charging murder against Dan C. Dickey was sworn out and turned over to Sheriff W. O. Downs by Coroner J. D. Russum, following the latter's inquest into the slaying of Samuel Guy near Robbins Cross Roads.

Declared best all-round sportswoman in the junior class, Miss Florence Stevens, Birmingham, was presented a silver loving cup by the Student Athletic Board, as a feature of "athletic night," at Palmer Hall, Alabama College.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth has been assigned to the Birmingham Methodist district for the next four years. The annual conference meetings in that district this year will be in Athens on November 5, and in Mobile, November 19.

Donald Comer, Birmingham, has presented three rare and costly volumes to the Alabama State Department of Archives and History. The gift consisted of three water color folios, portraying world costumes from 5318 B. C. to those of our own century.

J. D. HARRELL WRITES REGARDING EDUCATION

Since I have served as a rural school trustee for some time, I feel that I should know of some of the needs of schools. I am, therefore, interested in the schools and I wish to see them continue to grow.

In the first place, we need level-headed men on our County Board of Education. I feel that we have this type of men in this position now. This is shown by the earnest study they must have put the problems because they do the best things for the children of the county. Schools exist for the CHILD and not for the interest of politics. In the second place, the members need to be congenial among themselves, because in union there is strength.

In one of Mr. Bean's recent articles in the paper, he referred to this group of men as buzzards. Now, he must have been off the handle when he wrote that, because he is not a candidate for the entire board of education but only for one member. If he is elected, I wonder how he would feel to sit in a meeting with his fellow board members.

Mr. Bean seemed to get mixed up again when he said one time that the teachers' salaries ought to be cut, and then another time he said only certain teachers ought to have their salaries cut. He reminds me of the story of a young wife who could not please her grumbling husband. When she cooked hot bread for supper he wanted cold bread and when she had cold bread he wanted hot bread. Finally when she tried to please him by having both hot and cold bread at one time, he said: "I don't want bread; I want to fuss."

The statement was also made by Mr. L. H. Bean that the County Board needs brains. He was evidently proposing to furnish the brains. The above statement leads me to ask Mr. Bean a few questions:

1. Is it true that you lost a certain case in the court of Shelby County?

2. Is it not a fact that you had to be sued for your town taxes to build the streets right in front of your own business?

3. Is it not also a fact that you did all you could against the fine new Bank at Jemison? After the progressive citizens of the town went ahead and erected a good bank against your little protest, do you patronize the Jemison Bank or the Bank of Thorsby? Why? Where were the brains

Mr. Bean, how can the people of Chilton County expect you to help them in their schools when you are a constant knocker of your own school? Your high school is known State-wide as a progressive rural high school, yet, while others are boosting it you are knocking it.

I understand that a few people of Chilton county have the idea that Mr. L. H. Bean is the Prof. Bean who used to be county superintendent. Prof. Bean is not even related to Mr. L. H. Bean. Prof. Bean is a candidate for Tax Assessor and is not running for board member.

In the interest of the schools of Chilton County, I am.—J. D. Harrell.

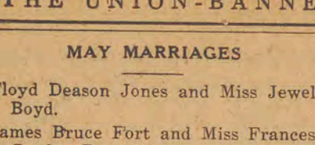
Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."



But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or even increasing the dose.

HOT ROLLS

Where is the person who doesn't like hot rolls? And yet knowing this to be a fact, many women never attempt making hot rolls for their families, thinking it is a difficult process. Making hot rolls is easy. Once a housewife starts making them, she will always make them. Her friends will demand them when they come a-dining, and almost over night she has a reputation for making rolls that fairly "melt in your mouth."

The recipe I am going to give you requires little kneading and handling and only a short time of mixing until ready for the oven. The secret of this quickness lies in the fact that we use soft wheat and plenty of yeast. We call them Parker House rolls, and you make them as follows:

2 cups scalded milk
2 tbsp. sugar
2 compressed yeast cakes
6 to 7 cups soft wheat flour
1½ tsp. salt
2 tbsp. fat

Scald the milk, add the sugar, and let cool until it is lukewarm; add the yeast and stir until it is dissolved. Then beat in enough flour to make a soft batter. Add the salt and fat and stir in enough flour to make a soft dough. Place on a floured board and knead just enough to obtain a smooth dough. Place the dough in a greased bowl, cover with a cloth, and let stand until the dough is double in bulk; cut with a large biscuit cutter, grease the biscuit with melted butter, crease through center with knife, and fold one-half over the other; grease the top of each roll and place on a well greased baking sheet to rise. When the rolls double in bulk, bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F). These delicious rolls require only about 1½ hours.

STILL TIME TO PLANT SOYBEANS FOR HAY CROP

Auburn Strongly Recommends Basic Slag For All Leguminous Crops

Have you planted enough soybeans and other hay crops to feed your livestock next winter and spring? If you haven't let us urge that you plant soybeans.

It is still not too late to plant soybeans. You will never regret planting some for hay. Let us again call your attention to the following very important facts about soybean productions as stated by G. B. Phillips, county agent of Lauderdale County.

"Auburn strongly recommends basic slag for all leguminous crops, especially soybeans.

"They found that 1,200 pounds of slag increased the yield of cured soybean hay from 950 pounds per acre with no slag to 3,875 pounds of cured hay per acre. Over a three-year period covering two crops a year—oats and peas in the fall followed by soybeans in the spring—$6.00 worth of slag made 6,600 pounds ($66.00 worth) more than land right by it with no basic slag.

"Under average conditions, we recommend 400 pounds per acre, which costs $2.00 at $10.00 per ton. This material, in addition to the phosphate acid content, carries about 800 to 1,000 pounds of lime per ton.

"Ask anybody who has given this material a thorough trial! And if your land will not make a heavy yield of hay without fertilizer, you can't go wrong in using basic slag."

Mr. Alvin B. (Buster) Foshee and Raymond Mims, who have been at the University for the past year, were the pleasant visitors of their respective parents over the week-end. They left for Nashville Sunday where they expect to work during the summer.

I. D. ARMSTRONG

Clanton Shoe Shop

For this week our artist presents a pen picture of Mr. I. D. Armstrong, proprietor of the Clanton Shop Shop. He was caught in a favorite pose, sitting on his stool, hammer in hand, and with that far-away look of contemplation on his face. Our guess is that he has paused from his work a few minutes to think about the big ones he is going to catch on his next trip to the Coosa River. Next to the shoe fixing business, Mr. Armstrong is perhaps most interested in fishing.

The Clanton Shoe Shop was established here by I. D. Armstrong in March, 1927. The first location was in the Wright Building. Last January the business was moved to the new Popwell Building, where a much better location was available.

The proprietor of the business is a native of Covington County. He was born and reared near Andalusia. He is 30 years old. Howard Gillespie, son of Walter Gillespie, is employed by Mr. Armstrong as assistant workman.

All the conveniences that modern machinery affords for the shoe repair business are found in the Armstrong shop. Since he moved to his new location, a machine has been installed for tacking soles on shoes. Instead of the old hammer and nails, one at a time by hand, this machine tacks soles on shoes just as quickly and in the same manner as the automatic sewing machines which have been in use since the shop was established.

The Clanton Shoe Shop, in addition to taking care of every kind of shoe repairing, is also equipped to handle the repair of harness and other similar lines of work.

"Service to the Sole," is the motto of this business. Hundreds of people have found this service to be a great saving of shoe money to them. A good repair job on a pair of shoes makes them practically as good and serviceable as they were when new. If you are in a hurry, Armstrong will fix your shoes while you wait, and you will not have to wait long. In fifteen minutes from the time he hits the first tap, you can walk away with a complete job, and an old pair of shoes as good as new.

"We use the best materials in the world," said Mr. Armstrong. "Tauko rubber soles that are tougher than elephant hide; also Continental Oak Soles; Columbia and Goodyear Rubber Heels. We will call for your shoes and deliver them back to you promptly, and guarantee every job we do to be fully satisfactory.

"Upon this kind of service to our customers we have built up a good business. We expect to keep it up. We stake our reputation on our work. When we do a job for you, we expect to serve you again next time. Therefore, our work must be satisfactory."

FAMILY DOCTOR LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripes; children liked its pleasant taste. All drugstores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

Speaking of the anti-noise campaign, is anything being done to abolish the automobilist who toots his horn all the time traffic is being held up by the red light?

What has become of the old-fashioned mother who hoped that her son would grow up to be a congressman or something?

ANNUAL MAY SINGING AT PROVIDENCE LAST SUNDAY

As per previous announcements, the 31st annual session of the May singing was held at Providence, Beat 16, last Sunday. This was one of the best May singings ever held at this place; everybody had a good time together, the singers as well as those who came to listen and those who just came to meet old friends and loved ones. The day was a success from every angle.

Services were opened at 10 o'clock by the chairman, R. Robinson, who sung "Rock of Ages. Prayer was offered by Rev. M. J. Parrish, and a committee was appointed to arrange the program for the day—F. I. Popwell, O. A. Boswell and R. M. Robinson.

The directors before noon were: J. W. Clackler, R. T. Grant, Riley Robinson, Dr. J. B. Williams, S. V. Miller. Adjournment for dinner until 1:15 o'clock.

The chairman called to order after noon by singing, and prayer was offered by Rev. M. Lockhart. Two resolutions were read—one by T. E. Wyatt and the other by D. S. Robinson, both of which were adopted by the assembly. The resolutions follow:

A Resolution In Memory Of T. L. Robinson

We, the singers and people in general, composing the thirty-first annual session of the Salem May Singing, in body assembled at Providence, this the 25th day of May, 1930, hereby adopt the following resolution:

Whereas, Tillmon L. Robinson, who was called to the Great Beyond on July 17th, 1929, was for twenty-three years president of the Salem May Singing, having been elected its first chairman in the year 1899 at old Salem on the River, and serving as such as long as said singing was held at Salem; and whereas, he has never before missed a session of said singing, therefore—

Be it resolved, that we take this means of cherishing the memory of this Christian man. We wish for a moment to reflect upon the unselfish and generous services which he rendered the cause of sacred song and of Christianity in general while he lived in our midst. He loved singing and he loved the service of his Master, and the many acts of kindness and love which he daily performed and the elevating and lofty ideas which he advanced and emplanted in the lives of us who are left here, will live on and on through the ages and will bear good fruits for generations to come.

We love to think of Till Robinson and to ponder over the things he stood for and taught his children and all others with whom he came in contact; and we wish to go on record as commending the life and works of this Christian man for their contribution both to the cause of singing and to the cause of genuine Christian advancement.

Read and adopted, this the 25th day of May, 1930.

R. M. Robinson, F. I. Popwell, and A. O. Boswell, committee; Riley Robinson, chairman, J. W. Clackler, secretary.

Resolution

Whereas, we yet have in our midst three of our old music teachers, in the person of R. Robinson, R. T. Grant, and W. H. Robinson, who was present and taken an active part in the oranization of this, our annual singing.

And, whereas, they have faithfully lent their support to the continuation of this organization, therefore be it resolved:

First, that this body tender her thanks to them for their co-operation and good help.

Second, that this organization instruct the organizing committee to henceforth give these faithful workers in music an unlimited time to direct.

Adopted this the 25th day of May, 1930.

Directors for the afternoon were: T. E. Wyatt, F. I. Popwell, O. L. Devaughn, L. T. Grant, I. D. Huett, J. E. Miner, A. H. Glasscock. A recess of 15 minutes was given, and the following directed: O. R. Robinson, W. M. Devaughn, Ralph Grant, J. W. Cagle. Several numbers were rendered by the Clanton Quartette, composed of Akins Collins, Herbert Lowery, Archie Devaughn and Renfroe Jones, with W. G. Culp as pianist, all of which were greatly appreciated by the audience.

Those performing at the piano during the day were: C. H. Robinson, A. O. Boswell and Mrs. Renfroe Jones.

The closing song was sung by R. M. Robinson and the benediction was pronounced by the chairman.

CONTRAST BETWEEN FIATHFULNESS AND SLOTHFULNESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 25:14-30.

GOLDEN TEXT—Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Doing the Best for Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Rule for Promotion.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Use Our Talents.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Stewardship of Service.

This parable, like that of the ten virgins, has a vital relationship to the second coming of Christ. In both instances the unpreparedness for His coming on the part of the people is shown. In that of the ten virgins their unreadiness consisted in their lack of the inward life—absence of the Holy Spirit. In this of the talents, their failure was properly to use the gifts which God had entrusted to them. The first was failure to watch; the second was failure to work. To each of His servants, God entrusted certain gifts and will hold each responsible for their use. By talents is meant whatever faculties and powers one possesses as gifts of God—physical strength, reason, energy, knowledge, influence, time, money, the gift of speech and song.

I. The Distribution of the Talents (vv. 14, 15).

1. It was a sovereign act.

The Lord called His own servants and distributed to them His own money. He did not consult us as to our gifts. The One who created us and absolutely owns us has assigned us our place and given us our several powers, intending that we put them to the best possible use.

2. It was an intelligent act. "According to his several ability."

The God who created us knew our ability to use gifts, therefore made the distribution upon that basis.

3. It was a purposeful act.

The talents were given to be traded with, not to be used for one's own gain and profit, but as stock in trade for the enrichment and glory of the Master.

II. The Employment of the Talents (vv. 16-18).

1. All the servants recognized that the talents were not their own; that they were therefore responsible to the Lord for the use made of them. This is the first principle of right Christian service. We should remember that we are all stewards of the manifold blessings and grace of God.

2. Two servants used their talents. The five-talent man put his to use and gained five more, and the two-talent man put his two talents to use and gained two more. This shows that God's gifts can be increased. The exercise of any gift increases it. The faithful use of what we have in the place where we are will prepare us for greater usefulness and honor.

3. The one hid his talent.

The fact that one possesses but one talent should not discourage him, but rather make him strive the more. God does not reward according to what we possess, but according to our faithfulness. The crime of the one-talent man was not that he had but one talent, but that he hid the talent which the Lord gave him.

III. The Accounting for the Talents (vv. 19-30).

1. Its certainty (v. 19).

There is a day coming when all must give account of their stewardship. Answer must be given as to the use made of God's gifts.

2. The time (v. 19).

It will be at the coming of the Lord.

3. Judgments announced (vv. 21-30).

(1) Reward of the faithful (vv. 21-23).

a. Praise. "Well done." All like to be praised. How blessed it will be to hear from the lips of the Lord Himself, "Well done." b. Promotion. The great consideration for all is not how many talents we possess, but as to how faithful we are in their use. (2) Punishment of the faithless (vv. 24-30). The one-talent man lied when brought to account. a. Reproach. "Thou wicked and slothful servant." To be called lazy is a reproach disliked even by a lazy man. b. Stripped. "Take therefore the talent from him." Even the talent which had been given to him was now wrenched from him. c. Cast out. "Cast into outer darkness." This servant was condemned on his own ground. The very fact that he knew the character of his Lord should have been an incentive for him to have exerted himself.

They Would Come

If we were once to live as though we had something that they (the unbelievers) have not, we would not have to press men to come to us; they would come without pressing.—F. B. Meyer.

With Christ

Without Christ life is as the twilight with dark night ahead; with Christ it is the dawn of morning with the light and warmth of full day ahead.—Philip Schaff.

New York City now has a Cat club. Wonder if they play bridge?

POULTRY Tips

By LEONARD L. BROWN

EXERCISE, GREENS AND SUNLIGHT

Every human being knows how exercise, greens, and sunlight develop his own physical well-being, and the same principles apply to chicks.

The best way to give the chicks exercise to develop their little bodies is to feed their scratch grain among the litter, so they will have to keep constantly on the go to get the grain. Also give them as much room in the brooder house as you safely can, consistent with keeping them warm, and when you are able to get them out on a good clean, fresh, green outside run, they will run about all day long and it will do them worlds of good.

As early as possible the chicks should be getting good rations of good succulent greens. Green feeds are tonic and exceedingly beneficial, helping the chicks to resist colds, stimulating the appetite, aiding the digestive organs, and furnishing variety to the ration and helping supply the essential minerals and the important vitamins A and D. The important thing to remember at first is to chop the greens up very fine. Even lawn clippings are ordinarily several times too long for the chicks, as they will get hold of a stalk an inch or two inches long, get it part way down, and then choke on the rest. Chop the clippings, lettuce, clover, vegetables, or what not, up quite fine, especially for the first few days you feed it. As you watch them eat you can tell about what they can handle safely.

Sunshine helps to keep the chicks healthy in a general way, as well as building up the bones and nervous system in particular. This is recognized as being so important that many violet ray machines and the like, for imitating the rays of the sun, have been developed to take the place of the sun for chicks that cannot get the sun in a natural way. If your climate is sunny but cold, you can give the chicks the benefits of sunshine by allowing the sun to flood the brooder house through special sunshine glass. Ordinary window glass does not let in the ultra violet rays that are of the principal value. Try to get the chicks out in the naural sunshine if possible, or make up for it in one of the ways mentioned here, or with plenty of cod liver oil as mentioned in last week's column.

WHERE WE WOULD "COME IN"

Friends of American membership in the League of Nations and its subsidiaries insist that such membership would make no difference as the League and its agencies would not interfere in any way with American policies either internationally or domestic. It is easy for us to see why our mixing in international organizations of the kind would involve our international policies in the broils and bickerings of Europe. But, although it is not so apparent on first thought, it is equally true that such effect on our domestic policies as well.

For example: we consider our immigration question a domestic questoin and one in which the rest of the world should have no say. But the League and its agencies would not take the same view once we were safely inside. Just now we are hearing of an Argentine project to induce the League of Nations to deny recognition of the Monroe Doctrine and to establish the so-called Garay doctrine of citizenship.

The Garay doctrine interferes with American immigration laws which require the recognition of the place of birth and not the residence to be the basis for the admission of immigrants. This American doctrine is meant to prevent partly at least Latin-American countries from being made transfer stations for European and Asiatis emigrants seeking to obtain admission into the United States. The Garay doctrine would also make every son of parents of American nationality liable to conscription by the government of the country in which he was born.

These proposals are interesting principally as indicating the degree of interference with domestic laws and regulations of the United States which would be attempted through the League of Nations and its agencies of the United States should agree to submit to their authority. So long as we maintain our independence of action we cannot be bound by international doctrines to which we do not agree.

Samuel Colcord, one of our best internationalists, denies that the League Court was the issue in Illinois that defeated Senator Dineen, and he says the dry issue won for Mrs. McCormick, in spite of the fact that both the candidates were dry. Mr. Colcord must be one of those fellows who enjoy the bedtime stories over the radio.

The government is counting all of the radios in the United States. In other words, Uncle Sam is compiling the static statistics.

You've learned how promptly Bayer Aspirin breaks a cold or relieves a headache. But you'll never know its full efficiency until you accept its welcome relief from the stubborn pain of neuralgia, or of neuritis; even of rheumatism. OBITUARY — M. E. STRENGTH

The death angel visited the home of Mrs. M. E. Strength and bore away our dear husband and father. It was so hard to give him up; he bore his suffering without a murmur. He was willing go and he said that all was well with him.

He cannot come back to us but we can go to him. God's will be done, not ours. Dear father, we don't want thee back in this old world of woe and pain, but oh how we miss you. It was so hard to have to say good bye, but we hope to meet you in that happy home where no sorrow comes and where we won't have to say good bye.

Oh, that sweet smile was the last thing we ever saw. He passed away without even moving. We do thank everybody around Thorsby for their untiring services.

He leaves to mourn his death a wife and eight children—Mrs. J. W. Rushing, Mrs. J. V. Gulledge, Mrs. J. H. Nelson, W. E. Strength, Mrs. J. R. Griffin, Fed Strength, Oliver Strength, Mrs. Jewell Huett. Dear father, we hope and pray to meet you some sweet day.

IN MEMORY OF LURLINE VINES

On Sunday morning of May 25th, about 10:00 o'clock, God, in his great wisdom quietly took the spirit of little Lurline Vines to its heavenly home. Casting a mantle of sorrow over her many relatives and friends.

She was only nineteen months old. But she had endeared herself in the hearts and lives of those who knew her, by her sweet smile. Everything was done that earthly physicians and friends could do, but all was in vain. God loved her too, and carried her home, where there is no more pain and sorrow, but all is joy and peace.

A golden link in the family is broken, but we must look to our heavenly Father for solace and comfort. We know heaven has only been made brighter by her passing.

She was laid to rest in Concord cemetery Monday morning, to await the resurrection morn, when all shall meet her and be re-united to part no more. We have one great consolation, we can meet her if we only live as God would have us live.

The funeral survices were conducted by Rev. G. G. Williams.

Her form was dear we know, to relatives, so fond and true; but God called and she must go. For he loved her too. But let's not think of her as dead, just waiting for us over yonder in that heavenly land, the sunshine land of wonder.

HIGH COURT RULE IN THE LETT CASE

Decision Upholds Action Of Republican Executive Committee

The Alabama supreme court held Saturday that the executive committee of a political party has the power under Alabama statutes to prescribe a test oath of party loyalty and that J. N. Dennis, as chairman of the Republican executive committee of Chilton County, was within his rights in declining to place the name of M. F. Lett on the party ticket when the latter refused to state how he cast his vote in the 1928 general election.

Lett made application to become a candidate for the Chilton County Board of Education in the fall election and on being refused, sought a mandamus in the Chilton County Circuit Court to compel Dennis to place his name on the ticket. Receiving unfavorable action, he brought an appeal to the state supreme court.

The supreme court held that a test by a political organization of party affiliations and party fealty is reasonable, and may be properly prescribed for those participating in its primary elections for nomination of candidates for office. This, it held, is "well nigh universally recognized."

No Violation of Secrecy

The court further ruled that such test oath does not violate the secrecy of the ballot, declaring that "it is the secrecy of the ballot which the law protects and not the secrecy as to the political party with which the voters intend to act. Political parties are voluntary organizations and not governmental agencies, though they are subject to regulation by legislature."

Citing another opinion in support of its ruling on the test oath, the decision quoted in part. "A man has a constitutional right to be a partisan, but he has no constitutional right as a non-partisan to participate in partisan proceedings."

The opinion was written by Justice Lucien D. Gardner and received a majority concurrence from Chief Justice John C. Anderson, and Justices Brown and Foster and Justice Thomas concurring in the result. Justices Sayre and Bouldin, candidates for re-election in the Democratic primary, excused themselves.

Commenting on a recent election law ruling in Texas, Justice Gardner said that the Alabama statutes differ from those in Texas which prohibit a party executive committee from fixing a loyalty test. The Alabama statute, he said, leaves this to the discretion of the committee.

HARRIS MOVED BACK TO CLANTON

Prof. H. A. Harris of Stanton has moved back to his home in Clanton. During the next year he will be principal of one of the schools near Clanton, perhaps Mt. Pleasant or Thomas Jr.

Mr. Harris has been principal of the Stanton school for some four or more years past. He will be succeeded there by Prof. Luther E. Little.

PERCY PITTS OFFICE MOVED

Attorney Percy M. Pitts announces the removal of his law offices to the Wilson Building, over Robinson Department Store. Mr. Pitts will occupy the offices formerly used by Attorney J. B. Atkinson, the latter having moved his law office to the Chilton County News, we understand.

The move of Mr. Pitts's office was made necessary on account of the damage caused by the fire in the Johnson Building last week.

RIN-TIN-TIN THRILLS IN HIS FIRST ALL TALKING PICTURE

The best known dog in the world is Rin-Tin-Tin, Warner Bros.' canine star at the Wadesonian Theatre in his latest picture, "On the Border," Friday, Saturday and Saturday Matinee. Rinty contributes all the astonishing vim that is in him in this picture.

During his life Rinty has made more money for his owner and master, Lee Duncan, than many a man makes in a life time as a result of careful training which he has received at the hands of Mr. Duncan.

Rinty was discovered by Mr. Duncan during the war in a zone which had been shelled by the enemy. He was but three days old and was nuzzling about among a number of brothers and sisters. Their mother had been killed. Liuetenant Duncan picked out one of the pups and named him Rin-Tin-Tin after the French doll so popular during the wah time.

When the war was over, Duncan brought Rinty back to the United States and began that course of training which put him in the movies in "Where the North Begins." He has since made eighteen other pictures and is known to more persons than any other dog in the world.

Grady Reynolds Should Succeed Judge Clayton

(Editorial)

It has been definitely announced that Hon. Oliver D. Street is no longer an applicant for appointment as Judge of the Federal Court in the Middle District of Alabama, to succeed the late Judge Henry D. Clayton.

As long as Mr. Street was being considered for the Judgeship he had, and every bit deserved, the unanimous support of the Republicans of Alabama. This newspaper believed that Judge Street deserved the place, and therefore bent our efforts, in unison with other Republicans, in his behalf. Now that he is no longer to be considered, having, as we understand, voluntarily withdrawn, the Middle District of Alabama is faced with the question of who shall be considered for the Federal Judgeship.

This newspaper believes that Hon. Grady Reynolds, United States District Attorney for the Middle District of Alabama, is for every reason the logical man to succeed Judge Clayton. As he is a native son of Chilton County, a life long Republican, a distinguished and able lawyer, and a potential judge, of high character and great possibilities, we take pleasure in offering him for this position of responsibility and service to the State of Alabama and the United States Government.

First of all, we would contend unreservedly that the successor of Judge Clayton should be a Republican. We believe that the National Republican administration owes it to the Republicans of Alabama to give this Judgeship to a Republican. And we further believe that Chilton County deserves to have one of its outstanding Republican lawyers recognized and appointed.

As a Republican county, Chilton has carried the banner for Alabama for forty years. This loyalty to the Republican party has been rewarded with fewer federal appointments than many of the so-called Republican counties. During the past forty years every county officer that has been elected in Chilton County has a been a Republican, with but four scattered exceptions. The appointment of Grady Reynolds as United States District Attorney is the only federal recognition Chilton County has ever received, outside of postoffice appointments.

We do not hesitate, but in fact welcome the opportunity at this time, to make the claim that Chilton County deserves more political recognition than it has ever received from the Republican party of this State and the United States, in just reward for the unfaltering support which the County has given the Republican party at the ballot box for nearly half a century. There is now an opportunity for the Republican party of Alabama, by its influence, and the National Republican party, by its appointive powers, to give a fitting recognition to the faithfulness of the Republicans of Chilton County by bestowing upon Hon. Grady Reynolds the place of Federal Judge in the Middle District of Alabama.

Chilton County is in the Middle District of Alabama. It is the only Republican county in the District. Now, if there is a Republican in the Middle District, in Chilton, who is qualified for the judgeship, may we ask: Why not give this place to him? Why should the appointing authorities go out of the District to get a judge of the Federal Court when we have a man in the District, and in a Republican County, and himself an outstanding Republican, who is universally recognized as worthy and well qualified for the place?

Grady Reynolds is a Republican. He has been active and influential in the interest of the Republican party in Chilton County, in Alabama, and in the United States. He is a son of Judge L. H. Reynolds, who has been, in our opinion, the outstanding Republican in Alabama for the past forty years. No man has rendered greater service to the causes which the Republican party has espoused than has Judge L. H. Reynolds. The recognition of his son as a suitable successor to Judge Clayton would be a fitting reward for the life which Judge Reynolds has spent in the service of the Republican party.

Grady Reynolds is 41 years old. He has been United States District Attorney at Montgomery since August 1, 1924. He is a graduate of the University of Alabama and has been practicing law since June 1, 1912. His success as a lawyer at the bar has marked him as of more than ordinary ability. This abiliity has been further proven by the excellent record he has made as United States District Attorney.

In the last three terms of the Federal Court—one under Judge Clayton, one under Judge Ervin, and one under Judge Grubb, Grady Reynolds has prosecuted around 200 cases for the government, single handed and alone, without an assistant. Out of these 200 cases he has not lost more than five decisions.

During his eighteen years of law practice, Grady Reynolds has been recognized in all the courts with high regard for his ability and legal opinions. His experience as District Attorney for the past six years has given him good preparation for service on the bench. That he would make a Federal judge worthy of the high place of service such a place would bring, is not questioned by anyone who really knows of the ability, experience, and qualifications of Grady Reynolds.

We feel that Chilton County is fortunate in having a man of the kind that Grady Reynolds is to offer to the United States Government for this position of great and outstanding judicial service.

As stated in the outset, on the basis of his outstanding ability as a lawyer, his potentiality as a judge, his qualifications and back-ground as a Republican, this newspaper unreservedly endorses and urges Grady Reynolds as the logical successor of Judge Henry D. Clayton.

HYDROPHOBIA PROVES FATAL TO NEGRO VICTIM

Hydrophobia claimed its first victim of the year in Alabama Sunday when Emanual Kemp, 28 negro died in the county jail at Camden.

Kemp was attacked three weeks ago by a rabid dog. Three days later he began a treatment for prevention of the rabies. He developed hydrophobia two days after completing the treatment and was placed in jail for safe keeping.

Hydrophobia in human beings is very rare, says Dr. L. C. Havens, director of the state laboratories at Montgomery. Records show a death rate from the disease of two to three persons a year. One year, since such records have been kept by the state, four persons died of the disease.

Treatment for the prevention of rabies in human beings is practically 100 per cent effective, Dr. Havens said. Alabama records show that one failure of the treatment in 800 cases. Effectiveness of the treatment for the country at large is 599 cases out of 600.

Death follows when the rabies infection attacks the brain before the preventive theatment has a chance to do its work.

The last death from hydrophobia in Birmingham was that of William T. Fields, age three, in 1918. The child was the son of Richard D. Fields, Ensley.

G. L. GLASSCOCK REPLIES TO MR. L. H. BEAN

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please allow me space in your paper to reply to L. H. Bean's letter. Mr. Bean referred to me as having let Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Conway get me in trouble. The way I see it, is that Mr. Bean is the one who started this by meddling where he didn't have any business, by putting my name in the paper. I never spoke to Mr. Bean in regard to my trip to Montgomery. And, now, Mr Bean it was none of your business about me going to Montgomery, or what I went for, or what I learned. And the only thing I can see for you referring to me was to try to influence some one to vote aganist the proposed tax. So, if you had only tended your own affairs I would have felt better toward you.

Mr. Bean said I didn't make any denial as to the real issue. When Mr. Bean said through the paper that the County Board or the Super Six had put out the wild propanganda as to the school building at Union Grove being condemned, Mr. P. M. Martin and myself, G. L. Glasscock, went to Montgomery to see if the State Superintendent would allow us to teach in this building another term. So the Superintendent was not in, so we talked to the chief clerk about the matter and he asked who condemned the building, and we could not tell, and he did not know anything about it when we got back.

While talking to Mr. C. C. Conway about the matter Mr. Bean came by and he heard the conversation so then is when he had to meddle where he didn't have any business, and start all this to try in some way to knock our Superintendent and County Board.—G. L. Glasscock.

Carriers Picnic At Lembrick's Camp

Reports from the rural letter carriers picnic of last Friday say that it was a most enjoyable occasion. Particular mention is made of the delightful place selected for the picnic this year—Lembrick's Log Cabin Camp on Coosa River below Mitchell Dam.

Composing the picnic group were ten Chilton County carriers and their families, two Autauga County carriers and their families, and two substitute carriers and families.

There was a big dinner, plenty of chicken, cake etc., and about 30 pounds of fish. Ice cream, cold drinks, cigars, etc., was furnished by the Chilton County carriers to all present.

Fishing, boating, and bathing were enjoyed by many of the picnic party. Mr. Lembrick, owner of the new camp and beach, was very gracious to members of the party. He turned over his entire camp and all the cottages to the visitors for their convenience. Everyone in the party was delighted with the place. Many of them declare that it is the most beautiful place in this part of the country for a picnic and outing. Raymond Duffey, secretary and spokesman for the Chilton County carriers says: "Lembrick's is a real Pablo Beach, the finest place I ever saw to go picnicing and fishing to have a good time. It is located right where the new Rockford Highway reaches Coosa River."

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

WAIT THOU UPON GOD, AND HE WILL GIVE THEE SALVATION

"Sweet hour of prayer, Sweet hour of prayer,
That calls me from a world of care,
And bids me at my Father's throne
Make all my wants and wishes known.

In the silence of this beautiful morning we give thee thanks, O Lord, and may this day mean more to us in the study of thy word. Help us to be more quiet students of God's Word.

When Jacob was giving up the ghost in the land of Egypt he called his sons around him and blessed them and foretold by divine inspiration their futures, we find that to one he says, "Wait thou upon God and he will give thee salvation." In one of the Psalms of David you read the sentence: "Truly my soul waiteth upon God, from Him cometh my salvation." So in this Psalm 62:1 He gives us the Hebrew, the child of God's idea of prayer. Truly, verily, sincerely my soul waiteth upon God. Hannah defines prayer in her life when she prayed at Shiloh. In the inspired prophecy of 1st Samuel we read that Hannah spake out of her heart to God. David again gives the spiritual Hebrew idea of prayer when he says, "I will pour out of my soul unto God. I will lift up my soul unto God. I cried unto God and he heard my prayer. In days of grief I sought the Lord." In his prayers he certainly waited upon God for his salvation. We wait upon God because our salvation cometh from Him. "From Him cometh my salvation." The biggest thing in a man or woman's life, "salvation" cometh by waiting upon the Lord. Jesus Christ came from the bosom of the Father, the glories of heaven to the slums of the earth that we might wait upon Him for our salvation through His atoning death. Neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven whereby we may be saved.

Then how can we escape, if we neglect so great and wonderful salvation? In the 5th verse of this 62nd Psalm David offers almost the same prayer as in the 1st verse only at the end he requests another blessing. "My soul, wait thou upon God; for my expectation is from Him." Now the expectation of no two people is the same. My salvation cometh from God. My expectation cometh from God.

David longed for a higher, a holier a more abundant, and a separated life. He longed for a mountain experience of the presence of God Himself. In humanity he looked unto and waited upon the great God of heaven for his expectation, "My expectation cometh from Him." Sometimes I just pause and think over the many ways in which we look upon God as a little idol, and how we treat Him as a little God. But, my friends, God is a big, a great, a caring-for, a loving God. He does not dissappoint us in our expectations.

He will give us our needs. He is abundantly able to supply them according to His riches in glory by Jesus Christ. He who watches the little sparrow when it falls, He who numbers the hairs of our heads, He who holds the winds in his fist will care for you and for me. It is the spiritual life, the Bible-reading, the unselfish life that you and I need today. David continues the prayer by saying, "Wait on the Lord, be of good courage, and He will give thee the desires of the heart." I think that is one of the most thrilling commands expressed in the Psalms. Here David out of his experience, his life says, "Wait upon the Lord, be of good courage, and He will give thee the desires of thy heart."

Now when we pray we must forget ourselves. We must tear the dearest idol we have known out of our hearts and lives. We must not just pray for the things which would make us happy. We must pray for the things which would exalt Christ above every thing else in our lives and the lives of others. God forbid that I should have any other motive in my humble life than to exalt this blessed Christ and to lead and help others to lead a deeper and more abiding life in Him.

"Wait on the Lord and He wil give thee the desires of the heart." You know that sometimes our hearts, the desires of our hearts deceive us. You crave things many times that are not best for you. You have a dear little child but should it ask for a razor blade, I dare say you would not give it to Him. It may be that God should give me what I want it would be a very dangerous thing in my life. It may be if God should give you what you would ask it would be a dangerous thing in your life and in the life of a friend or a loved one.

Thinking of the desires of our lives many of us turn our thoughts to think of social status, a wonderful education in some college or university, and the beautiful figure they might be as an artist, their accomplishments as either a great musician or politician. But maybe that desire is not right. "Wait upon the Lord, be of good courage, and He wil give thee the desires of thy heart." The desires of your heart and the desires of my heart must be clean, gentle, considerate, helpful, kind, submissive, loving. Also the desires of our heart presented to God must be honored and blessed by God.

In Isaiah 40:31 and Psalm 27:14 almost the same thought is expressed. I take Isaiah now because I think this passage ha shelped more people, more of us in our weaknesses than any other in the Bible. "They that wait upon the Lord, (to wait upon the Lord was Hebrew idea of prayer) they that waia upon the Lord for salvation, shall renew their strength." Isaiah lived in Jerusalem. While visiting in the Holy Land I went into a Protestant church in Jerusalem where I listened to the Bible read from the pulpit in both German and Hebrew. After the service I walked out and was told that the site upon which that little church stood was the place which tradition holds that God permitted Isaiah to stand and preach the prophecy of this blessed Lamb of God who would come to take away the sins of the whole world. One has a strange feeling to stand upon the place where stood this wonderful prophet of God whose prophecy pointed so clearly to the coming Messiah, the Lamb of God who would willingly, uncomplainingly, lovingly lay down His life on dark Calvary for our salvation. I thank God for permitting me to visit those places made secure by such hallowed associations.

Isaiah says, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not be faint." God writes this through Isaiah. He did not say how long we are to wait. But he says, wait to get strength. One of the greatest blessings which comes to my poor life and your life is to be weak. When we are weak we get strength to become stronger. God says, "My strength is made perfect in thy weakness." O if all Christians in this country would just get weak. No doubt they would all be in a prayer meeting each week. They would exchange roses and flowers at the table with each other. The wife would speak kind words to her husband and children in their daily walk. The wife and husband could see the good points in each other and also those in their children. They would have a "home" and not a house to live in.

If we were just weak we would become strong enough to fight the many battles against the devil. We should mount up with wings as eagles. Did you ever think about how wonderfully strong the eagle mounts up with its great wings? "They that wait upon the Lord shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; they shall walk, and not faint;" If Christ is with you why do you talk about being discouraged, and fainting by the wayside? "Lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called." "Behold, as with the people, so with the priest; as with the servant, so with his master; as with the maid, so with her mistress; as with the seller, so with the buyer; as with the lender, so with the borrower; as with the taker of usury, so with the giver of usury to him, for the Lord hath spoken this word, and so we wait on God in love, obedience, and submission."

JESUS IN THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:1-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—He went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O, my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Proves His Love for Us.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Suffering for Us.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Agony in the Garden.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Gethsemane.

I. Plotting the Death of Jesus (vv. 1-5).

Christ with divine insight predicted not only the fact of His death, but its time and manner. The Jewish authorities in secret conclave were plotting to silence His voice by putting him to death. In spite of themselves they were moving in the line of God's decree.

II. Mary of Bethany Anoints Jesus (vv. 6-13).

1. The meaning of the act (vv. 6, 7).

This anointing occurred when Jesus was at meat in Simon's house. Mary had the keenest apprehension of all the disciples. By sitting at His feet in loving fellowship, she obtained a grasp of truth which none of the other disciples had. She saw that His body was to be broken and that His precious life was to go out. She entered into fellowship with His sufferings and the joy of His resurrection.

2. The indignation of the disciples (vv. 8, 9).

3. Mary defended by Christ (vv. 10-13).

Jesus could not allow His most appreciative disciple to lie under this censure, so He came to her rescue. As a result of Christ's defense, Judas is so stingingly rebuked that he hastens away to betray his Lord.

III. Jesus Betrayed (vv. 14-30).

1. The bargain of betrayal (vv. 14-16).

Satan so completely had the mastery over Judas that he sold his Lord for the price of a slave (Ex. 21:32).

2. The betrayal announced (vv. 20-25).

While they were eating the Passover Jesus made this announcement. Who knows but that the reason for the announcement at this time was to give Judas an opportunity to repent? The sorrowful question in verse 22 indicates that the disciples did not seem to suspect one another, but directed personal attention to themselves.

IV. The Disciples Warned (vv. 31-35).

This took place as they walked from the upper room to the garden of Gethsemane. Jesus plainly told them, "All ye shall be offended because of me this night," quoting Zechariah 13:7 as proof. Though He told them of the darkness which was gathering, yet He gave them a glimpse of the coming light. He said, "After I am risen again I will go before you into Galilee."

V. Jesus Praying (vv. 36-46).

1. The place—the Garden of Gethsemane (v. 36).

Gethsemane means oil press. It was a place some three-fourths of a mile east of Jerusalem, where oil was crushed out of the olives.

2. His companions (v. 37).

Peter, James and John. The same disciples who had been with Him on the Mount of Transfiguration are permitted to go with Him into the deep shadow of the Garden. They slept, while He prayed.

3. Jesus sorrowing even unto death (vv. 37, 38).

The cause of His suffering was not primarily physical, but spiritual. The physical is not to be minimized, but the burden of sin—the world's sin—was pressing heavily upon Him. He was being made sin for us (II Cor. 5:21).

4. The prayer itself (v. 39).

"O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me." What was this cup? It was not prayer to be delivered from the cross. The idea that He desired to escape from the cross and thus stop short of His redemptive work is not to be entertained. Redemption through the sacrifice of Himself was the supreme purpose of His coming into the world. The holiness and perfection of His nature moved Him to shrink from the mountain of sin which was resting upon Him. Though the cup was bitter, He bowed in submission to the Father's will.

An Important Power

Man has one power in particular which is not sufficiently dwelt on. It is the power of making the world happy, or at least of so greatly diminishing the amount of unhappiness in it as to make quite a different world from what it is at present. The power is called kindness.—F. W. Faber.

ONE ALABAMA CONVICT AGAINST SIX CHILDREN

According to a recent issue of the Montgomery Advertiser every convict costs the State of Alabama in salaries alone $130.00 each year. This amount does not include the cost of food, clothing, and other items necessary for maintaining Alabama's convict system.

To provide each child enrolled in Alabama's public school system with a teacher for a school years costs the state $18.75. For the amount required to supervise one convict Alabama can teach six children. When all expenses involved in the education of an Alabama child is considered, including revenue receipts from federal, state, county, and district funds, as well as gifts, rent, and interest, the cost for educating a child in Alabama at present is $28.73.

BOLL WEEVIL CAUSES SHORT STAPLE

Concerning the reasons for the great increase in short staple and untenderable cotton, S. P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture, who is a cotton raiser in Elmore County, said:

"Although Alabama farmers are being penalized in the world markets, because of their extremely short staple, there is a reason for this increasing tendency. The coming of the oll weevil and the necessity for a quickly growing variety to get ahead of the weevil, caused the development of a very short staple length, known as Half and Half.

"This variety is always less than 7-8 inches length, ripens early, and because of the large amount of high priced seed is doubtless increasing in popularity in Alabama.

"It is well for farmers to remember that there is an increasing demand for longer staple cotton, instead of shorter staple cotton. On the contrary, farmers of Alabama and the United States are growing more and more of the shorter staple lengths. Longer staple cotton is needed in many places in our modern industrial life, and there is always a handsome premium paid on lengths of one inch or more.

"Whether Alabama farmers will change and grow longer staple remains to be seen. In eny event, certain large tire companies are now growing their own cotton in order to fill the demands for a long staple fiber which is strong and elastic."

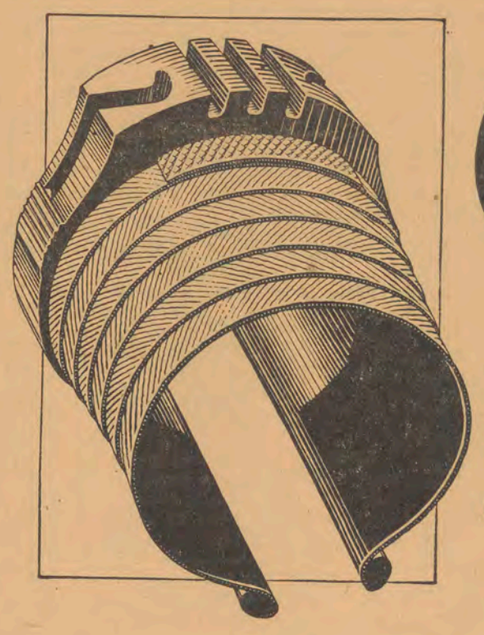
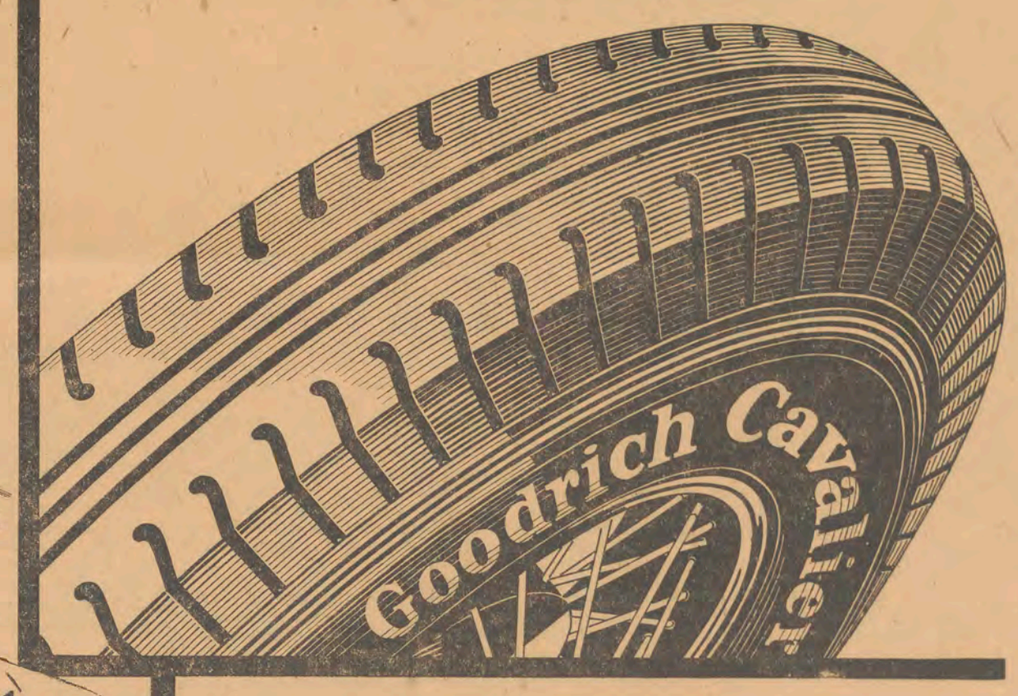
UNIVERSITY MAKING PLANS FOR RECORD SUMMER SCHOOL

University, Ala., June 2.—With summer school reservations running approximately 30 per cent. ahead of this date last year, summer school officials at the University of Alabama are taking advantage of a week's intermission to make ready for a record enrollment.



Dr. John R. McLure, summer school director, has announced that dormitories will be open Saturday, June 7, and that registration for the first term will open Monday, June 9. The first term will close Friday, July 18, and the second term will open July 19, and will close with graduation exercises August 22.

Seven units of the University are offering courses during the summer. The college of arts and sciences, college of education, school of commerce and business adminstration, school of chemistry, metallurgy and ceramics, college of engineering, school of law, and the graduate school are giving the University summer school the greatest number of courses ever offered at the capstone during the summer.



The faculty for the summer session will be composed of 96 professors and instructors exclusive of officers of adminstration. Of this number, 62 are from the regular University faculty, while 34 come to the University from leading colleges and universities of the country. The list includes 29 professors with the Ph. D. Degree, 43 with the Master's Degree, 20 with A. B. Degree, and one with the M. D. Degree.

A feature of the summer session will be the second conference of school officials and teachers from all over the state. This conference will open on June 16, and will be marked by the prescence of Dr. N. L. Engelhardt, professor of education, Columbia University. The conference will last one weeek, during which time Dr. Engelhardt will deliver a series of lectures and lead discussions on school adminstration and other aspects of public education. This conference is being sponsored by the State Department of Education and the University summer school. Officials in charge of the conference have invited school superintendents, principals, supervisors, board members and other school officials of Alabama and adjoining states. No fees will be charged for attendance on the conference, it was announced.

The summer session will also be featured by conferences for athletic coaches, teachers, and a state-wide conference for Parent-Teacher Association and workers. Home economics courses, courses for high school librarians, work for normal school graduates, a dental clinic, a foreman training conference, and an exhibit of visual aid material and equipment will also be features of the summer school.

THE CASE OF MR. LETT

The Supreme Court of Alabama decided the case of M. F. Lett last Saturday, and finally settled the fact that J. N. Dennis, chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of Chilton County, was within his rights when he refused to accept the name of Mr. Lett as a Republican candidate for member of the County School Board because Mr. Lett refused to make an affidavit as to how he voted in 1928.

The action of Chairman Dennis in refusing to accept the candidacy of Mr. Lett was based on the ruling of the county executive committee which set up the requirement for candidates that they should make such an affidavit as to how they voted in 1928.

All other Republican candidates in Chilton County, except Mr. Lett, complied with the request of the committee and made the affidavits. These affidavits have been published in accordance with the resoultion of the executive committee.

Aside from its application to the local Republican situation in Chilton County, the Lett case is construed to shed some light on the general political situation in Alabama, especially the fight that has been made aganist the ruling of the State Democratic Executive Committee in barring the Democratic bolters from running for office in the Democratic primary this year.

The Birmingham Age-Herald makes the following observation of the decision of the Lett case as it may be applied to the Democratic primary situation in the State:

> In the Chilton County case, the Supreme Court seems to have set at rest any lingering hope in any quarter of upsetting the eligibility rules laid down by the state executive committee for candidates in the Democratic primary. The principle laid down by the court is both explicit and inclusive. The authorities of a party organization have the right to enforce reasonable regulations. The requirement of loyalty in a former election is a reasonable regulation. If this be true for Republicans, it is no less true for Democrats. In effect, the Supreme Court issues warning to all potential appellants that what the much-maligned "twenty-seven" have done is legally invulnerable.
>
> In its decision on a former attempt to upset the executive committee's action, the Supreme Court dealt only with the techhnical aspect of the case. It held that the petitioner could not properly seek an equitable remedy, and that his sole recourse, if any, was in law. The upshot was that "bolters" were put in a difficult position. For practical purposes, the ruling estopped them from doing anything which could prevent the primary from proceeding according to the intent of the party authorities. Since it was the thwarting of the committee on this score and not an attack on the result of the primary which was being sought, the tribunal eliminated the paramount value of a resort to the courts.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

An American writer recently said in speaking of the United States: "Of all the lands our own is one that resembles most the world state of the future. Here are representatives of many nationalities brought together into a single community—here as nowhere in the world unity finds expression."

Certainly this is a noble sentiment and one which is udoubtedly true so far as the United States is concerned. But it must be said regretfully, that the day seems far distant when all the world will be a community modeled after the United States of America. There has been a great deal written of late about a United States of Europe modeled after our own government, but even this is an ideal which seems impossible of attainment in the present unsatisfactory state of human affairs.

It is true that in the United States we have brought the representatives of many nations together and have moulded them into a single nation. But it must be remembered that this immigration came gradually, most of it after the time when the United States became a going concern, and that these people had a part in forming the traditions, the customs and the government of the United States. Representatives of the various racial groups scattered into various parts of the country and learned the common language. In the second and third generations at least, they became Americans who could not be distinguished from the Americans of colonial stock. And even with all of these advantages for amalgamation we have been compelled during the past few years to erect immigration barriers lest the famous American melting pot might boil over.

In Europe the situation is entirely different. There we find separate units of government, many of them with population overcrowded, speaking different languages, with different customs and in many instances with records of hatred and strife against one another running back for more than a thousand years. The density of population is itself one of the most serious factors. It has made it seemingly necessary, because of the population overflow, that many thousands of the people of one nation live under the governments of adjoining nations, governments generally unfriendly to the alien minority and seeking to stamp it out, culturally at least. War after war has resulted from this thing alone. The minorities of one age become the majorities of another, and so these "oppressed minorities" of population are constantly changing and adding to the general bitterness and danger of political upheaval.

For example: We heard during the last World War that its results would bring in universal democracy, that the right of the self determination of peoples would be one of the blessings resulting from the allied victory. It is true that a great many alien minorities were freed, but it is also true that other "oppressed minorities" were created by the European victors in rearranging the boundary lines. It will not do to be too critical. With the overflow of population in all directions in Europe it would be difficult indeed, if not impossible, to satisfy everyone. Of course a United States of Europe would be the proper remedy, but the very bitterness and centuries-old strife makes this at present impossible of achievement. If it comes at all it will be only after generations of peace and education.

BY "JACK" HIMSELF

Bang! Bang! And another couple of firecrackers! Did you read the POT last week? Well, you're not the only one who did. Yoost listen to this—and the Union-Banner hadn't been in the post office over four or five hours at the most until the POTTER had received this note. Evidently somebody else has been going to singings, too, and noticing a few things. As said before—yoost listen to this:

May 29, 1930.

Dear Old Potter:

In your recent analytical elucidation of humanity and human nature, in dealing with the "horn tooters, seat testers, the guy with the new car, etc.," I find that you have left out one crowd that should have preference over many that you have mentioned. They are the ones that line up in single file, march around all parked cars and kick the tires.

Yours for bigger and better Jack Pots,
"Rags."

Thanks! And a lot of 'em! Don't know why we didn't think about that oufit. You've noticed 'em do that, though, haven't you? And, why do they do it? Glad to have good suggestions like that sent in—any time you feel like it. That's what makes the old POT interesting.

However, we gotta admit we had to hunt up the dictionary to find out whether we were being "cussed out" or not. Tell you what, that "analytical elucidation" stuff almost got over us. Any time any of you guys start to pull another one like that, give us a little warning. The Doc says our heart is weak, and we don't believe it would stand many jars like that one. Now! Now! Don't put on any airs. That does make you feel like you'd been hit flat on the head with a brick, don't it.

It's a funny world. Ever once in a while you hear some guy say that this world is going from bad to worse—and always was. Maybe it is, but, now, be honest. It would have been just too bad to have lived back in the old times when they didn't have cars to ride in or the "funnies" to read on Sunday afternoon. What do you suppose they did to pass away the time, pitch horseshoes?

Come to think of it, here's a pretty good one. You've read of a time they call the "stone age." Imagine getting the Sunday edition, "funny paper" and all, all done up nicely on stone. Guess you'd have had to take along a few oxen and a dray or two as you dropped by the "post office." The print plants in those days must have been pretty much like marble quarries, don't you think?

One of the bosses—yep, we have several—is down in Florida, the land of promoters, high powered salesmen, mosquitoes, frogs, flies and other pests—which is the worst pest we don't know—this week. He'll probably come back to us all loaded to the gills with fish stories and the like. Don't say we didn't warn you. Prepare for the worst. There's something in the air, or water, or something in Florida that people rave about every time. You'll hear from it.

Saw Grover Harris, Jr., the other day. He has just returned to Clanton for his summer vacation. Young Grover is a "Noo Yawker" now, you know, only he DOES NOT try to let you in on the fact by clipping his words too short. Just the same old lad, only a lot heavier. The big town has certainly agreed with him, and he likes it so well he's going back. Best of luck to him.

Dropped in on Perry Littlejohn at the Perry Body Shop recently. It's surely a wonder what that guy can do with a saw and a piece of wood. He can turn out anything from a churn lid to an automobile body or motor boat, and the good part of it is, you can't tell it from a factory job, either. He's a wizard with a saw and hammer. He's building quite a rep for such work, too.

Saw two candidates out on the sidewalk the other day, and oh, boy, how they were reassuring each other of their support. Bet you didn't know they run in teams nowadays. Well, they do. And how they run. RUN is right. Here and there, and everywhere. Guess there's where they got the idea to call it a race.

Using the popular little tune that's going 'round right now, we might sing "Sleepy Days Are Here Again" right now. But "sleepy days" and hot DAYS is all you can say for them. It's curious how hot the days are, when you have to draw up a blanket or two at night. "Old Sol" just struttin, his stuff.

Read in the paper one day this week where some guy had married his seventh wife in nine years, she being one and the same woman who was his first wife, and whom he divorced for CRUELTY. Now, ain't that funny? But some folks are like that you know—just bears for punishment.

Wonder what's going to happen over at the "Suddery" now? They've gone and painted the face of the Clanton Laundry all nice and white again. You never can tell what "Leo, King of the Suds" is up to. He likes to spring surprises—pretty good at the game too. He's up to something—but it'll come out in the wash, maybe.

There's a scarcity of interesting material to write about this week. Maybe you had already noticed that, from reading the above, though. However, we must fill in our space with something. Better luck next time.—"JACK."

Every idle workman in this country could be put to work within a short time if we had a tariff which measured the difference in labor costs at home and abroad, but that is entirely too practical and immediate a remedy for what ails us to appeal to the economic crystal gazers. They prefer foreign goods on the store shelves to American workmen on the factory payrolls.

For the self-styled pacifist who couples his demand for the disarming of the U. S. with a demand for the recognition of Soviet Russia, the most heavily armed nation in the world, and sworn to our country's destruction, it doesn't take more than one guess to tell what his real reasons are.

No tariff rate is high enough on any competitive product, at a time when there is widespread industrial unemployment, which does not measure the difference in labor costs at home and abroad. That is, it isn't high enough for those who do not care to seek an illusive cheapness at the cost of an unemployment situation which destroys the prosperity of the American people.

Maybe Mr. Gandhi over in India is trying to give us a slow motion picture of a revolution.

"What is wanted," demands an exchange, "is a census that is correct." And a correct census is one that shows a larger growth in your town than in the neighbor town.—Topeka Daily Capital.

At the request of his Shriner friends, Bob Sumner was kind enough on last Thursday to push a wheelbarrow all over town "crying" the Fireman's baseball game. When a fellow "joins up" to the Shrine, I notice he will do most anything. I remember one Shriner who stood hitched to a traffic post in the middle of the public square for about half a day. That same fellow got a big kick out of Sumner's performance last Thursday. Naturally.

"Things will be different when I get in there," said Big Sam Edwards, Democratic candidate for County Commissioner, as he held a little informal campaign meeting with a few of his friends on Marion Gore's corner Monday. Mr. Edwards was referring to the public road business of the county. He evidently believes that the county is not getting value for the money spent on the roads.

Out of the bed again Monday night to attend another fire. The fire business is getting "monitoni-ous," as Emmett Powell made it read one time when he was setting type for the word monotonous. A fire has got to go some if it gets very far ahead of Macy Jones and his fighting crew. They have just about relegated the fire business to the days of the past.

Mr. Jesse Wood stated Monday that his wife is slowly recovering from a long spell of pneumonia. "I never thought she would pull through until a few days ago," said Mr. Wood, "but now I believe she will." He was on the hunt for a rolling chair in which he could roll his patient about the home and give her the advantage of plenty of sunshine.

The great joy of a father when the son returns from a long absence from home was beaming in the face of Grover Harris Monday morning. His son and namesake, Grover, Jr., was expected to arrive from New York, where he has been for a year. Mr. Harris has a right to be proud of this boy. Since graduating at Chilton County High School he has continued his studies in New York City, at the same time holding down a job in a bank. He arrived home Monday, according to schedule, and will remain here with his parents for several days.

Big doing coming off at Fox's this week. The Quit Business Sale starts to-day. Everything looks good at the store. Mr. Shade Wilson, the sales specialist in charge of the place, has arranged everything so it is easily seen and will be easy to buy, judging from the low prices that are on the tags. It makes no difference whether you have a nickel or a hundred bucks, you can find something at Fox's that you need and want, and it will pay you to grab it off this week.

Just as soon as Dr. Johnson can get his building back in shape from the fire damage of last week, Maurice Lande will re-open The Leader at the same location with a brand new store from start to finish. Meanwhile Mr. Lande will sell out the damaged goods which were saved from the fire. He has them assembled at the Wade Building near the postoffice.

Business is rushing with Frank James and his crew of sign painters. Mr. James has contracted with the Dr. Pepper Company to paint a large number of wall signs throughout central Alabama. Dr. Pepper is the name of the soft drink which has recently been introduced in Alabama. It is said to be an old and well established drink in Texas and the southwest, where it has been on the market for several years.

Jean is in Florida this week taking a well-earned vacation from the constant toils of printing office routine. His absence from the shop makes a gap in our working force that can not be completely filled. Things never run as smoothly when he is away as when he is here. Even the linotypes and presses seem to sense his absence, and want to cut up when he is away. They know it is no use to try to balk on him. But with the rest of us they can play all sorts of pranks and get away with it.

Dr. Sie Hayes was complaining of feeling mighty fine Tuesday. He was feeling so fine he could hardly contain himself. In fact, I believe he said he was feeling finer than frog hair. When mentioned frogs, I realized what was the matter. He had gone to the river Monday night and gigged a lot of big fat bullfrogs. When he came in about midnight he went with his party of friends to Matt's, had the frogs cooked, and ate them right on the spot. "Eating frog legs makes a smile that will not come off, and I think it gives a fellow a sort of school girl complexion," he said as he smacked his mouth for more frogs.

PROTECTION AGAINST WAR

The policy of developing domestic resources and domestic commerce, rather than that of seeking prosperity in world markets, has been a vital factor in preserving the peace of the United States. We have in this country the greatest free trade area in the world. We have resources sufficient to serve as the basis of wealth creation adequate for our population. We have created here a high standard of living for the masses, and we have preserved it by preventing the destructive competition of foreign industry based upon labor costs insufficient to maintain working populations above the level of mere subsistence.

To surrender this home market to the cheap labor exploits in foreign lands, whether foreign or domestic in ownership, would be first of all to paralyze our own industry. All the unemployment existing in the United States today is due to excessive importations made cheap by cheapening the workers whose toil enters into these commodities. To seek to remedy this unemployment by seeking foreign markets, is to enter into world-wide competition with these same cheap labor products. To do this is to come into commercial conflict the world around with other industrial nations, and thus to breed the causes of war.

The World Court would probably not have come except, as the result of the keen commercial world-wide rivalry of the great industrial powers of Europe. They sought special zones of influence, colonies, special favors in foreign markets. Their competition in sales and in shipping became intense. This caused the ill will which eventuated in the war.

Now it is proposed we shall follow this course. We are told that if we protect our own markets, we cannot successfully fight for markets abroad. We are told that we must make large exports of capital. We must become entangled in world economics and world poiltics to a degree hitherto unknown to us. In following such a course we are walking straight into the jaws of war.

We have a world of our own, as yet far from being fully developed. There are ample calls for the capital here at home that we are exporting in vast quantities abroad, all the time involving ourselves further and further in the economic rivalries of foreign industrial powers. We are even told that we cannot in view of our position as a competitor for world trade, afford to so formulate our tariff rates that our own employment and standard of living may be maintained.

Copper Mines of Chile Worked by the Aztecs?

What is now the world's largest known copper ore deposit was worked by the prehistoric Incas, judging by remains that have been found at and near the copper mines of Chuquicamata, Chile. Within the mine, primitive tools have been found from time to time, such as stone hammers and wooden shovels, as well as mummified remains of early Indian miners, one of which is now at the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

The ruins of Pucaro, an ancient fortified city destroyed by the Spaniards during their first invasion of Chile, are 25 miles from Chuquicamata. Ancient graves belonging to this prehistoric city have yielded bowls and other utensils of copper as well as bead necklaces made from brochantite and atacamite, minerals characteristic of the Chuquicamata deposits.

The Incas, reputed as pre-Columbian, America's best miners and metal workers, conquered this part of Chile about 1443, it is reliably estimated, and the old mines may, therefore, have been worked at least ninety years before the discovery of America.—Kansas City Star's Science Service.

The Rainbow's End is within Your reach

DID you ever feel so desperate you wanted to jump out of a window? That's the wrong end of the rainbow.

Ill health is a burden on body, mind and friends. But Nature never fails to signal her dangers. Lack of appetite, flabby flesh, loss of strength and skin troubles is a warning from Nature. This is her way of pleading for help.

When S.S.S. is indicated you owe it to yourself to try it.

If you desire firm flesh, a glowing complexion, energy, vitality and the blessings of health you must keep your blood in good condition.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It gives to Nature what it needs to build you up so that your system may throw off the cause.

All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

STATE CAPITOL News

Nearly eight times as many library units were purchased for Alabama schools in 1928-29 as were purchased in 1920-21. Not only were more books bought, but those purchased were made available to a larger number of children by means of the traveling library. This library on wheels is nothing more than a truck that transports books purchased by the county from one school to another.

In 1928 four counties, Calhoun, Etowah, Cullman, and Jefferson, were using these traveling libraries. When a truck for the purpose was not available, the books were exchanged by the supervisors and teachers, as was done in Clay, Conecuh, Elmore, Marengo, Lawrence, Cleburne, Sumpter, and St. Clair counties two years ago. During the present year Randolph, Greene, Clark, added the circulating library, Randolph using the truck for the purpose, with a full-time librarian in charge.

The outstanding example of library facilities for rural children in Alabama is found in Walker County, where recently $25,000 was secured for the purpose of establishing a public library that will serve the schools. The books will be housed in a separate building. Full-time librarians will be employed, and special book centers will be established throughout the county. These will be served by the library truck. A special division of the library will be available for the negro schools.

An extension of library service to the hundreds of Alabama schools that as yet have practically no books is one of the urgent needs at the present time.

Sale of farm products from the State Prison Farm near Atmore this year will approximate at least $160,000, according to figures from the State Convict Department. The Atmore farm was estalished by the present administration to provide an outlet for part of the convict labor removed from the coal mines in accordance with an act of the last legislature which abolished the convict lease system. The farm has been rapidly developed. Three crops, strawberries, cucumbers and potatoes will bring in a total of around $100,000, and sale of cotton and other staple crops from this farm will swell the total to $160,000, it is estimated.

The strawberry crop, although short this year, owing to unfavorable weather conditions, was sold for approximately $40,000; cucumbers, $20,000, and the sale if Irish potatoes will ge around $40,000, with some 85 carloads of potatoes expected to be marketed by the time the season is ended. In addition to potato sales, enough potatoes of below the best grade will be kept to supply the needs of all the various state prisons through next winter. A canning plant at the prison is also busily employed in canning snap beans, which will be an item in cutting down food costs for prisoners.

Two new toll bridges will be opened to traffic at an early date, the Oscar W. Underwood Bridge over the Warrior near Eutaw about June 5 and the George S. Houston Bridge over the Tennessee at Guntersville about June 10. Construction of fifteen toll bridges by the Alabama Bridge Corporation was authorized by act of the 1927 legislature. The completion of the above two bridges will increase the number completed and opened to traffic to eight. The John T. Morgan Bridge on the Coosa at Childersburg, which has already been opened to traffic, will be formally dedicated with appropriate exercises June 12.

Cooperation of citizenship is urged by the State Health Department in securing screening of homes as a protection against the mosquito which carries malaria. The Health Department is launching an intensive drive against malaria, and five counties, Montgomery, Macon, Houston, Clarke, and Colbert have been selected as battle grounds for the opening of the campaign. Five additional health experts have been employed for the drive, and citizens of the state, especially the property owners, are requested to give assistance in the work.

50 Years' Use of Black-Draught

"About fifty years ago," says Mr. Lewis G. O'Shields, of Portersville, Ala., "my mother gave me the first dose of Black-Draught, and I have taken it ever since, when I needed a medicine for constipation. I have used this remedy all my married life, in raising my children.

"I have used Black-Draught for heartburn, as I have had spells of this kind, off and on, for years. This follows indigestion, and indigestion comes close on constipation.

"I have found that the best way to head off trouble is to begin taking Black-Draught in time. It relieves me of dizziness, tightness in the chest and backache.

"By getting rid of impurities, Black-Draught helps to keep the system in good order. I always keep it in the home, and have recommended it to many people, in my time."

Glenn W. Moore

Glenn W. Moore, owner and proprietor of "Moore's," entered business in Clanton in February, 1927. In the short space of three years he has succeeded in building up a business that is among the places in which our town may well take considerable pride.

For many years before Mr. Moore came here different ones had attempted a drug store business at the same location of "Moore's." It had been repeatedly given up as a bad job. Glenn Moore looked over the situation very carefully, decided to try his hand at it. He put in new fixtures, had the whole business re-arranged from front to back, and began to pull for business. Of course it was not easy sailing. It was hard work, with plenty of competition. But Mr. Moore had been about enough to know that success comes only out of hard work.

"I knew if I had been going to find a gold mine, I would have found it before I ever got to Clanton," he said. So he stuck to his guns. "Late to bed and early to rise; work like the dickens, and advertise," was his program. It got the answer. The success of his business is assured. He has made friends constantly. His methods of doing business are the kind that brings folks back for the second and third and fourth times, and so on indefinitely.

Associated with Mr. Moore in the business are his two sons, Lanier and Hollis. They are popular members of the younger set of the town. Both are graduates of the Chilton County High School. They are diligent and faithful helpers of their father in the business. Friends of Mr. Moore have observed how handy it is for him to have two fine boys to leave in charge of his business when he goes fishing—and that is often enough to give the boys good business practice.

Before locating here Glenn Moore traveled this territory for Jesse French & Sons Piano Co., of Montgomery. Upon his regular and frequent visits to Clanton he took a liking to the place, and finally determined to go in business here for himself.

Besides a full line of the many things that are carried in a modern drug store, "Moore's" specializes in musical instruments of all kinds. including radios. His place has been recognized as music headquarters for Clanton ever since the business was established.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless thay may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

ROLES RESERVED

Eight years ago a young girl with a great mop of yellow hair piled high on he top of her head and who said that she was a member of the Hippodrome chorus, poked her head into the office of Wilfred Noy, English film director, and applied for work.

Noy, who was impressed by her earnestness and attractive personality, gave her a bit in "The Face at the Window," the picture on which he was then at work. He advised her to go to America where he told her picture opportunities were much greater.

Noy in the meantime turned actor and followed his own advice by going to the United States but he did not see his young "find" again until he was cast in a First National picture in which she had the stellar role. The girl is Dorthy Mackaill and the picture is "The Flirting Widow," Vitaphone feature at the Wadesonian Theatre, next Monday and Tuesday.

A BIRTHDAY RE-UNION

Quite a large crowd gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Langston on June 1st to celebrate the birthday of Mr. Langston, which was his 58th birthday. All the children were present except two, who were gone on beyond. The children and families are:

At 10:30 o'clock the crowd gatherde in the house to hear Rev. Scott talk on a few interesting subjects on "How the good Lord had planned and worked for that home to be filled with children, grand-children, friends, and relatives of every direction."

The day was spent with joy and happiness with each of them, never to be forgotten.

At the noon hour a delightful table was prepared under a beautiful shade tree, a dinner in which all participated. Every one went away after dinner feeling so fine, the good coffee was enjoyed so much.

Then when the parting hour came the sad feelings was among them all. We will all be so glad and thankful to the blessed Saviour for the ones to meet again a year from now.

Several presents were presented to Mr. Langston from Mrs. J. A. Langston, Mrs. W. A. Scott, Mr. Sidney Langston, Mrs. Alfred Marler, Rev. and Mrs. Scott, Mrs. O. P. Scott.

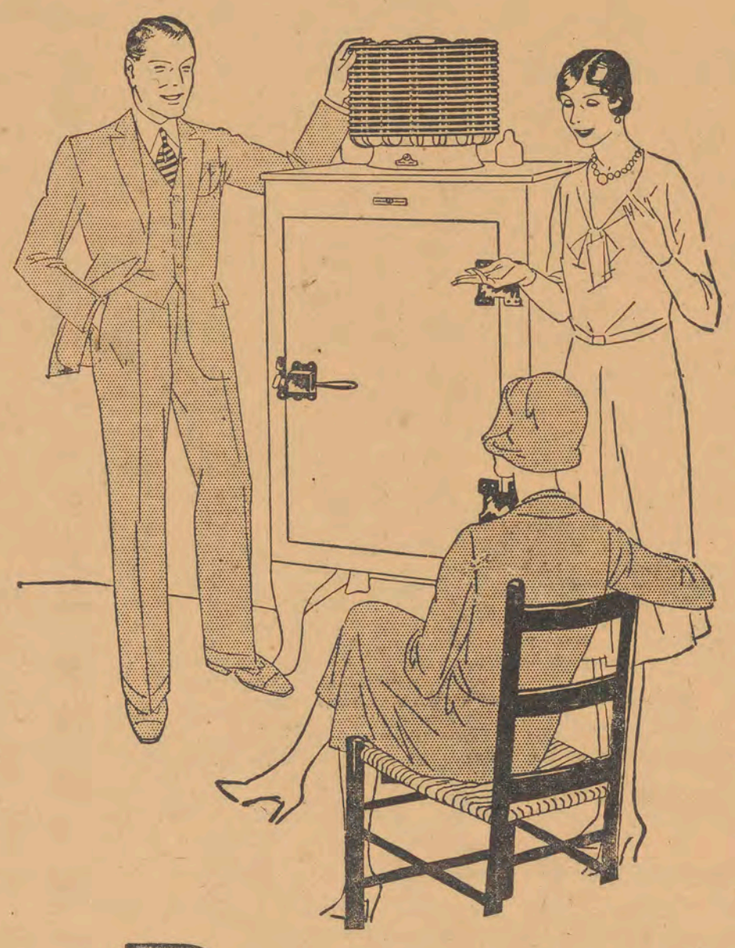
Tush

"Jimmy," said a mother to her quick-tempered small boy, "you must not grow angry and say naughty things. You should always give a soft answer."

When his little brother provoked him an hour afterward, Jimmy clenched his little fist and said, "Mush."—The New Guide.



On Their Mettle

The master, to impress on his pupils the need of thinking before speaking, told them to count fifty before saying anything important, and one hundred if it was very important.

Next day he was speaking, standing with his back to the fire, when he noticed several lips moving rapidly.

Suddenly the whole class shouted: "Ninety-eight, ninety-nine, a hundred. Your coat's on fire, sir!"—Boston Transcript.

WAPI MARKET CASTS THREE TIMES DAILY

Beginning on June 2 cotton and other markets are now being broadcast thrice daily over radio Station WAPI in Birmingham and also Station WSFA in Montgomery by the State Department of Agriculture and Industries from State Capitol studios in Montgomery. Prior to June 1 this department presented only one market broadcast each day, it being between 12:30 and 1:00, it was announced by WAPI.

The first of the daily broadcasts from the department over Station WAPI and WSFA is presented at 9:30 a. m. It is the opening market. The second is at 12:30, the same as in the past; and at 1:30 p. m. the closing markets are broadcast with Howard C. Smith at the microphone.

The aim of the two stations is to give the market news immediately after it happens and in such a way as to enable the farmers having products for sale to sell them to the very best advantage, it was explained. It is in line with the ambition of Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture and industries, to enlarge and improve the radio service of the department as rapidly as feasible.

The addition of two other broadcasts will enable farmers and business men of the State to keep in close touch with changes in prices of cotton, livestock, and other farm products. Not only prices but market news is broadcast about different crops in season.

When Station WAPI was moved to Birmingham late in 1928 those sponsoring the movement and the operation did so with a view to making farm market news broadcasting a major feature. This they have done, and this they will continue to do although numerous other good radio features will not be neglected, according to those in charge of WAPI.

FRANKLIN COUNTY GIRL WINS HEALTH CONTEST

Auburn, Ala., June 2.—A beautiful and attractive blonde of Spruce Pine, Franklin County, has been crowned as health champion of the 12,000 Alabama farm girls in 4-H clubs. She received this honor after winning in a contest against 35 other county health champions during the State 4-H short course at Auburn, May 27-31.

Rebecca, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grady Rauschenberg, will be 15 years old next September. She is 63 inches tall and weighs 119 pounds. She sleeps eight to nine hours and goes to bed about the same time each night.

Asked what she eats, her reply was: "For breakfast I eat cereals, eggs, bacon, and toast or biscuits. I drink a little coffee to which I add a large quantity of milk. In fact, it is a milk flavored with coffee. We eat dinner near 12 o'clock each day. Our dinner menu includes meats and vegetables, most of the vegetables coming from our garden. I drink a lot of milk. Our suppers are light, mostly vegetables."

At this point the interview turned to exercise. "I take the morning exercisees from radio Station WAPI," said Rebecca. "I help with the house work and do not have time to take the early morning broadcast but I get through in time to take them from 8:00 to 8:15."

Ten other girls in the contest received favorable mention. They are Alice Riggs of Conecuh County, Stuart Peeples of Limestone, Nell Moore of Bullock, Gladys Eiland of Lee, Effie Black of Walker, Adelle Hughes of Dallas, Leona Friend of Jefferson, Ruby Lois Thomas of Geneva, Agnes Dunford of Montgomery, and Esther Barnett of Escambia.

The contest—first of its kind in Alabama—was conducted by the State Department of Health and the county health units in co-operation with extension service of Auburn, including the county home demonstration agents.

POULTRY INDUSTRY IS MAKING RAPID PROGRESS

Montgomery, Ala., June 2.—That the poultry industry in Alabama is making rapid progress was revealed at the annual meeting of the Alabama Farm Bureau Poultry Association held in Montgomery last week.

Edward A. O'Neal, president gave a brief history of the poultry association and gave its purposes as follows:

"The purposes are to encourage and improve the poultry industry of the State of Alabama, stimulating a greater interest in economic poultry production, by encouraging better methods of housing, breeding, feeding, marketing, and management of poultry, by assisting in the development of state and local or other poultry shows, by establishing and maintaining or assisting to establish and maintain an inspection service for hatcheries, flocks, premises, poultry or poultry products, by formulating rules and regulations governing accredited and certified hatcheries and flocks, and accrediting and certifying same, by engaging in any other lawful activity in connection with the poultry industry, and by working in cooperation with the State Board of Agriculture and the Poultry Department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute in connection with any or all such activities."

That the poultry industry has made progress under this program was shown in reports made by L. N. Duncan, director of extension service; G. A. Trollope, secretary and head of the poultry department of Auburn; H. R. Bailey, poultry specialist; R. J. Jones of the poultry repartment of the Department of Agriculture, Montgomery; J. A. Beaty, director of field service of the Farm Bureau; and a large number of poultrymen throughout the state. These leaders showed that cooperative marketing, better breeding, housing, feeding, culling, are playing an important part in promoting the industry.

Edward A. O'Neal was re-elected president, Mrs. H. E. Miller, Loxley, was elected first vice-president, and F. G. Bridges, Notasulga, second vice-president. G. A. Trollope was retained as secretary, and A. N. Culver as treasurer. Directors elected to serve for the next two years are: W. P. Hofferbert, Florence; Dr. A. H. Gaines, Crossville; F. G. Bridges, Notasulga; and Mrs. H. E. Miller, Loxley. Other directors are W. H. Floyd, Birmingham; J. A. Willard, Gallion; B. F. Marshall, Mobile; and W. T. Pollard, Sylacauga.

HIGHER PRICES FOR LAND WITH YOUNG GROWTH

Montgomery, Ala., June 2.—Higher prices are being paid for cut-over lands with a fair stand of seedlings and young saplings than for burned and barren acres, points out the Alabama Commission of Forestry. Various buyers are acquiring acreage in South Alabama for the purpose of growing pulp-wood, and they feel that with seedlings already well distributed over the area the period elapsing before the first yield of usable material will be quite short.

Permitting the growth of a new stand of timber on cut-over or waste lands involves little or no expense to the owner but almost inevitably means a substantial return before the expiration of many years. A forest yield as contrasted with an agricultural crop involves so little outlay in labor or other costs that the gross receipts comprise a very hige proportion of net profit, points out the commission.

Formerly most of the cut-over lands of any community were regarded as of about equal value. However, since the use of small material has shortened the period necessary to produce merchantable trees, discriminating buyers are giving preference to lands upon which reproduction has started.

SHORTER ALABAMA COTTON MEANS SHORTER DOLLARS

Cotton farmers of Alabama are growing shorter staple than ever before, according to a report made public by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, with the Sate Department of Agriculture at Montgomery. Mr. Gist quotes some alarming figures regarding the 1929 crop. It appears that almost half the crop is untenderable on future contract. This means that Alabama farmers are penalized in the open markets, because so much cotton is below untenderable lengths and too short for best prices for spinning.

"In 1929, no less than 44.8 per cent. was less than 7-8 in length. In 1928, the crop had only 23 per cent. under 7-8. In both years Alabama had the greatest percentage of short staple length cotton of any state."

"In 1929, the average of cotton under 7-8 in the United States was 20 per cent., or one bale in 5 untenderable. In 1928 the average for the United States was 14.3 per cent. In 1928 only 25 per cent. of Alabama cotton was under 7-8. In both the state and nation the percentage of untenderable cotton has increased by almost unbelievable strides last year."

FLEET OF CHEVROLETS USED ON PIKES PEAK

Colorado Springs, Col., June 2—A concrete example of the tremendous strides made by automotive engineers toward the goal of mechanical perfection in the modern motor car is provided here daily on the Pikes Peak Highway.

A few years ago, a car that would scale the peak was a front-page feature throughout the country, while today, thanks to the automotive engineer, a car's ability to perform ably and satisfactorily in the thin rarefied air and on the long steep ascents of the peak is taken more or less for granted.

Despite a greatly improved highway up the peak, the long continuous climb and the light air pressure in the high altitudes, which used to mean a boiling radiator and an engine too hot to make the grade, provide one of the severest tests in America of the mechanical condition of a car.

Even more outstanding than the performance of those tourist automobiles which make a single trip up the steep incline is the record of a fleet of trucks used to maintain the highway in constant repair. The fleet now in such service includes three Chevrolet sixes which see almost daily use up in the region above the cloud-levels.

Recently the fleet has been used to haul away huge mountains of snow to prepare the highway for the summer tourist travel. The route was expected to be opened early in June. With the snow cleared away, the fleet will continue in daily service doing maintenance and repair work on the highway.

The Chevrolets used in this work have been in operation for more than a year. That the cars are operating today with the same degree of economy and dependability as a year ago is a fitting tribute to the achievements to those engineers who work quietly behind the scenes in the interest of improved performance at lower cost.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. Norton, Manager)

Last Thursday night was class night at Thorsbv Institute. The Senior Class held the boards very entertainingly for an hour and a half. Stage decorations were Sweet Peas, the Class Flower. There was a green back-ground, representing a forest scene, with a gypsie fire in the foreground, around which the members of the class sat in semicircle. The usual class history, poem and prophecy were given by various members of the class. Gifts of "intellect" were bestowed on the undergraduates. While the fire burned low there was much apparant grief and a liberal use of handkerchiefs to assuage the pangs of parting.

In the class play, "The Mouse Trap," which followed, all the parts were unusually well taken, denoting considerable dramatic ability. The play and the costumes were mirth provoking and caused much merriment among the audience, which nearly filled the auditorium. Miss Nnawill Davis and L. C. Simms were the leading characters.

We feel called upon to say a word about the beauty and dignity of commencement day exercises. The girls of the school, all in white, in their marching presented a fine showing. The boys also helped to maintain the general decorum. The singing by the girls chorus and also by the whole school denoted careful training, and attracted notice and much favorable comment for its quality. The precision in movements, in repose, and in all details was very noticable. Mr. Johnson, who made the commencement address, and was himself a high school teacher, told the writer he had never seen anything to compare with it. OLD DOCTOR'S IDEA IS BIG HELP TO ELDERLY PEOPLE

In 1885, Dr. Caldwell made a discovery for which elderly people the world over praise him today!

Years of practice convinced him that many people were endangering their health by a careless choice of laxatives. So he began a search for a harmless prescription which would be thoroughly effective, yet would neither gripe nor form any habit. At last he found it.

Over and over he wrote it, when he found people bilious, headachy, out of sorts, weak or feverish; with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy. It relieved the most obstinate cases, and yet was gentle with women, children and elderly people.

Today, this same famous, effective prescription, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is the world's most popular laxative. It may be obtained from any drugstore.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE INCREASED

Some Figures On Enrollment From Records At the Supt's. Office

According to reports had from Supterintendent Lawrence's office a very keen interest is being manifested in the education of the children of the county. This interest is shown in the marked increase in the enrollment in the white schools of the county during the past few years. In 1925 the elementary enrollment of the county was 4,168, and the high school enrollment was 725, which made a total of 4,893. In the school year 1929-30 the elementary enrollment was 4,964 with a high school enrollment of 1,213, making a total enrollment of all white children 6,177. This makes an increase in enrollment of 1,284.

Another interesting thing as shown by the above figures is the marked increase in the number of children taking high school training. This number has almost doubled in the period mentioned above. Of course this brings a greater burden on the County School Board to finance the educational program due to the fact high school training costs far more than elementary training.

But evidently the County Board is doing a good piece of financing in hat they have not only been able to take care of the added enrollment and provide more high school training but has increased the average term from 120 days to 134. This lacks but one day being a net increase in the length of term of three weeks.

Another inetresting thing found in the office of the Superintendent is a table he has worked up showing the enrollment, and all other data relating to attendance, number of teachers, number of pupils per teacher and the monthly cost per pupil in each one of the separate schools of the county.

AUNT NANCY SAMMONS VISITED MRS. OLIVER MULLINS

An item from Jumbo saying that Aunt Nancy Sammons spent last Sunday with Mrs. Oliver Mullins would not be considered with any unusual interest. But there are other facts about the incident that make it of more than passing interest.

Aunt Nancy and Mrs. Mullins have lived in the Jumbo community for perhaps over fifty years. Their homes, we learn, are about four miles apart. They have been very close friends all the while, and perhaps have seen each other often at church or other community gatherings.

The unusual interest that attaches to this visit of Mrs. Sammons to Mrs. Mullins is the fact that it is the first time Mrs. Sammons has been in the Mullins home for more than fifty years.

COME TO CLANTON FOURTH OF JULY

Methodist Ladies Preparing For Celebration, Barbecue and Picnic

As has been their custom for several years past, the ladies of the Methodist church of Clanton are making plans for a big celebration, barbecue and picnic at the Chilton County High School campus in Clanton on July 4th.

Full details have not been completed yet; but it is stated by the committee on arrangements that one of the big features of the day will be plenty of good public speaking. Every candidate for State and County offices, regardless of politics, will be invited to come and will be given a chance to speak. We understand that a special invitation will be sent to Hon. Charley McCall, candidate for Governor, to come and bring his amplifying apparatus.

As other details of the day are settled upon, the committee on arrangements will make definite announcement through the papers. In the meantime the Methodist ladies want everybody to begin making up plans to spend the Fourth of July in Clanton.

THE LEADER BUILDING NOW BEING REPAIRED

Wess Danforth and his crew of carpenters are at work this week repairing the building of The Leader which was damaged by fire a few weeks ago. Mr. Lande states that he will re-open his store at the same old location just as soon as the repairs on the building are completed.

At the present time The Leader is occupying two locations; one in the Wade Building two doors east of the new post office; the other next to the Alabama Power Co. office.

"When we open ot our former location again, we will have an entirely new stock of goods," said Mr. Lande. "Absolutely nothnig that was damaged in the fire will be put back in our store when we re-open again."

Chilton County Should Have Opportunity Schools Again This Summer

The County Board of Education has decided not to make an appropriation for Opportunity Schools in Chilton County this year. They feel that they should conserve all school funds for use in the public schools, therefore, if we are to have the opportunity schools for adults again this summer, they must be provided for in some way other than out of public school funds.

Prof. H. A. Harris, who has managed the opportunity schools heretofore, together with Superintendent, Buford Lawrence, has presented to The Union-Banner a plan whereby 15 opportunity schools for whites and 10 for negroes can be held this summer if public subscriptions in the county can be obtained for the amount of $58.75.

In other words, if the people of Chilton County will raise $58.75, other available sources will put up a total of $2,088.75. By very liberal concessions on the part of Mr. Harris and the teachers, we will then be able to have the schools.

Feeling that Chilton County can not forego the great advantage that the opportunity schools will bring to many people of our county, The Union-Banner has chosen to present this matter to our people and to make an appeal for the raising of the necessry $58.75. As a starter in this movement, this newspaper will subscribe $5.00, and we call upon every friend of the underprivileged and uneducated adults of this county to join us in whatever amount you feel that you can give to this worthy cause.

Send your conributions to The Union-Banner and designate same as "Opportunity School Gift." Who will be next? Any amount from a penny up will be accepted.

Remember that the raising of only $58.75 in this manner will guarantee 15 schools for whites and 10 schools for negroes, for a period of six weeks in each school, absolutely free to all who will attend.

Seeing Florida In Five Days

Did you know that a good portion of Florida could be seen in five days and on the small amount of $47? Well, we didn't either, but it can be done, provided you travel in one of these "Economical Transportation" cars and don't stop at too expensive hotels.

Last Monday morning, June 2nd, Mrs. Wyatt and I, (T. E. Wyatt), left for the Land of Flowers, pulling out from Mitchell Dam at 4:30 a.m. We left Eugenia Inez with her grandmother; this proved to be about the only thing that marred the pleasuse of the trip and caused us to make the round more hastily and return earlier than we anticipated, because we never saw anything beautiful and entertaining but that we wished Inez were there to see it too, and those five days we were away from her seemed like months. But probably it was better that we did not carry her, as the trip was rather long and worrysome.

By 9:00 o'clock we were in Dothan, thence into Marianna, Fla. This was the first time either one of us had ever been in Florida. Going through Tallahassee, we passed thru Lake City and on into Jacksonville. After pretty well covering that city we proceeded on down the Atlantic coast. Dark caught us at a tourist camp five miles north of St. Augustine and about 650 miles from where we started that morning. This was too long a drive for one day, as we were about all in. But after getting a good night's sleep in that nice, quiet little camp, surrounded by big palm trees and other beautiful tropical shrubbery, we felt good the next morning and ready to go further and see some more. St. Agustine was the next city, which proved of great interest and beauty. The old fort and the oldest building in the United States were of particular interest. St. Augustine, you know, is the oldest city in the United States. The beautiful old southern homes as well as the elaborate modern ones, set off by Florida shrubbery and spaceous garden arrangements, were good to look upon. All down the coast, through Daytona Beach, Melbourne, Vero, Ft. Pierce and Palm Beach, the towns were beautiful and the beaches were even more so.

At Dania, a small place just below Palm Beach we met up with quite a surprise. A car came whizzing by us and pulled out in the road ahead and began to slow down. We did not know whether we were going to be held up and robbed or arrested for something; but we stopped any way. A man and lady began unloading in front of us, and we at once recognized them to be Roy Mahan and Mrs. Mahan. In chatting with them for a while we learned that Mr. Mahan is working with the Florida Power Company at that place. His brother, Luby, is also down there. We were indeed glad that they stopped us, for they were the first people we had seen whom we knew since leaving home.

We spent Tuesday night in Miami, the place which we most wanted to visit and make a thorough exploration of. Luck had it that we selected a rooming house where also roomed a newspaper man by the name of Maass. Mr. Maass had lived in Miami up until four years ago, working in old Mexico, California and other places since then. He had just come back to Miami and was taking up a job as advertising manager for the Miami Daily News on June 9th. So he was just killing time for a few days and was glad to carry us all over the place to show and explain everything. This trip over Miami, Miami Beach and Cocoanut Grove was the most interesting part of our entire trip. Mr. Maass being a newspaper man and the fact that he had not seen his home town for four years, just fit fine into our scheme of seeing everything interesting about Miami. We spent nearly the entire morning riding over the place and seeing the sights. The beautiful homes of the millionaires on Miami Beach, including that of the famous Chicago racketeer, Al Capone, was an interesting feature of the morning's trip.

After visiting Kress and selecting a lot of souvenirs and some toys for the kid, we set out on Tamiami Trail through the famous Everglades. After passing through beautiful Coral Gables we headed for the Gulf of Mexico at Ft. Myers, where we saw the beautiful tropical home of Mr. Thomas A. Edison, the noted inventor. Wednesday night found us in Tampa. Here we came in contact with a big policeman by the name of W. C. Henley. No, you are all wrong; we didn't get arrested, we merely selected a rooming house for the night which happened to be the home of this Tampa policeman. We did not see all of Tampa; if we had we would not be home yet; but we covered the town pretty well.

Leaving Tampa early Thursday morning, we also left the Gulf coast and took for higher land. The next stop of importance was Ocala, where we went out eight miles and saw Silver Springs. This proved to be one of the most interesting things in Florida and by far the most unique. The beauty of the spring as seen through the glass bottom boats cannot be expressed in words. The water is as clear as a crystal, and in some places where the water is forty feet deep one can see objects not larger than a dime lying on the bottom. A good size river flows from this spring.

Crossing our former route at Lake City we went into south Georgia by way of Valdosta, Thomasville, Albany and into Columbus; Thursday night was spent in Albany. It was through this section of south Georgia that we passed hundreds and hundreds of acres of the finest pecan groves imaginable. From Columbus we entered Alabama, coming in home Friday evening by way of Opelika, Auburn, Notasulga, Tallassee, and Wetumpka. When we got to Mountain Creek we glanced at our map and saw that we had just completed a figure "8", the bottom loop extending to Miami and the top loop closing at Mountain Creek.

Now, here I have taken lots of your time and lots of The Union-Banner's perfectly good space, and have not even mentioned the orange groves, the good roads, the alligators, and hundreds of other interesting things in Florida; but I will have to close. Probably I will think of something else to tell you later.

We did not have a puncture in either of our Firestone tires, neither did we spend a penny on the car for anything other than gas and oil. On the trip we consumed 88 gallons of gasoline and traveled 1,960 miles. If you will use your pencil a bit you can tell how much mileage to the gallon of gas one can get out from a Chevrolet Six. Apologies to Polk Brothers and Mon Wyatt too.

BOB JONES WILL LECTURE IN CLANTON TONIGHT AT 8

Rev. Bob Jones, the well-known evangelist and platform speaker, will lecture at the courthouse in Clanton tonight (Thursday) at 8 o'clock. His subject will be: "Whither are we Drifting?" This lecture, which Dr. Jones has delivered on many occasions, is recognized as one of the most powerful appeals to the young people. A county-wide invitation is extended to everybody to hear his address tonight at 8 o'clock.

VISITING DAY AT THE NEHI PLANT

Mr. White Planning Interesting Entertainment for Visitors June 21st

Mr. Horsley White, of the Nehi Bottling Company, in Clanton, is making preparations to entertain all the friends and admirers of Nehi on Saturday afternoon, June 21, from two to five o'clock.

Recently Mr. White has completed the installation of new machinery and equipment at the Nehi plant. His present arrangement of things makes this by far the most modern and up-to-date bottling business ever seen in Clanton.

The friends and admirers of Nehi are many in Chilton County. All of them have an invitation to come to the Nehi plant on the 21st, and partake of the good things that will be offered by Mr. White. He will have plenty of cold drinks which will be given free to everyone who visits the plant from two to five o'clock. There will be other interesting things too—guessing contests, the winners of which will be given valuable prizes.

For the kiddies, Mr. White will have some big Nehi dolls, and somebody will be lucky enough to get one of them.

NEGRO GETS SENTENCE OF DEATH FOR ASSAULT

Mose Daniels, 19 year old negro, was convicted on a charge of criminally assaulting a white woman in Montgomery, and sentenced to death in the electric chair July 11th. The trial was held in Judge Leon McCord's division of the Circuit Court Monday.

LADIES QUARTET TO ATTEND COUNTY SING CONVENTION

Mr. M. C. Jones of Bessemer and his quartet composed of ladies will be a special feature at the Chilton County Singing Convention to be held at Jemison the first Sunday in July. Mr. Jones and three of his number were at Oak Hill last Sunday at the all day singing, and their numbers were very enthusiastically received.

Others promising to attend are Prof. John M. Dye of West End, Birmingham, Prof. P. B. Shaw of Shelby County, and Prof. Max Neighbors of Bessemer. As has already been published, Prof. J. R. Baxter, Jr., of Chattanooga, and Prof. H. C. Collins of Cairo, Ga., have accepted an invitation to come. An effort is being made to get a number of singers from Sand Mountain and DeKalb County.

Unless something unforeseen happens, this is going to be the best singing convention ever held in the County. Begin to make your arrangements to attend, because the time is not long off now.—H. W. Lowery, President; T. E. Wyatt, Secretary.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT FOURSQUARE CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY, JUNE 15

Next Sunday, June 15, will be a day of special services at the local Foursquare Church. Beginning at 10:00 a. m., the morning service will be one of singing and testimony meeting. We are endeavoring to have several good singers with us at this time, including the Clanton Quartet. All singers and lovers of music are especially invited to be with us.

At 12 o'clock dinner will be spread under the big trees on the church grounds.

At 2:00 p. m., Rev. R. M. Honeycutt will bring a message to the young people. Rev. Honeycutt is well known in this section of the county, and we are quite sure many of the older church-going people will be glad of an opportunity to hear his message. A special invitation is extended to the young people for this part of the day's exercises.

Young or old we will be glad to have you with us on this day. Remember the hour, 10:00 a. m., Sunday, June 15, and arrange to be on hand. We will be looking for you.—Pastor Harry B. Calentine.

FIRE DESTROYED THORSBY HOTEL

Loss of $7,500 By Mr. Gibbons Owner of Hotel And Adjoining Store

The matter of most importance during the past week in Thorsby was the destruction by fire of Thorsby Hotel, which was found to be on fire on the second floor, by Miss Cooper, an assistant to Mrs. Gibbons, about 8:30 last Saturday morning. Upon investigation from the outside, the room in which the kitchen flue was located was burning so fiercely that there was no chance to save anything on that floor on acount of smoke. The fat pine wood structure made excellent food for the flames, which soon burst through the roof, and all hope of saving the building with any means at hand was lost.

The alarm was quickly spread and many people rushed to the fire, and willing hands hustled out first floor furnishings, also part of the contents of the Mabels Confectionery store adjoining the hotel on the Jones Street front. Work there was stopped by the breaking of an ammonia pipe connected with the frigidaire box, permitting the escape of ammonia which drove out the helpers. Much of the most valuable furnishings of the shop were saved, in a damaged condition. Although the heat from the fire was great, there was little wind to carry embers, and bucket brigades with wet blaknets kept all buildings in the vicinity of the blaze from catching fire.

A fire engine was sent from Clanton, but returned without service, as there was no water available.

Mr. Rushon Gibbons, who owned and conducted the hotel and also the Confectionery store, estimates his loss at $7,500, on which there was insurance of about $5,000. The salvaged goods were carried to the store room recently vacated by Thorsby post office, and the Gibbons family found a temporary home in one of Mrs. Villadsen's cottages.

NEW FERRY WILL BE OPEN THIS MONTH

Charley Wyatt was in Clanton on Monday. When asked about the ferry across Coosa River on the new Rockford Highway, he stated that indications are that the ferry will be in operation some time during the latter part of this month.

Mr. Howard Powell of Guntersville, who will operate the new ferry, has his machinery all assembled and is getting it fixed up as fast as posferry the new route toSU. bagrfhm sible. With the opening of this ferry, the new route to East Alabama will be ready for traffic, as the road from the Montgomery Highway to Rockford is in good shape.

Green Retherford, E. H. Carrol and Mr. Snyder were at home from Brookwood last Sunday. They are employed guarding state convicts at a paving job on the Bessemer-Tuscaloosa Highway.

CLANTON SINGERS WIN FIRST PRIZE

Quartet Carried off Honors In Contest At Tallassee Last Week

The Clanton Quartet is some bunch of singers. They went down to Tallassee Friday night of last week and entered a contest held at East Tallassee Theatre and sponsored by the Baraca Sunday School Class of the Tallassee Baptist Church.

Besides the Clanton singers, three other quartets entered the contest, namely—Alexander City, Notasulga, and the Bama Ristocrats of Montgomery, the latter being radio artists. Each bunch was allowed three selections, and three people acted as judges. Clanton was awarded first prize and the second was given Notasulga.

This is quite an honor for the Clanton singers. Of course we knew here that they were in the first rank among the singers of the State, but this fact was not known everywhere. Now, maybe the fact will be broadcast to places other than Chilton County. eW are proud of the Clanton Quartet and the record they have made at home and abroad.

W. G. Culp manages the quartet and does the playing for them. The singers are: Herbert Lowery, Jesse Jones, Renfroe Jones and Archie Devaughn.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter, of St. Petersburg, Fla., spent last Sunday with friends in Clanton.

FRIENDSHIP

Rev. J. T. Nelson, the oldest person in the county, nearly 98 years old, preached here last Sunday at 11 o'clock. Quite a crowd was present to hear the old minister. His remarks, although scattering, were enjoyed by all.

On account of the fact that Rev. Holland cannot be at Friendship the fourth Sunday in July, it has been decided to postpone the summer revival one week; so it will begin the first Sunday in August. Rev. J. S. Holland will do the preaching.

There will be no singing at this place the fourth Sunday in June, on account of the all day singing at Cane Creek. Everybody go and help our neighbors in their all day singing. Of course, come to Sunday school and preaching first though.

FLOYD SINGING

The singing at Floyd is called in for next Sunday afternoon, on account of an all day singing at a neighboring church four miles south of here, New Prospect.

We will have Sunday school at 9 o'clock, and then everybody will go to the singing.

On last Sunday morning at 9:00 o'clock there was a deaf and dumb wedding, which was of much interest to the community. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Prickett was married to Mr. William McLane of Montgomery. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Sid Deloach of Bethany. Mrs. Mary Smith acted as interpreter for the ceremony. The young couple will make their home in Montgomery.

CHEVROLET COLLIDES WITH AN AIRPLANE

Detroit, Mich., June 9.—A Chevrolet six recently played an important role here in what is beleived to be the first case on record of a head-on collision between an automobile and an airplane.

The car, one of twelve Chevrolet sixes used by Detroit Immigration authorities in border patrol work, was being driven by Stanley Zerambo, senior inspector, whose duties consist in thwarting attempts to smuggle aliens across the border.

Inspector Zerambo had to his credit six planes seized in this nefarious traffic, and had been watching for some time a seventh plane said to have operated for six weeks on regular schedule flying from Canada to American soil.

After several attempts to seize the plane, its pilot and illegal cargo had failed. Inspector Zerambo was scouting along the Detroit River Front shortly after sunrise, on June 1, when he spotted the plane heading from Canada toward an open field just beyond the Detroit city line. Speeding to the spot Inspector Zerambo swung into the field in his Chevrolet just as the plane landed, and drove directly into its path to shut off retreat.

When the pilot saw the official car in front of him, he sought to ward off capture by speeding the motor up in a desperate effort to take off again. Inspector Zerambo, in the split second available to make a decision, weighted the ruggedness of the car against the strength of the plane, and drove head-on into the whirring propellor.

Result: Another seized plane added to Inspector Zerambo's impressive record—a disabled plane with a shattered propellor and a damaged wing; two alien prisoners; an escaped pilot; Inspector Zerambo slightly shaken up and bruised; and a car with a damaged right front door, fender, radiator and the radiator cap picked off by the propellor.

Despite the damage to the Chevrolet it came out a decided victor in the crash, for while the plane was totally disabled, Inspector Zerambo was able to back the car out of the wreckage and drive it under its own power, with his prisoners safely aboard, to Detroit headquarters.

A week of instruction and recreation is in store for farmers and farm women who come to Auburn for Farmers' Week, July 28 to August 2.

"I am now a well and happy woman and owe a debt of gratitude to Sargon."—Mrs Carrie V. Seivert, W. 1926 Boone Ave., Spokane, Wash.

SCHOOL CHILDREN PAY OVER HALF MILLION TUITION FEES

That the revenue for public education as provided by the State of Alabama was not sufficient to maintain schools in keeping with recognized standards for the year 1928-1929, is proved by the fact that during that year the sum of $570,953 was collected from students as tuition fees. Of this sum $430,979 was collected by the rural schools, $104,392 was collected by the city schools and $35,582 was collected by the agricultural high schools.

Thirty-four of the 45 city school systems reported tuition fees collected in total amounts that vary from $60.00 to $18,894 for the year. Only three of the 67 counties, Mobile, Lee and Dallas, reported no collection of tuition fees. The highest county collection reported was $47,905.00.

In addition to the $570,953 reported as fees the sum of $341,718 was provided as contributions, gifts and bequests. Of this amount $51,546 was reported by city schools and $290,172 reported by rural schools.

MORE FEDERAL FUNDS FOR ALABAMA FORESTRY

Montgomery, June 10.—Approximately $52,000 of United States funds will be allotted the State Commission of Forestry to carry on the work of the department in cooperation with the farmers and other landowers of the State during the federal fiscal year beginning July 1. This was stated after a recent visit to the department by a representative of the federal governmet. The amount comprises an increase of about 23 per cent over the preceding year.

Federal forestry funds had been consistently withheld from Alabama until the creation of the State Commission of Forestry by the Legislature of 1923 and the organization of its work along its present lines. The participation of the government in the forestral work of the State enables the department to draw but very lightly upon the State treasury. In fact, under present conditions, the State's appropriation, which is derived solely from the license fees paid by sawmills, turpentine stills and other forest industries, is considerably less than the part contributed by the United States.

The federal contribution is dependent upon the State's matching the allotment and using the total solely for forestry purposes. However, the Commission is authorized by the government to include, as a part of the basis for matching, certain private forestral expenditures made under State supervision and also the amounts contributed in the same manner by the various counties. The forestry department is thus enabled to obtain the heaviest proportion of federal funds as compared with the outlay from the State treasury.

ALABAMA GIVES PRICES OF COTTON OVER THE RADIO

Better marketing facilities, more market information, and enough price quotations to place a farmer on an equality with tradesmen and buyers of farm produce, are a few of the projects which have been sponsored by the State Department of Agriculture.

The broadcasting of general farm market news over Station WAPI has been carried on for fifteen months. The dual broadcasting over WSFA and WAPI at 12:30 to 1 p.m., daily was first undertaken on April 1. On June 1 Commissioner Seth P. Storrs announced the beginning of a broadcasting for three periods daily on cotton.

Farmers Holding Cotton

Alabama farmers are holding cotton as never before, acording to a report made to the State Warehousemens convention by Mr. S. A. Burns, head of the division of gins and warehouses in the department of agriculture. Mr. Burns reported on May 1st that warehouses held a grand total of 269,643 bales of cotton. This means about 18 million dollars worth of cotton which is held for better marketing conditions and as a stabilizing factor on the market.

Weather Broadcasts 3 Times Daily

Through special arrangements with P. H. Smith of the U. S. Weather Bureau at Montgomery weather forecasts for Alabama are received in Montgomery in time for the 9:30 a.m. program broadcasting. This is given in brief form for the entire state and separately for Montgomery and the central region. The weather is broadcast in full from 12:40 p.m. daily, except Sunday, and again is given briefly at 1:30 p.m., each day.

FARMER GETS $1,940 FROM THREE ACRES DEWBERRIES

Oneonta, Ala., June 9.—Last year Weaver Gable, staunch farm bureau member and progressive farmer of Renlop, Ala., Route 1, sold $1,940 worth of dewberries and dewberry plants from three acres of land.

This year Mr. Gamble has four acres producing berries from which he expects a return of some $3,000. He sells his berries in Birmingham, which is less than an hour's drive from his farm. J. L. Liles, county agent, Birmingham, works very closely with Mr. Gamble in producing and marketing the berries.

"The beauty of growing dewberries is the fact that most of the return is profit, since most of the work in producing them is done in the winter time when the farmer has nothing else to do," Mr. Gamble said. The berries require a little fertilizer, a little cultivation; then they are to harvest and market, taking very little time and experience.

ALABAMA FARMERS POOLED 20,000 POUNDS OF WOOL

Sheep growers of the Black Belt section of Alabama pooled 20,000 pounds of wool co-operatively and were advanced 20 cents per pound for clear wool by the Alabama Farm Bureau Mutual Supply Association during the two days of June 3 and 4. These growers will have the co-operation of the Federal Farm Board through the national wool sales agency in the marketing of this wool.

Over 10,000 pounds of the wool was loaded at Uniontown, while between 9 and 10 thousand pounds were loaded at Montgomery.

Farmers of southwest Alabama expect to load their wool during the first of July, reports J. D. Moore, marketing specialist of the Extension Service, Auburn. Mississippi and Florida farmers also expect to pool in the Alaabma wool pool.

MONTGOMERY CURB SALES INCREASED 700 PER CENT

May marked the beginning of the fourth year's operation of the Montgomery curb market and the report announced by Mrs. F. R. Charles, market master, shows that the total sales during the four years were $209,684. This tremendous volume exceeds the fondest hopes of the few who in 1927 conceived the curb market plan.

Sales for May this year increased more than seven hundred per cent over the first month's operation. In May, 1927, sales were $1,165 as compared fith $8,500 for the same month this year. In May, 1928, the volume had climbed to $4,450 and in 1929 to $6,818.

TIME FOR PLANTING FALL CROP TOMATOES

Auburn, Ala., June 9.—A method whereby Alabama farmers and others may have tomatoes from their own gardens until Christmas or in some cases even until February is explained by Julian Brown, extension horticulturist at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"Early settings of tomato plants are well on their way to production," he said, "but laetr settings should be made in order to provide a continuous supply. There are few home gardens which have this continuous supply from the time the first ripen until frost in the fall. It is possible to have this delicious vegetable fresh from the garden every day until frost and then by picking the green fruits and storing them in a room of moderate temperature have them until the end of the year or, in some cases, until February of the following year."

The last planting of tomato seed should be made in North Alabama, June 10, in Central Alabama, June 15, and in South Alabama, June 20, Mr. Brown said, and emphasized that plantings for the fall crop should not be made later than these dates. "Some prefer to plant these seed in the row where they are to remain, while others prefer planting in a bed and transplanting to the field," he continued. "Under average conditions, best results seem to have been obtained by planting in a bed."

Dry weather makes transplanting difficult and the Auburn horticulturist says that deep setting is a way to overcome this condition. "In setting large plants under such conditions, a deep hole should be dug and the plant set as to leave only two or three limbs above ground," he said. "This enables the plant to absorb moisture from a greater depth."

FARMERS' WEEK TO BE COTTON WEEK

Auburn, Ala., June 9.—To the farm women of Alabama farmers' week at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, July 28 to August 2, will be cotton week as a large number of the women to attend are expected to wear cotton clothes.

They are being urged to do this by Miss Dorothy Dean, extension clothing specialist of Auburn, who wishes to stress the importance of cotton as a dress fabric.

There will be a cotton fashion show during the week, Miss Dean said. "We want to include in this fashion show Alabama-made cotton dresses worn by Alabama farm women," she added. "We will also have a review of children's clothes."

LEAF WORM MAY HIT STATE EARLY

Auburn, Ala., June 9.—Cotton growers should watch closely for appearance of the cotton leaf worm, or army worm, which has damaged crops in former years. This insect is ahead of schedule enroute to Alabama this year. Prof. J. M. Robinson, head of the department of entomology and zoology at Auburn, has received a letter from the government labortory at Tallulah, La., stating that Dr. F. L. Thomas, entomologist at the Texas T. & M. College, recently found adult army worms in that state.

"This means," said Professor Robinson, "that the leaf worm may appear in Alabama as early as July. Of course we do not know that they will appear but we do know that it is probable. This being the case, it will be well for farmers and county agents to be on guard and prepared to begin control work if an outbreak should occur."

He explained that army worm control is not difficult. Calcium arsenate properly applied will do the job.

CHICK FIRST-AID

Cannibalism, including toe-picking and tail-picking, is one of the problems that most everybody has to face at one time or another in brooding chicks. It is just a habit. Stamp it out the moment it appears. It is usually started when the chicks are in too close quarters, or when accidental injuries give them a chance taste for blood. Lack of exercise or faulty diet may get it started. The Western Washington Experiment station makes a very good summary of treatment, as follows:

1. Prvide clean litter, as deep as chicks can work.
2. Keep them in cool air where they are working, encouraging outdoor exercise in every possible way.
3. Provide a well-balanced ration.
4. Provide more room both indoors and out.
5. In severe outbreaks, darken the house so chicks will go to bed.
6. Keep them working, providing more racks of greens, bright objects that they can pick up and carry so they run off their surplus energy.
7. Hang up chunks of liver, meat or bacon rind to keep them doing something harmless.
8. Add a teaspoonful of salt to each quart of water during the forenoons, replacing with fresh water for the afternoons.

Also it is well to separate the picked chicks promptly before they get too badly injured, paint the injured parts with common tar or some other sticky, distasteful material, and if possible keep the injured ones by themselves until recovered.

If you would be successful with your chicks, constant vigilance must be maintained against "piling" and "sweating" of the chicks, which are the result of uneven and improper temperatures. When they "pile" they quickly get into an unhealthy sweat, and just like human beings, upon cooling they tend to contract colds, pneumonia, and tuberculosis.

If you do have the above trouble, you will know it by wheezing, droopy wings, loss of appetite. For treatment, feed scantily, put one tablespoonful of epsom salts to a quart of water in the jar fountains during the forenoons, replacing in the afternoons with plain water, once a week, and watch your brooder temperatures ceaselessly thereafter.

If any of the contagious diseases appear, be sure to cremate the infected chicks and disinfect all quarters thoroughly. The one safe bet is sanitation and more sanitation, all the time.

Growing $1 corn and selling it to hogs at $1.50 or more proves a farmer to be a business man.

To community club meetings a farmer can take one idea and bring back a dozen—and that is a fair exchange.

There is no more pleasing a decoration for the house than artistic boxes of plants used at windows or on the porches.

Holdings of creamery butter on May 1 are reported at 22,988,000 pounds compared with 5,883,000 pounds on May 1, 1929.

Curves and scallops in a dress give the effect of plumpness. A close-fitting, round-collared neckline will also help in making the thin figure appear rounded. Lustrous material and stiff fabricts are generally very becoming to the thin figure. Beads and sashes can be used to good advantage.

WHAT IS NEWS?

Senator Hastings, of Deleware, calls attention to the fact that the tendency of the metropolitan press is to play up only the sensational and the unusual among happenings in Washington, and that the result is that the people get a distorted view of the operations of government.

In order to get the head-lines, Senator Hastings correctly concludes, it is necessary for a politician to get up and denounce somebody or something, and especially to defy the majority in his own party or in Congress. Members of Congress who quietly go ahead doing constructive work for the good of the country get little or no attention.

How much is printed in the daily press about the many beneficial laws enacted and administrative actions which cannot be sensationally treated? Very little, indeed.

In the general news field this is not surprising. The citizen who goes ahead doing useful work, obeying the laws and attending to his own business, does not break into the headlines. Let him commit a murder, however, and he at once springs into the headlines. It is not surprising that under these circumstances readers conclude that nothing good is going on in the world.

Perhaps there needs to be some revision of opinion as to what constitutes news. Surely the reading public must grow weary of being given nothing but the bizarre, freakish and unusual. There must be some interest in the lives of useful people which is worthy of attention in the metropolitan press. In fact behind many of these work-a-day doings is an interesting story, of real human interest. Public interest does not alone attach to the abnormal, the criminal, the sensational.

A recent award to newspapermen doing the most important piece of work at Washington during the past year went to a journalist who had accomplished a sensatinoal "expose" of an indiscretion by a public man. The second and third prizes also went to newspapermen who had done some especially notable detective work. This is indicative of the trend of metropolitan journalism.

Might it not be well to cultivate a bit the art of appreciation, which has fallen into disuse as the habit of critism has seized hold of most writing men? News about the worth-while work being done by our government and its officials may not be so easy to get or to write, but does it not deserve some place on the printed page?

A man who used to rein in his horse so suddenly that it reared on its haunches now has a son who dashes up to a street intersection at thirty-five miles an hour, depending on four-wheel brakes and the kindly Providence that protects idiots to stop him in six feet.—Ohio State Journal.

In the meantime Americans should be thankful for the United States of America and should see to it that Uncle Sam is not any way involved, politically or otherwise, in these age-old hatreds of Europe.

A lot of the more rabid internationalists will not be satisfied until Uncle Sam disarms completely and pays the rest of the world to disarm.

An old man was discovered recently walking down an Ohio highway with a stick of dynamite in his hip pocket and daring the motorists to run into him. But there are a lot of fellows who carry more deadly stuff than that on their hip.

Maybe so many of the politicians wouldn't be continually sitting on the fence if the voters would see to it that the political fences are made of barbed wire.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Just now the world is being flooded with pacifist literature, in song, story and play, depicting the horrors of war, and the suffering and privation of the trenches. No sane man wants war and anything looking toward international agreements making war less probable is of course to be encouraged.

But so far as the pacifists of the United States are concerned, it is difficult to follow the reasoning which has brought them to the conclusion that Uncle Sam ought to scuttle or to reduce to a minium his navy, as a generous example to the rest of the world.

If we are to keep our American boys out of the trenches, and to spare our people from the horrors of alien attack, it is as certain as the sunrise, that we must have a navy equal to any navy in the world.

No sane man in the United States believes that our country is at any time in the near future going to launch into a war of conquest. We have all the territory we shall need for several centuries and we are getting our fair share of the world's commerce. So if Uncle Sam is to become involved in war he will be the one attacked and not the attacker. Now in case we are assailed by a foreign power, an adequate navy is absolutely essential to our defense. Not only is this a fact, but it is equally true that an adequate navy will tend to keep us out of any war at all, because any foreign nation would hesitate to attack us, if we had a navy as good as the best.

Now the question of navay parity is one which is up to the administration, the United States Senate and our naval experts. But there can be no doubt of the assertion that we ought to have real parity and ought to see that our navy is built up to the maximum strength.

Already there are signs indicating that after the question of a naval agreement is settled, the pacifists inside of Congress and out are going to maintain that we ought to refuse to build up to the strength given us in any parity agreement signed. They will assert that we ought to refuse to do this in the interest of "economy" and "peace."

But the average American will continue to believe that the best way to keep the boys out of the trenches and to avoid the horrors so realistically painted in modern song and story, will be to have an American navy as good as the best. Such a navy will be not in the interest of war, but in the interest of peace and American security.

OUR MERCHANT MARINE

What our country is to be in the family of nations depends on our merchant fleet. We may have gold in our banks, but unless we can dispose of our surplus goods and crops our riches will disappear.

The great powers, the world powers, are the nations that control export trade. In the last analysis it is the merchant fleet and not vessels of war that fix national supremacy. If Great Britain were to destroy one-half of her battleships she would still be mistress of the seas. Her merchant ships, with all their potentalities, would guarantee her ocean supremacy.

It is not possible for the United States to compete with foreign bottoms unless some sort of definite financial aid is provided by the government for our ships. Great Britain is wise in her day and generation. She pays about $1,000,000 a year to merchant seamen enlisted in her naval reserve. She pays many hundred thousands of dollars in the form of annual retainers to seamen who drill for one week each year with the navy. Great Britain pays about $100,000 a year to seamen who are known as the Royal Naval Volunteers.

But that isn't all. She pays naval subventions to something like 20 fast steamers, so built as to be easily converted into auxiliary naval cruisers. The Cunard Line receives an annual subvention of $750,000 in return for granting the government the right of ownership of the ships in times of war. In addition Great Britain provides profitable mail contracts to British lines.—U. S. Senator Royal Copeland.

THE JACK POT

BY "JACK" HIMSELF

And once again, as the radio announcers say, we come to you with our load of fun and foolishness. Besides the fun and foolishness, this week, though, we want to add another voice to the already great growl of disapproval that is going up to the powers that be in Alabama in regard to a practice which, to us, seems little short of barbarous.

The practice spoken of is that of using the "dog house" as a disciplinary measure in Alabama prisons. An account of the death of a convict recently in one of these "dog houses" or "sweat boxes," as they are sometimes called, has opened people's eyes to the fact that such a practice is in use.

In case you are one of the few who have not read a description of one of the penal boxes, we will describe it. The box is 6 1-2 feet high, 16 inches wide, and 12 inches deep (front to back). The only places where fresh air can enter are two 1-inch holes bored through the door six inches from the top.

A man, unless he is about six feet high, cannot see out through the holes. Too, the space is not large enough for him to turn around or sit down. Neither can he raise his arms if he enters with them down, nor lower them if they are over his head. In short, whatever position he takes on entering he must hold until he is released. A prominent Birmingham doctor says that after a few minutes, a man is forced to breathe far more foul air than pure, in that way taking into his lungs much carbon dioxide, very poisonous.

Just a few days ago a man was placed in one of these "dog houses" and kept in for three hours. A short time after release, he died; the camp doctor made his report of the death as "death from natural causes." It seems that the "higher up" boys are trying to wiggle out of the affair by denying knowledge that such a system was in use in Alabama prisons.

In questioning one man about the affair, authorities were told that it has been quite common to use these when a man "won't work." Also, that a man must work unless very sick. Too, that after being placed in such a box as that described above, and kept there for some time, men are taken out and told to work; if they can't or don't, back they go for another spell.

Now, in the name of all that is decent and human, would you have thought that such a practice was being carried on with the full knowledge of the state's prison heads? We wouldn't. It is even more barbarous, if possible, than the use of the "boiling vat" in which an Alabama convict was killed some time ago.

Must people of this state stand by and see their fathers and brothers taken to prison, some times for comparatively small charges, not knowing but that they will be subjected to practices in punishment which actually ENDANGER THEIR VERY LIVES?

We pride ourselves on having become modern—having risen above the practices of savages. The savage at least had not been taught better. He THOUGHT he was doing right in torturing his prisoner—our officials should KNOW that they are not. If they haven't enough sense of decency or feeling for humanity to see that a prisoner is given humane treatment they should be removed and some one placed in charge who has.

We have been taught that there was a time, called the "dark ages," when such practices were expected, and allowed. We have shuddered as we read of the torture to which people were subjected, and thought that such times would be no more. Yet, it seems that right here under our very noses has been being carried on practices which would put the barbarian's system of punishment to shame.

And the prison doctor's report: "Died from natural causes." Natural causes! Dante, in his "Inferno," pictures nothing to compare with the "dog houses" for pure downright hellishness. That officials of Alabama have ordered these done away with is a credit to them, but that such a system was ever put into use is a blot on the name of Alabama, and on the names of officials who knowingly allowed such infernal practices to be carried on.

As said before, we join in the hue and cry that is going up that a general "raking over" be given the whole system to see if there be any more such practices in common use, and, if such be the case, to abolish them, and remove those who are responsible for them.

Will Rogers is a pretty smart guy. He carries on lots of fun and foolishness in his daily "col-yum," but every once in a while he cracks one with a real bottom to it. Recently he said: "The American people should not elect a president—what we need is a magician." Think that over. After all, a magician would be about the only one who could anywhere near suit everybody or fill all the demands made upon him, wouldn't he?

Saw "Uncle Bill" Mullins picking blackberries the other morning. "Uncle Bill" likes his berry pies. He carried a gallon bucket and a big stick. We had an idea the bucket was to put the berries in, but the stick—that's something else, unless he had it along to kill mocassins with. "Uncle Bill" is far too young to need a stick to walk with.

The fire siren is getting to be about as regular as the clock in giving alarms. And how that big boy "speaks." If you get up some morning and find that the town has had a fire, and the siren didn't wake you—don't worry about your health—you're sleeping too sound for anything to be hurting you.

Notice some of the candidates getting warm under the collar, now-a-days. You can be sure they are really working, too, when they heat with the weather as cool as it is. They'll all be seeing you pretty soon.

Now, to baseball fans—if you know of a boy 17 years of age or younger, who can play baseball, see him and get him to report to John Plier or some other member of the American Legion, or tell a Legion member about him. The local post is trying to get a good team together to put in the Junior League. Help the good cause along, and at the same time help us to have baseball games to go out to see. Do it now.

There a number of good, worth while things we might mention this week, but the column is about full. Hope you enjoyed it.—"JACK."

PRESTIGE OR SECURITY

Some of the advocates of subratio naval construction are now making the argument that if the United States built up to the London conference's allotment of auxiliaries it would be doing so only for purposes of prestige. This is a smoke screen intended to cover over other reasons for wishing to keep the American navy below treaty parity. It apparently assumes that the other treaty signatures have greater actual naval needs than we have. It has been associated in the past with the contention that our claim of parity is irrational, that it rests, not on the necessities of national defense, but merely on the promptings of national pride.

Nothing is further than this from the realities of the situation, as must be evident to all Americans except members of those minority groups whose controlling purpose is to prevent the United States from having a first-class navy. We are not seeking naval prestige, but naval security. If we were concerned with prestige only we should never have called the Washington naval armament limitation conference of 1921-22. At that time we had in prospect the most powerful capital ship fleet in the world. We surrendered our advantage for the sake of establishing the principle of treaty limitatian of warship tonnage. We let prestige slide and scrapped enough capital-ship construction to insure us tonnage inferiority to Great Britain in that category for the next thirteen or fourteen years.

Moreover, we failed to secure limitation of auxiliaries and soon found ourselves, by pursuing a policy of inaction related to neither prestige nor security, far behind Great Britian and Japan in the new and highly important classification of 10,000-ton 8-inch gun cruisers. The United States showed national humility rather than national pride in its long and futile pursuit of a parity not to be attained through its own effort but by importuning others for political consideration and favors. That pursuit ended at Geneva in 1927. Those who falsely accuse the nation of seeking prestige by building up to the limit conceded to us at London would undoubtedly like to see it resumed when it comes to spending the money to convert the new blue-print auxiliaries into actual ships.

Our naval policy aims at a treaty-regulated navy, kept at full strength as a means of national protection. We have ended unlimited competition in naval construction and have sacrificed much to do so, because we were better able to bear the burdens of such competition than any other power. Having contributed so largely to setting a limit, in the interest of international stability and confidence, it would be folly not to build up to the London treaty tonnage level. Nowhere is inferiorty in strength punished so promptly and disastrously as at sea. Our naval needs are as great as those of any other naval power. We have more wealth than any other nation. We occupy an insular position, our shores facing the two great oceans.

Our foreign trade is practically equal to that of Great Britain, even including the latter's trade with the dominions and colonies. Our seaborne commerce, including coastwise commerce, has passed her by a broad margin. We are beginning to create a merchant marine which will rival hers. Though the relations between the United States and Great Britain are friendly and will in all probability remain so, it is as important, in view of our place and mission in the world as well as hers, that the two navies should be kept on the plane of treaty equality. The chief result of the London conference was the extension of this equality to all classes of warships, and when the treaty is ratified it will become the unavoidable duty of the United States to live up to its obligations and benefits.—New York Herald-Tribune.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

As I passed around from corner to corner this week—from pillar to post, you might say— I have seen most everything and everybody, except Business. There seems to be a scarcity of that. I have found what the trouble is, though. I am told it is "Hoover Prosperity."

Fourth of July preparations are being made by the ladies of the Methodist Church. They plan a big celebration, barbecue, and picnic to be held at the Chilton County High School grounds. Everybody in Chilton County is invited to come to Clanton to spend the Fourth.

The committee on arrangements will invite all the State and County candidates to come and spend the day. Plenty of public speaking. If they get all the candidates here, I am sure the folks will be entertained. And I am sure there will be a crowd. There are enough candidates to make a big crowd themselves.

Charlie McCall is specially invited to come and bring his campaign contraption—the amplifying machine. Charley will have a monopoly with that thing. He can talk to more folks with it in a minute than the ordinary candidate can reach in a day.

Speaking about the big things for the Fourth, I have an idea that the biggest thing in Alabama for that day will be the pow wow which Tom Heflin and Hugh Locke will have in Birmingham. They will get all of their followers togeher and launch the new (or old) Jeffersonian Democratic party.

Nehi White is planning a treat for his friends on next Saturday, June 21. The public is invited to come to the Nehi Bottling plant between two and five o'clock on that day. Cold drinks, Nehi of course, will be given free to everybody. Mr. White has recently installed new machinery at his plant, and otherwise improved the arrangement and appearance of his place. He wants the public to make him a visit and see the fine bottling outfit.

Mr. Fox's Quit-Business Sale still going on. Lots of things sold during the past week, but many more to go.

"False teeth while you wait," is the slogan of Dr. Earle Gowan. If you are interested in seeing him, you will find him with Dr. Napoleon Johnson while repairs are in progress on the building that was damaged by fire recently. As soon as the repairs are completed Dr. Gowan will be back at his same location up stairs over The Leader.

What will we do about the Opportunity Schools this summer? Read the article about that on the front page of this paper. I think we ought to have them again. There is a very easy way in which we may make it possible. It is certainly worth $58.75 to have 25 opportunity schools in the county, each to run for six weeks.

The great evangelist and lecturer, Bob Jones, will be at the courthouse to-night. He will present one of his famous lectures on the subject: "Whither are We Drifting?" Everybody in Chilton County is invited to be present. Mr. Jones has been here many times, and he always gets a good attendance at his meetings.

About three more weeks and the big fish fry will come off. W. C. Robinson is already calculating how nice it will be to go out to some pleasant shady place on the river, sit down in comfort, and have the other fellows pile up plenty of nice fried fish in front of him. It is a great contest in the Mens Class of the Baptist Sunday School, and right now, there is no telling who will win.

Dr. C. C. Anderson, the Presbyterian minister from Montgomery, was here last Sunday to hold services in the Presbyterian Church. Dr. Anderson is a very interesting preacher. I shall never forget how he impressed his hearers when he preached the commencement sermon of the Chilton County High School a few years ago.

I have found that there is a dispute about Father's Day. Dr. Ezell said it was last Sunday. Reedy Taylor says it is next Sunday. I don't know which is wrong. But I want to give this timely warning to my friend Taylor: You had better be careful about getting into a dispute with this preacher Ezell. I have never known him to lose an argument in my life.

SHIP BUILDING THRIVES

One of the most interesting of recent business developments is the announcement from Eugene G. Grace, head of the Bethlehem Steel Company, that "the shipbuilding business is better at present than it has been at any other time since the war. There is a nice volume of new business pending."

How comes it that while so many others branches of industry are on short rations, the shipyards should be humming with construction work and new orders piling up? It seems particularly unexpected when you consider what a hard time the shipping board had selling a lot of merchantmen and liners that it had no use for, and how little those vessels brought in the market. Presumably somebody is paying the Bethlehem Steel Company real money for ships.

Presumably, too, there is a prospect of cargoes and passengers for those ships when they are built. Business men and investors still believe in shipping.

World trade is expected to expand. America will yet have a worthy merchant marine.

Dr. Hubert Work, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, slipped from a log over the Rapidan River the other day while at President Hoover's fishing camp and went into the water up to his chin. As an astute politician the doctor ought to know more about log rolling than that.

Dr. Volvia says that business needs the three M's—mind, money, and muscle. And when the mind and muscle are brought into play together, getting the money usually follows.

If the British navy is still superior to ours because of its preponderance of merchant ships, why can't we remedy that by building more merchant ships? There's no agreement against that.

Thorsby Boy Scouts have not been doing much since Christmas, owing to the inability of Mr. Maddox, the scoutmaster, on account of pressure of school duties, to give attention to them, also on account of the loss of assistant, Roy Raybon, tendering his resignation and going back to Birmingham. Last week there was a meeting of members of the Scout council, two of whom stated that they would be absent from Thorsby considerable of the time during the summer. It was decided to enlarge the membership and re-organize the council. Rev. J. E. Each was elected and made chairman of the council in place of C. M. Williams, who resigned as chairman. J. M. Heesf Wac- tonhe araof oem fiagrb

Last Thursday afternoon Miss Odie Lee Arthur gave a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr. E. W. Butler in honor of Miss Iola Gerald, whose engagement to Mr. Leonard Moody of Birmingham has recently been announced. At the Butler home when all the guests had arrived the bride-to-be was sent for; on her arrival she was harnessed with ribbon by two wee maids and guided through the large living room to the North porch, where she discovered a clothes line hung with packages and a large clothes line ready for the clothes to be brought in. When the basket was full, it was brought into the living room and the guest of honor seated in a large chair in front of it, where she proceeded to unwrap and inspect the man ygifts, and also to pass them around for the others to see. The gifts were many and varied and mostly for the new home soon to be established. Beautiful glass-ware, tea sets and water sets, table linen and embroidered articles, sets of Pyrex baking dishes, nupkins, spoons, etc., all of which will be appreciated in the new home. After the inspection of the gifts, a short program of music and recitations was given, Miss Martha Williams giving a most appropriate recitation. Then followed an interesting game of bequests from the assembled guests. Refreshments of fruit punch and heart-shaped sandwiches and cookies were much enjoyed by all.

MERCHANT MARINE PARITY

One of the reasons given why the United States cannot achieve actual parity with Great Britain through equality in tonnage is that Britain outclasses us in naval bases and in her merchant fleet. So far as naval bases are concerned probably nothing can be done about them, as it would be rather difficult to persuade England to give up any of these naval roosts and there is no prospect that Uncle Sam can or will build any for himself.

But so far as merchant ships are concerned it is another story. We are undoubtedly inferior to Great Britain in the tonnage of our merchant fleet. But there is no reason why we cannot build our merchant marine up to the point where it will be the equal of any in the world. There is no limitation on merchant vessels in the naval treaty. So if Uncle Sam wants to overcome this handicap there is nothing to prevent his doing it.

Indeed a good start has already been made. Our shipyards are now getting busy and give promise, in the near future, of doing their bit toward restoring prosperity. Through the Jones-White shipping law the government is aiding with mail contracts and already a number of fine liners are being built or will be put under construction in the near future.

Here is one way, therefore, that our naval efficiency can be increased outside the naval treaty and it is a method to which the most ardent pacifist cannot object unless he happens to be one of the hopeless internationalists who believe that Uncle Sam ought to surrender the shipping business of the world to Europe.

For a first class merchant marine is not only an essential part of our naval fleet in time of war, it is a necessary element to our economic safety in time of peace. Certainly a prosperous American merchant marine will serve to protect us against any possible gouging in foreign rates on the part of an international shipping trust which might easily be formed by European shipping interests in case there were no American competition. And certainly our merchant marine might save our economic stability in time of international crisis when European shipping was employed elsewhere and European nations had no ships to spare for the moving of American farm and manufactured products.

So when our lack of naval strength with England is discussed, let us not forget that in this one important respect we can catch up if we set our minds about doing it. In fact the greatest danger to the future of our navy lies in the possibility that even if the naval treaty is ratified, our professional pacifists will be able to prevent the building of the warships to which we are entitled under the London agreement.

POPLAR SPRINGS NEWS

Our church and Sunday school are getting along nicely. But we are sorry to say that we have lost one of our faithful members—Brother J. L. McDowell. He was one of the deacons of Poplar Springs church and was loyal to the church and Sunday school. He will be greatly missed in his church and community in which he lived. But the Lord knows best.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Gilliland had a reunion on last Sunday, and all of their children took dinner with them. The oldest one, McKinley, lives in Birmingham. He returned home Saturday with his new bride and has returned to Birmingham to his home where he has been for the past five years. Others present were: Grover Gilliland and wife and little son, Alton; Newton Gilliland and wife and little daughter, Willodean; Leslie Gilliland and wife, who reside in Sylacauga; Mr. L. Gilmore and son from Mineral Springs.

It is grand to have a meeting like this. We are always glad to meet our children and enjoy a few hours together.

Parents should always try to live in a way and teach their children to live in a way so that when they depart from this life they will meet in a better world than this.

Lesson for June 15

JESUS ON THE CROSS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 27:1-66.

GOLDEN TEXT—Looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus on the Cross.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus on the Cross.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Calvary.

The grand climax of the six months' lessons is reached in this one. To miss the significance of the crucifixion of Christ will be to render valueless all the preceding lessons. It is not a matter of learning the lessons taught by a great teacher or imitating the examples of a great and good man, but of apprehending the atonement made by the world's Redeemer.

I. The Place of Crucifixion. (vv. 33, 34).

They led Him away to Golgotha, a hill north of Jerusalem, resembling a skull. He was crucified "without the gate" (Heb. 13:12). At first He was compelled to bear His own cross, but when physical weakness made it impossible for Him to continue, they compelled Simon the Cyrenean to bear it for Him (v. 32). In order to strengthen Him for the ordeal before He was nailed to the cross, the soldiers offered Him a stimulant of vinegar mixed with gall. He refused the stimulant offered and consciously drank the cup of sin to its bitter dregs.

II. Gambling for the Clothing of the Lord (vv. 35, 36).

It was the custom for the soldiers who had charge of a crucifixion to receive the garments of the one crucified. We have here a fulfillment of Psalm 22:18. What sacrilege for them to gamble for His seamless robe under the very cross where He was dying!

III. The Accusation (v. 37).

It was customary to place over the victim on the cross his name and indicate his crime. This superscription was placed over Jesus by Pilate to vex the Jews. He was their King in absolute truth. They had long looked for Him and now, when He had come, this is the kind of treatment they gave Him.

IV. Two Malefactors Crucified With Him (v. 38).

We are not told who they were. Perhaps they belonged to the band of Barabbas. This was another fulfillment of Scripture (Isa. 53:12). In these three crosses we have set forth a spiritual history of the whole world.

V. The Dying Savior Reviled (vv. 39-44).

This reviling was engaged in by the passerby, the chief priests, the scribes, elders, and the malefactors who were crucified with Him.

1. "He saved others, Himself He cannot save" (v. 42).

This jest was meant to show the absurdity of Jesus' claims, but it demonstrated them and showed the reason for His suffering. He could not save Himself and others, so He chose to give Himself to save others.

2. "If he be the king of Israel, let him now come down from the cross" (v. 42). His refusal to abandon the cross established His rightful claims. The devil offered Him the kingdoms of the world if He would escape the cross (Matt. 4:8-10). Through His death He came into His place of kingship over all who bow to Him.

3. "He trusted in God. Let him deliver him now" (v. 43).

His obedience unto death was the sacrifice which met God's full approval.

VI. The Death of Christ (vv. 45-50).

Who is sufficient to comment upon this tragedy! Let us contemplate it in adoration and wonder. So shocking was this crime that nature threw around the Son of God a shroud that the godless company could not gaze upon him. Darkness was upon the land at noonday. Upon the termination of the darkness, He cried with a loud voice, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" He became sin for the world and the world's sin hid God's face from Him. God forsook Him, turned from Him who had taken the sinner's place. God was dealing with sin on the innocent substitute. No one can understand that but God, but we can believe. When the price of sin was paid, He cried out with a loud voice, showing that He still had vitality; that His death was not from exhaustion, but by His sovereign will. He yielded up the ghost and sent away His spirit.

Kindness

Full half our holiness is shown in simple, everyday relations with our fellow men; and nine times out of ten the best immediate expression for our love of God and gratitude to Christ is found in some small kindness to our neighbor.—Isaac Edwards.

God Can Be Trusted

The God who ordained the beginning can safely be trusted with the end, as with all that lies between.—Christian Evangelist.

WEST CHILTON

Marion Cofer and family attended the singing at Oak Hill Sunday.

Mr. T. J. Hubbard is off on a visit to Hamburg, visiting his daughter, Mrs. Ward.

Mr. William Robinson's sister from Florida is visiting him at this writing.

H. H. Armstrong and family attended the old time singing at Ashby Sunday.

Allen Waldrop, mother and sister, visited relatives at Sand Mountain on the M. & O. Railroad Sunday.

Sunday was spend the day at William Robinson's. Seventeen guests were there for dinner.

Claude Edwards of Wilton was visiting here Saturday and Sunday.

Sunday was an enjoyable day at Ashby. The noted Deason old time singing class of Bibb County held their annual singing there. A great crowd was there to sing and listen. Several fine directors were on hand. Among all the directors we heard none that excelled Mrs. Thompson of Bibb. Her rendering of Easter anthem was indeed charming. The people of Ashby provided for their visitors nicely. A bountiful dinner was spread, free for all. Several were there from Chilton, among whom were J. N. Scott of Jemison, and one of our popular candidates, Mr. J. H. Martin, and others. An enormous truck load of West Chiltonites were there, and all report a good time.

Uncle Jim Mims returned Monday from Greenville, where he spent a few days with his daughter, Mrs. Spurgeon Calloway, who had an operation at Dr. Stablers' Hospital. Mrs. Calloway will be able to return home some time this week.

FAMILY DOCTOR MADE MILLIONS OF FRIENDS

Fifteen years after his graduation, Dr. Caldwell became famous for a single prescription, which now, after forty years, is still making friends.

Today Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the world's most popular laxative. Millions of people never think of using anything else when they're constipated, headachy, bilious, feverish or weak; when breath is bad, tongue coated, or they're suffering from nausea, gas, or lack of appetite or energy.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made today according to the original formula, from herbs and other pure ingredients. It is pleasant-tasting; thorough in the most obstinate cases; gently effective for women and children. Above all, it represents a doctor's choice of what is safe for the bowels.

CARD OF THANKS

Through The Union-Banner, I want to thank the people and many loving friends for their kindness, and for their appreciation shown me and all relations during the sickness and death of my little one, Lurline Vines. And I also thank Dr. Marcus for his help and kindness. I know he and all others did all they could for her but God knew best, and took her away to that bright and beautiful home, where there will be no more sorrow and pain. I also thank little Ola Mae Parrish and others for their beautiful floral offerings. May God bless you all that we may all meet our loved ones on the Golden Shore. —Miss Minnie Vines, and Mother.

Never wait to see if a headache will "wear off." Why suffer when there's Bayer Aspirin? The many millions of men and women who use it in increasing quantities every year prove that it does relieve such pain. And as surely relieves that of neuralgia; neuritis; even rheumatism. Doctors declare genuine Aspirin (with the Bayer Cross on every box and tablet) does not affect the heart. Any drugstore.

IN MEMORY OF J. L. McDOWELL

On Thursday afternoon, June 5th, at 4:30 o'clock, our dear uncle responded to the call of Him whose faith he kept undimmed by years, and whose love so tenderly he bore to all who now his passing mark with sorrow's tears.

Beautiful toiler, thy work here is done; beautiful soul into glory has gone. Beautiful life with its crown now won. God giveth the rest—rest from all sorrow and watching and fears. Rest from all possible sighing and tears—rest in God's endless wonderful years.

At home with the blest—beautiful spirit free from all stain; ours the heart ache, the sorrow, the pain; thine the glory and infinite gain. Thy slumber is sweet; peace on thee and thy eyelids so calm. Peace in the heart, 'neath the white folded palm; peace dropping down like a wonderful balm from head to feet.

How we shall miss him—the beautiful dead. Who'll take the place of the precious one fled? But God knoweth best; we know He watcheth the sparrows that fall; hears the sad cry of the grieved hearts that call.

Friends, father, brothers, sisters, children, he loveth them all. We can trust for the rest.

MUCH INTEREST BEING SHOWN IN JERSEY BULL ASSOCIATION

Mr. Stapp met with a group of farmers at Pleasant Grove school west of Jemison, Saturday night, May 31st, in interest of placing a good Jersey bull in the community. Mr. J. P. Montgomery, vocational teacher at Jemison, had already done some preliminary work in interest of the bull.

After some considerable discussion Mr. W. H. Rasco, agreed to buy the bull, and the following men promised to patronize the bull:

Alex Maddox, Monroe Ward, Leonard, Lenoir, C. C. Cofer, W. R. Clements, Isaac Waldrop, Clarence Childress, Jim Price, Jim Wooley, S. Z. Woodley, Sam Woodley, Walter Wood, Eddie Childress, Jasper Smitherman, Carl McCarty, J. S. Wright, Pratt Crumpton, W. L. Lenoir, Otho Maddox, Jimmy Franklin, L. G. Posey, Bob Cofer, E. L. Thompson, H. H. Armstrong, Mr. Adair.

Friday afternoon, June 6th, Mr. Stapp met with a group of farmers at Coopers, in interest of placing one or more bulls in that section of the county. Among those present and interested were: T. F. Patterson, Charlie Patterson, Tom Allen, W. W. Calloway, Ellis Mims, Tandy McSwain, Archie Taylor, H. G. Taylor, Lawton McDowell, W. C. Moore, L. T. Grant, O. L. Devaughn, and others.

At this meeting Mr. Lawton McDowell, near Cordry Mill place, agreed to take one of the bulls and Mr. Archie Taylor, west of Coopers, agreed to take another bull.

A group of interested farmers met at Collins Chapel Monday night, June 9th, and a committee composed of Wilbur Bean, Perry Gore, and Reuben Jackson, were asked to see if they could get some individual in the community to purchase the bull.

The bull association plan calls for bulls out of cows that have made high production records. With the arrangement Mr. Stapp is trying to put into effect these high priced bulls can be used ten or twelve years, as the bulls can be switched to different communities every two years. This will assure the farmers of these communities in which the bulls are placed, the service of good bulls over a long period of years.

The present owners of the bulls eligible for the association are:

Howard Oden, Isabella community, R. M. Foshee, Mt. Pleasant community, E. P. Mims, Temple community, W. H. Rasco, Pleasant Grove community, west of Jemison, Lawton McDowell, and Archie Taylor.

FINE SINGING HELD AT OAK HILL LAST SUNDAY

Nurse Tells How CARDUI Helped Her

Mrs. W. A. Cox, a well-known professional nurse, of Burnside, Ky., writes:

"I was in very bad health, and only weighed 110 pounds. I read in the papers about Cardui, and thought I would give it a try-out. After I had taken one bottle, I could see that I was improving. After I had taken it a month or two, I began to gain, and I weigh at present 168, and have weighed that for some time. I am now 55 years old, and can do as much work as the average middle-aged woman can.

"I would advise any woman, who is weakly and in a run-down condition, to try Cardui, but not to expect one bottle to make her well. I take two or three bottles a year, now, and I feel fine."

DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe Is Popular

As we begin this little story about DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe, we will first give you an introduction to Miss Mabel Howard, the young lady whose idea and ideal caused the establishment of the business in Clanton on July 1, 1927. Miss Howard is the daughter of Mr. Fred Howard, of Thorsby. She was born in Green Bay, Wisconsin, where the Howard family lived before they came to Thorsby. The first business experience of Miss Mabel was obtained as an employee of Marshall Field & Company, in Chicago.

Since its beginning, Miss Howard's shop has been located up stairs in the new Mullins Building, next to the Exchange Hotel. With the increasing popularity of beauty secrets with the women, the business of Miss Howard has grown continuously. With her specially designed equipment, she can give as good service to her clients as can be had in the cities. The ladies, who are themselves good trade-at-home boosters, have been quick to say: "Get our beauty treatments at home, instead of going away to the city."

Here are some of the many things which the shop of Miss Howard specializes in: Eugene permanent waves, which can be in large loose waves, round curls, ringlets, or marcel effect. Hair bobbing, shampoos, marcels, manicures, henna rinses, scalp treatments, eyelash and eyebrow dyeing, eyebrow arching, facials. The writer must confess that he does not know what all these things are. They are set down here for the benefit of the ladies who may read this, that they may be made aware of the fact that all such may be had at DeMabel's.

At DeMabel's there is carried in stock a "Beauty Parlor Exclusive" line of cosmetics, including rouge, lipstick, powder, face and hand lotions, toilet water and perfume, bath salts, water softener, mascara, face creams, bath soap, etc.

When you get a permanent wave that is not all there is to it. The problem of "maintenance" must be figured. It must be kept in the proper shape. For this purpose Miss Howard sells permanent wave oil, and atomizers, which are necessary to the continued good appearance of the hair after the permanent wave has been made. Also finger wave fluid, especially good for fixing the windblown hair cut which is most popular this summer.

In her spare time Miss Howard employs her turn for artistic things in another way. She paints and tints cards for all occasions. In this list is included anniversary cards, birth announcements, birthday greeting cards, cards expressing friendship, congratulation cards for the bride or graduate, gift enclosure cards to accompany your gift to a bride or graduate or a baby, cards for flowers, handkerchiefs, showers, etc., tally cards and score pads for bridge. For every conceivable purpose which one might need a handsome or distinctive card, Miss Howard can prepare it for you in just the manner that will convey your individual taste or impulse.

You should see some of Miss Howard's wonderful art work in hand-tinting snapshot or kodak pictures. If you have some specially cherished pictures, it would surprise you how much better effect they will give when tinted in natural colors. Miss Howard has a lot of samples of work of this kind she has done.

Perhaps some women have asked themselves the question: What about the new long dresses with bobbed hair? In recent issue of Beauty Shop Magazine, Norma Shearer, famous movie star, gives the answer to this question, with a full page photograph of herself illustrating perfectly, how well short hair conforms to the new vogue for extremely long, feminine-looking dresses.

"Keep the scissors in full view," says Miss Howard, quoting an excerp from an article in Beauty Shop Magazine. "We find our clients insist on keeping their hair short or semi-short. They don't want to be talked into letting their hair grow to match their skirts. She also says the demand is for feminine bobs, plenty of curls, and soft wave effects. They want their hair bobbed and not cut, if you recognize the distinction.

Word comes from Hollywood that another famous movie star has gone back to short hair. A well-known New York hair dresser says "Hair-cutting is here to stay. With the concensus of hairdressers opinions from New York to Hollywood agreed upon short hair, there is certainly excellent opportunity for the ladies of Clanton at DeMabel's to keep up with the latest style trends.

At a recent meeting of the 2,000 members of the Martha Washington Republican Womens Club in Buffalo, New York, bobbed hair was given the preference by a vote of five to one. Most of the club members are women about 30 years of age who have a variety of interests outside their homes, and who make it a point to be well-groomed. The voting followed an open debate on the matter, and the general opinion voiced was that short hair is, on the whole, more becoming, more comfortable, and more easily cared for than long hair.

"Tinted nail polishes in colors to harmonize with the costume are the latest vogue in New York and Paris," says Miss Howard, in discussing that phase of her work. "Color is the keynote of the new fashions, not only in hats, gowns, and accessories, but in nail polishes. Smart dressers among the women are popularizing bizarre effects in nail colorings. Colorful polishes of green, wistaria, navy blue, deep red, orchid, pink, and other pastel shades have been adopted to match evening gowns." Miss Howard keeps up with the latest in the manicure art, and is always ready to direct her clients in the selection of the proper harmonizing modes.

"There is no definite hair style today," continues Miss Howard, "but an endless variety of modes to suit all types. We are living in an age of self-expression, and women will not permit anyone to tell them how to dress their hair so they will look alike. That is why the bob will always be popular. It denotes freedom and independence."

DeMABEL'S BEAUTY SHOPPE

The picture shown above is a photograph made in the studio of Miss Mabel Howard as she was applying some one of her various forms of "beauty culture" to one of her "patients." Note the intense earnestness on the face of Miss Howard, and the joyful anticipation indicated in the half-hidden smile of the "patient." Miss Howard is always serious about her business of helping women become more beautiful. The patient of course is happy over the assurance of the beauty specialist that she will look more charming after the operation is over.

At any rate, we men folks have an idea that no woman ever feels satisfied that she looks good enough. They all eternally want to look better. There is always a new wrinkle of some kind that they desire. Therefore the studio of DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe has become a rendezvous for the women and girls of Clanton and surrounding localities.

Miss Howard knows women, and that is why she has made a successful business out of what an ordinary business man perhaps would have pronounced a foolish venture.

When the shop was first established in Clanton I heard a man predict that she would not find enough beauty business to make it a success. The other day I heard that same man say: "Well, I didn't think she could do it, but since my wife has become such a regular patron of the beauty culture business, I can now understand why Miss Howard is able to carry on in such a successful way."

De Mabel's Beauty Shoppe has found a place of popularity and usefulness to the women. They are certainly going to try to look beautiful, whether they can or not. Nobody can blame them for that. In fact, it is a commendable ambition in any woman. Nobody enjoys seeing a beautiful woman more than a man. Hence, we say for the gentlemen of the audience: "More success to Miss Howard and DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe. May its great mission increase until every woman in Chilton County is a model of feminine pulchritude."

DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe is always on the lookout for the latest things of interest to women who want to keep well-groomed according to the ever advancing style modes. Miss Howard recognizes that such reliable service to her clients is one of the most important parts of her work. Her accurate information makes her able to advise those who may be in doubt on any question of popular modes. For instance she knows that 80 per cent. of the motion picture stars are wearing her hair a certain way. "And there is no question," says Miss Mabel, "but that the styles of the motion picture stars dictate the mode of the entire country." Then she keeps up with New York styles through the popular beauty magazines. The woman who depends on De Mabel's for her "beauty advice," is sure to be in the latest and most accepted styles.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

THE PREEMINENT JESUS

I want you to think this morning about the Christ who is superior in everything. I want you to think of this Christ who has been and who will be preeminent. This Christ was and is superior in the fact that everything in His mission on earth from the time of His birth in Bethlehem's lowly manger unto the time of His ascension from Mount Olivet was in accordance to Old Testament prophecy and agreeable to His own predictions in the New Testament. Old Testament writers and prophets predicted His birth just like it was. That is, He was the seed of the woman, the ancient of days, the bright and morning star, the prince of peace, Michael, the great prince, the messenger of the covenant, the son of righteousness, the star out of acob, mine angel, the Son of God, the son of man, the Lamb of God who would take away the sins of the world.

He was born according to prophecy, according to angelical announcement. The angel, Gabriel, came to Mary, a virgin, in the hill country of Galilee and said, "Fear not Mary, for thou art highly favored of the Lord, for thou shalt become the mother of a child whom thou shalt call Jesus, for He shall save His people from their sins." We just say with all truthfulness that Christ was born according to angelical announcement and according to Old Testament prophecies miraculously, supernaturally in the fulness of time the Son of God of a virgin. Then we pause to say, "Great is the mystery of Godliness, God manifest in the flesh." O if we could just see the supernatural in the virgin birth of Christ.

Truly He is the preeminent Jesus, and our creed must be Jesus, Jesus, Jesus. "His name shall be called Jesus, for He shall save His people from their sins." Christ was preeminent in the miracles which He worked. None of His miracles were worked for Himself yet think of the many miracles He worked. They were worked to help somebody else. The only time His miracles are spoken of as being for His glory somebody else writes it. We find John writing such in the 2nd chapter of his Gospel.

His birth was miraculous and also the great events of His life were miraculous. They teach the preeminence of Jesus. He had compassion on the multitudes who were as sheep without a shepherd. Think of the preeminence of the one who changed water into wine in Cana of Galilee helping maybe some of His relatives by relieving them of embarassment of not having enough wine to serve all the guests at the wedding. Think of the preeminence of the one who opened blind eyes of men, women, and little children that they might see Him who was so merciful and kind. Think of the preeminence of Him who unstopped deaf ears that they might hear His wonderful words of life to dying souls. Think of the preeminence of Him who arose from slumber on that Galillean vessel and placed one foot out upon the angry waves and the other inside the deck and gently and calmly said, "Peace be Still," and all was quiet and still. He is the same preeminent Jesus who comes to us in the storms of our lives, and says, "Fear not, dear one, it is I bringing peace to your troubled soul." And as He looks upon our weakness and the point of strife He says as He did upon that storm-tossed Galillean sea over two thousand years ago, "Peace, be still." O how comforting and how sweet it is to know that we have that same preeminent Jesus to calm the storms of our lives today as the followers had them.

Certainly then Christ is preeminent in His peace. Let us set our feet solidly upon the great infallible peace in these words: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth, give I unto you." In the spirit of love and kindness our friends may try to comfort us by speaking the most tender and the kindest words to drive away the tempest and the dark cloud, yet there is only one peace and that is the peace of this preeminent Jesus. So Jesus says to us, "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.

Think of His preeminence in the home of Jarius, the ruler of the Capernaum synagogue. He went there as He went everywhere else to help somebody, to do good. I see Him walking quietly and calmly as no one else ever did or ever could do. He approaches the little bed whereon lay the little sleeping maid, takes the little lifeless hand in His and says, "Talitha Cumi," which being interpreted is, "Little maid, I say unto thee, arise." I see the happy mother and father to whose hearts He has brought comfort by giving back their darling child to them. I hear them say, "How can I thank thee enough kind Master?" I see the little girl upon whose cheeks He has now placed a rose as she looks up tenderly into His face and says, "Lord Jesus, I want to live for thee only."

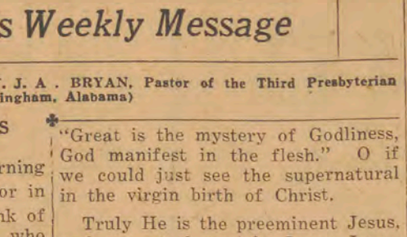
Again I see this preeminent Jesus as He approaches the city of Nain and meets a procession coming out of the city gates. Some friends are carrying the lifeless body of a mother's only son and support on a home-made bier. The mother is so poor that she cannot afford him the burial attire and expenditures of a city burial. The officers have told her that she must take the body out into the country and bury it among other poor people. I see Christ with compassion beholding that grieved mother. He sees her walking near the bier of her precious and only son, her only support with a sorrowing heart. How that poor widow left alone in the world must have touched His heart which was so tender, so compassionate, so kind, so merciful, so loving. I see Him as He walks up to the bier which is being carried by friends, no ambulance for such poor people, and I hear Him say gently, "Young man, I say unto thee, arise." Thus he was restored to his mother that he might go out and reap barley and oats and wheat and relieve her of the burden of depending upon charity as she no doubt would not be physically strong enough to make her bread and way. O I wish I could tell you about the preeminent compassion of Jesus. I wish I could tell you about His great heart. He is so preeminent in His compassion and love that He picks up men and women in the very slums of the earth and takes them in His arms to the glories of heaven.

It seems that there is a mighty temptation in this old sinful world to belittle Christ, make Him a little Christ and so think of Him as an ordinary being. All of this is from the devil, and there is no truth about it. Jesus Christ is a mighty, a great, an all-powerful Saviour, Lord, and King. Right along here facing such dangerous fanaticism of the devil I can but think of the stanza of that dear old hymn:

"My soul be on thy guard, ten thousand foes arise.
The hosts of sin are pressing hard to draw thee from the skies."

Thinking of Jesus' preeminence in His compassion, personally I believe that no one has ever known or will ever know the depth of tender meaning which the word "compassion" holds. I often think of the expression, "He was moved with compassion when He saw the multitudes as sheep without a shepherd." They were longing for the shepherd, Christ, Christ, Christ.

"There were ninety and nine sheltered safe in the fold, but one was out on the dark mountain side all alone, away from the tender shepherd's fold."



Are you and I lost on the cold, dark mountain side of sin away from the tender shepherd's fold?

Christ's great heart is touched and moved when He looks down upon our wounded, bleeding hearts. My friend here, bring your wounded heart to Him, earth has no sorrows heaven cannot heal. His great heart was so moved with compassion that He took five barley loaves and two small fishes and fed over thirteen thousand people. His compassion caused Him to reach out and touch the unclean outcast leper and cleanse them. His compassion caused Him to wipe ears out of weeping eyes. His great heart of love and compassion caused Him to look in great tenderness upon His mother at the cross and turn His trustful eyes upon His beloved disciple, John, saying, "Take care of mother."

Love is certainly the greatest thing in the world and is made secure only in Jesus Christ. A life without love is like a ship without a rudder, like a world without a sun. It is the great lever which lifts our hearts to God, and links humanity to humanity's heart. This compassion is of love and truly there is no love without expression, and without being based upon the love of God. "A new commandment," He said, "I give unto you that ye love one another; as I have loved you that ye also love one another." That commandment certainly shows the preeminence of Jesus Christ. Nobody ever wrote such wonderful and far-reaching words as did this preeminent Christ. Nowhere on earth is there a teaching and statement which bears the all-inclusiveness and all-comprehensiveness of truth and love as does this wonderful commandment, this new commandment which Christ gave.

O the preeminent Christ and His preeminent love. There is a depth to His great heart of love which we cannot fathom. I see Him walking about Palestine into the homes of the poor and lowly. His feet are stone-bruised, and His heart is bleeding because He is rejected by so many. His clothes are worn and tattered and His sandals are torn. That is love clad in rags. I see Him sleeping on the cold, dark mountain side without a blanket or pillow and mattress. I see Him casting devils out of the demoniacs. I see Him feeding the hungry multitudes. I hear Him say to the ones that are trying daily to follow Him, "Come unto me all ye that labor, and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." That is love in action.

Again I hear Him say, "Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends." "for", John writes, "God commendeth His love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." So Jesus Christ says, "Love ye one another, as I have loved you, and by this shall all men know that ye are my disciples." Selfishness and misunderstanding are the twin enimies of love. Let us pray for the victory over them. Jesus Christ was preeminent in His teaching when He said, "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." He was preeminent in giving His life a ransom for me and for you on Calvary. He was preeminent in His going away from this sin-cursed earth, and He will be preeminent in His coming back. "This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven."

SERVING MANY BUSINESSES

Experience of large fleet owners reveals the unusual reliability and economy of the new Ford

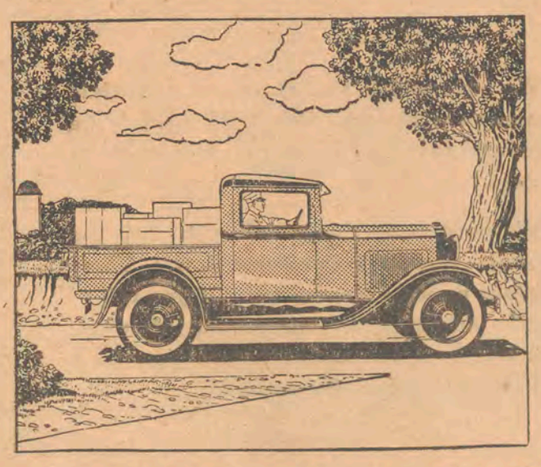
A SIGNIFICANT TRIBUTE to the value of the new Ford is found in its increasing use by Federal, state and city governments and by large industrial companies which keep careful day-by-day cost records. In most instances, the Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive tests of every factor that contributes to good performance—speed, power, safety, comfort, low cost of operation and up-keep, reliability and long life.

Prominent among the companies using the Ford are the Associated Companies of the Bell System, Armour and Company, The Borden Company, Continental Baking Corporation, Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, General Electric Company, Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Kellogg Company, Knickerbocker Ice Company, Morton Salt Company, Pillsbury Flour Mills Company, The Procter and Gamble Company, and Swift & Company.

Each of these companies uses a large number of Ford cars and trucks. The Associated Companies of the Bell System use more than eight thousand.

Modern business moves at a fast pace and it needs the Ford. Daily, in countless ways and places, it helps to speed the production and delivery of the world's goods and extend the useful service of men and companies.

Constant, steady operation over many thousands of miles emphasizes the advantages of the sound design of the Ford car, its high quality of materials, and unusual accuracy in manufacturing. Beneath its graceful lines and beautiful colors there is a high degree of mechanical excellence.



An example of the value built into the Ford is the use of more than twenty ball and roller bearings. They are hidden within the car and you may never see them. Yet they play an important part in satisfactory, economical performance. Their function is similar to the jewels of a fine watch.

Throughout the Ford chassis, a ball or roller bearing is used at every place where it is needed to reduce friction and wear and give smooth, reliable mechanical operation.

At many points, as on the transmission counter-shaft, clutch release, fan and pump shaft, and front drive shaft, these ball and roller bearings are used where less costly types of bearings might be considered adequate.

Additional instances of the high quality built into the Ford are the extensive use of steel forgings, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, Rustless Steel, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, three-quarter floating rear axle, and the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield.

The Ford policy has always been to use the best possible material for each part and then, through large production, give it to the public at low cost.

A Clear Skin Comes From Within

STATE CAPITOL News

An energetic drive against the malaria menace, which has been increasingly destructive in Alabama and other southern states during the last two years, is being launched by the State Health Department. Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, has called on all citizens to cooperate in the undertaking, and the best efforts of the medical and engineering staff of the Health Department will be devoted to bringing about a reduction in the disease.

Alabama's malaria control program this year contemplates a concentration of a central field force of eleven counties of the state, from which 38 per cent. of the deaths from malaria in the entire state were reported last year. Within these eleven counties, the work will be divided into three phases. The new drug, plasmochin, which has proven effective elsewhere, will be used in the treatment of cases and carriers of the disease. This part of the program will be carried out particularly in parts of Montgomery and Macon counties. A second phase of activity, to secure the screening of dwellings on a wide scale, will be applied especially in Colbert, Clarke and Houston counties. This screening program calls not only for screening of doors and windows, but rendering walls and chimneys mosquitto-proof. The county health officers of these three counties, and four members of the State Health staff, have been sent to Mississippi to observe methods used there for excluding the mosquitto.

Six other counties, Dallas, Geneva, Marengo, Pickens, Wilcox, and Washington, have a malaria problem of moment, according to public health authorities. In these counties the campaign for the present season will be largely educational. This part of the program will include the use of motion pictures on an extensive scale to give information on methods of prevention.

The sum of approximately $6,000 has been set aside by the State Health Department for use in the anti-malaria campaign. Dr. Baker, in a general letter to all doctors of the state, has outlined the plan of malaria control activities, centering in the eleven counties listed above, and added: "In making the selection it was not our intention to discriminate against any county not included in the list. Notwithstanding, our plan to concentrate in the eleven counties, some help can perhaps be given you should a specialized problem on malaria control arise. I trust you will give such time to the inauguration of control work in your county as the problem appears to warrant." One of the keynotes in the malaria control program, Dr. Baker pointed out, is the definite location by the malaria survey of the areas where malaria transmission is occuring. "In counties where there is a malaria problem at least one focus, or a part of one, should be surveyed," the State Health officer wrote. "Such methods, it appears, are essential to the proper direction of efforts at control." A certain amount of outside laboratory aid in the examination of blood slides has been promised, Dr. Baker said, and doctors over the state who contemplate taking an extensive number in their survey work are requested to advise the State Health Department in advance as to the approximate number and the time they are to be sent in.

In Alabama and throughout the South there was a general increase in number of cases of maleria last year over the preceeding year. Climatic conditions last year, when large areas were flooded, were favorable to the mosquito, in addition to which it must be taken into consideration that malaria, like some other diseases, has a tendency to come in "waves" with the extent of its prevalence in some years over others difficult to definitely account for. Deaths from the disease in Alabama more than doubled in the past two years, the number of deaths reported in 1927 being 204, 1928, 291, and 1929, 428. Aside from the loss of life, there is the serious problem presented by the fact that malaria is a disabling disease, causing a heavy loss of time and efficiency, a loss which in the rural sections come when labor is badly needed on the farm.

The new drug, plasmochin, which will be used in malaria treatment was perfected in Germany. It comes in tablet form, and is an ally of quinine and used in conjunction with it. It has been tried extensively by the United Fruit Co., on its banana plantations in the tropics, giving good results.

With State Health authorities doing their utmost to halt the ravages of malaria, the point is stressed that the problem presented is of such nature that the active cooperation of citizens and communities is essential to success.

Mrs. Ed Giles of Birmingham was here last week on account of the death of her brother, J. L. McDowell. While here she visited her father, John McDowell, and other relatives, returning to her home in Birmingham Monday.

Small Change

To the loan desk of Brightwood library came a six-year-old with a book one day overdue.

"You owe 2 cents for this," the librarian remarked. With obvious reluctance the youngster laid a nickel on the desk.

"I haven't any smaller change," he said, regretfully, "have you?"—Indianapolis News.

Dutch Harvest Festival Dates From Middle Ages

One of the quaintest and most interesting festivals of Europe is the Kermis, held each year in many Dutch towns. This fete is half religious and half commercial in its origin, and in the early Middle ages was held in the market place, which usually adjoined the church. The church gave its sanction to the feasting and rejoicing natural to the harvest days.

The fete is usually held in September. The religious aspect has disappeared and the Kermis itself is no longer celebrated in some towns, but in others it remains. Freaks, drinking bars, cake, shops, merry-go-rounds, play booths and all the fun of the fair go until long after midnight. The freedom from a year's restraint makes many of the hours as wild as Buffalo Bill's West, but you do not know your Dutchman until you have caught him at a Kermis.—Boston Globe.

Clemenceau's Irony

On the day the peace treaty was signed at Versailles, Lloyd George was sitting beside Clemenceau in the great Salle des Glaces, where the ceremony took place, when he said with eyes wandering round the magnificent room:

"Didn't something very important happen here once before?"

Very dryly and without turning a hair the "Tiger" replied:

"Yes, it was something rather important. The German empire was proclaimed here in 1871."

It was Clemenceau, too, who cynically said to Paderewski, then premier of Poland, during the peace conference:

"M. Paderewski, you were the greatest pianist in the world and you have chosen to descend to our level. What a pity!"—Kansas City Star.

Young Man Found Dead On Railroad

Vernon Robinson Killed On Railroad Last Thursday Night

Somewhere about midnight Thursday night of last week, June 12th, news was received from a train that had just passed through Clanton that a man was seen lying near the track, apparently dead, just north of Clanton. Mell Martin, coroner and undertaker, went up there, and found the body of Vernon Robinson between here and the cotton mill beside the railroad tracks.

A hole was knocked in the young man's right shoulder from behind and there were some bruises about the head. It is supposed that Robinson had been struck by a train and knocked from the tracks.

Vernon Robinson was 24 years old, the son Gantt Robinson who lives on Judge Reynolds's place near the cotton mill. The young man had been employed as a truck driver for Farmers Hardware Company here for the past year or so.

The funeral was held at Lomax Friday afternoon and interment made in the cemetery at that place.

Dr. Clyde H. Foshee Graduates In Medicine At Harvard University, Boston, This Week

Dr. Clyde H. Foshee will graduate in medicine and surgery at Harvard University, in Boston, Mass., this week. He is a son of Charley Foshee, prominent farmer of this county. Clyde was reared on his father's farm in New Cedron community, about twelve miles from Clanton.

The first step in training for his life career was taken by Clyde Foshee in the little country school near his home. After completing his work there, he entered the Chilton County High School at Clanton under the late Prof. H. C. McDonald. At the end of four years he completed his high school course with honors.

During the time he was in the County High School here, Mr. Foshee lived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. White, who assisted and encouraged him in his work as much as possible. Those who knew him at that time will remember how he used to work in a restaurant on Saturdays, and did many other odd jobs while in school. In spite of all, he was found to be leading his classes each year. His one great absorbing determination was to get an education for a professional career. In order to do this he was willing to sacrifice—to work—to do anything that was honorable, in order to reach his mark.

Early in his school career, perhaps due in a great measure to the encouragement of Mr. and Mrs. White, Clyde Foshee "hitched his wagon to a star". It is of greatest commendation to him that it may now be said his wagon "stayed hitched" and his star has drawn him faithfully and surely into the land of his dreams.

When he finished high school, he entered the University of Alabama. He took four years work there, finishing his A. B. degree with honors. During his college course he spent his summer vacations at some kind of work, making money to pay his expenses through school.

From the University of Alabama, with his wagon still hitched to the star, he entered Harvard University. His graduation there this week is indeed a dream come true. It makes out of Clyde Foshee living proof of the fact that dreams will come true if the dreamer is willing to work as well as to dream. It also furnishes a very valuable incentive to young men who may aspire to higher places of usefulness, service, and accomplishment in the world. It is a great thing to have a young man come along every once in a while and prove that one can achieve greatness out of his own mere force of will and determination.

During the coming year Dr. Foshee will have a position as interne at one of the big hospitals in the city of Boston. Here he will doubtless get his bearings from which he will chart his course for his future in the medical profession. No one knows where this course will take him. The world is his field. The pastures are green everywhere for men of the grit that he has shown. May we hope that he will turn his face back to the South, to Alabama, to home, and find here that just and ample recompense which is due him.

Dr. Clyde H. Foshee is a brother of Dr. J. Clint Foshee, who, likewise, is a self-made man. He put himself through Vanderbilt University, and is now a prominent and very successful surgeon of Grand Rapids, Michigan.

MAKING PREPARATIONS FOR OPPORTUNITY SCHOOLS THIS SUMMER

Prof. H. A. Harris left Monday morning for the University of Alabama, where he will attend a conference of State educational leaders this week, perfecting plans for the holding of Oportunity Schools this summer. Upon leaving here for the conference, Mr. Harris stated that he will be ready upon returning home next week to begin considering applications for places to hold the schools. Substantially the same plans as last year will be in effect, whereby schools will be placed in the communities which make application for them until the limited number of schools have been made up.

Any community which desires one of these schools should communicate with Mr. H. A. Harris at Clanton right away. The program for Chilton county provides for fifteen of the schools for white people and ten schools for negroes. There were held this spring two schools for whites and two for negroes. These four schools already held will be counted against the allotment for Chilton County, thus leaving to be taught this summer 13 schools for whites and 8 for negroes.

As stated last week, in order to obtain these schools, it is necessary to raise the sum of $58.75 by public subscription. Since the announcement was made in the papers last week, The Union-Banner has received the following contributions to the opportunity school fund:

FIRST COTTON BLOOM BROUGHT IN MONDAY

Sheriff J. D. Collins brought in the first cotton bloom of this year Monday. It came from the farm of Mr. J. R. Lovelady in the extreme southwest part of the county. Mr. Collins reports that the cotton crop on Mr. Lovelady's place is extra fine. It was planted on the last of March, and the first blooms were seen by Mr. Lovelady on June 11th.

Tuesday morning the second bloom was brought in by Mr. J. W. Cleckler, who lives about six miles east of Clanton. Mr. Cleckler says he has sixteen acres of cotton that is knee high, and blooms are appearing rapidly.

Overhead Cost Of State Schools 3.8

Figures Given Out In Report Of State Superintendent Of Education

The overhead costs to the cititzens of Alabama maintaining the state's elementary and secondary schools, including the State Department of Education, will be 3.8 per cent of the total expenditures required to operate the educational system for the 1929-30 session, according to the annual report of the state superintendent, recently submitted to the State Board of Education. This total expenditure for the school year just closed will be $24,4555,779, according to the report, $24,300,446 of this amount being used in operating the schools in the sixty-seven counties and forty-five cities.

To maintain the State Department of Education $198,230 were required. Of this amount $13,233 were obtained from federal sources, $29,664 from certain foundations, and $155,333 from state monies. The Department, therefore, cost the tax payers of the state six tenths of one per cent., as explained in the report.

Exclusive of money spent for buildings and for debts, he sum of $114,975 was required to operate all of the public schools of the state for one day.

HERMAN CULPEPPER WITH FARMERS HARDWARE CO.

The Farmers Hardware Company, of Clanton, announces that they have secured the services of Mr. Herman Culpepper, an experienced plumber, who will be associated with them in the future to take care of their plumbing department. Mr. Culpepper is a relative of the family of Mr. Frank Culpepper, and has been at work in the plumbing business in Birmingham for several years. He will take the place of Mr. Vernon Robinson, who was killed accidently last week.

Congress has passed a resolution discarding the use of dial telephones in the capital. But the wire pulling will go on just the same.

WOODMEN PLANNING A GOOD DEGREE TEAM

A group of the hustling and enthusiastic members of Clanton Camp, Woodmen of the World, have set up a determination that Clanton Camp shall have a degree team that is second to none in the field of Woodcraft. Therefore, at the next regular meeting of the camp, on Monday night coming, a complete organization of the degree team will be perfected, and plans made for regular practice work hereafter.

Sovereign John N. Cochran, who has been the inspiration of a most successful drive for increased membership in this county this spring, will assist the boys in getting their preliminary plans made and starting them off in the degree work.

Right soon we may see the Clanton Camp, instead of importing a degree team from some other place, sending its own degree team to different parts of the county and state to give the initiatory work to classes of new members.

MRS. DE LOACH DIED AT FUNERAL OF HER HUSBAND

Unexpected Death Occurred Last Thursday at Bethany Church

A rather unusual thing happened last Thursday, June 12th, at the funeral of Mr. Bill Deloach being held at Bethany church south of here, when just after Rev. J. A. Raines finished preaching the funeral, Mrs. Deloach, the wife of the deceased, dropped dead almost instantly. The people thought probably that she had fainted, so Dr. Johnson was summoned, but when he arrived a few minutes later he pronounced her dead.

The funeral of the wife was held at the same place just 24 hours after that of her husband, the former being at 11 o'clock Thursday and the latter being at 11 o'clock Friday.

Wm. O. Deloach was about 60 years old and Mrs. Deloach was two years his junior. Mrs. Deloach, before her marriage was Miss Louanna Waites. Both were born, reared and married in Coosa County near Rockford. They moved to Chilton County ten or twelve years ago.

The deceased parents were survived by four sons and three daughters: Belton, Clifton, Otis and Gatis Deloach; Mrs. Omie McKee, Mrs. Elma Powell and Miss Bertine Deloach. The youngest son and youngest daughter were the only ones living at home with the parents.

The living brothers and sisters of Mr. Deloach are: Sid. D. Deloach, Dock Deloach, Jackson Deloach and Obie D. Deloach; Mrs. W. Y. Keel and Mrs. J. W. Neeley.

Mr. Deloach died suddenly at his home about 3:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. He was apparently well and did a hard day's work the day before. The death of both was attributed to heart trouble, the primary cause of which was said to be the result of a weakened condition following measles which they both had about a month ago.

The death of Mr. and Mrs. Deloach in this manner is a case which, so far as wek know, is unparalleled in the history of this section of the country. The shock was a great one to the family and friends of these people.

SOMEBODY'S PLOWING

In conversation with Mr. John D. Wyatt, the blacksmith, one day this week, Mr. Wyatt said: "Already this spring I have sharpened over 1,700 plows for the farmers of Chilton County. Before the plowing season is over I will go well over 2,000."

This shows that the farmers of this county have been doing some plowing, and they believe in keeping their plows sharp too.

ONE ON TUG WILLIS

Uncle Tom Littlefield tells this one on Tug Willis, candidate for Sheriff:

"Tug went out to pick some blackberries this week. When he got to the place he found so many other folks there picking berries he jes' sot his bucket down and went to lectioneering."

Blalock To Open New Store Here

Former Merchant At Lay Dam Will Open In Wright Building

Mr. J. A. Blalock, who for the past four years has been operating the store at Lock 12, or Lay Dam, will open up a general merchandise store in Clanton around July 1st.

The new store will be located in the Wright Building, formerly occupied by Armstrong's Shoe Shop. Shelving, show cases, etc., are now being arranged, and from present indications, the store will be a real up-to-date one. A complete line of dry goods, shoes, clothing, groceries and notions will be carried, Mr. Blalock said.

Before coming to Lock 12 four years ago, Mr. Blalock lived near Marble Valley in Coosa County.

We welcome Mr. Blalock in our little city, and hope that the people here will give him a portion of their trade, and that his business may be an asset to him as well as to our community.

It is our understanding that the store at Lay Dam will be discontinued. Probably Mr. Bates will put up a store outside of the Power Company reservation.

County Farm Agent's Notes

STATE BEING RID OF BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS

Auburn, Ala., June 16.—Progress now being made in freeing Alabama livestock from tuberculosis indicates that the livestock industry of the state should continue to develop and increase in returns, said Dr. C. A. Cary, dean of the college of veterinary medicine of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and Sate Veterinarian under the State Board of Agriculture at Montgomery.

Dean Cary announced that eradication work began in Montgomery County three months ago. That county is now three-fourths free and the job will be finished by early July.

Work was started the middle of April in Jefferson County and that county will be free by August, he said. On June 2, Dallas County began eradication but no date was announced for completing the job. Work will be started in other counties as rapidly as feasible and as funds are available.

Eradication is being done jointly under state laws by the State Board of Agriculture, the Federal Government, and the counties participating. Dr. R. E. Jackson of Birmingham is in charge for the Federal government.

Dairy cattle, beef cattle, and other livestock are bing tested by a staff of workers, usually five to a county, Dr. Cary explained. When the job is finished each county will be free from tuberculosis which is a master handicap to the livestock industry. Due to previous eradication work only a small number of reactors are being found. Hence it is easier for this official eradication to complete the job, he declared.

"With Alabama now free from cattle ticks and on the way to the complete eradication of tuberculosis the prospect for the livestock industry is bright," Dr. Cary said.

PLANS FOR BETTER STATE FAIRS MADE

Auburn, Ala., June 16.—If the managers succeed in converting their plans into concrete exhibits, the 1930 state fairs at Birmingham and Montgomery will be intensely interesting and exceedingly valuable to farm people—men, women, boys, and girls. This was made known a ta conference of Extension Service and Farm Bureau workers in Auburn.

It was agreed to start work immediately in collecting and preparing exhibits from farms and farm homes. Combined with these will be exhibits of an educational nature. Facts of major importance will be presented in visual form, the aim being to make each exhibit tell an important story which those who see the exhibits will apply on their farms and in their homes.

Professor L. N. Duncan, director of the Extension Service, presided at the conference. The Alabama Farm Bureau Federation was represented by Edward A. O'Neal, president, J. A. Beaty, and L. O. Brackeen. The Birmingham State Fair was represented by R. H. McIntosh, secretary; and the Montgomery State Fair by Simon Rosewald, secretary, and Mrs. C. R. Bricken, in charge of the ladies department.

The Birmingham fair will be held September 29-October 4; Montgomery, October 20-26.

Each of the secretaries declared that the 1930 exhibits will not be ordinary events. They will be lifted out of the ordinary and made distinctly entertaining and educational. Their ambition is to give Alabama two state fairs as good as the State fair in any other state.

EXPLAINS CONTROL OF POWDERLY MILDEW

Auburn, Ala., June 16.—Powderly mildew, the most common diseases of roses, can be controlled by spraying, says Prof. John W. Hyde of the Department of Horticulture and forestry of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"Mildew is easily controlled by severe pruning and spraying with Bordeaux mixture (4-4-50)," he said. Bordeaux mixture discolors the foliage and is objectionable to some growers on account of this fact. Lime-sulphur (8-8-50) is considered very effevtive and does not render the foliage unsightly. Hyposulphite of soda (1 oz. to 1 gal. of water) has given splendid results in many cases. It is very cheap, easy to prepare, and does not discolor roses in bloom."

The spray should be applied according to the following schedule: Give the first spray when the leaves are half grown, the second when the first buds appear, and the third when the color shows in the first buds.

"Powdery mildew begins its attack early, appearing on the leaves, buds, and shoots," Hyde continued. "One first notices it as a delicate white mildew and later it presents a mealy appearance. It attacks practically all types of roses and is especially prevalent on the Dorothy Perkins and Crimson rembler."

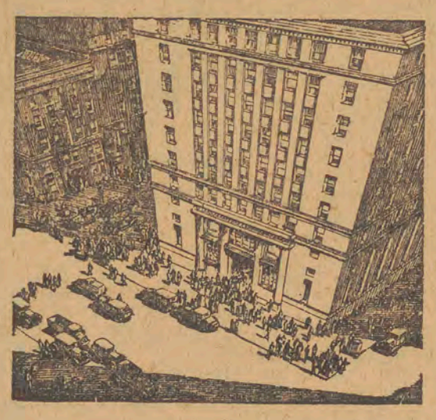
NEWS IN BRIEF

Farmers of Clay County bought more than 600 bushels of soybean seed through their farm bureau. This is the largest amount the farm bureau has handled in one year, said F. M. White, county agent.

About 30,000,000,000 cups of tea are served annually in this country to upwards of 50,000,000 people, the cost of which consumption is placed at $75,000,000. Yearly tea consumption in the United States is less than one pound per capia, compared with Australia's per capita consumption of 11 pounds, England's eight pounds, and Canada's six.



Bankers of Calhoun County have taken an active interest in the safe-farming program sponsored by their county agent, S. R. Doughty. They recently agreed to sponsor a county-wide soil-building program. They will insist that customers plant at least five acres of vetch or peas and begin terracing this fall.

Evidence favoring better cotton seed is presented by Jackson County. M. T. Gowder, county agent, said that more than 12,000 bushels of D. P. L. and Wilson type big boll cotton seed were planted in the county this year along side native varieties. The improved variety gave a good stand under the unfavorable weather conditions while the native varieties gave a broken stand.

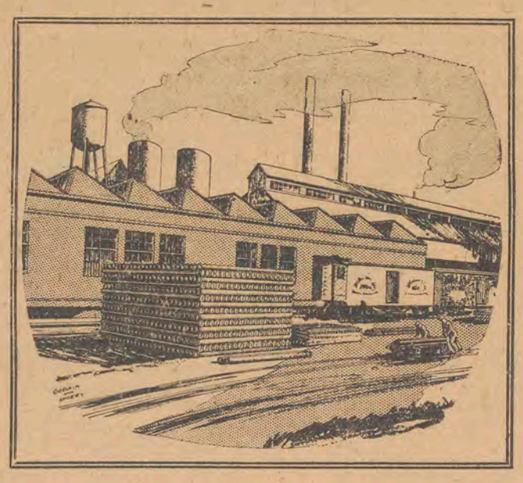
ALABAMA CROPS DOING FAIRLY WELL

Oats are 63 per cent. of normal in June, compared with 78 per cent last year. Yields of Irish potatoes were given at 60 bushels per acre; pastures and hay were below last year's condition, while fruit shows an improvement over last year. More cows are giving milk than at this time last year, but the flow of milk is less due to poor pasturage. Alabama hens are doing better by 4 per cent. and more chicks are found on farms.

Farm labor is much more plentiful, crops are slightly earlier but some show backward conditions due to drouth and coolness.

Telephone Workers Are Proud of Their Chosen Vocation

At the close of the day's work telephone men and women have the satisfaction of knowing that they have had an important part in rendering an essential service to their fellow citizens.



In the Southern Bell System 23,600 of them, working as a highly skilled team, complete 8,000,000 local calls and 100,000 long distance calls every day and maintain more than 4,200,000 miles of wire, serving more than 1,000,000 telephones.

A job of this magnitude could be so well done only by intelligent, experienced workers who have a pride in their vocation and a sincere interest in the welfare and happiness of the communities they serve.

The courtesy and cooperation of the telephone folks who serve you is an expression of the desire of the entire telephone organization to render to the public the best possible service at the least possible cost.

A "PIPE DREAM" COMES TRUE

AT THE REQUEST of Alabama Power Company, an order for $600,000 worth of Alabama made cast iron pipe was placed in this state recently by The Commonwealth & Southern Corporation of New York.

Translated into terms of material and labor, here is what this big pipe order means to Alabama workers.

Manufacture of the pipe would give steady jobs to about 510 men for a period of 90 days.

Production of the pig iron from which the pipe is made, would give employment to 57 blast furnace workers for 90 days.

Mining of the iron ore, used in the making of the pig iron, would give 122 ore miners work for 90 days.

Mining of the coal, used to make the coke which in turn is used to make the pig iron for the pipe, would mean jobs for about 367 coal miners for 90 days.

That's a grand total of 1,056 men employed in Alabama for 90 days, which means about 5,280 people receiving their support from this single $600,000 cast iron pipe order placed with Alabama plants. And this takes no account of the men employed in the coke by-product plants, in transportation of the various materials and numerous auxiliary services.

How I coaxed him to eat

"ONCE I was worried. Mealtime was getting on my nerves. I prepared many appetizing dishes, but John simply would not eat—just 'minced' at his food. Perhaps sometimes a little grouchy. I began to fear he was 'slipping.' What was I to do? Love, home, happiness, business success—all depended upon an improvement in his condition. The blood-tonic idea suggested itself to me. My Druggist recommended S.S.S. He told me that S.S.S. was a great blood tonic; that it had been successful for over 100 years; that it was made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and was beneficial to the most delicate system. Also that it would build up the blood and improve the processes by which the body is nourished. I brought home a large size bottle. John agreed to try it. Well, in just a few days I could see the difference. His improvement has been so rapid he is going to take several more bottles, and not only that, but he is now telling his friends to take S.S.S.

It is a known fact that when a man's system gets "run-down," he hasn't the resistance to ward off diseases. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play. It is dangerous to let the red-blood-count remain below normal.

S.S.S. is daily helping people to regain their strength. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. It promotes a keen appetite, gives vitality to the body, clears the skin and wards off diseases. All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical. ©S.S.S. Co.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. Its tonic effects will surprise you.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Cottonseed meal has been found to be rich in vitamin G, the vitamin necessary for the prevention of pellagra, a nutritional disease of people fairly common in some parts of the south.

Electric service will be extended to 1,000,000 farms in the United States within the next four years, it is predicted.

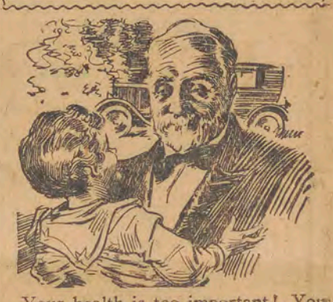
The first wholesale shipment of milk by airplane took place recently between Springfield and Boston, Mass. Recently Major Walter R. Weaver of Maxwell Field, Montgomery, predicted that shipments of milk would be made by airplane from the South to New York and other population centers.

There was an average of one traffic accident every 16 minutes last year when street and highway accidents were responsible for 33,060 deaths, 31,000 due to automobiles, and 1,200,000 injuries of which 1,000,000 were laid to motor cars, it is reported by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety.

Farmers of Greene County cleared $300 per day, or nearly $10,000 per month through the sale of milk, according to County Agent H. C. Appleton. One farmer in that county recently bought 23 high-grade Holstein cows and one Holstein bull.

WATCH TIMBER GROW

Montgomery, Ala., June 16.—With the advent of the rains of late spring and early summer the growth of young timber accelerated, according to a statement issued by the Commission of Forestry. During the winter the life processes of trees are practically dormant, continues the statement, but resume activity under he stimulus of warmth and moisture.



Ordinarily the winter rains put enough water into the ground to supply the moisture requirements of trees for their spring and summer growth even though the amount of precipitation falls off in April and May. However, during the past winter and spring here was a great deficiency of rainfall, and timber growth as well as the progress of agricultural crops must depend largely on such rain as falls during June and July.

Farmers and other landowners have noed that some forest trees extend their height growth by a single joint or node of the stem, from which poin a set of side branches and a tip shoot develop. While others increase by two or more joints. The distance between the successive sets of side branches indicates the extent of height growth for a given time. To determine how much a tree has grown during a year in the case of species that add only one joint per annum the distance between last year's set of branches and the set added during the current year is measured. For trees that increase their height by two or three joints with corresponding sets of branches, the year's height growth is measured by the distance covered by the number of nodes typical of the species for an annual period.

COTTON CROP A GREAT PROBLEM IN ALABAMA

Alabama cotton is making good use of the recent rains, according to Commissioner of Agriculture, S. P. Storrs, who said that the recent rains had proved the salvation of thousands of acres of unsprouted cotton and had improved the stand immensely.

Mr. Storrs had no figures regarding the stand, except to say that dry weather had hindered germination markedly during May.

"A dry May is known to favor a good cotton crop. This year not only was May dry, but the entire year had been lacking in rainfall. Since January 1st, only 17.91 inches of rain has been reported in Montgomery. This is a deficiency of 8.41 inches, or 31.9 per cent."

"Alabama crops were planted in rather dry soil, but not of necessity to a damaging degree. The damage came from the imperfect stand at first. Just to what extent Alabama cotton will overcome this handicap remains to be seen."

"A second factor which is still hindering the growth of cotton is in low temperatures. The daytime warmth has been sufficient for growth, but at night the coldness has been from 5 to 10 degrees below normal in many cases, and this has stunted cotton in marked degree."

Mr. Storrs said that no one could forecast the future of the cotton crop at this time. Mr. F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, announces that the first crop report of acreage of cotton would be given on July 8, and released over WAPI and WSFA at 12:40 p. m. of that date.

Interest in dairying is increasing in Chilton County, reports County Agent C. E. Stapp. A cream station which opened recently with 15 patrons now has 80.

POULTRY Tips By LEONARD L. BROWN

SEPARATING COCKERELS

At about five weeks you will begin to be able to separate the cockerels from the pullets. The cockerels at this age develop conspicuous bright red combs, while the pullets show no combs at all, or just very inconspicuous, yellowish ones.

As soon as possible, some time before the 5th and the 9th weeks, take all of your cockerels out and develop them promptly for the broiler market, unless you have in mind keeping them longer for the later market seasons. For broilers, however, the cockerels should best be confined to limited size runs, in order to limit the amount of exercise they will get. A room 10 by 12 feet will be enough space for fattening 200 or more young broilers.

For feed, a fattening ration should now be adopted, strong on corn, feeding it in small amounts, but often, to keep them always well filled. At about seven weeks the mash should consist of one part of regular developing mash as previously described, to which has been added one part of yellow corn meal and one part of commercial skim or condensed buttermilk. This should be supplemented with cracked corn fed in pans or hoppers with sour skim milk for drink and green feed for general conditioning. Marketing is usually the most profitable at about one and one-half pounds live weight. Three to four pounds of dry feed is about the amount required for adding each pound of live weight to the bird.

Leghorns are best for broilers because up to the 12th week they develop faster, and weigh more for their age, than most of the heavy breeds. If you plan to market after the age of 12 weeks, Rhode Island Reds, Rocks, Orpingtons, etc., are best from a strictly meat standpoint. A good program is to raise leghorns and market the cockerels as young broilers because at that stage they beat the heavy breeds, and keep the pullets for strictly laying purposes, because of course the leghorns are the principal egg-laying breed.

It is best for the pullets, to get the cockerels out of the way as early as you can, because it gives the pullets more room, and because as the cockerels develop they will bully and bother the pullets unless they are separated.

At the age of about 8 or 12 weeks you will probably have the pullets by themselves in the brooder house, and it will be time to remove them to their permanent quarters, in the laying houses. Be sure before you move them that every possible form of contamination has been removed from the laying houses. Disinfect the houses thoroughly. Move them to new ground if practical, or at least check up thoroughly on the houses to make sure there is no contamination, stale water about, or any decaying matter. Your future success is at stake in your pullet flocks.

$2,500,000 IN DIVIDENDS TO BE PAID IN BIRMINGHAM

More than $2,500,000 will be distributed in the Birmingham district on and just prior to July 1st, as big companies and corporations cut their dividend melons and declare returns on stock owned by Birmingham people.

That total will be divided into two parts of which about $1,500.000 will be paid to Birmingham stock holders by companies operating in this district and another $1,000,000 will come to citizens who own in foreign companies—those operating in other states.

The two largest melons cut in this district will be the First National Bank and the Alabama Power Company.

Special Dividend

The bank, in order to equalize its stock holdings preparatory to its merger with the American Traders National Bank, will declare a special dividend which will total $500,000.

In addition the First National will declare its regular dividend of $75,-000.

The Alabama Power Campany will forward checks to stockholders on July 1 to the total amount of $487,-000, officials announced.

The American Traders National will pay a dividend of $84,500, of which $27,500 will be special. The Birmingham Trust & Savings Bank will pay its regular dividend of three per cent., or $30,000, according to Walter Henley, president.

One of the largest dividends paid in he district has already been forwarded to stockholders by the Southern Natural Gas Corporation. The company paid $1.75 on each share of stock, or $87,500.

Others Swell Total

Numerous building and loan associations and real estate mortgage houses are now cimpiling their dividend figures which will help swell the total.

The Birmingham Water Works out 2,800 checks for a total of $28,-310.25.

On May 1, the Birmingham Gas Company paid dividends totaling $45,000.

The Birmingham Water Works Company, according to Harry Horner, operating vice president, will pay a quarterly dividend this month amounting to $37,000.

I. C. Beatty of the Birmingham Realty Co., announced a quarterly dividend for his company to the amount of $91,000, of which five per cent. is a special dividend.

In addition to the local companies, large railroad, steel and rubber companies scattered throughout the nation were paying dividends to Birmingham stockholders.—The Birmingham Post.

W. L. SANDERS WRITES ABOUT RACE FOR COUNTY BOARD

Editor Union-Banner:

As a number of voters overlooked my platform in this paper a few weeks ago, they asked that I have it re-published. So if you will give me a little space in one of your columns I will do so with a few additional planks.

I am a candidate for member of the Board of Education and I feel that it would be unjust to ask the voters of Chilton County to give me their support without first giving them the platform on which I stand and the things I shall contend for if elected to the board.

I expect to make a fair and open race in this campaign and let the people know how I stand on the school question.

If the people of Chilton County see fit to elect me as a member of the Board I shall not be silent as to the rights of the patrons and tax payers of the county.

I shall be open in all transactions of the Board and shall endeavor to give satisfaction to the majority of the people.

I will now give my platform for your consideration, and it is as follows:

I believe the patrons of the school should have the authority to elect their trustees. I believe the patrons together with the trustees, should have the authority to elect their teachers. I believe the teachers in Chilton County, and elsewhere, should have the right to apply for a school in any community they may choose. I believe that so long as the Board of Education has the right to elect the County Superintendent they should in some way find out who the people want and let the people's choice be the Board's choice. I do not believe in consolidating the rural schools with the city schools unless two thirds of the qualified voters vote in its favor. I do not believe in two or more rural schools consolidating unless two-thirds of the qualified voters of said district vote in its favor. I believe the rural schools should have the seventh grade restored in them. I believe the Junior High School should have the tenth grade taught in them. I believe the Board of Education should have as many grades taught in the rural and Junior High Schools as possible, that the transportations might be decreased instead of increased.

I believe that the Board of Education should see that no bus is placed in the hands of a careless driver. I believe the Board of Education should see that the patrons have no unreasonable incidental fees imposed upon them. I believe the trustees of every school in the County should be required to keep or to have the principal teacher keep a record of all incidental fees paid in and by whom they were paid, also keep a record of all money paid out for school supplies, that the patrons may know their money has been well spent.

I believe the Board of Education should give, or have the Superintendent give, through the public press, an itemized statement of all funds paid into the county school treasury, also give the number of teachers in the county and each of their salaries per month and the number of months they taught each scholastic year and give the number of school busses in operation and the cost of each per annum. Give the Superintendent's salary, and the Boards salary and all other donations and appropriations that the taxpayers of Chilton county can see where their money goes without having to go to the Superintendent's office for information.

Now, Mr. and Mrs. Voter, you see where I stand on the school question, and I ask you to give my platform a careful consideration and if it meets your approval I will appreciate your vote and influence. I do not ask any one to vote for me from a friendship standpoint, but ask all to examine each article in my platform, also examine my past record from moral standpoint and from an ability standpoint, and from the interest I have taken in our schools heretofore.

We should never vote for a man because he is our special friend but from a standpoint of his ability and will-power to execute justice to all. I am not only interested in the Board of Education, but have much interest in the other officials of our county. Especially the Sheriff, the representatives, and the commissioners, because the county's welfare, protection, and freedom lies in their hands.

Let us all consider well before we cast our vote on August 12. Some one asked me to explain the fourth article of my platform, which appeared in this paper a few weeks ago. Notice how this article reads:

I believe that so long as the Board has the right to elect the County Superintendent, they should in some way find out who the people want and let the people's choice be the Board's choice.

This doesn't mean that I believe the Board should have the right to elect the Superintendent, but in order to comply with law the Board must cast their vote for him. I believe every official should be elected by the people, yet we cannot do this only in some indirect way until this law has been repealed.

Well I will close for this time, hoping to meet most of you voters before the August primary. In case I don't see you, your vote and influence will be appreciated just the same.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

We are told by metropolitan newspapers now making a drive on the protective tariff system that this country is now suffering from overproduction, and that our only chance to dispose of our surplus production is to seek markets abroad, and in order to gain markets abroad we must admit the further invasion of our markets by the cheap labor products of foreign lands.

Many will wonder how it can be said that we that hundreds of thousands of wage earners have are suffering from over-production. It is a fact been thrown out of work in the United States through their inability to compete with foreign cheap labor whose output crowds the shelves of stores in the United States. Is there not a more immediate and profitable prospect of consumption by these unemployed men were they back at work than among the peasants, coolies and peons of foreign lands who are now doing the work of supplying American necessities?

Abroad we must meet on their own ground the makers of the very cheap labor products we are now buying in such quantity instead of absorbing the output of our own industries. If we cannot undersell them at home, how can we do it abroad?

Our only hope of gaining markets abroad is in supplying them with products which we can make cheaper or better only because our large scale market here permits the economies of mass production.

The operations of the present tariff law, which it was predicted would destroy our foreign trade, proves to the contrary. When we keep our own industries going we are enabled to buy abroad articles of luxury and of necessity we do not produce here in greater and greater quantity. We are enabled to spend more in foreign travel. Our prosperity does not destroy that of foreign lands; it promotes the general prosperity of the world.

The truth is that the outcry arising in this country against tariff measuring the difference in labor costs at home and abroad on all competitive commodities is chiefly inspired by international financiers who want to collect the vast amounts they have loaned abroad at the sacrifice of American production, and the international industrialists who wish to manufacture in foreign cheap labor markets and sell with as little interference as possible in our markets. That these financiers and industrialists are killing the goose that laid their golden eggs does not affect their short-sighted attitude, or that of merchandisers who want the opporunity to buy cheap foreign goods regardless of the fact that they thus destroy the purchasing power of their customers in the United States.

We seem to be up against the problem of whether our tariffs shall be adjusted to suit home needs or foreign demands. Foreign nations with sky-high tariffs and forty-seven varieties of interfering with our exports to these countries, are inspiring an outcry to the effect that if we look out for ourselves they will cut our throats. They are now, and always have been, doing a pretty good job of looking out for themselves and presumably they will continue to do this whatever our tariff rates. The first job of our government is to look out for our own people, and sometimes that job seems to be somewhat neglected.

MORE BRITISH ADVICE

J. G. Pearce, of Birmingham, England, attending the foundry show at Cleveland, Ohio, gave out a statement to the effect that protection against European low wages was unnecessary in the United States, because the purchasing power of wages in Europe was so much greater that "the worker" live more sanely and have more comforts and luxuries than American workers."

The American government has collected official statistics as to the purchasing power of wages at home and abroad. Measured in purchasing power wages in England are approximately half those prevailing in the United States, and England has a higher wage scale than any other European country.

The answer to such statements as this is found in the American total of the deposits in savings banks, of home ownership of distribution of motor cars, radios and other comforts and luxeries entirely out of reach of the masses of British workingmen. Another answer is found in the fact that in order to prevent European workers from emigrating to the United States almost enmasse, the United States has had to pass stringent immigration laws. There is no movement of population the other way.

It is surprising to note how unanimous our foreign visitors are in their belief that the protective policy is a bad thing for the United States. Such advice may not be entirely disinterested, since it comes from the representatives of commercial conpetitors keenly alive to their own interests.

Publishers recently announced a fifty per cent reduction in the price of fiction. Maybe this is because there has been such a tremendous flood of free trade fiction this year.

If you think you are just as young as ever you were, just go back to the old home town for a visit. When you find the "boys" of your own age shoved in the background and their tow-headed youngsters (as you remember them) running things, you feel like making an application for life membership in the old man's home.

The pacifist who old us we ought to go to any length to get an agreement at the London conference is now starting in to argue that it won't be necessary for us to keep our end of the agreement by building any more cruiserss.

THE JACK POT

BY "JACK" HIMSELF

Having been raised on a farm (and still on it, so far as that goes) the POTTER is always very much interested in farmers and farm doings. So, as we passed along by Mr. Jasper Dennis's farm the other day and noticed that he was about ready to start his tractor to plowing a stubble patch, we paused to watch—and wonder. We have heard and read lots about pulverizing the land, but never knew what it meant to REALLY pulverize land. Using a big disc plow, that outfit does the biz. The way it is handled by Mr. Dennis, by the time he is done with a patch, that land has been cut to pieces four times, and is plowed to a finish. And travel—how that "gas hoss" gets "around the post" is a caution. Mr. Dennis stated that his outfit worked about an acre an hour. Old Beck just isn't in it any more. Certainly the "horse age" is about gone so far as roads and travel is concerned, and it looks as if the same might be true of field work in the near future. That Mr. Dennis should be among the first to use such methods is only natural—another case where modern methods are being used by a modern farmer in showing the way to his fellow tillers of the soil. Like everything else, in farming you must keep step in methods if you expect to keep up with the leaders. Mr. Dennis is a pioneer farmer, we might say—always pushing out and out into plans and methods unexplored.

Remember what we said about "Uncle Billy" Mullins and his blackberries and "walking stick" last week? Well, we were right about the stick—he came by and told us so— he had it along to kill snakes with. And, just to prove that he didn't need the stick to walk with, he didn't have it along with him, and he was getting about as glib as a spry kitten.

Had another talk with "Jess" Baker recently. "Jess" is firing the woods nowadays, making the race for tax assessor. He hinted that inasmuch as one of his great-uncles gave the the land where some of the main county buildings now stand—the jail, the courthouse, etc., for instance—the people might help him a bit by marking their ballot for him in the coming primary. Not that "Jess" thinks the people owe HIM for the land, but—well, he just mentioned it, that's all.

Happened to be on Clanton's main street about 10:30 last Sunday morning. That gives us away—we didn't attend Sunday School last Sunday—but we had to tell that in order to make this article's meaning clear. You can see pretty near anybody you're looking for here on Saturday, but not so on Sunday. We didn't see three people on the street Sunday morning, and we found out pretty soon where they all were—gone to Sunday Schcool. These Sunday School campaigns certainly get results. And, no wonder. Imagine our surprise later in the day when a young fellow came by and pinned a red ribbon on the old lapel, in the meantime getting a promise to attend Sunday School next Sunday. We noticed several of these young fellows doing likewise during the afternoon. No wonder nobody was on the street with such a drive on. We think it a commendable move, and take this means of giving commendation to those responsible for it.

We reckon there is nothing more exasperating than time-outs, no matter if it is at a prize fight, a ball game, or what have you. But the worst one we have run up against lately was to be all set, ready to hear the old baseball results via the radio, only to have the "juice" go off for line repairs. And, of course, it had to happen just after the announcer had given the line-ups—when we got the "juice" again, about an hour and a half later, he was giving a "brief summary" of the game. We were fit to be tied.

Too, there is quite a bit of criticism and dissatisfaction among radio owners because of the high-power line which runs over Clanton. Not knowing so much about the "insides" of electric "hickeys," etc., we don't know what it would take to remedy the situation, but, inasmuch as these radio owners are power consumers, we offer the suggestion that if any apparatus could be installed to clear up interference in radio reception which is caused by the line, it would be only fair to those power consumers to do it. What about it?

We thought, when the "talkies" came in and replaced the moving picture show, that it would remove one of the worst pests yet—the person who reads all the titles aloud. It did! But have you noticed what has come in their stead? If you haven't, we'd like to be you. Now, instead of reading the titles, the guy repeats all wisecracks and the like to the fellow next to him. If the actor or actress happens to sing a catchy little squib, it's just too bad—on the next chorus he or she (the actor or actress) gets all kinds of help from some members of the theatre-going crowd. Look out for these pests ,and strangle 'em if you want to—we won't object.

Mr. and Mrs. Hance Alred are back from a trip to Florida and Cuba. At least they were to go to Cuba, and we presume they did. Saw Hance on the street the other day—he was in a big conversation with Major Simpson and a few more of the local big fishermen, so we didn't stop to listen to see who was "champeen" at the time.

Just as we expected, the Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Company busted loose with a big sign all over its face last week. Looks good, too. And Mr. Turnipseed, the sign painter who did the work—that boy knows his pigments—and how! From the size of the sign, Leo Thompson must be trying to attract the attenion of passing aviators and get a part of their "washing."

Did you ever listen in on a ball game along with an "I-told-you-so" guy? We did the other day. There ain't a chance for him to be wrong. On one occasion one of the teams went in to bat—he leaned back in his chair and predicted it would be just too bad for them—three up and three down. However, in a few minutes they had loaded the bases and the next batter whaled the ball over the fence. Imagine what happened! That pessimist jumped halfway to the ceiling, bit his pipe stem in two, swallowed the part left in his mouth, slapped his nearest fan-brother on the shoulder and yelled at the top of his voice: "What did I say? That's my baby! I'd bet on that bunch any time." Ugh!

We don't know why, but it seems that the biggest men always ride in the very smallest cars they can get. Don't believe it? All right, how about big Sam Edwards of Thorsby (the Democratic candidate for Commissioner), Dr. Eiland of Coopers, "Chief" Boockholdt of Clanton, and others. But the big boys certainly do look comfortable.

Now, that last wise-crack wasn't meant for such, but in case it should be taken for one, we'll just be moving along for this time, in case anybody should get rampart. You see we can't run very fast, and we MIGHT need a big start in case there's any running to do.—"JACK."

Gifford Pinchot, while out on his campaign tour the other day, was stung by a hornet. Well its better for a candidate to get stung in May than it is in November.

FOURSQUARE CHURCH NEWS

The all-day meeting which was held at the Church of the Foursquare Gospel in Clanton June 15th proved to be a grand success. From the childrens day service at 10 a. m., in which some 35 children and young people took part, until, and including the closing service, which consisted of a stirring evangelistic message delivered by the pastor, Rev. H. B. Calentine, at 8 o'clock p. m. Everything was instructive and enjoyable. At 11 a. m. Judge Reynolds, of Clanton gave a very interesting and timely talk on parental problems, and existing conditions among our young people of today. From his own experience in dealing with the many young people who, by their own doings get into the clutches of the law, he pictured to his hearers the awfulness of what lack of proper home training and the aimless drifting of this day and time has brought upon the young people. Parents and young people as well need to be awakened to the existing conditions of things along this line and "lest we forget" we hope to hear Judge Reynolds occasionally at the Foursquare Church.

Then in the afternoon service, after partaking of the nice dinner which was served under the big trees by the church those assembled had the blessed privilege of hearing Rev. Honeycutt, a Baptist minister, 86 years young, deliver a soul stirring message on "Christ in you, the hope of Glory." Many eyes overflowed with tears of joy and worshiping hearts were lifted to our God in praise as the words of loving counsel and admonition fell from the lips of this valient old soldier of the Cross. We hope that our Brother Honeycutt can be with us again soon and tell us of some of the battles fought and the victories won during his many years in the service of our King, Christ Jesus.

Rev. Lynch, the pastor of the Methodist Church at Walnut Creek, also visited us and gave a short but splendid missionary talk which it will be well for all those who heard to take heed of. The day seemed all too short for some of us, and we are already looking forward to another such service within a few months.

This week's announcements are as follows:

Childrens church, Saturday, 2 p. m.
Sunday School, Sunday, 10 a. m.
Morning worship, Sunday, 11 a. m.
Sermon, "The Difference the Cross makes."
Crusaders meeting, 7:30 p. m.
Evangelistic message, 8 p. m.
Sermon, subject: "The Yoke of Bondage," an illustrated message.
Bible study every Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Presumably the fact that Henry Ford has removed his tractor production to Ireland, where he is paying half the Detroit wage scale, and that General Motors has made a tie-up with the German motor industry, where wages are less than 40 per cent. those paid in the United States may account for the enhusiasm of the officials of these two companies for low tariff or no tariff on the ground that protection creates unemployment.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

"If you had been at the Foursquare Church in Clanton Sunday afternoon, you would have heard a real sermon," declared Walter Teel Monday morning. "It was the best I have heard in a long time. It was an old-fashioned sermon about an hour and a half long; and the preacher did not have it written down. He really preached, pouring the good old time religion right out of his heart." Judge Honneycutt is one of the oldest preachers in Chilton County. He has been preaching longer than many of the grown folks of to-day can remember. Since he first became a preacher he has had a dip into politics, having served one term as Probate Judge of Chilton County. He is still preaching some in spite of the handicap of his advanced age.

"I notice that Leander Giles is still planting his tobacco in the same place where he has had his tobacco patch for the last forty years," said Charley Willis, who is here on a visit from Texas. "When I was a boy we lived up on Blue Gut, and as we came to town (which was not very often) we passed Leander's place just this side of Yellow Leaf Creek. I remember the tobacco patch was always right behind his corn crib. As I went by there the other day, there was the tobacco growing fine right in that same patch. Of course I know it was not the same tobacco. It made me think of the times when I was a boy and brought back many of the memories of those years fresh to my mind." Charley Willis is a brother of George, Watt, and Tug Willis. He has been living at Ennis, Texas, for several years.

Since his return from Cuba last Sunday Hance Alred has been receiving numerous requests from his friends for a description of the island and the many things of interest which he saw on the trip. Mr. Alred has been busy searching the dictionary for a suitable collection of adjectives to do full justice to Cuba when he makes his descriptions of things and places. It is very evident he was somewhat overwhelmed and surprised at the magnificent architecture, culture, and development which he found. I expect to call on him again when he gets his adjectives together. Mrs. Alred was with him on the trip. I haven't seen her yet, but I'll bet she can express her opinion about Cuba without consulting a dictionary.

I hear some talk about the municipal election which will come off in Clanton next September. But there will not be much attention given to that subject until after the state and county primaries come off on the 12th of August. It will be about a month from the primary to the city election. A month is plenty of time to thrash out a city campaign in Clanton.

In fact, I do not expect there will be much campaign to it this time. I think Buck Hart will be re-elected almost unanimously. All the members of the Council are popular because on the whole, they have given us a good account of themselves during their terms. Perhaps one or two of them might not be re-elected. I don't suppose they would care much at that. In fact I expect that the whole bunch, Mayor and all, had rather somebody else had the job.

I heard some fellows the other day talking about political trades. I thought that trading in politics is about like swapping horses in the dark—you can't tell what kind of a horse you get until after you have got him. One who will "trade" in politics is about the most reckless gambler I know about.

As I stood on the corner Monday, a lighted cigarett passed by. Seeking an explanation of the curious performance, I looked back in the direction from whence it came and saw Robert Alred at the far end of a collapsible cigarett holder about a half a block away. "This style of cigarett holder is very popular—with cigaretts—in Cuba," said Bob. "You can let your Camel graze over a wide territory while you smoke it."

MORE ABOUT "COMPLICATIONS"

The newspapers have been paying quite a little attention during the past few weeks to M. Briand's plan for a United States of Europe. It is generally agreed that some such a union, if it could alleviate the hard feelings among the European nations themselves, and gradually eliminate economic barriers, might be a good thing.

The most interesting development, from the standpoint of the United States is the reaction of Great Britain to the newest idea of a United States of Europe. The state of public opinion toward the project in Great Britain is evidently unfriendly so far as Great Britain's joining the new association is concerned.

The London Times, shortly after the Briand plan was made public, declared:

"British opinion, both in this country and in the Dominions, is firmly set against any entanglemets in Europe which could commit any member of the empire to indefinite and unforeseen responsibilities."

This declaration of the Times sounds like a paragraph from some of the speeches in the great League of Nations fight in the United States Senate more than a decade ago. The term "European entanglement" undoubtedly has a familiar sound, and it is a fact recognized by every American that our own country has refused membership in the League of Nations and its ramifications because we did not desire to commit ourselves to "indefinite and unforesesen responsibilities" as the London newspaper puts it.

So it would seem that John Bull like Uncle Sam is getting to the point where he does not desire to be committed in advance to the responsibilities of European politics. Perhaps a part of this change of heart is due to the fact that he now sees it will be impossible to get Uncle Sam into the "trouble house" and therefore can see no point to shouldering any further responsibilities himself.

At any rate there ought to be an end now to any European effort directed toward getting the United States entangled in European affairs. If Great Britain, separated from the continent by a narrow channel, can see no reason for taking on new commitments, it is all the more reasonable that the United States, separated from the old world by three thousand miles of ocean has no good reason for entering the maelstrom of European politics.

The reaction of Great Britain toward continental complications ought to be a sufficient example to our own internationalists who have not yet lost hope of involving Uncle Sam in European affairs. Most of our American internationalists express a keen admiration for Great Britain many of them seeming to prefer it to their own country. Let them therefore pattern their conduct after this latest expression of British opinion against further involvement in the political affairs of Europe.

Childrens day exercises at Congregational Church presented a varied program in which many younger ones had a part. This was followed by a pantomine, in which most of the Sunday School appeared to act out a "Legend of the Keys" beautifully read by Miss Mary Ella Gerald, showing how kindness on the part of the children was all powerful as a factor in the use of keys to open gates of the city, when all other means had failed.

Mrs. W. C. Payne, sister of Mrs. Norton, will leave this week for an extended visit at the home of her nephew, Sereno G. Norton at Brunswick, Ga.

NEGRO CAUGHT WITH SUITCASE

Mrs. Dunlap of Falakto called Sheriff Collins Tuesday evening and told him that a strange negro was on the railroad near her home and seemed to have a lot of clothing, etc. This, looking rather suspicious, she asked that the officers come and investigate. Sheriff Collins went immediately and found that the negro had in his possession one suitcase containing clothing, shoes, a hat, a baby's toy fiddle and other articles.

Further investigation by the officers revealed that the suitcase belonged to Mr. Raymond Smith, county solicitor here; same had been stolen from the home of Dr. Turner M. Dennis at South Clanton, where Mr. Smith lives.

The negro, who have his address as Greenville, Ala., was brought to jail, where he remains for legal proceedings.

This is an example of what can be done when people lend the officers their co-operation. An officer, no matter how alert he may be, cannot get all the criminals unless the people help. People everywhere should do as Mrs. Dunlap did in this case—notify the officers when something is seen which looks suspicious and seems to need investigation.

The second Sunday at Ashby, before Prof. John Deason opened the singing, Prof. Harvey Hicks delivered a short Sunday School address, pronounced by H. H. Armstrong as the best he ever heard. Prof Hicks is one of the old Howard College boys. He is known in Chilton County, having taught at Macedonia and Cross Roads, and was formerly post master at Randolph.

IN MEMORY OF OUR HUSBAND AND FATHER, J. L. McDOWELL

Late in the afternoon of June 5th, 1930, the death angel entered the home of Mr. J. L. McDowel and took from it our precious father, at the age of 56 years. He had been confined to his bed since the 22nd of February. Despite medical attention and the care of such a sweet nurse, Miss Luela McDowell, loved ones and friends, he steadily grew worse. During his allness he quoted beautiful passages of scripture, prayed sweet prayers. He very often called his children to his bedside, trying to show them that beautiful way he could see to heaven, saying, "Children, follow in the footsteps of father." Father is dead, yet he liveth; look on his face and smile.

He planned his funeral in the dead hours of night, one month prior to his death. "I am ready to go!" Oh how consoling these words were in the great hour of sorrow.

He leaves to mourn after him a widow and nine children: Ollie H., James Lawton, Mrs. Tommie Easterling, Mrs. W. L. Feltman, Mrs. E. B. Carroll, Mrs. Cornelius Lewis, Jessie Mae 14 years, Ester Lou 11 years, Ivey Lee 8 years; twelve grand children; father, John J. McDowell; two brothers, J. W. and J. E. McDowell; two sisters, Nancy, and Mrs. Ed Giles.

Dear father, we cherish sweet memories of you, not only because you taught us in early childhood to perform all duties of this life, but most of all because you taught us from God's great book how to prepare for a greater life or the life to come. Your vacancy in this home can never be filled.

We can't understand why God wanted to take your smiling face from us, but some day we will understand all things, when all will be glory with you in heaven. — Mrs. Anna McDowell and Children.

"Things I Ate Hurt Me"

"I HAD a severe case of indigestion," says Mrs. Bell Buckheister, 7 River St., Piedmont, S. C. "So many things that I ate hurt me, I almost quit eating.

"I would burn in my chest. I had severe headache, and such a tight, smothering feeling. I would be obliged to eat a little, then it would hurt me.

"A friend said to me: 'Why don't you take Black-Draught?'

"I was just too weak then to do my work. I began taking small doses after meals and in just a few weeks I could eat anything I wanted to, then take my small dose of Black-Draught and feel fine. I soon regained my health and strength."

Costs only 1 cent a dose.

SPEAKING OF GOVERNORS

To be appreciated in America as a leader one must die. We applaud the living one day and scoff at them the next. At present in Alabama the politicians are trying to discredit one of the greatest administrations our state has ever known. In the first year of the Graves administraiton enough money was appropriated for public schools to bring up every school to a term of seven months; then a general education bill followed giving a guarantee to the continuance of the seven months term. There have been appropriations to the four normal schools, to the University, to Auburn, to Montevallo, to the two negro schools, to the blind schools, to the deaf and dumb, to the industrial and delinquent institutions. There have been many additional buildings to the State schools, for illustration; the Palmer Auditorium of the Alabama College is one of the most beautiful buildings of the South. The influence of its architectural beauty on Alabama girls can not be computed in dollars and cents. No one can enter its walls and listen to its magnificient organ and not be uplifted. There are other buildings at the University and Auburn just as splendid, the Ross memorial, etc. Under Governor Graves, Alabama has become the first State in the Union in health; men from all over the world have come to Alabama to study her public health system.

When the floods rushed upon Geneva and Elba, thousands were left homeless; it was then that Governor Graves showed that he was a general as well as a patriot. There were nights he did not sleep. He forgot himself in the need of the hour, as he rushed help to the stricken towns. People were fed and clothed, and the State's doctors, under the wise commands of an efficient executive kept those towns from being desolated by diseases. It was not a miracle. It was expert sanitation methods that prevented typhoid fever, which goes in the wake of floods, from wiping out those stricken people. The Governor went himself to the flooded districts. During those dark days when all Alabama grieved no one cried out wastefulness, extravagance. Instead one of the largest dailies called Governor Graves "The Little Napoleon."

There are child welfare units in every county in the State except three or four and these are to be established soon. Alabama has made its greatest progress industrially durin this administration. The Goodyear mills have come to Gadsden, rayon mills have invaded the state, there are new textile mills in Talladega, a number of paper mills have opened up in our towns, there has been a general increase in cotton factories. Our roads and highways have improved. There are more miles of hard surface, sand-clay and gravel roads than ever before.

It was Graves who took our prisoners out of the mines. He has improved conditions, their food, their housing, their clothes. They have not been pampered or spoiled but have been treated like human beings and Alabama has no disgrace written on her pages by prison riots, and prison killings and burnings.

If Governor Graves had done nothing except to build the Atmore Prison he would have achieved much. We are not speaking as an editor who knows only what he reads, we have visited the prison. We liked the warden, a man with a heart as well as the key to the prison walls, we liked the deputy, we liked the atmosphere of the place. You felt that the men there were receiving more than justice. We felt that Hamp Draper was on his job.

The State has a large constructive plant at Atmore. Where the prison stands, was only a short time ago, a vast stretch of cut-timber land—hopeless in its appearance. Today the State has turned those piney-woods into a veritable Nile-basin of fertility. Broad acres of strawberries are growing where once dead stumps kept watch. The prison has its own canning factories, its cotton fields and its acres of vegetables and corn. Alabama is reclaiming men at Atmore, for she has given them the opportunity to touch God's earth. A man can't work under the blue of heaven without taking root in the great fundamentals of life.

Some modern psychologists claim that all children are born criminals, and that their future depends upon their training and their environment. Alabama prisoners are Alabama's children, who need training.

Governor Graves has thought in terms of humanity. He has kept every promise that he made to the people. If the Ku Klux Klan voted for him that is the only wise thing that we can credit to their account. For once in their lives the Ku Klux were in mighty good company for the women of Alabama voted for him too.

History judges a man by what he has accomplished, not for the promises that he made nor the pennies that he saved—who ever heard of a miser's statue in the Hall of Fame? Yes, the Governor has spent money but he has spent it wisely and courageously, for it has force as well as ideals. His administration needs no justification. Under his guidance Alabama has taken her place in the progress of the world. Charles Dickens said, "A great man will be great in misfortune, great in prison, great in chains."

Bibb Graves has proved himself a great Governor—great in the time of Alabama's flood disaster, great in pushing Alabama industrially and educationally and culturally, great in prison management, great in friendship, great in vision—a leader with a steady hand, a clean record, a big brain and a kind heart.—Dothan Eagle, June 9, 1930.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Harton of Montgomery were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wyatt during the past week-end.

BASE BALL AT CRAMTON BOWL FRIDAY NIGHT

Montgomery, June 16.—Three thousand tickets were reported sold to out-of-town fans Saturday as officials prepared for the busiest advance sale in history of Montgomery sports. The occasion being the first night base ball game ever played in the Southeast. The game will be played Friday.

Tests of the great lighting system were scheduled for Tuesday night and engineers who watched the thirty projectors being swung into place atop poles declared Sunday that everything was perfect for the nocturnal baseball battle between the Montgomery Lions and the Selma Cloverleafs.

Four poles, sixty feet high will have twelve 1,500 watt lights to brighten the outfield, while two poles are braced on each side of home plate and seven projectors have been attached to these poles, giving a blended light from 22 of the 1,500 watt lamps. The other poles, with three projectors each, are placed near the first and third base lines.

Special transportation facilities have been provided for visitors to Cramton Bowl as trolley cars will run every five minutes from Court Square, the heart of the city, parking facilities will be adequate near the stadium and two parking fields will be lighted. A special train, bearing several hundred Selma and Dallas County fans, will leave Selma at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, the round-trip fare being $1.10. The Western Railway also has announced that special rates will be offered fans from West Point, Ga., and the intervening points.

I. H. C. Makes all Sorts Farm Tools

Aside from the manufacture and sale of farm implements, the International Harvester Company is recognized as one of the greatest educational forces in favor of the farmers of the United States. Educational and extension work among the farmers is one of the distinct purposes of this nation-wide business organization. In every state in the Union for many years International Harvester Company has co-operated with recognized educational agencies in extending to the farmers various kinds of valuable farm and home educational programs. Only last year Chilton County farmers were the recipients of one of the International Harvester Short Courses on agriculture, in co-operation with the County Farm Bureau and the Farm Demonstration work of the County.

International Harvester Company does not seek to help educate and enlighten farmers with a selfish motive for their own interests. They know that a better educated farmer will buy better farm machinery, but they are willing to take their chances on selling him International Harvester machinery. Mr. Turner illustrated this idea the other day in discussing with the writer the sale of the McCormick-Deering New Four Riding Cultivator. He said: "We are willing to place one of these cultivators in the hands of any farmer alongside any cultivator of another make. We are willing for the farmer to use both of them and make his own selection without any suggestion or sales talk from us. That is how the International Harvester Company thinks of its products, and that illustrates how we feel in allowing the farmer to be free to make his own choice of machinery. We want the farmers to know the advantage they may have by using cultivators and other improved machinery and methods on their farms. Then we are willing for them to choose for themselves between our machinery and other kinds."

The Farmall Tractor is one of the most popular International machines in providing all-purpose power for the farm. Mr. Turner and Mr. Hornsby make a specialty of showing this machine to the farmers. They have sold a number of them in this territory. Only this spring the writer had the privilege of visiting the farm of Mr. W. L. Popwell and seeing a Farmall in operation. It was pulling a huge disc plow, turning under a dense growth of Austrian peas.

About ten years ago International Harvester Company absorbed the Chattanooga Plow Works. They continue to manufacture the Chattanooga line as a distinct part of its farm machinery products. In the list of Chattanooga products are some plows which have gained wide popularity in the South.

Every part of every machine in the International Harvester Company line can be had on short notice thru the Hornsby place here. Repairs are always at hand, and if not available here, can be had through the Birmingham service branch without delay. Plow points and plows for cultivators are items that must necessarily be replaced often. They are carried in stock all the time.

International Motor Trucks have proven to be a very serviceable and very popular machine with many users in this territory. They are sold by the Hornsby place, and are easily serviced through the International Harvester organization.

"The McCormick - Deering New Four Riding Cultivator is one of the most versatile machines we sell," said Mr. James Turner. "Since we opened business here last September there have been 150 New Four Cultivators sold in Pickens, Tuscaloosa, Greene, Sumter, Shelby, Bibb, Chilton, Hale, and Jefferson counties; eighty-three of these were sold in Chilton County. Some of the most successful farmers using this machine are: Horace Popwell, Zeb Mims, Frank Guy, Bob Owens, A. J. Culp, Will Cox, Coosa Land Co., A. R. Robinson, Tom Miner."

"The New Four is a general all-purpose cultivator. The man who uses one is always a booster for it. We would be glad for any farmer to consult the users of these machines. Go and see what your neighbor is doing with it. Let him tell you his opinion about it. We have contracted for 200 New Four Riding Cultivators to be sold to the farmers of Chilton County next year. That is how much we think of the merits of this machine."

Here is a summary of the International Harvester and McCormick-Deering line of implements that are sold by Mr. Turner: Grain binders, reapers, twine; harvester-threshers, windrow harvesters, headers, push binders; mowers and knife grinders; rakes of all types; hay loaders and stackers; hay presses; planters and listers; potato planters and diggers; cultivators for all crops; corn binders and pickers; ensilage cutters; corn shellers and feed grinders; farm trucks; binder twine; all types of plows; all types of tillage inmplements; kerosene engines; tractors; the Farmall Tractor; motor trucks; manure spreaders; threshers; huskers and shredders; cream separators; cane mill machinery; grain drills and lime sowers; stalk cutters.

One of the big advantages which Mr. Hornsby's business offers to the farmers of Chilton County is the purchase of any of this modern machinery on easy terms. Mr. Turner states that any farmer of good credit rating can buy any of the machinery which they sell with an extension of two years time to pay for it. This liberal system of credit of course can be applied only to the purchase of a machine which costs as much as $50 or more.

One of the things which the farmers of Chilton County need most to learn is that their greatest advantage lies in the use of more modern and up-to-date farm machinery. It is true, as Mr. Turnes insists, that "Good equipment makes a good farmer better." Chilton county, we are happy to claim, is one of the best developed counties in Alabama, from an agricultural standpoint. We have many good farmers; but better equipment will make them still better farmers. The business which Mr. Hornsby has established in Clanton, with its judicious management under Mr. James O. Turner, offers a great advantage to our farmers. Through the connection with this concern with International Harvester Company, any farmer can secure the machinery he needs, and there can be no excuse for plodding along with old methods that have been proven worthless and out of date for a generation.

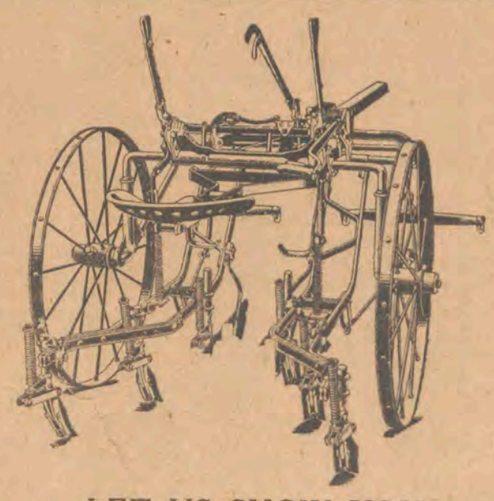
JAMES O. TURNER

The business of C. E. Hornsby, dealer in and distributor of International Harvester Co. and McCormick-Deering farm implements in Clanton, is in charge of Mr. James O. Turner, whose pleasing likeness is presented above by our cartoonist. Mr. Turner is so absorbed with the subject of farm machinery that you can not even look at him without thinking about dozens of the wonderful machines which constitute the International Harvester line. While our cartoonist was drawing Mr. Turner's picture he (Mr. Turner) was so busy talking about farm machines that the cartoonist drew pictures of them all over the paper.

The Hornsby business was started here last Septtember, when Mr. Turner came here from Tuscaloosa as manager of the place. The business is located in the Mullins Building on the Highway back of the store of Mullins & Moore.



"Better Farm Implements," and "Complete Service to the Farmer," are the slogans of Mr. Turner. Since coming here he has become widely acquainted with the farmers of Chilton County. He has made a thorough study of farm needs, and is able and capable in advising any farmer correctly on the important subject of farm machinery.

The essence of Mr. Turner's business methods is summed up in these words which we quote from a recent conversation with him: When we sell a farmer a machine, we are not through with him. We are required to see that he gets satisfaction and profitable service from his machine. In other words, we see that every machine we sell really works."

The farm machine business of International Harvester Co. is one of the oldest and biggest concerns in the United States. The factor of service to its customers has always been uppermost in the plans of this great business organization. They recognize the fact that "Good equipment makes a good farmer better."

The C. E. Hornsby business in Clanton is authorized exclusive dealers for International Harvester and McCormick-Deering in Chilton County. Mr. Hornsby has a similar business for Bibb County at Centreville. There is represented in the line of Mr. Hornsby 53 complete and distinct types of farming equipment, all manufactured, sold, and serviced through the International Harvester Company organization.

Mr. Turner is assisted in the business here by Miss Mattie Maud Brandon, who has charge of the office work. Miss Brandon came here from Tuscaloosa several months ago to accept the position she has with the C. E. Hornsby business.

MRS LIZZIE WILLIAMS

On June 12th, 1930, God in His wisdom, called to her long-looked-for and needed rest the sweet and holy spirit of Mrs. Lizzie Williams. She would have been 74 years old in a short time.

God knew that she had stayed here long enough, so as soon as her body began to tire of her earthly labors, He knew that she had completed her task and had been with us long enough. So to her He said: "Mother Williams, you need your rest, and I need you; come, your crown is waiting and a bright and shining one it is, for you have lived such a Christian life and done so many kind and loving deeds, there was not a place for another star.

She loved her church and her home and her children, and they in return loved her, with a love that they could rise up and call her "blessed." It will take years for the void to heal which has been left by her going; but let her life be such an example that you will strive so hard to live. You will never go wrong to follow her every step. When you come to cross over death's dark river, you will then be ready like she was.

The large crowd and flowers and the sweet words that were spoken of her showed that everyone loved her. She was sick such a short time before God called her home—about 24 hours. There was nothing left undone that could be done to ease her every pain. But when God calls, the work of man fails. She was laid to rest at Liberty Hill, Rev. J. D. Hughes and Rev. A. L. Foshee conducting the funeral.

We feel so sorrowful and so sad,
We feel so all alone;
Nothing makes us glad
Since mother has gone.

Our hearts are almost broken,
Our days so long and dreary;
Everything seems so different
Without mother.

She always met us with a smile,
She left us with a kiss;
But these we will miss
Without mother.

God from us has taken
The mother to us He had given;
Her body's sleeping here
But her soul is safe in heaven.

—Mrs. J. L. Scroggins.

Tom Ogletree will be able to leave Central Alabama Hospital this week. He will go to the home of his brother at Mitchell Dam.

FAVORS O. H. McDOWELL FOR MEMBER OF COUNTY BOARD

Dear Voters:

I have a few words I want to say in favor of a friend of mine, O. H. McDowell, who is in the race for member of the County Board of Education.

I have known Mr. McDowell all his life, and have always found him to be honest and truthful in every way. He is a progressive citizen and is well qualified for the office he is asking for.

Jemison and Thorsby communities have a representative on the Board, while Mr. McDowell's community has never had one. I believe it is fair to give his community a representative on the Board. Knowing him and his qualification as I do, I ask for the voters to give him their vote and influence. It will be greatly apreciated. I thank you. — W. H. Wilson.

Messrs. C. E. Lucas and J. L. Mixon of the Bank of Thorsby were business visitors to Clanton Monday afternoon.

ALL DAY SERVICE AT CLANTON FOURSQUARE CHURCH SUCCESS

The all-day service at the Foursquare church of Clanton last Sunday was a grand success. A fairly good crowd was on hand, although bad weather conditions kept some away. In the forenoon Judge L. H. Reynolds made a fine talk, mainly to the young people, but it was enjoyed by young and old alike.

At noon a bountiful dinner was spread under the trees on the church grounds.

In the afternoon Judge R. M. Honeycutt spoke to the audience, delivering a fine message, and one greatly enjoyed.

People from several neighboring churches were on hand all day, making it a real, old-time, get-together affair. Using the words of one man who attended, the whole day might be summed up thus: "It was a great day with good talks, good singing, good dinner, good everything—except for the showery weather; although the earnest audience was too much interested in the day's proceedings to let that stand in the way of the enjoyment of the occasion."

J. P. Montgomery of Jemison was in Clanton Monday.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

THE HOLY SPIRIT

Come Holy Spirit, heavenly dove, with all thy quickening power,
Come shed abroad a Saviour's love, and that shall kindle ours.

His love within us shed abroad,
life's ever-springing well,
Till God in us, and we in God, in love eternal dwell.

The reformed catechism was written in the Jerusalem chamber in the great Westminster Abbey in the city of London. In this catechism the answer to the question how many persons in the Godhead? It is this: "There are three persons in the Godhead, namely: The Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. These three are one God the same in substance, equal in power and in glory."

Someone has said and we repeat it that God the Father planned how you and I could be saved, redeemed from sin and its direful consequences and Jesus Christ worked out that plan in His sinless birth, life and death on Calvary's cross just outside Jerusalem the holy city. The Holy Spirit applies this redeeming blood, this blood which came ont of a broken heart, out of the broken heart of Jesus Christ which was broken on account of the burden of the sins of the whole world nearly two thousand years ago on Golgotha.

I want you to think about the Holy Spirit and study His work. The Holy Spirit is a person. The Holy Spirit is an eternal person. The plan of salvation was before the foundation of the world. The blood of Jesus Christ was shed before the foundation of the world. The Holy Spirit is mentioned in the letter to the Hebrews and to us as being eternal. The Holy Spirit is all powerful. He was at work in the creation, "And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters, and God said, 'Let there be light'".

When man was made the expression in Genesis reads this way, "God said, 'Let us make man in our image, after our likeness.'" That is, there were more than one person in the making of man and breathing into his nostrils the breath of life. The Holy Spirit is ominipresent. That is, the Holy Spirit of God is everywhere. The Holy Spirit is omniscient. That is, the Holy Spirit leadeth into all truth. "He will guide you into all truth. But God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit. For the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God. He shall testify of me."

The Holy Spirit is the regenerative agency of God. So we read in John 3:5, 6 "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. The Holy Spirit opens the eyes of understanding of the awakened, trusting sinner and shows him the all-powerfulness and all-sufficiency of Christ to save his soul. In this 3rd chapter of the Gospel according to John we can clearly see that the work of the Holy Spirit is absolutely necessary in the regeneration and conversion of perishing souls.

The same power that created the world and all things therein, the same power that calms the storms, the same power that casts out devils, the same power that overcome the world is the power that touches and changes the human heart. "Except a man be born again he cannot see God." The Holy Spirit beareth witness to Jesus Christ and the things of Jesus Christ and brings sinners to Him. The word of God is applied to our hearts by the Holy Spirit. "But God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit; for the Spirit searchth all things, yea, the deep things of God."

The Holy Spirit is inspirational. That is, the power of God in men's lives is due to the work of he Holy Spirit. This we know is true because God's word teaches us that the Holy Spirit moved upon the prophets and patriarchs of old to give their messages to us. "For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man; but holy men of God spake as they moved by the Holy Spirit."—2 Peter, 1:21.

I ask you to just pause and think of how we are dealing with God. The Holy Spirit the agent of the Father and of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ in the salvation of lost souls from sin was at work in Old Testament history in the creation and in the time of the deluge. Certainly His work in the time of the deluge should be a warning to us against wandering so far away from God's presence into sin if we would have God's Spirit with us and so be saved. God said to those worldly, wicked people in the time of Noah, "My spirit shall not always strive with man." We ourselves determine the presence of God's Spirit in our hearts and lives. We must have an open ear and heart to the teachings of the Holy Spirit and so glorify Christ.

The Spirit of God came upon the prophets and patriarchs of old and gave them power in their accomplishments and attainments. We read that the Spirit of God came upon Gideon, Samson, Shamgar, and many others when they did great things to the honor and glory of God. You read in a number of the minor prophets writings that God says, "Not by power nor by might, by army, but by my Spirit saith the Lord of hosts." We would not forget that we are now studying a person, a powerful person.

When Joel comes and prophesies in such words as these: "I will pour out my blood upon all flesh; and your sons and daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions; and also upon the servant and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit," we find that this prophecy was literally fulfilled in that upper room in Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost. When Jesus ascended to the right hand of the Father near Bethany on the Mount of Olives He left a promise of power, the Holy Spirit, with the disciples that on their part they tarry in Jerusalem for its fulfillment. After waiting in a ten day's prayer meeting the Holy Spirit came as Jesus had promised.

Did you ever stop to think of how the Spirit of God was at work in the birth of Christ? In the hill country of Galilee the Holy Spirit came upon Mary a virgin, and the power of the highest overshadowed her, and the Holy thing which would be born of her would be Jesus, the Saviour of the world from sin. The Spirit of God was the agent in the conception in the womb and birth of this Jesus Christ of a virgin, Mary of the hill country of Galilee.

Then think of the Holy Spirit over His twenty-eight or twenty-nine years of life in Nazareth His home in the hill country of Galilee. We read that the child grew and waxed strong in the Spirit. I see Him there a young man now twenty-eight years old going to hear His cousin John preach in the wilderness of Judea. There He is baptised of John, and the record is that the Spirit of God descended upon Him in the form of a dove, and a voice from heaven came saying, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." Can the Father say that about you under the influence of the Holy Spirit: "This is my beloved son in whom I am well pleased?" O if you and I could be well pleasing with the Spirit of God poured out upon us in the sight of our heavenly Father.

God is speaking to us by and thru His Holy Spirit when we read His record in the Old and New Testaments. If you read the Bible last night and this morning He is speaking to you there by His Holy Spirit. We may feel so far away from His Holy Spirit, and sometimes are far away from Him yet He is so willing to give us the Holy Spirit as our guide into all truth. Just listen how willing God is to give us the Holy Spirit when he says, "If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children; how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him?" Luke 11:13.

We notice in the above words of the Master He uses the expression "Heavenly Father." He had used the same expression on the Mount of Beautitudes when the disciples asked Him to teach them how to pray. Jesus said, "Pray our Father in heaven." Then on Calvary nailed to that rugged cross Jesus lifted up His voice to heaven and said, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." And now He says to us, "Your heavenly Father will give the Holy Spirit to them who ask Him." Are you asking Him to give you the influence of His Holy Spirit over your life to guide you into all truth?

Again we read of the Holy Spirit in such words as these: "Thy love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit." Then the agent to shed this love of God abroad in our hearts and lives is His Holy Spirit. The love of God from the heart of God is shed abroad in our hearts by His agent the Holy Spirit. Then think of the old hymn: "Guide me, O thou great Jehovah," and another, "The Comforter is come." This Comforter is the Holy Spirit which Jesus Christ prayed the Father to send us.

Just be prayerful and think about the fact that we have tried everything but his power. You and I are born again from above of the Spirit, and this Holy Spirit comes into our lives to guide us into all truth, to take of the things of Christ and show them unto us. O God I pray thee to grant us this influence this day for Juses' sake.

To Identify Genuine Aspirin

The increasing use of Bayer Aspirin every year is proof that it has no ill effects. It is the accepted antidote for pain. It always helps; never harms; is safe to use freely as often as it is needed. Quick relief whenever you've a headache, or cold; or are suffering from neuralgia or neuritis. The distressing pains of rheumatism yield, too, if you'll only give these tablets a chance. Milk

Read this item from the Mt. Vernon, Illinois, Register News:

"In St. Louis this week, milk became so scarce that deliveries were made only to families in which there were children, by some of the dairy companies. The trucks could not come with the milk and other food supplies, but the railroads can still hit the ball in the pinch and the trains came rolling in with the food for the people. With their own crews, the railroads cleared their own right-of-ways and the trains moved even during the worst of the storm, with half frozen railroad men in the cabs and in the cabooses."

On the income account of the L. & N., this event is recorded by a tiny figure listed as "milk" under the heading "All Other Transportation." Its importance is more clearly indicated by the news item just quoted.

Railroads receive money in the form of freight, passenger, and other revenues and pay it out in the forms of service, employment, community development, wages, etc. On the receipt of adequate railway income and sensible limitations of railway taxes and restrictions, depend to a great extent the prosperity, growth, employment, and general welfare of the communities through which the railroads pass.

Lesson for June 22

THE RISEN LORD AND THE GREAT COMMISSION

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations.
LESSON TEXT—Matthew 28:1-20.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Carrying On Jesus' Work.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Our Marching Orders.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Marching Orders.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Great Commission.

I. The Empty Sepulchre (vv. 1-7).

1. The earthquake (vv. 1-4). This occurred when the glorious angel descended from heaven to roll the stone away from the tomb. This work of the angel was not to allow Jesus to escape, but to show that the tomb was empty. Christ needed not even the help of the angel, for He came forth from the grave by His own power as the seal of His atoning work on the cross (Rom. 1:4). The open tomb and the angel sitting upon the stone with calm dignity, is a graphic picture of Christ's triumph over the devil, and the terror of the keepers is a sample of what all of Christ's enemies shall one day experience when He comes in glory to reign as King.

2. The angel's message to the women (vv. 5-7).

(1) Fear not (v. 5). While the enemies had occasion to fear, these women who loved the Lord received good news from the empty tomb. The empty tomb puts an end forever to all doubts and fears. Let every teacher endeavor to show the greatness of the fact that the tomb was empty, for it shows that we have a living Christ. The resurrection of Christ should be the major theme of those who give out the Christian message. (2) "Come see" (v. 6). The angel told the women that the Lord had risen and invited them to see the place where He lay. The Lord made special effort to convince the disciples of the reality of His resurrection. He remained with them for forty days, giving them many "infallible proofs." (3) "Go quickly" (v. 7). Having seen for themselves their responsibility was to go and tell the message. Experience is necessary before testimony. They were to go quickly to the disciples with the message, assured that the Lord would go before and meet them.

II. The Risen Lord Meets the Women (vv. 8-10).

The women quickly obeyed the command of the angel, and were running to bring word to the disciples. Jesus met them on the way. Those who have an experimental knowledge of Christ should go speedily to tell others of it. When they saw Jesus—that He was really the Lord—they worshiped Him.

III. Paying Money to Circulate a Lie (vv. 11-15).

That Jesus arose from the dead could not be denied even by the Sanhedrin. They saw only one way out of the difficulty; that was to bribe the keepers to tell a lie. They had paid money for His betrayal—now they paid more money to circulate a lie about His resurrection. This shows the wonderful power that money has over the lives and consciences of men. It not only induces people to lie, but it even muzzles the mouths of some teachers and preachers.

IV. The King's Great Commission (vv. 16-20).

1. The royal authority (v. 18).

By virtue of His divine authority, He issued this command to the disciples. In order to prepare them for the reception of this command, He declared unto them that all power in heaven and earth had been given unto Him.

2. The commission itself (vv. 19, 20).

It consists of three parts. (1) Go teach all nations. This is the first and primary business of the disciple. This command has been issued to all disciples by the risen and mighty Lord. (2) Baptize them in the name of the triune God. Those who have become disciples of the Lord should receive the rite which signifies that relationship to Him. (3) Teach them to observe all of Christ's commandments (v. 20). Those who have become Christ's disciples should be taught conformity to His will.

3. The available power (v. 2).

CHEVROLET MAKES RECORD RUN, MEXICO CITY, CHICAGO

Chicago, Ill., June 16.—An outstanding achievement of the current mooring season was recorded here recently with arrival of J. M. Griffith from Mexico City, in 138 hours of running time, in a 1922 Chevrolet touring car with five passengers.

Although nearing 64, Mr. Griffith drove every inch of the distance himself. After stopping off here two weeks, he proceeded to Detroit where he inspected several automobile plants and the General Motors proving ground, and then was impatient to be off on the long trek home to resume his occupation as mechanical engineer.

Leaving Mexico City on April 30, the party covered the 929 miles to the border, crossed at Laredo, and proceeded to Chicago and Detroit with no mishaps other han two stopovers, one for tire repairs and one, at San Antonio, for carbon removal and replacement of three exhaust valves in the eight-year-old car. The log of the trip, as reported by Mr. Griffith, provides statistics of interest to those contemplating a lengthy tour this summer.

Distance (Mexico City to Chicago) 2,514 miles; running time, 137.5 hours; average speed 18.28 miles per hour; gasoline consumption, 96.6 gallons; miles per gallon 26; cost of gasoline, $33.75; oil and greasing, $6.25; repairs to car, including tire expenses and personal items, was $51.50, or at the rate of one-third cent a mile for each person in the car.

Despite the age of his Chevrolet, Mr. Griffith said that he started on the tour with no doubt as to the venerable old-timer's ability to cover the distance without trouble. In driving around Mexico City, prior to the start of the tour, the car was constantly being called upon to climb mountain passes up to 12,000 feet.

The speedometer had registered 28,000 kilometers before leaving Mexico. After spending several days here, following his return from Detroit, Mr. Griffih nosed his car toward the South, and started out on the return trip as nonchalantly as though his destination were only a few miles out of town or his car were a new 1930 six cylinder model.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Manning of Isabella were visitors to Clanton Monday. Mr. Manning attended the stockholders meeting of Central Alabama Hospital.

REV. M. LOCKHART WRITES IN MEMORY OF J. L. McDOWELL

On the fifth day of June, 1930, at 4:30 o'clock death summoned our beloved brother, J. L. McDowell, to that home beyond this vale of tears. Mr. McDowell lived in Poplar Springs community where he spent the greater part of his life. He attached himself to Poplar Springs Missionary Baptist church when he was 19 years of age. Thirty-seven years ago he was married to Miss Anna Easterling, about the date of his conversion. Bro. McDowell loved his home church and community, and resolved to keep them on an upward trend. He was also a deacon of Poplar Springs church, to which he proved himself most worthy.

We could not attribute any more to our deceased brother than to say "He was a good man." Bro. McDowell bore his sufferings well. He took his bed on the 23rd day of February, this year. He suffered with pellagra and Bright's disease. All was done that doctors and nurses could do to restore his natural and much wanted health, but God who doeth all things well took the cross and gave the crown.

It seems that it would be leaving out a link just here to fail to mention the untiring efforts of Miss Luella McDowell, who is to be commended for her faithful service as a nurse. Bro. McDowell planned his own funeral program. The program is as follows: Bro. W. P. Lowery, his pastor, to preach the funeral, the writer to stand at the head of his casket and repeat the 23rd Psalm and say the Lord's Prayer. Three songs were to be used: "Shall we Gather at the River?," "In the Sweet By and By," and "God be With you till we Meet again. Also a quartet was to be used, which was nicely arranged by W. M. Devaughn, the title "He Prayed."

On account of sickness, Bro. Lowery could not fill his place on the program, so it was taken by Bro. B. Lawrence. The remains were buried at Poplar Springs, Martin in charge.

He is survived by his beloved companion and nine children, seven girls and two boys. Five chuldren preceded him to the grave.

I shall never forget the impression Bro. McDowell made upon me while sitting by his bedside. The words were not so striking but the repetition of the same word is what impressed the writer. It is this: "Let nothing, nothing, nothing lead you astray." Weep not, loved ones, we can't bring him back, but we can go to him. One who loved him.—M. Lockhart.

SERVICES OF REV. NORRIS OFFERED TO REVIVAL MEETS

Rev. Ephriam E. Norris of Corinth was in Clanton one day last week, and in conversation with The Banner man said:

"Would like to get you to announce that Rev. Ben Dykes of Louisville Seminary will help me at my church at Thelma in Elmore County, beginning the fourth Sunday in July, also at Liberty in Autauga County beginning the first Sunday in August. We are expecting great meetings at both these places. Rev. Dykes helped me here last year.

Prof. J. P. Montgomery, of Jemison, reports that there is a great wave of interest in playing tennis at Jemison. A court has been made by the Baptist and Presbyterian Churches, and everybody, young and old, is taking part in this splendid form of recreation and entertainment.

According to Mr. Montgomery, there will be some championship teams developed there this summer, as soon as practice can be carried a little farther.

The Presbyterian court is lighted for night playing.

EUELL HYMAN DIED IN MOBILE

Son Of Dr. E. G. Hyman Said To Be Victim Of Heart Attack Saturday

Word was received in Clanton Saturday of the death of Euell G. Hyman, at Mobile. The following account is given in The Mobile Register of Sunday:

The Waterman steamship West Zeda sailed Saturday afternoon for London and the continent with her flag at half-mast, out of respect for Euell G. Hyman, a member of the crew, who lost his life a few minutes before the ship was ready to start on her long voyage.

The young man, a picture of perfect health, was standing on the bulwarks of the ship lashing some of the deck load of timber when he was heard to groan and seen to clasp his hand over his heart, then fall into the water. He was known to be a good swimmer, but he never came to the surface after striking the water. Life preservers were thrown into the water immediately and some members of the crew jumped in to attempt to rescue, but the body was not located until it had been in the water ten or twelve minutes.

Dr. Toxey Haas and the ambulance from the City Hospital and Higgins and Conditt, undertakers, responded promptly to the call for assistance and brought pulmoters with them. It was said that there was no water in the lungs and the young man had died of heart failure and could not be resuscitated.

Euell Hyman was born and reared in Clanton; was the son of Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Hyman. Though but 19 years of age, he has been going to sea for fifteen months. He has two sisters, Miss Tiny Hyman of Clanton and Mrs. Hugh Griffith. Among his effects are said to have been examination papers showing that he was preparing to take the examination for third mate as soon as he returned from the present voyage. He was popular with his shipmates, and his untimely death cast a gloom over the entire crew.

(From Troy Messenger)

The body of E. G. Hyman, Jr., arrived here from Mobile this morning at 8:30 o'clock and was carried to the home of his uncle, Cosmer Hyman on Montgomery Street, where the funeral services will be conducted at five o'clock this afternoon by Dr. F. L. Hardy, pastor of the Fisrt Baptist Church. Beautiful hymns, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and "Rest for the Weary," will be sung by Mrs. Jape Chaffin, Mrs. Key Murphree, Jake Chaffin and Albert Williams. Interment will take place at Oakwood cemetery with Wood in charge.

Active ball bearers: Cunie Lattuille, Otis Childs, H. O. Williams, James Thompson, Fred Hall and James Fowler.

Honorary Pall bearers: S. A. Williams, Lamar Jernigan, J. D. Murphree, Charlie Brown, Abe Rosenberg, Victor Balako, Dr. Hugh Thornton McKinnon, Judge T. L. Borom, Robert McGehee, Cleve Youngblood, Judge John Gamble, Judge J. G. Key, S. W. Gellerstedt, Dr. J. S. Beard and Dr. Eugene Chapman.

The following friends of the Hyman family in Clanton attended the funeral in Troy: Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Smith, D. A. Wingard, J. P. Lawrence, Joe Earle Gowan, John Ponder Lawrence.

DR. AUSTIN TALKS ABOUT HEALTH UNIT

Dr. Austin, of the State Department of Health, was in Clanton last Thursday, filling an engagement at noon with the Kiwanis Club, at which time he spoke concerning the establishment of a health unit for Chilton County.

Dr. Austin's address covered the operation of all time health units as they are conducted in all but about three of Alabama's counties. From this discussion he presented very impressively the needs of Chilton County for such a unit.

Present with the Kiwanis Club and hearing the address of Dr. Austin were Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, and Mr. J. L. Burnett, member of the Commissioner's Court. After the conclusion of the address of Dr. Austin, Judge Reynolds had a few words to say on the subject. He concluded his remarks by saying that if the Kiwanis Club or any other agency in the county would prove to the Commissioners Court that a majority of the people of the county want a health unit, the Commissioners would make the necessary appropriation for it without delay.

MITCHELL DAM GIRL SCOUTS WRITE FROM GRANDVIEW

"Camp Grandview, June 23.

The girls from Mitchell Dam who attended Girl Scouts camp at Grandview are: Ethel Cagle, Sue Sharp, Sarah Hollis and Mavis Miller. We have been here only a little over a week, and we are having a grand time. All of us except Mavis Miller will be here the remainder of this week; we were sorry that Mavis could not be with us longer.

We have learned lots about Scouting while here; this was the purpose of the encampment. We have taken advantage of everything that came our way. The things we enjoy most are the two swims a day which we get, and the morning dip.

We wish to say that Miss Rimson, the Scout Executive, has spent much time and taken much pains with us in instructions and otherwise, which we certainly appreciate.

There are eighty-eight campers here, and the Mitchell Dam girls have made lots of friends among them. We are going to make the last week of camp the best of all. We are planning on coming home Sunday, June 30th."

RED CROSS AID IS ASKED IN GEORGIA

About 300 Farmers Face Entire Loss Of Crops From Storms

Moultrie, Ga., June 23—An appeal for aid was wired Monday to the national headquarters of the Red Cross in behalf of farmers who suffered heavy crop losses and other property damage in severe wind and hailstorms that struck a dozen Georgia counties over the week-end.

Estimating that the damage in the four counties heardest hit, Colquitt, Worth, Thomas and Mitchell, would aggregate $500,000 and that some 300 farmers had a total loss of their crops, the local Red Cross Chapter asked that an emergency relief fund be made available and a rehabilitation representative be sent to the stricken area.

Although only one death, that of an unidentified negro, had been reported, watermelon, tobacco, corn and cotton crops were virtually destroyed in some sections of what constitutes one of the state's most prosperous farming belts. The negro was found dead in the wreckage of a house in Lincoln County.

A survey of an 8,000-acre plantation, located 10 miles south of Thomasville and owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney of New York revealed that numerous fields of corn, cotton, peanuts and melons were stripped of their crops, and in bottom lands rows of large hailstones were still banked up Monday. Occupants of negro tenant houses said pigs, chickens, birds and small animals were killed in large numbers by the hail.

Two other distinct sections of the state felt the violence of the storm—Laurens, Candler, Emanuel and Bullock Counties in the East Central part, and Wilkes and Lincoln Counties along the Northeast border.

The city of Tifton also was buffeted by high wind, which blew out plate glass windows in the business section and unroofed several buildings.

BIG TIME HERE FOURTH OF JULY

Program Being Made Under Auspices Of Ladies Of Methodist Church

As the days go by the Fourth of July draws nearer and nearer, and plans for the Fourth of July Celebration in Clanton are getting more nearly completed.

Announcement has been made that a group of men of the Methodist church have agreed to help the ladies out by furnishing enough barbecued meat to feed a thousand people. This of course will be in addition to many barbecued chickens which will be prepared.

As stated last week, the center of attraction for the day will be the Chilton County High School grounds where there are plenty of big shade trees, providing a delightful place.

The invitation that has been extended to the political candidates to speak here on that day has brought forth a hearty response. The committee on arrangements are making their plans whereby every candidate and every prominent speaker from over the State will have a chance to address the crowds.

Judge B. M. Miller, one of the leading candidates for Governor, will speak at 11 o'clock. Governor Bibb Graves will speak at 10 o'clock, followed by Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer. Governor Graves and Dr. Baker will talk on the subject of a health unit for Chilton County.

Senator John Rogers of Sumter County will be here and make a talk some time during the day. Among the other candidates and afficials who have signified their intention of coming are Attorney General Charlie McCall, Bill Allgood and Sidney H. Blan. All candidates will be given an equal chance to make an address to the voters on this occasion.

The Fourth of July celebration in Clanton is the only occasion of the kind being planned in this section of the State, so far as the committee knows. It will be advertised widely in every central Alabama county, and a great many people are expected here from Shelby, Dallas, Bibb, Autauga, Elmore, Montgomery, Jefferson and Coosa counties.

"All roads lead to Clanton, and every road a good road," is the reminder that is being sent to all parts of the State, with the invitation of Clanton to come and spend the day in our city.

Application Of Communities Should Be Sent In Right Away

Prof. H. A. Harris, manager of the Opportunity Schools for Chilton County, states this week that he is now ready to receive applications from communities wishing to have one of the Opportunity Schools this summer. He has already received a number of applications, and will begin to work out details in the next week with those communities which will get the schools.

Prof. Harris plans to begin these schools either July 14 or 21, preferably the 14th, if arrangements can be completed by that time. Any community which wants one of the schools should make application to him at once.

Returning from the State Conference at the University of Alabama last week, Mr. Harris reports that interest in the Opportunity Schools work in the several counties is very good. The success of these schools in the past has been very gratifying to educational authorities, and of tremendous advantage to those people who have taken advantage of them.

The Union-Banner continues its appeal for subscriptions to make up the necessary amount of funds to pay for the schools of Chilton County this year. As stated before, it is necessary to raise the amount of $58.75 by popular subscription. All who may wish to help out in this fund are invited to send in your contribution. The following donations have been received:

WILSONVILLE GETS $1,000 PER WEEK FROM POULTRY FARMS

Thirty years ago one farm woman, Mrs. J. L. Baker, Wilsonville, Ala., started a poultry business in her community, which is today bringing farmers and farm women of this same community from $750 to $1,000 per week.

Yes, $750 to $1,000 per week, despite the fact that everybody else in the country is complaining about "Hard Times." This money is going to some 40 farm homes in the Fourmile community in the County of Shelby, and the poultry is produced as a side line to other farm activities of the community.

Thirty years ago Mr. and Mrs. Baker were married. At that time a friend gave them 13 hens. Being anxious to help her husband make a success on the farm, Mrs. Baker set all thirteen of the hens and grew a large number of chickens, most of which she and her husband carried to Wilsonville and exchanged for enough groceries for the following year. Today Mr. and Mrs. Baker are in partnership growing poultry. Seeing the success of Mr. and Mrs. Baker, 40 other farmers are today growing chickens successfully. The poultry and eggs are trucked to Birmingham on a co-operative basis.

EZELL GONE TO GUIN FOR REVIVAL

Rev. S. J. Ezell, pastor of Clanton Baptist Church, left Wednesday for Guin, Alabama, where he will conduct a revival meeting for about ten days.

In his absence there will be no preaching service at the Clanton Baptist Church next Sunday and Sunday night. Sunday School, B. Y. P. U., and all other auxiliary activities will be held as usual.

DEVAUGHNS WILL TEACH SINGING SCHOOL AT THOMAS

Profs. W. M. and O. L. Devaughn have authorized The Union-Banner to carry the announcement that they will teach a singing school at the Thomas Junior High School building, beginning on Monday, July 7. The school will run for 18 days.

The tuition charges will be the same as last year. This is the second school that these gentlemen have taught at this place, the school last year proving a very satisfactory success both to the teachers and to the patrons of the community.

O. L. and W. M. Devaughn are recognized as among the best teachers in Chilton County, and with the union of their strengths as instructors and disciplinarians, in a progressive and prosperous community like Thomas, the school can be nothing short of a success.

Quite a number of boarding pupils went to their school last year, and it is anticipated that there will be even more this year. Reasonable board rates can be had in close proximity to the school by those who live too far away to go home at night.

Either of the above named gentlemen will be glad to figure with and explain the details of the school to anyone interested.

CITIZENS DONATE QUARTER MILLION TO BUILDINGS

During 1929-30 there was spent in Alabama for the erection, the repair, and the equipment of school buildings $1,868,122.86, according to a statement contained in the recently released report of the State Superintendent to the Board of Education. Of this amount $253,770.02, or 13.5 per cent was donated by private citizens who, in the language of the report, are described as "being least able to bear" the financial burden thus imposed upon them.

But even with such splendid donations from interested citizens the buildings were provided only by sacrificing certain educational standards. For example, as shown in the report mentioned, $1,095,762.23, or 58.6 per cent of the total amount, was pledged from funds that had been intended for maintaining the schools, and for lengthening the school term. The report says "This is a serious matter. In many counties the building problem became so acute that school officials were very much concerned and something had to be done to provide better buildings."

Prof. O. L. Devaughn wishes the folks to keep in mind the all day singing at Maple Springs next Sunday, the fifth Sunday in June. He is expecting a great day, and extends an invitation to everybody to come and spend the day with them.

GUESSING GAME WAS INTERESTING

Block Of Ice Melted In 39 Hours and Five Minutes

The contest held last Saturday by the Nehi Bottling Co., received a hearty response from hundreds of people who took a guess at how long it would take the 300-pound block of ice to melt. The ice was placed in the show window at Clanton Cash Store where everybody could see it. There was all sorts of speculation and guessing as to when it would finally yield to the pressure of the intense heat that prevailed throughout Saturday and Sunday.

Thirty-nine hours and five minutes after it was placed in the window, the last of the ice had changed into water. Mr. White, of the Nehi Bottling Company, was there watching to record the exact number of minutes. Although it required him to keep a rather late hour Sunday night, he stayed with the job in order that he could properly check the guesses, many of which were made to the fraction of a second.

When the guesses had been checked, it was found that E. N. Thomas, of Clanton Route 2, and J. E. Easterling, of Clanton, had each guessed exactly 39 hours. The next nearest guess was 38 hours and 35 minutes, made by John Thomas Marler, of Clanton.

There are three prizes to be awarded the three nearest guesses. As the nearest guesses were a tie, E. N. Thomas and J. E. Easterling will have to "cut" for the first prize. The other will get second, and the third will go to John Thomas Marler.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES WILL BE ELECTED

Patrons Asked To Send Names Of Six Persons To County Board

Calling the attention of school patrons of the county to the nomination and election of school trusees to be made in the near future, Couny Superintendent of Education, Buford Lawrence, makes the following statement:

"Section 133, Article 6, of the School Code of 1927, provides that the County Board of Education shall appint for every school of the county, from six discreet, competent, and reliable persons of mature years, nominated by the patrons of said school, three persons residing near the schoolhouse and having the respect and confidence of the community, to serve as trustees of the school.

"The County Board would be very glad if the Code provided that three trustees should be selected by the patrons of the respective schools; but since this is not true, we are asking that the patrons meet at the respective schoolhouses of the county on Friday night, July 11, at 7:30, for the porpose of nominating six persons from whom the County Board will select three persons to serve as trostees. As soon as the meeting has been held, please have someone to report to the County Board of Education at once the names of those nominated."

From the above, it is made clear how the patrons shall proceed in securing their trusees. They meet and nominate six persons for trustees. Then the County Board will select three out of the six, whom they will designate as trustees of the school.

It is interesting to note that the County Superintendent says that the County Board would be very glad if the Code provided that three trustees should be elected by the patrons of the respective schools. Such a plan of securing trustees would very doubtless be more satisfactory to the patrons in general.

There is a popular belief among the people of the county that the patrons should have the authority to elect their trustees. Some of the candidates for the School Board have expressed themselves in favor of that plan. Such expressions are all right. But a candidate for the School Board is assuming too much for himself if he represents to the voters that he will advocate this plan when he gets into office. His advocacy of such a plan when he gets into office will not mean anything, except that he, along with everybody else, will be advocating a thing that ccannot be done under the laws of the State.

On this point of controversy, the County Board of Education is helpless to do as they might wish, just as is the case on many other matters in connection with our schools. Many of the objections to our school business, if properly fixed, will be found to rest not with the County Board but in the laws of the State, under which any man, if a member of the Board will be helpless to do as he would like to do, but will be required to follow the plan of the State law.

DENT GREEN RECOVERS

Montgomery, Ala., June 23.—Dent F. Green, state superintendent of banks, was at home Monday following two weeks in a Montgomery hospital, where he underwent an appendicitis operation.

He was reported to have recuperated rapidly, and during the day disposed of official business which had accumulated during his illness.

REV. H. CARROL PREACHED AT FRIENDSHIP SUNDAY NIGHT

Rev. Homer Carroll, the young preacher of Liberty Hill, preached in Rev. Foshee's stead at Friendship church last Sunday night. Rev. Carroll delivered an excellent sermon, which was enjoyed by all present.

There will be no preaching at this place next regular time, the fourth Sunday in July, inasmuch as the revival will begin the following Sunday—the first Sunday in August.

Mr. John Headley of Mt. Pleasant community presented a peculiar egg to The Union-Banner last week. It was a small egg inside a large egg. The small was intact and was grown to a piece of shell of the large egg. F. S. Headley of Greazy Ridge brought in a funny bessy bug Saturday. It seemed to be a cross between a bessy bug and a craw fish. Curious things do happen.

Lesson for June 29

REVIEW: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM CONTINUED

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Making Jesus Known.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Believing in Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Shall I do with Jesus?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of Christian Discipleship.

The plan of review must always be determined by the teacher in the light of the grade of the school and the aptitudes of the pupils. For senior and adult classes the best method will be to recall that all the lessons of the quarter are from the book of Matthew, which has as its theme Jesus Christ, the Messianic King, and His Kingdom, and to present each lesson in its relation to this central purpose. The lessons have a threefold unity, namely, one book, one theme, one person.

Lesson for April 6. To prepare the disciples for the dark hour of the cross, Jesus sought to lead them to a clear apprehension of His purpose and mission. After Peter's confession of Him as the Messiah, Jesus showed to the disciples that He must come into His place of triumph through the tragedy of the cross.

Lesson for April 13. The greatest in the kingdom are those who possess childlike humility. The condition of entrance into the kingdom is true conversion, or birth from above.

Lesson for April 20. In this lesson we have divine instruction as to behavior in case of ill-treatment. Those who are Christlike shall suffer persecution. Those who have entered the kingdom by birth from above—those who have received forgiveness from God—will forgive their fellows.

Lesson for April 27. Riches are deceitful. Possessors thereof are prone to put their trust in them. It is most difficult for those who are rich to give place to spiritual things.

Lesson for May 4. Those who would be greatest in the kingdom should, like Christ the King, take the place of self-abasement. In love, Christ gave Himself for others. He substituted "the greatness of love for the love of greatness."

Lesson for May 11. To the nation which rejected Jesus as King and was endeavoring to kill Him, at the appointed time, in the councils of God, He officially presented Himself as King, in fulfillment of prophecy.

Lesson for May 18. Under the figure of a marriage, Jesus set forth the privileges and benefits of the kingdom. He used marriage, the highest ideal of love and friendship known to man, to show the benefits of the kingdom.

Lesson for May 25. In the Olivet discourse Jesus outlined the events in the world to take place in the interval between His crucifixion and His second coming. The parable of the ten virgins shows the right behavior of believers in this present age in view of the coming of the Lord.

Lesson for June 1. By talents is meant whatever faculties and powers one possesses as God's gifts, such as physical strength, reason, knowledge, speech, song, or money. All these should be employed so as to honor God who gave them. A reckoning time is coming when account shall be rendered for their use. This will be at Christ's second coming.

Lesson for June 8. Mary of Bethany, because of her keen apprehension, saw that the Lord's body would be broken and that His precious life would go out at a time when no one could lovingly minister to Him. She therefore anointed Him as against that dread day. When the disciples criticised her act, she was defended by Jesus.

Lesson for June 15.—Jesus did not die as a martyr or as an example, but to make an atonement for man's sin. The supreme value of the lessons for the quarter centers in the cross. Teachers, it is not a matter of getting your children to learn the lessons of a great teacher, but to induce them to have faith in Christ's sacrificial death.

Lesson for June 22. The resurrection of Jesus demonstrated His Messiahship and deity. The command of Jesus to preach the gospel in all the world is backed by His resurrection power.

The Oil of Joy

Christianity wants nothing so much in the world as sunny people, and the old are hungrier for love than for bread, and the oil of joy is very cheap, and if you can help the poor on with the garment of praise, it will be better for them than blankets.—Henry Drummond.

A Moral Pivot

The Hindu professor of modern history in a South India college said to me: "My study of modern history has shown me that there is a Moral Pivot in the world today, and that the best life of both East and West is more and more revolving about that center—that Moral Pivoting is the person of Jesus Christ."—E. Stanley Jones.

Famous Baptist Misionary Tells Of Experiences In Traveling Over China

One's method of travel in China depends on where he is going. The last time I wrote for the readers of the Chilton County papers was about a trip I had taken on the train. This trip was taken on a steamer—and other ways.

I went first to Tsingtao which is about 350 miles up the coast from Shanghai. (Look it up on the map of China). As you remember, it is the place that was held by the Germans before the World War. The trip was made on a small Japanese steamer. There was nothing of particular interest on the way up. Well it did become quite stormy so that none of the food tasted right, and I went to bed for fear I might "feed the fish.'' (If you do not know what that means ask one of the boys who went over to France).

Out on a trip in China one is likely to meet all kinds of people. The little cabin I was in was about 8x10 feet. There were four other men in there with me-a Chinese, a Japanese, a Russian and a native of Java. Five nationalities in one little room. You may suppose we did not quarrel very much, for we could not understand each other. The Japanese understood English and we could talk. I do not know Russian or Japanese and the Chinese spoke a different kind of Chinese from what I speak. When you are with such people you either talk by making signs or not talk at all. When the sea became so rough, none of us felt like talking much.

But from Tsingtao about 80 miles to Pingtu is where the traveling came in. One of our missionaries, Rev. J. W. Lowe, who lives in Tsingtao has a Baptist Ford that some good friends over in Missouri gave him. He also was going over to Pingtu and proposed to go in his Ford. But it had rained and such roads. Some of you remember that I have told you that there are no roads worth counting in the parts of China where I have lived. But in North China they have two-wheeled carts and roads of a kind to run them on. It seems that nothing is ever done to keep them up. They are crooked, narrow, and full of holes. Rough is no name for it. Well, we started out and got along pretty well for about ten miles, as far as the Germans built the road. Then up, down, slide, slip, bump into a mud hole, catch your breath and then do it all over again. Finally we decided it was impossible and as soon as we could find a place to turn around we came back to Tsingtao and wired the people we could not come. In a few hours a telegram came saying to take the train to Lantsun (Blue Village) and catch the bus for Pingtu.

The next morning we started out again by train. When we got off the train and found the bus what do you suppose it was? It was a new Chevrolet Six truck with a kind of bus body on it. When I thought how beatifully our old Chevvy took us from Clanton to California and on to Canada, I felt sure we would get there. There were long seats along the sides and our baggage was piled in the middle, so there was not much space for feet. When fifteen passengers besides the driver and "conductor" were in the horn tooted and off we went. A street in the village is not much more than a gulley made by the tramping of people, carts, and donkeys for centuries. We had not gone more than sixty feet when the wheels on one side were up on one side and the other side was down in some stiff mud. I was afraid I would fall over and began to try to catch on to something, but there was nothing to catch on to. After a few such places I decided there was not much danger of falling, for we were packed so tight in the seat we could not fall sideways, and so much bags and baggage in front we could noa fall that way.

Not counting the bumping up and down and jostling about, we got along fine for about a half of a mile to the next village. Then with one side leaning over in the half dried mud that powerful Chevrolet Six engine wan dead. He cranker up and tried again, but not one inch forward "Hesia La" said the conductor, which being interpreted means get out. We all got out and then he pulled through. We had this experience only six or eight times on the way.

But there was one time when we had to get out and push. The roads are very narrow—no room to meet or pass a cart except a wide place now and then. The farmers cultivate every foot of land they can. Sometimes the carts and cars get out on the edge of the crops to pass. To save his crop from the cart wheel the farmer digs a ditch on either side of the road, leaving it just wide enough for a car to go along if there is not the least wobble. We hit one of these places just after we were out of a sand bed and one of the wheels caved off in the ditch. "Hsia La, tui la" which means get out and push.

It is really impossible to describe that ride and the road but to give you a little idea of it, think of the speed we made. We had about 35 miles to go. That is only an easy before breakfast run over there in Alabama, but we started at 9:15 and got there about 1:30. But even that is speed in China. I made this same trip in a "shen tze" (mule chair) about seven years ago. Spent the night in a Chinese inn, got up at 3:30 in the morning and started out and arrived about 7:00 p.m.

After three days we started back. It had rained just a little but not enough to interfere with our travels. When we got a few miles away we found the rain had been a little heavier. The road kept getting a little worse until it was one slip and slide and bump and run in low gear all the time. Finally we pulled into a little village about 25 Chinese miles from the rail road, and the driver said it was impossible to go any further. Everybody out and unloaded. Finally after about two hours for lunch they hired two carts to take the passengers on to the railroad. One mule was hitched into the shafts of the cart and the other one was out in front and was hitched by means of a long rope tied to the cart. That was some riding but it beat walking through the mud and got us there in time to catch the train for Tsingtao and my boat for Shanghai.

CHEVROLET CO. COMPLETES SALES TRAINING SCHOOL

What has been termed the greatest sales training school in the history of the automotive industry—a series of five meetings conducted over a period of 10 days in each of 12,000 Chevrolet retail stores in the United States, and attended by 24,000 salesmen—has just been completed by the Chevrolet Motor Company.

So successful were the meetings that Chevrolet central office officials are considering making the "school" an annual affair. In practically ever instance Chevrolet dealers reported their complete sales personnel in attendance at each meeting, and in addition the office and service staffs requested and were given permission to attend the sessions. In all, it is estimated that an average of 40,000 sales, office and service employees in Chevrolet retail stores attended each of the five meetings. Increased selling efficiency by their present staffs and the addition of many salesmen to their organizations are expected by many dealers as a result of the "school."

The thought behind the school was the belief that most automobile salesmen possess only the theory of selling and usually are forced to undergo long experience and overcome many difficulties before they are able to furnish prospective buyers with a fully satisfactory exposition of the car's features. The school would immediately put the salesmen in possession of the experiences and methods of the most succesful men in the industry.

All phases of the meetings were worked out and the materials prepared by the central office of the Chevrolet Motor Company. Holding the school was optional with each dealer, but practically the entire Chevrolet dealer organization responded.

One of the features of the meetings was the use of motion pictures of the "still" type in presenting the subject of each session. In all, five films were used. The most novel of these was the one entitled "Mr. Lilliputian Sells a Chevrolet." It depicted a salesman explaining the features of the car to a prospect. Both figures were so reduced in size and the car's parts so enlarged that the men crawled into the cylinders to inspect the pistons; into the transmission and differential to discuss the gears; jumped, in diving suits, into the oil-filled crankcase to examine the crankshaft, oil pump and bearings, and perched on the instrument panel controls, spark plugs, steering wheel, shifting lever and other parts while they were being explained to the purchaser. Many dealers have asked permission to retain the film for future use in training salesmen and illustrating the car's advantages to prospective buyers.

Mrs. Dewey Huett has been very sick at the home of her father, R. C. Hand, but is reported greatly improved.

Misses Addie Sue Sharp, Sarah Hollis, Ethel Cagle and Mavis Miller will return to their homes at Mitchell Dam the last of this week. They have spent two weeks at Camp Grandview, between Prattville and Wetumpka, at a Girl Scouts encampment.

The revival meeting will begin at Refuge the third Sunday in July. Rev. J. W. Jones of Thorsby will do the preaching. Those who have already heard Bro. It is only about three weeks off, so let's pray for a great revival.

Thorsby Vacation Daily Bible School

Daily Vacation Bible School

Last week was Bible School Week in Thorsby. Monday morning thirty-two children were eagerly awaiting the opening of the Public Schoolhouse doors. During the week that number was increased to forty-three. Three teachers were on duty, Miss Lorena Primm, in charge of the Intermediate Class, Miss Alta Each, the Junior, and Mrs. Carrie Smith, the Primary group. Miss Marguerite Davison assited with the music and games.

The whole school assembled outside of the building, then marched in for opening exercises, patriotic and devotional, including salutes to the American and Christian flags and appropriate hymns and memory work. Miss Primm led the mission study class and thrilled the children with the adventures of the Sandovals, a Mexican family that traveled in the United States seeking to better their condition. The handwork classes that followed did a great deal of work, illustrating the mission story.

For the Bible study period all classes studied the story of Joseph and became very familiar with that great Old Testament character. As an expression of this study, they worked out the story dramatically, acting and saying the parts as seemed right to them. They studied correct costuming and made all preparations for presenting the story of Joseph at the closing exercises of the school.

For recreation the classes met separately for games suitable to the various ages. The little children enjoyed the musical and dramatic games.

Many of the children expressed regret that the school could not last all summer and all felt the work had been very handy and profitable.

The younger citizens of Thorsby were not the only ones to enjoy the privileges of the Bible School, for an evening class was held for men, women, and young people. We were very grateful to the members of the Baptist Church for opening their house for this purpose. The first night brought thirty-two to the school but the numbers increased until we had a final registration of fifty-seven: nineteen women; fifteen men; twenty-three young people. Everyone was very sorry to hear that Mrs. Jones' health would not permit her to teach the women's class as she had planned, but all were grateful to Miss Fairbank for undertaking this responsibility at the last minute. She led them in the study of the women of the Bible and of the world. Mr. Butler conducted an interesting discussion on the question, "If Jesus were living in Thorsby, would He take an interest in our varied individual and community affairs, social, and religious, political, and how would He show it?" The young people took the study of the New Testament in the book "The Story of Our Bible" by Hunting, under Miss Davison's direction. The opening devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. W. Jones and gave the inspiring touch needed for the study of the evening. Mrs. Harper conducted devotions in the absence of Mr. Jones.

Monday night of this week the closing exercises of the whole school were held at the Public School. In spite of the hot weather, the children were present with an interested group of parents and friends. The morning class went through its opening exercises and each class took special parts. The Junior class gave Bible verses and the Junior and Intermediates repeated the books of the Bible in unison. At the close of these exercises the two younger classes remained for a demonstration of games learned during the week. Lois Thoromon gave a brief summary of the mission work conducted by Miss Primm and explained the hand work on exhibition. "The H art that was broken for me" was sung very sweetly by Lois Thompson and Edna Lee Wilder. After an offering for the support of the school, the evening classes were reported by Mrs. Gerald for the women, Rev. J. E. Each for the men, and Miss Ruth Martin for the young people. In this way all who did not attend received a summary of the work accomplished. The hymn, "Watchman tell us of the Night," was dramatized by the Intermediates with Kathleen Lenoir and Myradean Martin taking the solo parts.

The story of Joseph was the climax of the evening. The Primary and Junior Departments had worked out the first two scenes and it was interesting to see how real the events of this long-ago boy's life were to them as they portrayed the scenes of the gift of the coat of many colors, the dream of Joseph, and his being sold into slavery by his brothers. From that point the story was carried on by the Intermediates in three scenes: the prison house where he interpreted the dreams of the butler and baker; the court of Pharaoh to which Joseph was called as an interpreter of dreams; and the final reconciliation of Joseph with his brethren. The actors were gorgeously arrayed in Egyptian and Hebrew costumes of their own construction and the beautiful fans of the servants gave a truly oriental atmosphere. These informal dramatizations lack the finish of formal plays, but they mean a great deal more to those who work them out from the Bible itself and really enter into the lives of the characters they portray.

At the final assembly of the whole school small Testaments were given to all who had been present at every session of the school, and diplomas were awarded to the members of the Intermediate class who had completed the work required.

We hope the daily vacation Bible school may be a yearly event in the town of Thorsby.

THORSBY SECTION

The annual meeting of Interdenominational Missionary Educational Conference, to be held at Blue Ridge, North Carolina for ten days, beginning Saturday evening, June 28th, will have a strong delegation from Thorsby. Rev. J. E. Sach and his daughter, Alta, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Smith, and the Misses Marguerite Davison and Lorena Primm, together with Rev. A. C. Nelson, pastor of East View Congregational church, will motor in two cars, leaving Thorsby early Friday morning. They expect to spend the night at Demorest, Ga., and finish the trip Saturday, in time for the opening of the Conference.

On account of the absence of the pastor from Thorsby Congregational church Sunday, June 29th, the morning service will be conducted by Rev. W. P. Lowery. We feel that Thorsby people need no urging to attend this service and hear Bro. Lowery.

Mr. A. N. Lauurell spent Sunday in Birmingham, helping to celebrate the birthday anniversary of his mother.

In pursuance of a plan adopted at a meeting of the old settlers of Thorsby last winter, and the appointment of a committee on arrangements, announcement it made that arrangements are being made for the holding of an Old Settlers Basket Picnic on Friday, July 4th, on the grounds of Conrad Carlson north of town. The term Old Settler, implies a residence of 20 years or more in Thorsby. While the Old Settlers will sponsor the picnic, it is by no means intended to shut out others who desire to attend and who come with supplies for the feast. Watch for more details in next week's paper.

T. I. LIBRARY NOTES

Miss Fairbank, librarian, announces her summer schedule at follows: Library open—Tuesday morning, 9 to 12; Friday afternoon, 3 to 6. Any person in town can take two books or magazines at one time, keep them two weeks, and if desired renew for another two weeks by request made to the librarian. People from the country around Thorsby may get the same service except that they may keep what they borrow for a month without renewal. A fine of one cent per day will be imposed for each book or magazine kept more than the time allotted, and no more books loaned until the fines are paid. No charge is made for membership or the privilege of borrowing books. The library is now supplied with books for children, youth and mature readers. There is no limit on the number of books that can be taken, other than fiction and magazines.

As showing the importance of this library to the community, Miss Fairbank states that during the past year there were more than 200 borrowers who took out upwards of 5,000 books and periodicals. About one hundred books have recently been added.

Miss Fairbank announces what she calls a Library Party to be held at the Library on Friday afternoon of this week, from 3 to 6 o'clock, when the new and beautiful set of Encyclopedia Britannica, with its elegant library table, to the purchase of which so many have contributed, will be on exhibition, for all who are disposed to come. This is indeed a wonderful addition to the library. Some high school students will be in attendance to demonstrate the use of the books, which has been much simplified over former editions.

FRANKLIN GARAGE THORSBY, ALABAMA

Relious R. Franklin, proprietor and operator, is a product of Chilton County, where he was born in 1903, and grew to manhood in Thorsby and its vicinity. Educated in Thorsby Public School, two years at Chilton High, and one year in Thorsby Institute. Being of a mechanical turn of mind, tinkering with an automobile had more interest for him than school and got him before graduating at High School.

In these years it is conceded that education is not all in books. Many successful business men, after laying the foundation for literary education in good schools, consider that they can learn more and do it in less time, if they get at the business in which they are interested and intend to follow, and Mr. Franklin is one of them. He is an example and exponent of the theory of "Learning and Doing," which is now conceded to be a safe foundation on which to build a business, and for which purpose we find increasing established vocational schools, or departments in literary schools where young people can learn the rudiments of almost any business, by actual practice of the things pertaining to the preferred occupation.

Mr. Franklin by industry, and attention to details of requirements of owners and drivers of motor vehicles, has built up a business that is outstanding for its complete equipment, and efficiency of service, among such establishments in Chilton County. And by his courteous and sympathetic treatment of patrons he has a large stock of good will among them, which is a most valuable asset in any business which serves the public.

After getting his business well started, he married in 1926, a Chilton County girl, Miss Lucile Mims, grand-daughter of our well known county commissioner, James M. Mims. This young, healthy and good-hearted girl has been to him very helpful as a home maker and mother of a fine little daughter, which helps to make their home life ideal. Both Mr. and Mrs. Franklin are members of Thorsby Baptist Church, interested and helpful in its affairs, as well as social and civic matters of the community. When the opportunity came they had money to buy a small cottage, in which they set up housekeeping, and later bought the more spacious home of the late A. M. Johnson, across the street from their garage, and is a very comfortable home.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Franklin and their little daughter, Peggy Mims, love the open spaces, and take frequent fishing or visiting trips. In winter Mr. Franklin takes time to go hunting. They realize that humans need relaxation, and that no one can do their best with their "nose always on the grindstone," also that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

Time off might be more difficult were it not for the faithful and efficient help of two Thorsby boys, Earl Collins and Lee Pate, who are so well trained under Mr. Franklin that they can serve promptly and well any ordinary needs that may be presented in the absence of "The Boss."

There are lots of people who work and worry themselves sick because they lack confidence in their assistants. The writer knows from personal experience as a large employer of help in a manufacturing business, that the best way to get efficient help is to give men and women some degree of responsibility, so that in case of the enforced, or voluntary absence of the manager, there are those who can "carry on," because they have been trusted, and found to have some "Gumption" of their own. It is a hard thing for a manager to learn, but once learned and put into practice, as Mr. Franklin has found, it makes for good feeling and efficiency among self respecting employees.

That Franklin Garage is a successful and prosperous business is apparent to any one who is familiar with the constant demands for the kind of service it renders. Cars of all types arrive daily in need of repair, or oil and fuel. With the facilities at hand one seldom need wait long for a remedy for their troubles, but like all "hospitals" cases sometimes arrive whose ailments have been of long standing and require considerable time to effect a cure.

We have asked Mr. Franklin to give us some incidents that will be illustrative of the "cases" they are called upon to administer treatment for, knowing that in this way our readers can learn what service in a garage means, other than supplies of oil, fuel and parts. In this surmise we have not been disappointed but have been supplied with far more than the space allowed for this article will permit of publication. However, there are enough to demonstrate the versatility of judgement and knowledge required to give efficient service.

One feature of this business, which is strongly stressed is WRECKING SERVICE. By day or by night, near or far, hauling wrecks to his own garage, or if preferred to any place to which the owner may wish to convey his damaged car. It is a branch of SERVICE which Mr. Franklin believes should be a real help to the man or woman who needs it, and particularly when they they need it. So he announces that he will attend such calls promptly DAY or NIGHT. His house phone number is Thorsby 85, garage, Thorsby 61. A call on either one will receive prompt attention, at reasonable cost. If a doctor is needed for a disabled car, he will not hesitate to get out of bed and get to it as soon as possible.

One night he had a call from near Jemison, when he reached the scene, with his wrecking outfit, he found five cars piled up together, but he soon had them unscrambled and such as were able sent on their way, others taken to the "Hospital."

Another time he found four cars that had attempted to use the same space on the highway without waiting to see that it was clear; resulting in a wreck and confusion.

One is reminded what a woman told a census enumerator, who found a young healthy appearing Swedish woman with at least a dozen children, he said are these all your children? She replied; yes, all mine. His incredulous look seemed to call for explanation, so she said: "One time I had three, sometimes two, and oh, so many times one at a time." The wrecking business is somewhat similar in Franklin Garage.

REPAIRING, is a strong feature at Franklin Garage. Mr. Franklin has given special attention to this department of his business so long and has so trained his helpers that they constitute a strong team for this work. No job is too small or too large for them to handle in manner guaranteed to be satisfactory, or money back. They understand the value to their business of a satisfied customer. When we called to get information for this article, we found the garage filled to the doors with cars in for repairs, and several more parked outside. Mr. Franklin said they would have to work at night to clear the shop. If a car body has been smashed or needs a new coat, they are in touch with the people who specialize in such work, and send the car along to them for that kind of treatment.

Franklin Garage is located on Jones Street and directly across that thorofare from The Bank of Thorsby, and only a few rods west of the Railroad Depot at Thorsby. It occupies a one-story concrete structure, built for the purpose and enlarged from time to time to meet the demands of a constantly growing business. The equipment is entirely modern, in fact has some features found in no other garage in Chilton County. Electrically operated devices that make for neatness, speed and efficiency.

While the bulk of business done has to do with Ford and Chevrolet cars, the equipment is such that it permits service for almost any type of car that comes along. A complete wrecking outfit is maintained for prompt and efficient service.

R. R. Franklin

Franklin Garage, located a few rods west of the Railroad Station at Thorsby, is owned and operated by Relious R. Franklin of Thorsby. He was born near Thorsby and received his education in Chilton County grammar and to within one year of graduating in High School. At 21 years of age (in 1924) he opened his Garage in a 40 by 60 feet concrete building, put up for his purpose. From time to time as his business has grown he has added space to cover it.

Mr. Franklin is now a skilled mechanic in his line, and has two assistant mechanics trained under his supervision, Earl Collins and Lee Pate, both Thorsby boys who are keen and conscientious workers.

Mr. Franklin and his young men strive to give honest and satisfactory service. They are all courteous and trustworthy. Their slogan is, "QUALITY FIRST: SERVICE ALWAYS." While featuring Ford and Chevrolet cars, their equipment is such that they can serve almost any motor vehicle. They not only serve on cars that come to them, but are prepared and WILLING to go out after disabled cars, anywhere, DAY OR NIGHT. For day phone calls use Thorsby, No. 61, for night calls, Thorsby 85, and you will receive prompt attention.

Mr. Franklin is not a man given to "Blowing His Own Horn." In fact for anything not directly connected with his business he is a tough subject to tackle for an interview.

Beyond what the writer personally knows of this young man and his life among us, all the facts related in this story were obtained from other reliable sources. He comes of a family notable for efficiency in what they undertake. His father, Ben T. Franklin has been Rural Route Man, out of Thorsby Post Office almost ever sice there was one. His sister, Lena, is one of the finest teachers ever known in Chilton County. Now with her husband taking a summer course at Nashville, and both engaged for a prominent position in a Tennessee College for next school year. A younger brother has finished in Alabama University, and a Medical College in Kentucky, and will in a few days enter as an interne at Hillman Hospital. All of which has bearing on the characteristics of the man at the head of FRANKLIN GARAGE.

MORE PAPER MILLS MAY COME TO ALABAMA SOON

Montgomery, June 23.—Examinations of paper pulpwood stands are being made by representatives of concerns that have not already located in Alabama. Two paper mills are now within the State, one at Mobile and the other at Tuscaloosa. Additional establishments of this nature mean much to the Alabama farmers and other landowners who have tracts of youung timber growth that formerly possessed but little value.

Recently the forester of a paper manufacturing concern not yet located within the state took an airplane flight in company with State forestry officials over a considerable part of central Alabama. He expressed himself as amazed at the amount of pulpwood available, even in the sections predominantly of agricultural character.

Alabama woodlands under forestral management can easily produce a cord per acre per annum. With the coming of more paper mills into the State the growing and selling of pulpwood becomes a very important alternate occupation for the farmer and a major industrial enterprise for the owners of large tracts. With good management pulpwood can be grown in ten years, and a citizen who has one hundred acres of woodland can thus cut ten acres each year so that at the end of ten years he can return to the starting point and begin all over again. This means a perpetual cut which is the essential aim of forestry.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Approximately 40 per cent, or $325,000,000 worth of the milk sold in the United States in 1928 was marketed by fluid-milk cooperative marketing associations, according to Hutzel Metzger, agricultural economist, in a report of a survey of the milk industry, just issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Despite an increase in population a declining birth rate is cutting down school registrations. There were 4,320,000 in the first grade in 1920, while in 1926, with a population increase of 10 per cent, there were less than 4,000,000.

Close to 75 per cent of all American women still make jams and jellies. A recent survey for General Foods shows that 88 per cent of all farm women, 78 per cent of village women, and 45 per cent of large city women make home-made jams.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

A STUDY IN THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO JOHN

"I am thinking today of that beautiful land,

I shall reach when the sun goeth down.

When through wonderful grace by my Saviour I stand,

Will there by any stars in my crown?

Will there be any stars, any stars in my crown,

When at evennig the sun goeth down?

When I wake with the blest in the mansions of rest,

Will there be any stars in my crown?"

By the help of God I wish to continue t ostudy with you the first chapter of the Gospel according to John. We pause at the verse where the disciples turned to Christ and said "Raboni, Master, where dwellest thou?" Jesus then said, "Come and see." Then went where Christ was and abode with Him the afternoon of that memorable day. That quiet, alone, peaceful stay with Christ was preparatory hours in the life of the disciples. It prepared them for what was to take place in their lives. This morning in this study I pray God to prepare us for what is to take place, to prepare us for the task.

The inspired record is that one of the two who heard John speak, and followed Him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. One of them was John, the son of Zebedee. John the Baptist, a wilderness preacher was speaking distinctively and experimentally. The one who heard it and in whose heart it had entered was Andrew, Simon's brother. It is interesting to notice the influence right along here of the Greek upon the Hebrew at that time. This Andrew who was born not so many miles away from Judea over in the country or province of Galilee was given the Greek name of Andros, which in the English is Andrew, a Jew with a Greek name.

They heard, and followed Jesus. To become a Christian is to hear and to follow Jesus, to be a Christian is to follow Jesus in His sympathetic merciful, loving, compassionate, soul-winning life. The first thing we think about then is, "What did Andrew do?" The first thing which he did was to make sure that he was a follower of Jesus. Then we watch him as he goes out, not to a place of amusement or pleasure seeking, a place of exercise or even a place to pass the time away by walking, but he first went and found his brother, Simon, and brought him to Jesus. He had met Christ and communed with Christ, and so his love began to grow for Christ. He knew that he was now a saved man and the first thing which he did was to bring his brother, Simon, to Christ.

I know that I am standing on the holiest ground as I study this with you, and I can but realize my responsibility in telling you my impressions here of this inspired record as written by John the beloved disciple and apostle, A. D. 85, to you and to me. "He first findeth his own brother, Simon, and bringeth him to Jesus.

There is a brother someone can save.

Somebody's brother, O who then will dare,

To throw out the life-line his perils to share.

Someone is drifting away.

Throw out the life-line, throu out the life-line,

Someone is sinking to-day."

Certainly this was Christ's method of building up His Kingdom. We read books and long articles in different pamphlets and magazines on leading souls to Christ. This Bible is the only book which teaches this all-important thing in the Christian life. It is right to read and think about these things but we must remember that it is right here in this Bible before our eyes as written by God's inspired writers. Christ led John and John the Baptist pointed Andrew to Christ. Then Andrew led Simon Peter, his brother, to Christ. O if I were only an artist I would paint the scene of that striking picture in that Judean country of John the Baptist preaching and heralding the coming of this Jesus, this Christ; and then Christ's approach to John who pointed Him out the Lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world, and of Andrew going at once to tell his brother, Simon, and bringing him to Him. O how I want to get better acquainted with Christ and then to introduce somebody else to Him. You say, "How can you do this?" Now I want to be honest with you when I tell you that there is only one way to do this and that is by the life which I live, the life you live. No sermon which I can preach will save a soul. No article which I write will do it. But I want to live in Jesus Christ and thereby save souls.

Christ worked it this way in Samaria with the lost soul of the woman who came to draw water from Jacob's well near Sychar. I am sure that I saw that well and sat upon that same rock well curb whereon sat Christ that day. He said to her, "Woman, if thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, 'Give me to drink;' thou wouldst have asked of Him, and He would have given thee living water. For whosoever drinketh of this water shall never thirst, but shall be a well of water springing up into everlasting life." Then she said, "Sir, give me this water, that I thirst 'not, neither come here to draw."

"I came to Jesus, and I drank of that life-giving stream, my thirst was quenched, my soul revived, and now I live in Him."

Again out there on Mount Olive Jesus talked to Nicodemus who no doubt lived in Jerusalem and walked out that night to where Jesus was that he might get better acquainted with Him. Jesus said to him, "Except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of God." No doubt in this interview of Nicodemus with Christ his soul was lifted up to the Father as it had never been before. Then think of Christ's method again as you look upon Him hanging there on the middle cross in the greatest agony and suffering. He looked in compassion and mercy upon the thief at his side who called upon Him, and said, "This day, shalt thou be with me in Paradise." That was certainly a case of one soul being led to Christ by Christ.

I am just speaking to you about getting souls to Christ. We read in God's word, "They that teach shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever." Getting a soul to Christ is not getting a person to unite with my church or a certain brotherhood. It is getting them to Christ to be saved, taken off the road to hell and placed upon the road to heaven. Certain churches in the United States last year averaged twenty-one persons to help save one soul for Christ. In Jefferson County it took eighteen members to get a soul to Jesus Christ. In some churches it took three persons to bring one soul to Christ. This is not the Biblical way of getting souls to Christ. Andrew went out and got his brother to Christ.

When I read the many souls which were led to Christ one by one in those days, I just stop to think over it seriously. So thinking I have arrived to the conclusion that we are to be quiet and live a life likened unto that of Christ that our friends may see our good works and glorify our Father in heaven. I know that you are not putting your light where it cannot be seen, but on a candlestick where others may see. I have known men to be saved after having been prayed for twenty and twenty-five years.

But we must be humble instruments to tenderly, gently present Christ. We must make Him so attractive. I must be humble in the way I make an appeal for Christ. Philip on the way to Azotus made his appeal for Christ by joining in a tactful, friendly manner to the company of the Ethiopian eunuch and instructed him in the word of God, which he was trying to read. The Ethiouian eunuch said, "How can I understand what I read unless someone tell me its meaning?" Philip said, "Believe to be saved." He believed and was baptised and received into the church by Philip.

Philip was to go through Galilee Jesus said, "Philip, follow me." Philip followed Christ and led Nathaniel to Christ. Jesus said, Nathaniel, I knew thee when thou wast under the fig tree." It is interesting to note that Cana of Galilee appears so many times in connection with the early life and ministry of Jesus. It was no doubt the birthplace and home of Nathaniel. Now Christ had seen Nathaniel there in pray under a fig tree. The fig trees and tops of houses were their prayer places. Have you a prayer place? I was just thinking this morning how much I would like to turn my study into a prayer place. Christ always sees us when we are at prayer. Nathaniel said, "How did you happen to see me in Cana?" Christ said, "I saw thee when thou wast at prayer under the fig tree."

We think of Cana of Galilee in connection with quite a few scenes in Christ's life and ministry. It was there He performed His first miracle. In this Gospel according to John as recorded in the 4th chapter, 46th to 54th verses we read that Christ spake the words and healed the nobleman's son who lay ill at Capernaum. There Christ saw Nathaniel under the fig tree at prayer. O how I wish that you would make your living room, your kitchen, your place of business a prayer place. O to have a home of prayer.

Nathaniel was led to Christ by Philip and was pronounced a true and guileless Israelite. Again we note Greek influence upon Jewish life in the Greek name of this man. Natha means a gift and iel means God. So too, Philip is a Greek name. There were two Jews bearing Greek names and shows the power of Greek over Galilee. You say, what must I do in getting a soul to Christ? You must pray. I must pray. We must get better acquainted with Christ and make Him just as attractive as is in our power to do "as much as in me is." I just wonder how still and quiet we are to hear when Christ speaks to us and to understand His words.

After the First Twenty-five Thousand Miles

THE VALUE of sound design, good materials and careful craftsmanship is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles. Long, continuous service emphasizes its mechanical reliability and economy of operation and up-keep.

As you drive the Ford through many months and years you will develop an increasing pride in its appearance and a growing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it. From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you will know that you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase.

Wherever you go, you hear enthusiastic praise of the car and this significant, oft-repeated phrase—"I'm glad I bought a Ford."

A FORD owner in New York tells of a 13,000-mile trip across the United States and back in sixty days and says "the car was extremely economical to operate, comfortable and speedy." A grateful father tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield saved his wife and children from serious injury.

To test tires, a large company drove a new Ford day and night, for an average of 500 miles every twenty-four hours. It was still giving satisfactory service after 105,000 miles.

A Ford car that had fallen into Fernan Lake was submerged for twelve days before being raised. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed, it was driven back to Spokane under its own power.

Many police departments have written of the special advantages of the Ford in crowded traffic because of its alert speed, acceleration, and ease of control. An increasing number of fleet owners are also purchasing the Ford because their cost figures have given conclusive proof of its economy of operation and up-keep.

In addition to important triumphs in Germany, France and Italy, the Ford won six out of seven leading places in a contest in Finland, first and second in the Rafaela races in Argentina, first and second in the run from Copenhagen-to-Paris-to-Copenhagen, three gold medals in England, first ranking in the durability test over the tortuous Amancaes road in Peru, and first place in the 1930 reliability run conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden.

This contest was an exceptionally severe test of endurance and sturdy construction because it was held in the dead of winter and covered 600 miles of steady running over snow-covered country roads and mountainous hills.

WE BUILD

The united States Lines, Inc., has just closed a contract for the building of two 30,000-ton ships. They will be the largest ever built in the United States. They will be built at Camden, N. J., at a total cost of $21,000,000. They inaugarate the actual beginning of the great building program of the marine corporation under its agreement with the government. They will be maintained in the New York to Southampton run with the Leviathan until two larger vessels are constructed. They will both be completed in the first six months of 1932.

The plans of the corporation call for a total expenditure of approximately $90,000,000, including the cost of the two projected liners, which, it is said, are expected to be fast enough to beat either the Bremen or Europa.

The day is in sight when American ships and the American flag again will hold their proper place on the seas of the world, comparable with the best that ever came from the shipyards of England, traditional mistress of the seas.

The people of this country should much rejoice over the prospect of such a recrudescense, of national maritime importance, prestige and power. It has been difficult for the common people of the republic to understand why the United States not long ago did not take and hold its rightful place among the maritime sovereignites of the world. Parity in the matter of warships may be a good thing, but parity in ships of peace, or a superiority, is equally important, with adequate provision made for their protection, and their right to go where and how they may please in peaceful pursuits under the standard of the nation.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Interesting information on the state of mind of the people concerning the proposed tariff bill is furnished by the recent Republican primary vote in Iowa. The two leading candidates for the United States senatorial nomination were Representative Dickinson and Governor Hammill. Congressman Dickinson voted for the Smoot-Hawley bill and vigorously defended the bill on the stump during the primary campaign, urging the voters to support him and so stand by President Hoover and the tariff. Gov. Hammill stated on the stump that he was opposed to the bill and that he believed that the best way to stand by the President was to defeat it. The voters decided unqualifiedly in favor of the tariff bill, if we are judged by the primary results, because Congressman Dickinson won the nomination by more than 75,000 votes and carried all but twelve of the ninety-nine counties in the state. The charge made in debate on the Senate floor that the farmers were opposed to the Smoo-Hawley bill seems to have been refuted as Dickinson ran even stronger in the rural districts than in the cities.

The Iowa result must be decidedly embarrassing to that section of the metropolitan press which has been busy during the past few weeks denouncing the Smoot-Hawley bill and stating that there was a tremendous flood of public opinion against it. Many of these newspapers evidently had been tipped off in advance that Dickinson was due for a beating. Or perhaps they had become so frantic that they really believed that they did have the populace in revolt. At any rate they were pointing out for several days in their news and editorial columns that the Iowa primary would be a straw vote on the tariff. Since the advocate of the tariff bill won, evidently to their surprise and discouragement, the silence has been painful and little mention has since been made of the fact, in the free trade papers, that the Iowa primary had any bearing on the tariff.

While on the subject of the tariff fight it is interesting to observe that not in a long time has there been so vicious and concerted an attack on a tariff bill as has been carried on by low tariff and internationalist newspapers during the past several weeks. All kinds of reasons have been advanced for the defeat of the bill, many of them fantastic. We have been told that to pass the bill would ruin our foreign trade, that rates under the Smoot-Hawley bill would be so high that foreign nations could not buy because they could not sell us. We have been told that foreign nations would boycott us and that our business at home and abroad would shrivel up. We have been told that the tariff would not benefit the farmers, and in the same column the intellectual anti-tariff writers have told us that the tariff would raise the price of farm products so high the city man could no longer afford to eat. Many men prominent in the business and financial world, whose interest in the building up of Europe just now transcends their interest in our own industry, have been induced to make statements against the Smoot-Hawley bill. And although this fight has been carried on under the guise that it was for the "dear people" it is a noteworthy fact that the leading newspapers of the anti-drive are in their general interests further removed from the people than any other section of the American press. They represent principally international financial interests which have grown so big that the welfare of the United Sates is no longer their first interest. Others represent great accumulations of capital which seem bent on cornering the metropolitan newspaper business of the United States and whose chief interest is not the common people but the accumulation of more property and greater dividends for themselves.

All of which is highly interesting and shows how far afield our national politics has gone during the past few years. The latest and most efficient internationalists are not the college professors and the idealistic preachers but the financiers who have grown too big for their own country and now want to control the economic policies of the world.

TRAINING CAMPS BECOME MORE POPULAR

Our citizen's military training camps are each year becoming more popular with the young men of America. The present year brings the tenth anniversary of this patriotic institution which is constantly making better Americans of those who take the training. In an interesting story on the life of the training camps, and the purpose of the training, Mr. Hancock Adams says in the ccurrent issue of the National Republic:

"Citizens military training camps celebrate this summer their tenth birthday. Patriotic Americans who answered the call of their country in 1915 to drop their civilian clothes to go to Plattsburg as one of two or three thousand civilian "rookies" have turned over the torch to the young men who accept the invitation for a month of citizenship training in these camps held from New England to California. Established soon after the World War as a feature of the plan for domestic security, as laid down by the National defense act of 1920, these camps have now become a recognized american institution. Their value long ago has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of all except the pacifists and the non-patriots. They can look forward to a life as long as that of the American people and their institutions.

"The camps reach out to even the smallest communities of the land. The boy from the east or west side of New York finds as his tent mate the country youngster from the little hamlet up state, a boy perhaps who has never seen the bright lights of the city. The son of well-to-do parents, on his way to one of the big eastern universities, stands up shoulder to shoulder with the boy who must go to work to earn his own livelihood at sixteen. Democracy is the keynote of the camps, democracy combined with citizenship and devotion to flag and country.

"The camps are what their name implies. The routine is that of out of door life, far away from school or business, or the distractions and turmoil of the city. Young Americans of all kinds are fond of camping; they inherit even today something of the spirit of the frontiersmen, and the citizens' camps give them a taste of the simple country life and the breezes of the great out of doors.

"The camps are training camps, too. The educational aim is never lost sight of by the army instructors who have charge of the military and athletic instruction of the boys. Different from the ordinary vacation, boys are taught to do things. Work is the rule, not idleness; but the duties are stimulating, interesting and with a strong appeal to the patriotism and the public spirit that is in the breast of every red blooded American boy. Life is strenuous, whether at work or play, but no American boy objects to this. The thousands of boys who attend these camps want a vigorous, not a soft program. Yet, it is not so vigorous a program as to take the strength of the average youngster.

"Year by year, public interest in the camps is increasing. Fathers and mothers are among the most enthusiastic supporters of the camps, and the War Department has thousands of testimonials as to the value of the instruction from enthusiastic parents. Teachers and many clergymen consider the camps as a valuable adjunct to the school and the church, and that is exactly the function which these camps fulfill. The heads of big business houses often select their employees from them, realizing that thirty days in camp makes the employee even more efficient.

"Congress was long ago 'sold' on the idea of the camps, and each year makes generous appropriations to enable the War Department to conduct this work in every part of the country. For the coming summer, 37,500 boys will receive training and eventually, it is hoped to train each year 100,000."

There is an artistic campaign on in Indiana to persuade the farmers not to paint their barns red any more still it occurs to us that painting things red in the country is much better than applying the scarlet decorrations in the city.

THE JACK POT

BY "JACK" HIMSELF

Away back yonder, some time ago, the old boys had a way of saying things that really stuck, later turning out to be "wise sayings." You can generally bet on these old adages to be true, too. One of them, "It Pays To Advertise," has been proved time and time again. And Mr. White, of the Nehi Bottling Company went and proved it all over again last Saturday, in a manner to convince the most skeptical. Mr. White did quite a bit of advertising of different kinds. And—did he get results? You couldn't have been in Clanton Saturday without being impressed with the way his little advertising scheme succeeded—he got results! Ask him. And, you can pretty well gauge a man's business by his advertising. If he keeps pretty busy keeping his product in the public's eye, they, in turn, keep him pretty busy keeping them supplied with that product. You watch it—and be convinced—good advertising is good business, and a good advertiser is a good business man.

Col. Lindbergh, or "Lindy," as we have come to hear him called, was all up in the air Monday. Nothing strange about that? Says you! "Lindy" has been up in the air lots of times, but Monday's experience was one entirely new to him—the stork had him up. That's right! "Lindy" is a proud papa now—don't know whether his admiring public will call him "Daddy" Lindbergh, as is the common manner now, or whether it will be "Pap," or just plain old "Pa." Any way it goes, there's three in his family now.

Some folks are hard to satisfy. You'd think the Democrats would be glad the Republicans were in power, things as dull as they are. Seems they don't feel that way, though. If we've got to have hard times, panics, or near-panics, the Democrats seem to want to be at the bottom of it. Heard a bunch of genuine croakers busy on the job the other day. One of 'em "'lowed as how Hoover was a Democrat at heart, any way." Well, maybe he is—maybe that's why things are so dull.

Whew! Ain't it hot? We quoted a guy some time ago who said that a rough winter was a good sign of a big crop year. Along comes another who says that when cotton grows off slow it's a good sign of a big crop. On top of all that comes another who says anybody knows cotton likes hot weather to fruit heavy. It all points the same way—we'll never get it all picked. Somebody hurry and call in a few boll weevils to help us—and the price.

Noticed in a paper where a negro in Chicago fought extradition papers which sought to bring him back to Alabama to stand trial for a crime committed in this state, claiming that he couldn't get a fair trial here. However, the Governor of Illinois stated that he had read where members of the Alabama National Guard had been used at another negro trial "to insure protection, justice, and a fair trial" in an Alabama court, and forthwith turned him over to the authorities who had been sent for him. We think by this action that the Governor of Illinois has shown more respect for Alabama and her people than some Alabamians would show him. We can recall instances when prejudiced Alabamians—hard-hulled Yankee haters—have classed all northern people as "negro loving Yankees who would pit a negro against a southern white man just to persecute the Southerner." Now—who's the fair one? Who is it who continues to wrap himself about with the prejudice of 1865?

Come to think about it, the Democrats haven't much to harp on nowadays except "they done us wrong after the war." However, the younger generation, as it grows up and takes over the reins of government, etc., is not so much concerned over who won this or that battle of the Civil War as it is in looking forward to provide better markets and the like for Southern products, and in this manner to better its economical condition. Another war has been fought which provided a kind of melting pot, and showed young men from the North and the South that what they had had drilled into them as facts was just so much prejudice. In the trenches of France they—the boy from the North and that from the South—each came to consider the other as a "regular guy" on whom he could depend. And, inasmuch as the latter day Democratic party has been built around this hull of prejudice, especially insofar as the South is concerned, cause is shown why that party is fast crumbling away in favor of a more sensible and unbiased view.

At the ball game played in Clanton last Thursday afternoon it seemed that the balls had a grudge against the gasoline men. First, Mr. Pugh let a tip-foul slap him a nice one, and soon after that Mr. Bob Sumner showed how young and agile he really is when a hot liner foul got the range of his head. After these little incidents and near-accidents some of the other "gas men" watched the rest of the game from behind barrells, trees, and other handy hiding places.

Went out huckleberry hunting the other afternoon. Found 'em, too, along with one or two big rattlers. Not long after seeing the rattlers we decided we had enough huckleberries (and rattlers) for one afternoon. Nope! We didn't get scared out of the berry patch—we really were about ready to call it a day and a square up fill of berries any way. On the trip, too, we had with us a bunch of the boys who took advantage of the chance to "go in a-washing" in the old fashion way (you know what we mean). Everybody line up, and the last one in the water is a rotten egg. Bet that made some of the old boys pine for the days of long ago.

Just a few more days and the great and glorious Fourth of July will be with us again. Of course, we'll be coming to see you again before the Fourth rolls around, but we want to start pleading with you right now to make it a safe and sane Fourth. Every year a startling report is given of deaths and wounds from the use of fireworks in celebrating Independence Day. You can appoint your self as a committee of one to see that such is not the case this year. If everybody will do this, and play safe, how much better it will be than nursing a burned hand or face for a couple of weeks.

Of late, there have been several auto wrecks occurred in the town at the intersections of State highways and cross streets. In case you never took time to read one of those big yellow signs, it reads like this: S-T-O-P. As you know, that spells STOP. The man on the through highway is counting and betting his life and yours that you do just that —STOP—before proceeding across one of these highways. Remember that when you come to the next one of these signs. Better be safe than sorry.

Just across the street we see a soft drink manufacturer, a preacher, and a red hot candidate all in a huddle over something. Now, that's something to think about. We didn't know the wet-or-dry issue was taking form in this old race, but, now, to be honest, that looks suspicious, don't it?—"JACK."

Individuality is that thing which causes the blue birds, wrens and martins to expect houses with built-in features while the sparrows multiply prodigiously in eaves troughs and rain pipes.—Fort Worth Record-Telegraph.

OFFICE SEEKERS

When Andrew Jackson became president of the United States, he was, as is usually the case with presidents, overwhelmed with office seekers. Among the number was a minister of the Gospel. Mr. Jackson said to the man, "And what do you do now?" "I am a minister of the Gospel," was the reply. Said Jackson, "Then go home, my dear man, and preach, for I have no office so high as that."—Selected.

THE COUNTRY EDITOR

Harold D. Walker, young editor of the Hill City News, wins the first trophy to be awarded a Minnesota newspaper for outstanding community service. He saved for his town its one and only railroad line, which it was just about to lose. Young Mr. Walker, comparative novice in the newspaper field, seems to have caught most admirably the spirit that is characteristic of the Minnesota country editor. For in the smaller communities all over this state, the boys who get out the weekly press are continuously engaged in community service.

Who was it who saved Hill City's railroad? The country editor. Who is it who gets his town's streets paved? The country editor. Who is continually serving without pay, day in and day out, as his town's civic and commerce association and information bureau combined? The country editor.

He works everlastingly at the job of making his town a better town. He serves his community as adviser, as stimulator, as backer or leader of every movement for the public weal. For all this work he gets no extra pay save in those intangible dividends of satisfaction derived from labor well performed. He is for his town, his country, his people first, last and all the time. Some day, somewhere, somebody should erect a great monument to the country editor.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

At some time in the years past somebody "coined" the saying, "Stop, Look, and Listen." It has since been adopted as a safety signal and placed at railroad crossings, highway intersections, and other dangerous places as a cautionary warning to travelers. Now comes Rev. S. J. Ezell, and finds that the mere words "Stop, Look, and Listen," are not sufficient. He says all such signs should read, "Stop, Look, and Listen—Long Enough." The preacher ought to know. He has tried it.

Durwood Broadhead's billy goat was in the postoffice lobby Tuesday morning. A rather unusual customer, I think. Quite a bit of comment was provoked by his presence and attitude. Henry Pipes allowed that Mr. Billy Goat was there looking for his friend, Mr. Billy Sartor. Somebody said the goat was wearing a red button. I am sure Mr. Sartor would say it was a white button.

Folks who go berry-picking in this hot weather are not "a-ter fun," remarked Dr. J. P. Crumpton Monday morning as he saw a truck load of women and children headed for the briar patches. How he came to use the expression "a-ter fun," was an amusing story about a good old friend of mine who has left this world to live with the saints in that happy land beyond the river.

"Squire Waldrup was taking dinner at my house several years ago," said Dr. Crumpton. "We had butter beans on the table. After Mr. Waldrop had helped his plate to the butter beans, I noticed he was picking them up one at a time with his fork. Squire, I said, we are just home folks, you know, and don't pay much attention to style, anyhow. Don't you think you could eat your beans better with a spoon?"

"Yes, I do," he agreed. "You know, Pink, I aint like the peddler who ate dinner at my house one time. He ate peas with a knife because he said he got a lot of fun chasing them around on his plate. I aint a-ter fun now. I'm a-ter butter beans. So I will use the spoon."

Dr. Gragg, Dr. Upchurch and Sam Upchurch report a splendid catch of fish below Mitchell Dam Monday. The mystery is how a man can endure a day's session out in an open boat with the sun beaming down like it was Monday. They must have been like Squire Waldrup and the butter beans—"a-ter" something besides fun. Really, I would say that a man must surely want fish to sit out in the sun and angle for them in this kind of weather.

I enjoyed hearing Bob Jones on the radio Sunday afternoon. Another fiery message from the same fiery messenger. We may not always agree with Brother Bob; but he leaves us something to think about.

Do the people of Chilton County want a health unit established here and operated under the State plan for such things? Quite a bit of agitation has been made of this question during recent years, but the whole matter hangs on this statement from Judge Reynolds and the Commissioners Court: "If any agency in the county will show us that a majority of the people of the county want a health unit, we will appropriate the money to put it on without delay."

The Kiwanis Club has adopted the health unit as one of its objectives. Dr. Austin of the State Health Department was at the Club last Thursday to speak on the subject. Judge Reynolds was there, with Mr. Burnett, a member of the Commissioners Court. After Dr. Austin had finished, Judge Reynolds said a few words, and concluded with the statement which is quoted in the paragraph above.

You will remember that the Commissioners Court would not make the appropriation for the County Demonstration work in this county until a majority of the people had expressed themselves in favor of the proposition. After the work was put on, I believe the opinion is almost universal that it has done many times more good than the amount of the cost.

Personally, I believe a health unit for Chilton County would do an untold amount of good. I believe the people of the county need it and need the work it will do. But the question remains, do the people of the county, a majority of them, want it? It is certainly a question upon which there is a sharp division of opinion, just as opinion was divided on the Farm Demonstrator. I think the Commissioners Court, considering the division of opinion, is fully justified in seeking first to know what is the wishes of the majority of the people of the county.

I believe if the people of the county understand the health unit and the kind of work it will carry out, there would be few opposed to it. Then, may I ask: Are the people entitled to know what it will do and give their approval to it before it is put on. Or, on the other hand, should the County authorities go ahead and put it on, and educate the people to it by showing them how it actually works?

Which plan would secure the better co-operation among the people of the county? What has the co-operation of the people got to do with the health question and the health unit, anyhow? What has the co-operation of the people got to do with the Farm Demonstration Work? There are many questions which I think should be carefully considered in relation to this matter.

Meanwhile, I am glad that our Commissioners are not hostile to the health unit. I believe they will gladly give it to the people if the people want it. But it is perhaps also a good thing that our Commissioners are not disposed to chunk ten thousand dollars of the county's money into anything without first knowing something about how the people of the county, whose money it is, feel about the matter.

Our immigration policy costing millions of dollars, has not given the expected results. You cannot make a farmer in six weeks or even in three months. It is not by paying their passage that we can persuade British immigrants to embrace a profession which they do not like and for which they are not fitted. As a matter of fact, the best immigrants are those who themselves pay the cost of their coming here.—Ottawa Droit.

DR. MULLINS

After a year spent in the University of Illinois, Chicago, Mary Sue Mullins leaves on the 28th for New York City, where she assumes duties as an interne.

The year's course of study just completed in Chicago was given in recognition of signal talent and scholastic ability.

The award was made after competitive examinations in which many others entered in Memphis and followed a course of study in a medical college.

Dr. Mullins' Chilton County friends are again thrilled to note the recent achievement of distinction, that carries with it the award of a practical course in the chosen profession of Dr. Mullins as an interne in St. Luke's Hospital, New York City.

THE LEADER BUILDING ABOUT COMPLETE

The renovation of the home of The Leader, following the recent damage by fire, is about complete. Posey Marcus and his crew of painters have about completed the finishing touches this week.

Mr. Lande states that he will be ready to re-open for business some time in the month of July. His store will be more beautiful and more conveniently arranged than it was before. The fixtures will be constructed along the most modern lines for department store equipment.

The lighting of the new store will be a most attractive feature. A profuse array of specially designed electric light reflectors will be used to give the appearance of the store an effect that is unlike anything in this city.

Mr. Lande will leave here right after the first of July to visit the markets and purchase his new stock of goods to go in the store. Everything will be new and first class.

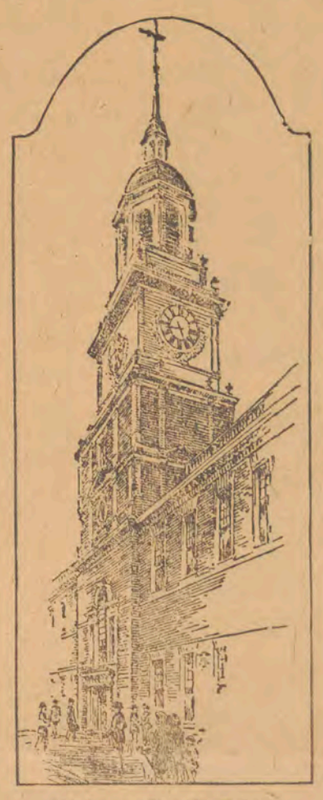
CONCORD HYMN

By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,
Here once the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard round the world.



The foe long since in silence slept;
Alike the conq'ror silent sleeps;
And Time the ruined bridge has swept
Down the dark stream which seaward creeps.

On this green bank, by this soft stream,
We set today a votive stone;
That memory may their deed redeem,
When, like our sires, our sons are gone.

Spirit! that made those heroes dare
To die, or leave their children free,
Bid Time and Nature gently spare
The shaft we raise to them and thee.
—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Famous Meeting House Preserved as Memorial

Two hundred years ago the last service was held in the Old South Meeting house in Boston. It was a small structure of cedar, two stories in height, with a steeple and modest interior with the conventional high-backed, square pews and lofty pulpit of olden church times. A few days later this structure, famous as the one in which Benjamin Franklin was baptized and in which Judge Sewall made public repentance and confession for his part in the Salem witchcraft delusion, was demolished and the present structure commenced.

Churches during the American colonial period were often used for public mass meetings for the discussion of important political questions; and the first meeting of this sort was called in 1745, during the French and Indian wars. A French fleet of 40 ships was on its way to Boston intent on destroying the entire town, and Bostonians called a meeting for prayer and fasting and for a discussion of means of defense. The subsequent destruction of the French fleet by a storm at sea probably saved old Boston from the torch.

But many other meetings were held here in subsequent years, particularly during the days preceding and during the American Revolution. When neighboring Faneuil hall overflowed, the surplus crowd invariably adjourned to Old South; and it was after such a meeting on December 14, 1773, that some of the Boston citizens dressed up as Indians in preparation for the famous Boston Tea Party.

It was used as cavalry headquarters by Lord Burgoyne during the British occupation of the city in 1774, but in March of 1776 it was again taken over by Bostonians and retained by them for regular services until 1872, when, during the great fire, the government took over the building temporarily. Although no regular services have been held here since that time, it has been preserved as a memorial in charge of the Massachusetts Historical society.

States Loosely Bound at Revolution's End

On June 11, 1776, congress resolved that a committee should be appointed to prepare the form of a confederation to be entered into between the colonies and on the next day a member from each colony was selected for this duty. The Articles of Confederation were formed and in time ratified by the several states. The second article contained the following: "Each state retains its sovereignty, freedom, and independence, and every power, jurisdiction and right which is not by this Confederation delegated to the United States in congress assembled." In May, 1785, a committee of congress recommended an alteration in the Articles of Confederation, but no action was taken upon it, and it was left to the state legislatures to proceed in the matter. Virginia took it up in January, 1786, and the conclusion was the convention which gave birth to the Constitution.

Signers Lived Long

Edwin F. Hill says: "The longevity of the signers of the Declaration of Independence is remarkable. Three lived to be over 90, 10 over 80, 11 over 70, 14 over 60, 11 over 50, 6 over 40, and 1 died at 30. The signers represented many vocations. Twenty-four were lawyers; 14 were farmers; 4 were doctors; 1 was a minister; 3 prepared for the ministry; 1 was a manufacturer, and 9 were merchants."

WILSON BOY STOLE AN AUTOMOBILE TUESDAY

Ted Wilson, age 14 years, son of Richard Wilson of Poplar Springs community, stole an automobile belonging to Polk Brothers, Tuesday afternoon. He was arrested with the car in Notasulga Wednesday a.m. and Sheriff Collins went to bring him back here.

Lonz Parrish, salesman for Polk Brothers, had carried the car, a Chevrolet Six Landau, to the home of Mr. Wilson. While the salesman was down in the field talking with Mr. Wilson, the boy took the car and left. He carried with his a little brother about 6 years old. The child was left at the Cordrey old mill place. After that Ted went to the home of Mr. Scarbrough, and was joined by a friend, Ollis Scarbrough, about 16 years old.

Wednesday morning Polk Brothers received a phone call from the City Garage at Notasulga, saying that they were doing some work on a suspicious looking car, bearing a dealer tag and containing some literature and papers of Polk wrothers. Instructions were given by Polk Brothers to hold the car and the boys. Sheriff Collins was notified, and he, with Lonz Parrish, left at once to bring the boys and the car back to Clanton. They arrived back in Clanton shortly after noon Wednesday. The boys were placed in jail.

County Farm Agent's Notes

SOME REASONS WHY COTTON IS VERY LOW

Cotton farmers of Alabama faced with very low prices for cotton are wondering about some of the reasons for the recent drop in prices.

For one reason, cotton consumption is at the lowest point since August 1924. The world is not buying and spinning cotton, because there is little cash to buy with.

Again, according to a recent public statement by S. P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture at Montgomery, our foreign exports are off about a million and a third bales during the past ten months. There seems no immediate prospect for an increase in foreign shipments.

Europe is paying heavily for the war and can buy little cotton. India has declared a boycott on products from Great Britain and India is spinning its own cotton on small hand looms.

Foreign countries are also raising more and more cotton each year and this is decreasing Alabama farmers sales. Again much of American cotton is untenderable because of short length staple. It is baled improperly, and Europe has for long complained of the staple length and baling of our cotton.

These in the main are some of the reasons for low prices. Coupled with this is a carryover estimated by F. W. Gist as being about three and eight tenths million bales.

Concerning the growing crop, cotton futures for all months are being sold between 13 and 14 cents. In other words, he South's cotton crop can be bought today for much less than 14 cents on the future market. From this it is easy to assume that traders highly skilled in cotton affairs believe that a low price for cotton faces southern farmers this fall.

Considering the present depression which is worldwide, it seems that the world will have to grow a new crop of food, feed and clothing before prosperity or better prices can prevail.

All Wealth Comes From Land

Commissioner Storrs emphasized this by saying that all wealth came from the soil and that the farmer created new wealth.

Industry alone and by itself cannot bring prosperity. This must be based on farm progress and farm prosperity. If farmers were more prosperous at this time, the country would soon pull out of its depression. One of the surest ways to overcome a depression is to bring more prosperity to the farmer.

Farmers who are making every effort to raise foods and feeds this year will find themselves in far better condition next fall than those who are relying solely on cotton which will doubtless be low in price, unless the weather is such as to cause a price which is higher.

The 1930 census indicates that the City of New York has a population of 6,700,000.

3,762 CASES EGGS PLACED IN COLD STORAGE BY CO-OPS

During the early spring months farmers of 47 Alabama counties placed 3,762 cases of eggs in cold storage and were advanced 20 cents per dozen by the Alabama Farm Bureau Mutual Supply Association, reports J. B. Sylvest, marketing specialist and A. N. Culver, secretary-treasurer. These eggs were stored in Birmingham on a co-operative basis and will be sold this fall. The eggs went into storage when eggs were very cheap. At many places they were as cheap as 15 cents per dozen. Farmers placing their eggs in cold storage have helped remove the surplus from the local market and have in this way caused the local prices to be better than they would have been otherwise.

COTTON BOARD APPROVES NEW MARKETING METHOD

Montgomery, June 23.—Directors of the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association in session here Tuesday approved plans for the American Cotton Cooperative Association to assume the responsibility of selling, transporting, warehousing, invoicing, insuring, classing and financing of cotton to the Alabama Association next session.

Allen Northington, general manager, explained that this means that the Alabama cotton sold cooperatively will be sold through the central sales agency along with all other cotton handled by co-operatives of the South.

Mr. Northington made it clear that the activities of the American Association will not disturb the present relations of the State Association with the member growers. "On the contrary," he said, "it will relieve the state agency of a large amount of worry in the marketing of cotton and allow it more time to devote to the individual problems of the members."

PRUNE SHRUBS WHEN BLOOMING IS OVER

Auburn, Ala., June 23.—Just after they have finished blooming is the best time to prune flowering shrubs, says Sam F. Brewser, exteneion landscape specialist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He emphasized that it is important to know the season of bloom of the plant to be pruned.

"Early-flowering shrubs such as bridalwreath, vanhuette spirea, hunberg spirea, azalea, redbud, dogwood, privets, oleander, mockorange, flowering almond, weigela, and so forth, should have the dead blossoms cut off," Mr. Brewster continued. "In addition, he dead wood should be pruned from the center of hte plant. This keeps he bush open to light and air. Long, weak branches should be shortened and suckers should be removed. On some plants, as the privets and boxwoods, prune to bring to bring the plant to any desired form.

"Late-flowering shrubs such as abelia, beautyberry, althea, crapemyrtle, and so forth, should be pruned when the plant is dormant.

"The reason for the different times of pruning is because some plants bear their flowers on last year's wood while other plants bear their flowers on present year's growth," he explained. "Those plants that bloom early should be pruned when they are through blooming in order that they may grow new wood before winter. Plants that do not bloom until late bear flowers on present year's wood and shuold not be pruned until winter. In that way the plant will develop a strong now growth and will be covered with flowers."

WINTER LEGUMES TO BUILD STATE'S SOILS

Auburn, Ala., June 23.—Encouraging farmers to plant more winter lebumes, said to be the key to better and more profitable farming in Alabama, is the aim of an intensive campaign to be conducted during the summer. The planting of seed of Austrian peas and hairy vetch will be made in the early fall, or from late September through the first half of October.

Experiment station representatives, farm bureau officials, extension workers, and others will be in the forefront of the campaign and will present to farmers the results of experiments conducted by the station at Auburn and also splendid results obtained by thousands of Alabama farmers during he last decade.

Results show that farmers got an average increase of 356 pounds of seed cotton per acre due to one crop of winter legumes. The increase in corn on account of one crop of winter legumes amounted to 22 bushels per acre. These figures are based upon the niitial crop of winter legumes.

Thus it is an established fact that the best and cheapest way to add nitrogen and humus to the soil is to plant seed of winter legumes in the fal. Fields of cotton and corn now growing in the state promise to make big yields because they were planted after a crop of hairy vetch or Austrain peas.

Either superphosphate or basic slag may be used as a fertilizer for winter legumes. Preferably basic should be used because it gives better results. Furthermore, it is an Alabama product. It is a by-product of the steel industry of the Birmingham district.

NEGRO FARMERS REPORT PROGRESS

Lawrence C. Johnson, teacher of vocational agriculture at the Chilton County Training School, reports that the colored farmers of his community are making splendid progress in agriculture. He brought in a cotton bloom one day last week from the farm of Otho McKinney.

Many of the negro farmers of the community around the school have been having projects under the supervision of the vocational teacher for several years. One can tell by passing through the community and observing the farms that the colored people of that section have developed an unusual degree of thoroughness in the cultivation of their farms. Some of the best farming in Chilton County may be seen among the negroes of the Training School community.

AGRICULTURE'S GREATEST NEED

Agreculture's greatest need to-day is constructive leadership, Mr. Sam R. McKelvie, member of the Federal Farm Board, said in an address prepared for delivery before the graduating class of the South Dakota State College, Brookings, South Dakota, at commencement exercises Friday evening, June 13, 1930.

"I mean unselfish leadership of men and women who are not controlled by prejudice or prompted by expediency," Mr. McKelvie explained. "And out of instiutions like the South Dakota State College much of that leadership will inevitably come. I look with the most hopeful anticipation upon boys and girls now engaged in 4-H club work. The things they are being taught largely through experience will qualify them to think and act along sound lines in later life. All too few of them reach the heights of academic training that have been attained by the members of this graduating class; but even so, experience is the best teacher and education, plus experience must be the qualifications for sound leadership in agriculture."

Discussing the agricultural marketing act, which as a member of the Federal Farm Board he is helping to administer, Mr. McKelvie said the best this legislation can do is to bring about equality of opportunity for the farmer and as soon as possible leave with the farmer the responsibility for doing things that the government is now undertaking to assist him do..

"Laws," he continued, "were passed for industry, labor, banking, transportation, and what not. In so far as there were benefits from these laws, the farmer shared somewhat in them, but the condition of agriculture required that something specific must be done for the nation's basic industry; hence the Agricultural Marketing Act. This law is predicted upon the ability of the farmer to manage his own business, once he is organized to do so. Cooperation is the key to it and only in exceptional cases can the Federal Farm Board have any dealings with a farmer or anyone else who is a member of a producer-owned and producer-controlled marketing unit. A lot of people do not undersand this. Some think it was designed to afford readier access to easier credit for the farmer. Others think it is the government in business. It is nei. ther. It is the farmer in business cooperatively, with the government assisting to organize and finance marketing activities.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly that there is no disposition in the Agricultural Marketing Act or among the members of the Federal Farm Board to impose the power of government upon the management or conduct of the farmers's business. Our desire is that at the earliest possible date the government may be relieved of doing for the farmer things that he can and prefers to do for himself. This does not mean that the Federal Farm Board is going out of business soon, but it does mean that as the cooperative agancies now being assisted by it are able to go it alone, they will be heartily welcomed to do so.

The extent to which this law may be helpful to the farmer and ultimately succesful in its purpose, rests almost wholly in the farmer' himself. If he takes advanage of it and develops the right kind of leadership and management in his marketing affairs, it will succeed. If he listens to the sweet siren of those who are opposed to it, it will fail."

Stimulation of domestic production and contraction of some of the markets brought about at home through changes in dietary habits and introduction of power machinery and abroad through increased foreign competition, Mr. McKelvie said, have worked to the serious detriment of the American farmer.

"About ninety per cent of our agrucultural production is consumed at home." Mr. McKelvie continued in turning to the more promising side of the farm outlook picture, "While we export largely of wheat and cotton, we import considerably of some other products, such as oils, that are substituted for farm products of our own. To the extent that we can make the American market our own, the opportunity is afforded for the readjustment of farm production, so that in one way or another those of our farmers who are well qualified may prosper. Because of its very nature, and lack of organization, agriculture has not kept pace in meeting the rapidly changing conditions; but the time it not too remote when increased efficiency of the American farmer plus organized efforts will have placed him on a basis of equality with other lines of endeavor."

Mr. McKelvie called attention to changed conditions in country towns, how the blacksmith shop has given way to the garage; the filling station does a part of the banking business of the community and the graduate pharmacist must know how to make sandwiches as well as pills.

"The general store in your town is not the store of my day," Mr. McKelvie coninued, "instead of providing fro a season's requirements six months ahead, the country merchant boards the train every week or two and goes shopping in some of the principal markets. He buys from hand to mouth and is obliged to do so for he is in competition with a chain store that has its representatives on the markets every day, estensibly keeping Main Street up to date with Broadway or State Street—in every line of business these changes have taken place with such rapidity since the war as to mystify the one who is not alert to the requirements of each day."

THE FUTURE LAYERS

Now with the cockerels separated out and fattening for the broiler market, we can turn out big efforts to development of our future layers.

As mentioned before, between the 8th and 12th weeks you will probably have moved them to their permanent laying houses. Make these houses as roomy, clean, and comfortable as though human being were going to live there. If no poultry has been raised on ground for a year, so much the better. Try to get a range of grass, grain, or other growing things.

The range should also have natural shade, as trees,bushes etc. If it hasn't be sure to provide shade by rigging boards, canvas, etc. here and there, and about three feet above the soil. It is a good idea to set the feed and drink all outside the houses, in different parts of the range, to keep the pullets outside all through the day and thus keep them active and vigorous.

Don't get the false idea that you ought to rush your pullets into production. This is a serius though popular mistake. What you want to do during the growing season is to develop the bodies and constitutions of your pullets so that when the natural normal time for laying comes, they will be physically fit to produce heavily and continously.

Big, strong, healthy, sturdy, husky, rangy pullets are what we are after now in building up the future layers big-boned, big-chested, yellow-legged birds with lots of capacity reserve to carry them through long seasons of high production through fair weather and foul. Hence the big range and every possible chance to lots of exercise all the time. Also the feeding them in water, then draining the mind. Rations now want to be about half grain and about half growing mash. It is time to start feeding them sprouted oats, about one hundred pullets would want one pound of oats a day. Sprout them by soaknig the min water, then draining the water and leaving them for two days in a sheltered place. Feed the third day. Sprouts should be about a quarter of an inch long. If longer than that, the wonderful food value of this feed is lost.

Always bear in mind that when getting the pullets established in new quarters, that it is of prime importance to get them onto the high perches for the night. Huddling with the loss of the greater part of a flock in the courshe of a single evening, is still possible until all are thoroughly accustomed to taking to the roost at night and staying there.

"Yes, sir."

"Well, don't drive me there; 'ats where I live."

IN MEMORY OF MRS. WILLIAMS

On Thursday, June 12th, the Grim Reaper, whose name is Death, visited the home of Mr. William Vance and carried away Mrs. Vance's mother, Mrs. Lizzie Williams. Everything was done that loving hands could do, with the aid of Dr. Johnson, but the Reaper said: "The harvest is ripe and must be gathered today."

Mrs. Williams was 73 years old and had been a faithful member of Liberty Hill church for a long time. She leaves to mourn her loss, four sons—George, Marlow, Grady and Luther Williams; five daughters—Mrs. William Vance, Mrs. Volby Mims, Mrs. Sam Jones, Mrs. Obie Foshee, and Mrs. Jim Barrett. Also a host of grand children and other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held at Liberty Hill Friday, June 13th, Rev. J. D. Hughes and Rev. A. L. Foshee officiating. The love and respect that the people held for her was proven by the beautiful floral offerings, caresses and kind words.

It is so hard to part with her, but we must remember that even though we miss her so much, our loss is the gain of heaven, and He hath need of her above. She has been with us a long time, but her work on earth is over. The Father saw that she needed a rest, and he carried her home to rest, where she is waiting to welcome all those she loved, to rest with her some day.

Weep not, dear loved ones, for she has gone to a better home on high, where no tears or heart aches come, and all is joy and love.

RULES OF JERSEY BULL CLUB

County Agent, Stapp, gives out the following list of rules that have been adopted and agreed to, governing the handling of bulls in the recently organized Jersey Bull Association of Chilton County.

We, the undersigned owners of Jersey bulls, agree to the following association rules:

1. Each bull shall be kept in a lot one-half to one acre in size with spitable shed and breeding pen built according to plan furnished by County Agent. Bulls shall not be permitted to run with the herd.

2. Each bull shall be fed sufficient feed to keep him in growing, vigorous condition. The ration shall consist of equal parts of corn, oats and wheat bran, or Farm Bureau mixing feed and legume hay. When the pasture is good the hay may be omitted. A block of salt shall be kept before the bull at all times.

3. A service fee of $2.50 shall be collected at the time of service.

4. Bull shall not serve over two cows per day, five cows per week, or seventy-five cows per year. Bulls under two years of age shall not serve over one cow per week. No cow shall receive over one service.

5. In case cow fails to get with calf, she may be returned for another service free of charge.

6. A record shall be kept of the name and address of owner of cow, and date of service in record book provided for this purpose.

7. In case of any contagious or infectious disease in the herd of any farmer in the community, the bull owner shall refuse to serve cows from such herd until declared free of such disease by a competent veterinarian.

8. Each bull in the association shall be of a similar type and breeding, and out of cows of at least four hundred pounds of butterfat, in order that the bulls may be moved from one community to another at the end of two years to prevent inbreeding and still carry on a definite program.

9. The bull owner shall discourage the breeding of heifers under fifteen months of age.

Signed—Arthur J. Maddox, Lawton McDowell, W. H. Rasco, A. J. Taylor, H. R. Oden, R. M. Foshee.

Other bulls will be added to the association as fast as communities sponsor the placing of good bulls that can qualify under Rule No. 8 above.

Pulaski's Name and Fame Never to Be Forgotten

Brig. Gen Casimer Pulaski, whose services to the Revolutionary cause in America can never be forgotten, was a Polish patriot and a great Revolutionary soldier. He strove as a citizen and a soldier to free his own country from its oppressors and when exiled offered his life in behalf of American liberty.

Pulaski was born in Podolia, Poland, March 4, 1748. He served in the guard of Duke Charles of Courland before he was twenty years old. In that period of history Poland was under the domination of the feudal lords and the king was in the control of one or another of the powerful neighboring monarchs. Pulaski and his father joined a group of Polish patriots who protested against these conditions and sought to bring about reforms.

The head of the family lost his life and the young Pulaski had to flee to Turkey to escape the wrath of the crown against which he had been plotting. He fought in one battle with the Turks against Russia, which then had the Poles in its grasp; then made his way to Paris, where he met Benjamin Franklin. By Franklin he was given funds to reach America and a letter of introduction to General Washington.

He arrived in 1777. At Washington's request congress gave Pulaski a commission in the cavalry. He first bore arms for the revolting colonists at the battle of Brandywine. There he managed his men so well that Washington recommended his promotion; he was made a brigadier general and assigned to command the cavalry.

He fought in the battle of Germantown, served with Anthony Wayne in some of his desperate operations, helped to defeat the British in an engagement at Haddonfield, N. J., and was subsequently given a detail at Valley Forge. At Washington's suggestion congress authorized the formation of a special corps of lancers and light infantry to be commanded by Pulaski. This corps, recruited largely in and about the city of Baltimore, later became famous as

Pulaski's legion, or the Maryland legion.

The winter of 1787-79 he found tedious, from petty operations and commands. Dissatisfied with his situation, he thought of resigning his office, but General Washington dissuaded him from such an action. Soon after he was sent with a small force to Charleston, S. C. Three days after his arrival the British, under General Provost, attacked the town but Pulaski held the city until reinforcements arrived.

In the battle of Savannah, sometime later, Pulaski commanded the entire cavalry force, both American and French. He was mortally wounded and was taken from the battlefield to a ship in the harbor, where he died, and was buried at sea.

When the northern part of Indiana was being organized into counties, almost a hundred years ago, Pulaski's name was perpetuated by naming one of the counties for him. Winamac, on the Tippecanoe river, is the county seat. Other states have also named counties for this Polish soldier of the American Revolution.

"Tea Party" Spoiled

On October 18, 1773, almost two months before the famous Boston tea party, Philadelphia patriots had laid plans for a tea party of their own with the sending of a notice to the Delaware river pilots not to pilot the British tea ship Polly on its arrival.

On December 27, the Polly with its cargo was turned back, the British captain not being willing to take chances of being tarred and feathered as indicated in the handbills that had reached him. Eight thousand persons were waiting the Polly's arrival on the Walnut street wharf.—Detroit

Mr. G. D. Rutherford, of Brookwood, Alabama was in Clanton the latter part of last week.

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or even increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store.—Upchurch Drug Company, Clanton, Alabama. 11-24-30.

"MILLERGRAMS" OF INTEREST TO THE TAXPAYER:

"No State Is More Progressive Than Its Educational System"
"There Can Be No True Progress Without Economy"

"Public education and public health are entitled to the great sums of money now being wasted by reckless extravagance. It is much btter to practice economy than to levy a tax."

"I believe in Majority Rule. It is Democratic Rule. I favored a majority Primary in 1915. I favored Majority Rule in 1927. I favor Majority Rule NOW. I will insist upon MAJORITY RULE WHEN I AM GOVERNOR."

"I have no apologies for the Democratic Party or its standard bearers, nor will I withhold my approval of the courageous '27' who voted to preserve true Democracy in Alabama."

"Local self-government is a fundamental and time-honored principle of Democracy. Those who are responsible for law and order should be given full authority to enforce laws and then held strictly accountable for any failure to perform their sworn duties."

"I have no fight with any man because he is a member of any secret order, but I am opposed to government by groups, and if I am elected Governor no man will need a pass-word to transact business with any department in the Capitol of Alabama."

"I am much more concerned about the welfare of the tax-payer and the good name of the State of Alabama than I am about the approval of politicians nd the office-holding hordes that are opposing my nomination. If elected Governor, I shall use a good, strong broom as one of my working-tools at the State Capitol."

ONE PRESCRIPTION MADE FAMILY DOCTOR FAMOUS

Seldom has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than that of Dr. Caldwell in 1885, when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over, Dr. Caldwell wrote the prescription as he found men, women and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, no energy, lack of appetite, and similar things.

Demand for this prescription grew so fast, because of the pleasant, quick way it relieved such symptoms of constipation, that by 1888 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is always ready at any drugstore.

FARM STOCK

HEALTHY HORSES READY FOR WORK

Horses act just like the general public. After doing easy work throughout the winter, they tire out quickly when put at a heavy job. But when they get in shape they are always ready for the hardest kind of work.

After a few weeks of hard spring work, farm horses are often troubled with galls and sore necks, explain F. B. Hadley and J. G. Fuller, specialists at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. The galls may be prevented by washing the shoulders both night and morning with a weak salt solution. This treatment removes sweat and dirt in addition to toughening the skin, the specialists say.

If a gall is already formed, they advise the use of zinc ointment or white solution and changing the line of draft to remove the pressure from the point of the shoulder. Brushes are advised for cleaning the shoulders instead of curry combs, which may scratch the skin and cause galls. More harm than good usually results from the use of sweat-pads, although they may give temporary relief and permit healing under certain conditions.

Sore neck is usually caused by too much rubbing or pressure on the neck resulting from side draft, hitching of a fast and a lagging horse together, excessive weight, swinging of the implement tongue or too high a line of draft. Relief may be given by removing the cause and slackening the top hame strap and tightening the lower one. The same treatment is advised as for galled shoulder and if recovery is slow, a veterinarian should be called.

Only a little water should be allowed a horse heated from working until it is cooled off. It makes little difference whether a horse is watered before or after eating, the specialists say. Automatic drinking cups are proving satisfactory as a horse will seldom drink too much when water can be had at any time.

Animals Eat Less Feed When Shelter Provided

Providing shelter for live stock during the winter months is a much debated question among stockmen Some believe live stock without shelter come through the winter in better shape than when some shelter is provided.

If animals are in good condition, carrying a heavy coat of fat, the heat generated in the body is held in a way to keep the animal warmer than is the case with thin or poorly fleshed animals, states L. P. McCann, associate professor of animal husbandry of Colorado Agricultural college, in an interview on the question. The simple result, McCann says, is that thin animals such as dairy cows, range stock or any class of breeding animals not provided with shelter of some kind, must consume more body temperatures. This extra feed would be unnecessary were the animals given some kind of shelter to protect them from cold winds, snowstorms and rains.

Tests conducted along this line with dairy cows indicate that they will produce slightly more milk from the same amount of feed when properly housed than if forced to remain out in the open, McCann points out. In a second test conducted along the same line it was revealed that cows had to be given more feed in order to produce the same amount of milk when they were allowed to go without shelter as compared to the properly sheltered cows.

Swine Did Well on New Supplemental Mixture

Swine feeders who attended the annual "Whoo-o-o-ey day" at Iowa State college learned of a new supplemental feeding mixture composed of ten ingredients. This mixture produced gains at a cost of $4.58 per hundred pounds, as compared with $5.52 where a three-cornered linseed-oil meal, alfalfa meal, tankage mixture was fed. A saving of nearly $1 often means the difference between loss and profit.

WEST CHILTON

The hot wave has reached us in full force. Crops are needing rain.

J. D. Atchison of Birmingham was down here last week vistiing relatives.

Mr. Pratt Crumpton and Mr. and Mrs. Fonza Hillyer made a business trip to Union Grove community Saturday.

Miss White and some other young ladies came out from Randolph one day last week and visited Mrs. Ira Atchison.

Mrs. Maude Rasberry Mims of Mt. Nebo was a visitor at the Macedonia Sunday School Sunday.

Mrs. Vera Bunks of Birmingham visited her mother, Mrs. Pearl Tubb, at Macedonia last week.

We have re-read Mr. Sanders' platform in last week's Banner, and find it a document worthy of serious consideration.

Hon. A. A. Jackson and Prof. W. L. Sanders, two of the leading candidates in the present campaign, were here last week talking with the voters. They are fine gentlemen, and men of ability.

The road people were here last week working. Mr. T. A. Maddox has been very attentive to the roads in West Chilton. Our former commissioners did not have the means to work with like we have at present, but in looking back, it seems they almost accomplished wonders with limited means.

Some would say, "Spend the money more freely, we pay high taxes, why not put more money on the roads." Yes, we pay a heavy tax, but a safe and sane administration is what we need. No family can succeed by spending beyond its income. Neither can a county. Best not to have an empty treasury, but if we spend too freely, that is what we will have.

CANE CREEK SINGING

The fourth annual singing was held at Cane Creek last Sunday, and it was the best one we have ever had at this place. There was a large crowd of people, plenty of dinner and plenty of good singing.

Services were opened by singing "In the Sweet By and By," after which prayer was offered by P. C. Weldon. The following directors had charge of the floor during the day: Prof. Jeffie Hammonds, Floyd Little, S. L. Baker, Amie Boswell, Jasper Oaks, I. D. Huelt, W. L. Sanders, Akins Collins, J. Z. Mims, A. H. Glasscock, C. H. Robinson, John Cleckler, Willie Mims, R. M. Robinson, J. R. Robinson, Lee Grant, J. E. Miner, Chester Wyatt, Marion Easterling, O. R. Robinson, Vester Miller, Prof. L. T. Grant, Will G. Culp, R. E. Jones, Mr. Calloway, E. C. Traywick, and a Mr. Jones front Verbena.

Organists were: Prof. Jeffie Hammonds, Lee Grant, Amie Boswell, C. H. Robinson, Mrs. Akins Collins, Miss Myrtle Weldon, and Lillie Mae Weldon.

We were sorry that the Clanton Quartette could not be with us, but we are going to expect them to come and sing for us some other time.

We wish to thank the singers from everywhere who came and helped us in the singing, and invite them back again any time they can come. We will have singing here again the 4th Sunday afternoon in July.

Among the visitors whom we were glad to see were: Prof. and Mrs. Hammonds from Elmore. Prof. Hammonds taught school for us in 1916 here, and we all learned to love them. It seemed good to see them again, and to hear him sing and play as he did when he was teaching school.

We will have the new Sunday School literature for the next quarter here next Sunday morning; and we want everybody to come to Sunday school and let's make it still better.

Remember that we will have another annual singing here the fourth Sunday in June, 1931. We want everybody to come back to it then.

At the conclusion of the party the guests were invited into the dining-room. The candles on the birthday cake were extinguished by the honorees. Cake and lemonade was served.

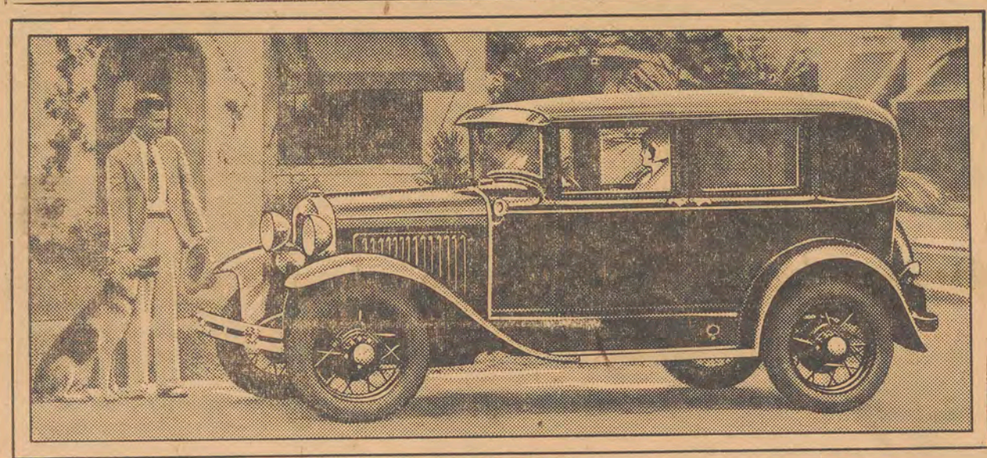
STATE CAPITOL News



Chilton County is Receiving this Year from the State $28,063 more for School Purposes than it Received in 1926.

School money received in Chilton county from the state treasury shows an increase for the current year over 1926 of $28,063, or more than 50 per cent. The amount received for the current year is $82,811, and for 1926, $54,748. Property tax payments by Chilton County into the state treasury for 1929 show an increase over 1926 of $2,782.44. From these figures it will be seen that the increase in revenue received by the county from the state for school purposes alone was more than ten times greater than the increase in property tax payments by the county to the state.

Every county in Alabama is receiving from the State for educational puroses a tremendous increase in revenue in the last three years. Figures recently compiled by the State Tax Commission and by the State Department of Education show that this increase has been achieved with very little increase in property tax. Payment of all property taxes to the State for 1929 shows an increase over 1926 of only $827,485.12, while during the same period the total expenditures from the State treasury for educational purposes increased from $6,181,243.36 in 1926 to $11,751,560.46 in 1929, an increase of $5,570,317.10. Nine agricuultural counties showed an actual decline in property tax payments for 1929 as compared with 1926, and 21 such counties showed a decrease in tax payments on all classes of property other than public utilities. In spite of this reduction in tax collections, these counties received a great increase in school money from the State. This resulted from legislation enacted in 1927 for the express purpose of equalizing educational oportunities. In the counties which showed an increase in property taxes for 1929 over '26 the increase in most instances was slight, and only a fraction of the increase in school revenue which these counties received.

In addition to the huge increase in distribution of school money among the counties, they have also been benefitted during the past three years by the great increase in the state expenditures along development lines for other than educational purposes. All the counties profited, for example, by the increase in Confederate veteran pensions, which were doubled by the Legislature of 1927. The last three years have also witnessed a great expansion in road building, public health, child welfare, and other activities which have been of benefit to the State as a whole. The fact that one single item, the distribution of State funds among the counties for school purposes, vastly exceeds the increase in property tax, is cited as concrete evidence that the "big mules" have been hitched to the tax wagon. The burden of additional appropriations for education, etc., has been placed on them and not on the property owner.

Ford Offers New De Luxe Sedan

Ford De Luxe Sedan

THE De Luxe Sedan, recently added to the Ford line, is designed for those who desire distinctiveness and unusual comfort in an automobile. The interior is inviting and roomy with wide doors to both compartments. Absence of rear quarter windows gives the car a striking individuality and affords privacy to the occupants.

Interior trimmings and appointments are luxurious. Upholstery is either in brown mohair or a deep tan Bedford cord patterned after that used in high-priced cars. Other refinements include arm rests for the rear seat, mahogany finished garnish mouldings on the windows and beneath the windshield, flexible robe rail and hardware in an attractive pattern.

The front seat is adjustable within a range of four inches to suit the convenience and comfort of the driver. It is moved quickly and easily by a small, inconspicuous handle in the front center of the seat just above the floor.

Find That Chuckwalla Has Dainty Appetite

It is not always the loveliest creature that feeds on the daintiest diet. The chuckwalla lizard of the Southwest, the second largest lizard in the United States, is not exactly a stage beauty among the animals, yet his choice appetite runs very strongly to flowers. A specimen captured in the Grand canyon had in its stomach 118 flower heads of three species of composite plants, and three flowers of the yellow bean bush. These represented the breakfast of the chuckwalla. In his second stomach—the reptile has two—was another mass of flower tissue, but more advanced in digestion. The chuckwalla has for years been a favorite dish among the Indians, and many a lost prospector has overcome the white man's repugnance to eating "varmints," to find with surprise that this big lizard is made of good meat. After the recently captured specimen had yielded up its skin for museum purposes, its flesh was roasted and eight persons had a chance to find out what chuckwalla meat tastes like.

Distinctive Watermarks

Watermarks in paper have been used for a long time to lend distinction to the product of a particular paper maker and for other purposes. One of the oldest, a circle surmounted by a tall cross, is found in documents dating back to the Fourteenth century. Other old marks are the fleur-de-lys, the court jester, the huntsman's horn, the hand pointing to a five-pointed star and the tankard, well known in papers of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries.

That's What Counts

The tributes paid on the occasion of his birth centenary to the work of Gen. William Booth by leaders of many denominations recalled a story the general himself was rather fond of telling. A high church dignitary was asked one day what he thought of the Salvation Army. "Well, to tell the truth," said he, "I do not like it, but to be perfectly candid, I believe God Almighty does."—Border Cities Star.

Peggy's Choice

Peggy was descended from a long line of Methodists. One day she and her father and mother were going through a new Baptist church. When Peggy found the lovely modern baptistry she ran for her mother.

"Come quick, mother," she said, "they have a lake in this church."

Mother and daddy went to admire the beautiful marble baptistry.

"Let's come to this church," said Peggy, "then I could learn to swim."

Verbatim

It was sales day in a large department store. A very busy wrapper girl was trying to attend to many things at once, when a clerk rushed over and said: "Call a messenger, sweetheart."

Promptly the strange call rang out over the main floor: "Messenger, sweetheart."

Muddled

Never before had there been such commotion in the little flat, and the most excited person present was the sister of the young mother who had just presented her husband with twins. Auntie was wildly delighted at being auntie in a double sense, and rushed to the post office for stamps to spread the great tidings.

"Stamps," she jerked, as she reached the counter.

"How many, miss?" inquired the clerk.

"Two," she said, joyously.

"What kind?"

"A boy and a girl," she returned, rapturously.

First Food Preservatives

It is claimed that Nicholas Appert, a Frenchman born in 1750 at Chalons-sur-Marne, was the first to preserve food through sterilization by heat. Food had previously been preserved by the use of spices or the salt method, but Appert proved to the world the loss of food value by the old method and how the method he proposed not only retained food value, but also was more attractive and palatable. He experimented with meat, fish, and all sorts of vegetables and fruits, delighting in the different combinations and forms in which they could be preserved.

H. S. Watkins has joined the sales force of Polk Brothers Motor Co., Chevrolet dealers. Mr. Watkins will be in the used car department.

UNCLE JIM MIMS BRINGS LARGEST TURNIP OF YEAR

The Union-Banner has been getting in some nice turnips for the past few days, but the nicest one was displayed Monday, grown by A. J. Robinson of Jemison and brought to Clanton by Uncle Jim Mims. This turnip weighed seven and one-fourth pounds and measured 24 inches in circumference.

Other nice specimens were sent in by Mr. Jim Short of Maplesville and Mr. L. B. Headley of Clanton Route 7; these weighed from three to five pounds each.

City Grew as Visioned, but in Wrong Direction

In the early days of San Francisco, when it was a town of but 2,000 inhabitants, Richard Pindell Hammond, father of John Hays Hammond, the eminent mining engineer and capitalist, lived there. In fact, John Hays Hammond was born in the Golden Gate city in 1855. The elder Hammond, himself a surveyor, looked over the magnificient San Francisco bay and foresaw that a great city would rise on its shores. He saw with a surveyor's eye how the land lay. He visioned a great port of the future, mistress of the Pacific coast. So he proceeded to acquire certain holdings of land where he was certain the future city would stand. He surveyed it himself, laying out streets and demarking town lots. It was only a matter of waiting a few years. There in the harbor lay tall ships which had brought out gold-seekers and some which came from strange ports to trade. The day was not far distant when ships from all the world would lie in that harbor, thought Hammond.

Today, three-quarters of a century afterward, that carefully surveyed townsite is a mud flat, still vacant, save for an occasional shack of a fisherman. San Francisco has grown into the proud city Hammond foresaw, but on almost every bit of ground save that he selected as the inevitable site.

BETHSALEM

Our Sunday School is progressing nicely. We met at the reguluar hour Sunday morning, and with a big attendance we rendered a very interesting lesson. There are a few others in this community whom we would like to enroll in our Sunday school.

Won't you come out next Sunday and join us? We need your help. We will meet earlier than usual next Sunday, on account of an all day singing at this place. Everyone is invited to come.—Agnes Askins.

ELECTION OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES

Section 133, Article 6 of the School Code of 1927 provides that the County Board of Education shall appoint for every school of the County from six discreet, competent and reliable persons of mature years nominated by the patrons of the said school, three persons residing near the schoolhouse and having the respect and confidence of the community, to serve as rtustees of the school.

The County Board would be very glad if the Code provided that three trustees should be elected by the patrons of the respective schools but since this is not true we are asking that the patrons meet at the respective school houses of the county on Friday night, July 11th, at 7:30 for the purpose of nominating six persons from whom the County Board will select three persons to serve as trustees.

KIWANIS CLUB AT MITCHELL DAM

Annual Outing Held Monday Night At A. P. C. Club House

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton met at Mitchell Dam Monday night for the annual zero hour meeting, which is held every year at the time the International Convention of Kiwanis assembles for the President's message.

Through the courtesy of Kiwanian, John Hollis, superintendent of Mitchell Dam, a barge trip had been planned to carry the party up the river for a cruise on Lake Mitchell. On account of a rainstorm which came at the hour for the meeting the trip on the lake had to be abandoned. Whereupon the gathering was assembled in the beautiful Mitchell Dam Club House, where the program was carried out.

For this occasion every member of the Club who was present brought his wife or some other guests, making a party of something over fifty persons. A delightful picnic lunch had been prepared by the ladies. As the weather prevented the serving of the lunch in picnic style, Mr. Jim Bosworth, manager of the Mitchell Dam Club, very graciously presented the visitors with the Club Dining room, which was used both for the luncheon and for the club meeting.

The speaker of the occasion was Dr. Grogan, a methodist minister, of Selma. He was accompanied on the trip over here by Dr. Jordan, a dentist. The address of Dr. Grogan was most impressive in the presentation of the Kiwanis motto, "We Build," in its application to the development of the spiritual attributes of men throughout America. He paid a glowing tribute to the club activities of women of America in comparison with those of the men in the various service clubs.

Led by Kiwanian Percy Pitts, the jolly crowd spent about thirty minutes in singing a group of old familiar and modern popular songs, ranging all the way from "Bill Bailey Come Home," to "Sunnyside Up," and "Hold Everything."

Regret that the trip on the barge was impossible was expressed by everyone present; but at the same time gratitude for the fine rain was universal. It was a fine meeting, and the Kiwanis Club are greatly indebted to Mr. and Mrs. John Hollis and Mr. Jim Bosworth for their hospitality.

ROAD CREW ENTERTAINED MONDAY

The Chilton County road working crew was given a dinner Monday at the camp of Mell Martin, on Lake Mitchell. They were engaged in working the old Higgins Ferry Road from Clanton to the river. They arrived in the vicinity of Martin's camp just at noon Monday, when all work was laid aside for an hour, and a good time was had by everybody.

Mrs. Martin and Mrs. V. J. Gragg had prepared the dinner, which was composed of plenty of fried chicken, vegetables, salads, and everything that could delight the appetite of a bunch of hungry working men.

The party consited of about a dozen men in the crew of Ed Culpepper and Max Boswell. Judge Reynolds and Commissioner Vinson were present. They expressed their pleasure at the work of the road men, and more especially did they evidence their satisfaction with the splendid dinner.

WILL TEACH SINGING SCHOOL AT FRIENDSHIP BEGIN MONDAY

Prof. Luther T. Grant of Coopers will teach a singing school at Friendship church beginning next Monday, July 7th. Prof. Grant is an outstanding music and singing teacher of the county, being among the best in this section. He has taught schools over the county for the past decade, and always gives perfect satisfaction.

Several students have been enlisted in the Friendship community as well as from Clanton and other communities. Others who may wish to enroll may get particulars from J. D. Collins, T. E. Wyatt, or Prof. Grant, or they may just be present at the opening of the school without any pre-arrangements.

The support of students from other communities who will not have a singing school will be highly appreciated both by the community and by the teacher. Don't forget that the date for the opening is next Monday morning at 9:00 o'clock. The school will continue for three weeks or eighteen days. Be there and enroll the first day, and don't miss any of the school.

Sheriff Collins with Deputies Foshee, Murrah and Robinson, arrested Lee Caton Sunday, with a pint of whiskey, out west of Thorsby. Caton was handing another man the whiskey when the officers took charge. He was arrested and released on bond.

Lee Caton lives about two miles west of Thorsby.

The officers went up to Jemison Saturday night and took charge of a negro boy by the name of Robinson who had been in a fight with and had stabbed another negro by the name of McKinley Martin. Dr. McNeil dressed the wounds of the Martin boy and the officers brought the Robinson boy and placed him in jail.

SCHOOL CENSUS BEGUN TUESDAY

Enumeration of School Population Will Be Completed This Month

According to a statement of Buford Lawrence, County Superintendent of Education, the work of enumerating the school children of Chilton County was begun on Tuesday of this week, the first day of July. The work has been organized with a corps of enumerators in every Beat of the County.

Superintendent Lawrence expresses a hope that everybody in the county will co-operate with the enumerators in making sure that every person of school age is listed in the count.

He said: "The purpose of the school census is to identify and list every person in the county of school age, that is between the ages of six and twenty years, inclusive. Since it is upon the basis of this count that the state appropriation of school funds per capita is made, it is obvious that any person within the age limit is left out will mean the loss of his or her per capita allotment of the school funds. We want to register in this census every person within the ages specified, whether married or single, white or colored. And we hope that the enumerators will have the hearty co-operation of every citizen to the end that our school census will be made absolutely correct."

The list of persons who will make the enumeration in the different Beats of the County is as follows:

Beat 1—Reed Mullins.
Beat 2—W. R. Clements, Mrs. R. M. Hubbard.
Beat 3—H. R. Oden.
Beat 4—O. H. McDowell, Charley Ward, Mrs. Frank Harwell.
Beat 5—Judson Strock.
Beat 6—L. C. Keen.
Beat 7—C. T. Walker.
Beat 8—Ernest Davis.
Beat 9—E. W. Butler, Glenn Sessions.
Beat 10—R. J. Downs.
Beat 11—M. C. Wyatt.
Beat 12—G. L. Glasscock.
Beat 13—W. G. Shaw.
Beat 14—Henry Armstrong.
Beat 15—Grady Culp.
Beat 16—J. M. Parrish.

The enumerators have the month of July in which to complete the work in their Beats and report to the County Superintendent.

ISABELLA SUMMER SCHOOL

A summer school will start at Isabella Monday, July 14th, at 8:00 o'clock. Only high school subjects will be taught. All who are interested please be on hand the first day. Tuition must be paid in advance or arranged satisfactorily, but will be reasonable as the teachers will work cheaply. Pupils should get their text books the first day, for classes wil start on the 14th.—J. D. Griffin.

PROGRAM FOR FOURTH OF JULY

Governor Graves and Other Prominent Men of State Will Speak

The committee on arrangements for the Fourth of July Celebration in Clanton for tomorrow (Friday) announce that they have perfected the program for the day as nearly as they can with the information at hand. Some of the visiting speakers and candidates who have been invited by the committee have not yet stated definitely whether they would be here or not; therefore the committee was not able at the time this is written to state definitely in regard to several prominent men who may accept the invitation at the last minute and come.

It is assured that Governor Bibb Graves will speak at ten o'clock in the morning. His subject will be "An All-Time Health Unit for Chilton County." Dr. J. N. Baker, Alabama State Health Ofifcer, will be here from Montfomery with the Governor, and will speak concerning the health work, at 10:30, following the address of Governor Graves.

At 11 o'clock Judge B. M. Miller of Camden, candidate for Governor of Alabama, will address the voters. It is conceded that the candidacy of Judge Miller has in recent weeks taken on a great wave of enthusiasm. Particularly in Clanton and Chilton County has the Miller wave been growing very rapidly. His many friends and supporters in middle Alabama will doubtless be on hand to hear this, his first speech in this section of the State.

Senator John A. Rogers of Sumter County, is on the program to speak at 1:30 o'clock. Mr. Rogers is not a candidate for any office. He is one of Alabama's most prominent men, having been in the past a powerful advocate of the State's improved highway program. In the Brandon administration, Senator Rogers was chairman of the State Highway Commission, and he had much to do with shaping the policies of Alabama in the inception of the highway program.

Attorney General, Charley McCall, who is a candidate for Governor, will speak at 2 o'clock p.m. Mr. McCall will use his loud speaker arrangement for his address, and you will be able to sit in the shade several blocks away and hear every word he says perfectly.

The committee on arrangements state that every candidate who is present will be personally introduced to the crowd. All have been invited, and every candidate whether he speaks or not, will have a chance to pass across the platform and be introduced.

An invitation has been extended to Senator Heflin and Judge Hugh Locke, independent candidate for Senator and Governor, respectively, to be present and speak. Realizing that these two gentlemen would be tied up by a big meeting in Birmingham, the committee suggested to Mr. Heflin and Mr. Locke that they might come here after the Birmingham meeting and speak about 3:30 in the afternoon. Heflin and Locke have many strong supporters in Chilton County, and no doubt their appearance here on the Fourth would receive hearty applause.

Everything is in fine shape for entertaining the visitors who come here, according to the committee of the Methodist ladies, who are sponsoring the day's program. There is being prepared plenty of barbecued chicken, pork, beef and mutton, with everything nice to go with it.

It is stated that perhaps three hundred people from Coosa County will be here, as the new road from Clanton to Rockford has been completed, and the new ferry below Mitchell Dam is in operation. This fact places Chilton County and Coosa County in the position of real next door neighbors. They have been close together all the years past, but there has never before been good roads and ferry connection between them over the hills and across the river.

Miss Lottie Scarbrough of Birmingham is spending the week with Miss Esther Farley in Clanton.

MARRIED IN DOTHAN

Mr. Alpha Miller was married to Miss Irene Woodham in Dothan last Saturday, June 21st. Mr Miller, the son of C. T. (Rube) Miller, of Wetumpka, has been working for the Alabama Power Company at Mitchell Dam for the past five or six years. Miss Woodham's home is at Slocomb; she taught school at Mitchell Dam last year. Mr. and Mrs. Miller have already taken up residence at Mitchell Dam.

STORES TO CLOSE JULY THE FOURTH

Will Stay Open This Afternoon and Close All Day Friday

The Union-Banner has questioned many of the merchants and business men of Clanton about closing their stores on Friday, July the Fourth, and also concerning the regular afternoon half holiday for Thursday afternoon of this week.

It is the unanimous opinion of all whom we have seen that it will please them to remain open for business on Thursday afternoon of this week and close up on Friday for the Fourth.

Feeling sure that this will meet with the approval of all, we are herewith taking the opportunity to say to the folks who trade in Clanton that you will find the stores open on Thursday afternoon, so that you may come to town and make your preparations for the Fourth. We suppose that all the stores of the city will be closed on the Fourth.

After this week and continuing throughout the summer, those places of business which have been doing so will continue to close for the Thursday afternoon half holiday, unless some emergency arises to make other arrangements more appropriate and convenient for the trading public.

ASSUMES EDITORSHIP

Beginning next Monday, June 30th, the entire responsibility of editing, managing and "devel-ing" The Atmore Advance and The Flomation News, which includes also the job printing business, will be shifted to the shoulders of Mr. Guy H. DeShazo for a period of several weeks.

Mr. DeShazo is a well experienced newspaper editor and manager as well as a first class printer, yet it is quite understandable that he is not as familiar with the work and likes and dislikes of the highly appreciated customers of this business as is the writer. But you are assured that Mr. DeShazo will do his best to please you, and if he makes errors they will be of the hand and not the heart.

The editor and his family expect to take a vacation, and the assistance of the friends of The Advance and News in making this vacation a success by helping Mr. DeShazo with your paper will be greatly appreciated.—Atmore Advance.

ALFRED MIMS INTERESTED IN OPPORTUNITY SCHOOLS

Mr. Alfred F. Mims, while in Clanton Saturday afternoon, came by The Union-Banner office to leave with us his check for $5.00 as a contribution to the Opportunity School Fund. Mr. Mims stated that he had observed the work of the Opportunity Schools in this county in recent years, and was very greatly impressed with the value of same. "I want to have part in providing the means whereby the Opportunity Schools can be held in Chilton County again this summer," said Mr. Mims. The Union-Banner thanks Mr. Mims and all the others who have responded to our appeal in behalf of the people who need these schools. Money invested in this way is bread cast upon the waters. You will never be able to estimate the good your dollar did if it enabled one person to learn to read and write.

HE'S ARRIVED

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Carroll announce the birth of an eight pound boy. The young man arrived at eleven o'clock Friday night, June 27th. His name is Fred Benjamin.

LETTER FROM MR. WILSON

The Union-Banner received Wednesday morning a letter from Mr. G. W. Wilson of Maple Springs community, which we were unable to publish this week, on account of the lateness of its arrival. However, the same will be carried next week. The letter deals with the political situation of Chilton County, and will be of interest to our readers. So be on the watch-out for Mr. Wilson's letter in next week's paper.

ANOTHER TELEPHONE MEETING CALLED

President Reed Mullins, of the Peoples Telephone Co., says that another meeting of the phoneholders will be held at the courthouse on the second Saturday in July. All who are interested in the Peoples phone system are urged to be present.

There were sixteen lines represented at the meeting last Saturday. There must be more interest and more co-operation on the part of the phone holders if the business is to continue operation, according to the expressed opinion of Mr. Mullins. And he is right.

The meeting on the second Saturday will be at 2 p. m.

RIVER PROJECT PARLEY PLANNED

Montgomery, Ala., June 27—A joint conference probably will be held by Governor Graves and Governor Hardeman, of Georgia, to be held in Rome in July to further the program for development of the Alabama-Coosa river between Rome and Mobile.

The proposal was submitted to Governor Graves Thursday by John A. Fox, field representative of the Mississippi Valley Association, which is sponsoring the project, and met with his approval.

Governor Graves said date of the meeting will depend upon adjournment of congress so congressional representatives of the two states will be able to attend.

Mr. Fox told the governor that the tonnage survey recently completed is highly gratifying to the sponsors of the project and that it is more than sufficient to justify the expenditure of $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 to develop the system. Federal engineers, he added, are now completing their report which will show the number of dams needed, the cost of each and other important information.

Before an appropriation can be asked of congress, Mr. Fox said, the board of engineers and the board of review at Washington must approve the development.

READY FOR THE COUNTY SINGING

All Day Session At Jemison High School Next Sunday

The biggest event of the year, speaking from a musical standpoint, will be held at the Jemison High School all day next Sunday, namely the regular spring session of the Chilton County Singing Convention.

A recent letter to Mr. Jesse Baker from Prof. J. R. Baxter, Jr., of Chattanooga, Tenn., says that he is expecting to attend, and will bring with him, besides his wife, Prof. Carlos Barrentine, and several other noted singers. The above named people are recognized as among the foremost singers and song writers of the South, and the convention is very fortunate in getting them to attend. The people who hear them will be fortunate too.

Among other attendants who will be at the convention will be: Prof. A. A. Beaird of Montgomery, Prof. H. C. Collins of Cairo, Ga., Prof. John M. Dye of Birmingham, Prof. Max Neighbors of Birmingham, Prof. P. B. Shaw of Shelby County, M. C. Jones and his ladies quartet of Bessemer, J. Leonard Harris and his men's chorus of Woodlawn, and no telling how many others—we mean other big singers. We are hoping to have several good singers from Sand Mountain in DeKalb County.

Singing will begin promptly at 10 o'clock, and continue for two hours. One hour and fifteen minutes will be allowed for dinner. Any business matters of the convention will be attended to immediately after dinner; this will require only a few minutes. Singing will continue until 3:30 or 4:00 o'clock.

Try and make your arrangements to attend, and if you are fortunate enough to get a seat and some dinner you will have a good day.

MONTGOMERY TO PLAY BALL HERE THE FOURTH

Yes, there will be a baseball game here the Fourth, among the other numerous attractions. The American Legion team of Montgomery will play the Clanton Athletics here, beginning at 2 o'clock. The game will be a double header.

This game is sponsored by the local Post of the American Legion.

JUSTICE BRANCH GETS PROHI LAW

Attorney General Hopes For Co-operation Between Authorities

Washington, June 30.—Resposibility for enforcing the prohibition law passed Monday night into hands of the nation's legal agency.

At midnight the Department of Justice, following President Hoover's plan for strengthening administration of the dry statutes, taken over the Prohibition Bureau from the treasury and inaugaurated its enforcement campaign.

The move placed Attorney General Mitchell in command of dry forces and he will be aided by Assistant Attorney General Youngquist, as administrative officer, and Amos W. W. Woodcock and Howard T. Jones, also lawyers, as director and assistant director of the division of prohibition.

Calling for state cooperation, Mr. Mitchell last week said that when the eighteenth amendment was adopted it was not contemplated the federal government would create an enormous police force "such as would be necessary to enforce the law if state authorities did nothing."

He added he would put forth a special effort to confer with authorities of each state "to obtain that degree of law observance and enforcement" which, he said, could come "only through united efforts of state and federal governments."

It is reported he will seek to have conferences called between governors of states and dry officers to evolve methods of more rigidly enforcing the law. Other reports have it the attorney general will seek an increase in number of prohibition agents with a view to tightening enforcement in wet districts of the country and will concentrate upon those spots.

Transfer of the Prohibition Bureau will take away from the Treasury for the first time the handling of the liquor problem. Before adoption of the eighteenth amendment, the Treasury administered the internal revenue law which collected taxes from the liquor business and since that time has not only had enforcement of prohibition but handling of the industrial alcohol and medical liquor manufacture.

Conditions of Transfer

Under the transfer the Treasury will retain control of the industrial alcohol and medicinal liquor, though the departmen of justice is given equal authority over issuance of permits for manufacture and use of industrial alcohol.

The change took approximately 2,700 employes from the Treasury to the Departmen of Justice. Of this number 1,700 are prohibition agents who are expected to concentrate their efforts upon capture of large illicit distilleries and rings which are handling intoxicants, rather than devote attention to minor bootlegging.

Physically, however, there actually will be no transfer of the personal from their present offices. Both the industrial alcohol divison of the Treasury and the prohibition division of the Justice Department will retain their offices in the Southern Railway Building here and the only change will be for director Woodcock and his assistant to take over their offices in that building.

Rev. Ernest Childs, pastor of the Clanton Methodist Church, is in Eutaw this week conducting a revival meeting. Due to his absence there will be no preaching service at the Methodist Church next Sunday morning and Sunday night.

Chas. Cooper, of Mountain Creek was a visitor to Clanton last Friday. Mr. Cooper says he expects to write some articles for The Union-Banner between now and the primary election.

O. H. McDOWELL'S PLATFORM

I will say to the voters it will not be right for me to ask you for your vote and influence without giving you some idea of the things I stand for.

To begin with I will say personally we have some school laws I am not in favor of. Nevertheless, we have them and let's do the best we can with what we have.

Our country is full of intelligent men and women that know what they want, and know what is best for them and their children in the cause of education. My full desire will be to give the people a right to explain themselves on all questions, and grant them their requests if possible.

Be submissive to the decision of of the majority of our people on all questions.

Use economy with our school funds and give every child its part of the money expended for that purpose. Each child of school age, no matter where they live, should have an equal chance to our schools.

I wish to thank you for the encouragement I am receiving, and to those who do not know me, I again solicit your vote and influence. I will try my best to see every voter before the primary.

Your for good schools,
O. H. McDOWELL.

Lady Glowworm: "I never want to see you again!"

Male Glowworm: "All right, dearie. You glow your way and I'll glow mine."

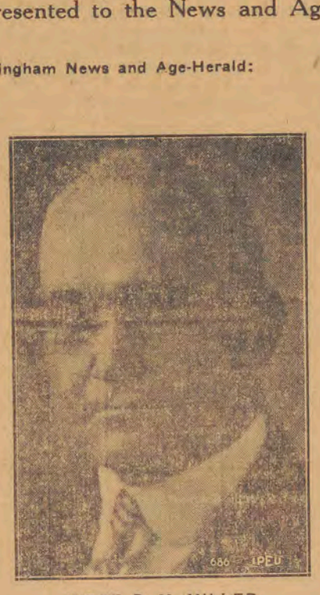
JUDGE B. M. MILLER

Candidate for Governor

Questions fairness

of STRAW VOTE of

Birmingham News



— and —

AGE-HERALD

ON JUNE 15, 1930, the Birmingham News and Age-Herald proposed a straw ballot for the offices of United States Senator, Governor and Lieutenant Governor. On June 19, the following statement was presented to the News and Age-Herald:

"To the Birmingham News and Age-Herald:

If Governor Graves should propose a test vote in the present campaign for governor, the public would question whether or not his personal interest in the same were too great to permit a fair result. In such a proposed test vote he would have what amounts to the appointment of all returning and other officers who would receive and count the votes and as a result his position would be like that of a judge in a court who tries a case in which he is interested.

JUDGE B. M. MILLER

While the News and Age-Herald have taken no public position editorially in the campaign for governor it is well known that in their policies they favor the nomination of Governor Davis. The public is not unaware of the fact that Hon. Robert B. Evins is the counsel and political adviser of the News and that he is also one of the chief advisers of Governor Davis in his present campaign.

I, therefore, question the propriety of your undertaking this test vote. Due to the fact that your circulation reaches a limited number of voters who are located generally in the Birmingham district, the result of such a test could not indicate the views of a fair cross section of the state. In counting a large number of votes and in checking them against the lists of duly qualified voters in the county in which the voter lives, many members of your staff will of necessity learn the position of each voter. Many voters prefer to keep their ballots secret as the law provides. In spite of all the efforts with which you undertake to surround these ballots with secrecy it is not unreasonable to believe that with the campaign at high pitch such as the present one is, the results of many of these votes will reach Governor Davis' headquarters. As long as this test vote continues those who cast their ballots for other candidates than Governor Davis will run the risk of having their position disclosed.

I am, therefore, requesting my friends and supporters not to engage in this test ballot.

B. M. MILLER."

The News and Age-Herald declined to publish this statement.

On June 20 Mr. John Miller, who is in charge of my headquarters in Birmingham, offered this statement to the News and Age-Herald as a paid advertisement.

The News and Age-Herald declined to publish this advertisement.

In a hotly contested election the ascertainment of the true expression of voters is not without difficulty even under the protection of the law.

In this proposed straw ballot voters cannot be identified nor their signatures verified.

Any partisan supporter who is so minded could clip hundreds of ballots from these newspapers and fill them in with the names of qualified voters in his county or elsewhere.

This proposed test ballot was instituted by the News and Age-Herald for a purpose either mercenary or political. If mercenary, it offers an opportunity for unfairness and places an inflated sale of daily papers above a spirit of fairness to candidates. If political, it wears an untrue mask of impartiality and is instituted to bolster up the waning candidacy of Governor Davis.

For the reasons set out in this statement I request that my friends and supporters do not engage in this proposed straw vote.

Lesson for July 6

ABRAHAM, A PIONEER OF FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 12:1-3; 13:1-12; 14:14-16; 17:1-8; Heb. 11:8-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—By faith Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Pleasing God by Obedience.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Abraham, the Pioneer.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Pioneering in an Unknown Country.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Man Who Found Friendship with God.

I. Abraham's Call (12:1).

Abraham's ancestors were idolatrous. God came unto him in Ur of the Chaldees and said unto him,

1. "Get thee out of thy country." It was necessary for him to break the strong attachments which bound him.

2. Get thee out "from thy kindred." He was not only to leave behind him his native land, but his relatives as well. His kindred being idolaters, he must separate himself from them.

3. "Into a land that I will show thee." He was not told what or where the land was.

II. God's Covenant with Abraham (12:2, 3; 17:1-8).

1. What God promised to Abraham. (1) To make him the father of a great posterity (v. 2). This has been literally fulfilled. (2) To make his name great (v. 2). No name in all history equals that of Abraham in its honorable influence. It is revered among Jews, Mohammedans and Christians. They all acknowledge him as father. (3) A blessing to others (vv. 2, 3). He was not only to become great and share God's blessings, but to be a blessing to others.

2. The land given unto him (17:8).

Although Abraham was a pilgrim, he was permitted to sojourn in the land. The land itself was given to his seed, Israel—God's chosen and most favored nation. The nation to which He came nearest and gave most, in order that it might pass on his goodness to the other nations of the world, was given the most strategic position in the earth.

While the Hebrews have failed in the fulfillment of their divinely appointed task and the world is in chaos because of it, they shall go back to their old land and fulfill their divinely appointed task.

III. Abraham's Generous Treatment of Lot (13:1-12; 14:14-16).

While Abraham sojourned in Egypt, having gone there because of the famine in Canaan, he grew rich in worldly goods. Because of his deception of the king, he was thrust out of Egypt when the truth became known.

1. Abraham and Lot separate (vv. 5-12).

Seeing that their temporal relations would engender strife and provoke quarreling, and knowing the disastrous effect upon the heathen round about, Abraham gave Lot his choice. Though Lot owed everything to Abraham, his selfish heart moved him to grasp for the best, and his decision ultimately brought him to grief. He prospered for awhile, but eventually not only his goods, but he himself and his family were taken away by the confederate kings who came against Sodom.

2. Abraham delivers Lot (14:14-16).

Though Lot's trouble was the fruit of his own sowing, Abraham's magnanimity of soul moved him to take up arms and deliver Lot from the oppressor. While Lot suffered from his selfish choice, Abraham prospered.

IV. Abraham's Faith (Heb. 11:8-10).

1. Its source (v. 8).

The word of God. Faith takes God at His word.

2. Its practice (vv. 9, 10).

Abraham never settled down, even in the land of promise. He was a true pilgrim. He was content to pass through the land because his eyes were fixed on "a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God."

V. Abraham Tested (Heb. 11:17-19).

1. At the command of God he offered up Isaac (v. 17).

He went out from the country in obedience to God. He laid down his son on the altar in obedience to God.

2. The promise of blessing was wrapped up in Isaac (v. 18).

3. The supreme venture (v. 19).

He so completely trusted God that he went all the way. He believed that God would raise up Isaac from the dead in order to make good His promise.

One of His Heroes

To go on cheerfully with a petty round of little duties, little avocations, to smile for the joy of others when the heart is aching . . . who does this, his works will follow him. He may not be a hero to the world, but he is one of God's heroes.—Doctor Farrar.

Asking God's Guidance

SCHOOL TRANSPORTATION IS MAJOR NEED

County Superintendent, B. Lawrence, of this place reports that a recent conference of the county superintendents of education held at the state university featured strongly the importance of proper transportation for rural school children, recommended studies of the various systems of handling the problem, and called attention to the growing demand for well-organized, modern schooling within reach of every country home.

School reports from the sixty-seven counties this year will show that 70,000 children are transported to school in Alabama at a cost of $1,500,000. Yet no legislature in the history of the state has made any appropriation with this service in mind. Consequently the nicreasing demand for high school training and for graded schooling, which can be found in the open country only in consolidated centers, has set up a rapidly growing expense which depletes funds needed for salaries of teachers and for school terms of standard length. Nearly every country has been forced to add school trucks in small or large number; and the problem of financing a minimum school term becomes keener each year.

Legionnaires Demand Improved Rural Schooling

Farley Moody, Post No. 34, American Legion, with headquarters at Tuscaloosa will submit to the state convention of the American Legion at Montgomery on July 28-30 a most progressive program for rural school improvement. The ex-soldiers, with memories of the keen embarrassment and handicap which the unlettered "buddies" experience during the war, are demanding that Alabama legislators funish adequate training to every county in the state.

Specifically, the Legion program demand a nine-months school term in every district free of all tuition, seven of which term shall be strictly compulsory, with buildings and transportation made adequate to put modern schooling within reach of every child. The resolutions cite some of the bad conditions existing; for instance, many rural terms below seven months, rural people forced to pay in tuition to extend terms more than $475,000 per year, many thousands of rural children out of reach of any school offering the grade of work needed. They call attention to the fact that nine months is the standard minimum school term in all civilization, that tuition and supplements are ridiculous in a modern state, and express impatience with less than the best in Alabama.

The resolutions end with a demand for prompt "correction of a shameful condition." The Legion convention will be asked to consider the Tuscaloosa proposals and to set up machinery for presenting them properly to the state legislature.

V·ITALITY!

"SURE! I can finish that today"

A strong, healthy body and mind always respond to the occasion. Employers appreciate and recognize unfailing freshness—always ready—cheerfully ready to carry on—minus that "tired feeling."

DON'T let a weakened body hold you back. Prolonged, it may result in so-called premature old age. Today's happiness and friends may be gone tomorrow.

Thousands of people have a low blood count—to this may be attributed skin troubles, "run-down" systems and even more serious ailments.

If you tire easily—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S.

When you get your red-blood-cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, lack of appetite, skin troubles disappear. You should get hungry again and sleep soundly; firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

S.S.S. helps Nature build rich, red blood. It improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain and retain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

S.S.S. is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and is easily assimilated. All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

A REVIVAL

Much is being said among the Christian Professors about the summer revival. Time is being set in different localities for the beginning of a revival but I would like to ask you, reader and Christian, what brings a revival. Men are planning to be prepared to attend meetings and women are preparing by making their new dresses; also their eats for the meeting rae being prepared. How does a revival come my dear friend? Let everyone ask himself this question, lets think back over the past few years as to the revivals and what avail they were and also consider how they came about to see if we are facing a revivel or just a few days of gathering together and think if we have done all we can do concerning God's work. Take my friend the early church,how did they prepare for the great revival? When God looked out from heaven and poured out upon them that great blessing which is the Holy Ghost and then as Peter preached that heart rending sermon there were added into the church about three thousand souls. Acts, 2-41. The question, what brings a successful heaven rending, hell stirring, soul saving revival. Consider Christian bros. and sisters, how Jesus the Savior of the world led the disciples out as far as Bethany and lifted up His hand and blessed them. And being assembled together with them commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise. I would like to say to you dear ones, the disciples returned from the Mt. of Olive to Jerusalem and when they were come in they went up into an upper room and these all continued with prayer and supplication with women and even Mary, the mother of Jesus being in their midst. Now brothers and sisters it was necessary for them to pray for that mighty revival just after Jesus returned to the father, should it be so now? I believe that if Christians would gather together and wait upon God that a mighty revival would break out and our souls be swept into the kingdom of God. Amen.—R. S. Easterling, Clanton, R 7.

Jack: "So your father demurred at first because he didn't want to lose you."

Ethel: "Yes, but I won his consent. I told him he need not lose me; we could live with him, so he would not only have me, but a son-in-law to boot."

Jacks: "H'm! I don't like the expression 'to boot'."

Hiram: "Why do you feed your pigs only every other day?"

Hank: "So the bacon will be streaky."

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Sir Hubert Wilkins Discovers 540,000 Square Miles

©I.N.S.

(1) Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins. (2) Members of the second Wilkins aerial expedition to the Antarctic, left to right: Orval Porter, engineer; Al Cheesman and Parker Cramer, pilots, and Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins. (3) One of the airplanes in which Captain Wilkins flew more than 6,000 miles in the Antarctic. He was the first to fly in that region. (4) One of the striking air views of the Antarctic. Captain Wilkins has made a complete photographic record of his pioneering flights in the Far South.

"I'M not interested in doing what other people have done or going where others have gone. I want to do what others haven't done and go where no one else has gone before."

Here is the creed of the true explorer. The speaker is Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins—one who, from his record of achievement as a scientist and explorer, is especally qualified to speak for his clan.

Adventure and romance are not dead!

Captain Wilkins has lived up to the creed of the true explorer. In 17 years of exploration work in the Polar regions he has seen more land never before observed by human eyes than any other man. The figure is astounding—fully 540,000 square miles of land in the Arctic and Antarctic that he was the first to see. Much of this vast acreage he has recorded for posterity in maps and pictures.

Some of this territory he saw first on foot. Then, in more recent years he saw the same land—and a great deal more—from the air. In 1928, with the late Carl Ben Eielson as his pilot, he flew from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen. Fully 1,200 miles of the 2,300 miles covered on this trip comprised straight line flying over territory never before seen. In two aerial expeditions to the Antarctic his straight line flying over land not previously observed totaled 1,500 miles.

It is figured that in flying of this sort, the eyes can take in 100 miles on either side of the course, making 200 miles in all. Multiply 200 by 2,700, which is the total of his straight line flying over previously unobserved territory in both the Arctic and Antarctic, and we get the 540,000 figure.

Captain Wilkins has tramped on foot over a total of 5,000 miles of Arctic wastes. The total mileage of his flights in the Arctic is 15,000, 10 per cent of which was over territory never before seen. In the Antarctic Captain Wilkins has flown a total of 6,000 miles, 25 per cent of which was over previously unknown land.

"And," observed Captain Wilkins, "although I've been through my full share of difficulties, I've never had any occasion to ask for help."

First to Fly in Antarctic

Captain Wilkins has conducted two aerial exhibitions into the bleak Antarctic. On the first, late in 1928, he was the first to fly in the Antarctic and his main discovery was that Graham Land was a group of islands separated from the Antarctic Continent by an ice filled channel, as against the former theory that Graham Land was a continuous body of land and part of the Antarctic Continent.

The expedition's chief flight lasted 9 hours. About 1,200 miles of hitherto unknown land were covered on this flight alone. With Captain Wilkins on the expedition were the late Lieutenant Eielson, Joe Crosson, pilot, and Orval Porter, expert aviation mechanic.

In the fall of 1929 Captain Wilkins set out on his second Antarctic aerial expedition. His aides this time were Parker D. Cramer, pilot; Al Cheesman, pilot, and Porter. The expedition, in a few short months, pushed back the Antarctic Continent by about 8 degrees, discovered five new islands, charted about 1,200 miles of coastline, completed the location of 12 suitable points for meteorological stations, determined that Charcot Land is an island and not part of the mainland, as supposed, and obtained some valuable and new biological data on Antarctic life.

Great things are planned by scientists and explorers for the immediate years ahead. A vast concentration of scientific brain and man power is projected for 1932 when an extensive International Expedition will get under way. This project has the backing of great scientific organizations and societies and already many countries have signified their wish to be partners in the undertaking.

Captain Wilkins' immediate part in the International Expedition's work will be the carrying out in the summer of 1931 of his much discussed submarine trip across the North Pole, making his way underneath the ice. Plans for this trip in a submersible vessel are rapidly taking form.

"I'm firmly convinced this submersible vessel trip is the safest thing I've planned to do in 15 years," said Captain Wilkins. "I actually believe it's safer than flying. Of course, there are doubters who scoff at the idea, but the ridicule of these people doesn't bother me. I'm used to that. Why, as few years ago as 1919 people everywhere said it was absolutely out of the question for an airplane to fly over the Pole."

"Just as people changed their minds about the airplane, so they are changing their minds about the submarine and the chances for using it in exploration work in the Arctic.

Every Safety Factor Planned

"Every feature of the proposed trip is being gone into. Every safety factor is being worked out. We are preparing for every possible emergency.

"From my Arctic and Antarctic experience I know you never find a piece of ice more than 20 miles across. Thus we would be able to come up within 10 miles if and when we go under such a large piece of ice. In other words we would be able to rise within 10 miles of any given spot in the Arctic Ocean.

"We will also have methods for cutting our way right up through an ice barrier, if necessary—a telescopic conning tower, drills, and other apparatus operated from the inside.

"Our maximum traveling speed will be 4 miles an hour under the ice. We will have a fuel range of 7,000 miles which will provide an ample margin of safety for our trip of about 2,200 miles. I know the North Pole is navigable. We will not go deeper than 300 feet.

"Our work will directly tie in with the proposed aims of the International Expedition. Scientists want me to proceed with this expedition to better determine what conditions man must contend with in the heart of the Arctic—to pave the way for the International Expedition so they will carry on with the right tools for effective work.

"It will be our aim to make a thorough study of the region so that we can inform the International Expedition of the difficulties to expect, the dangers to avoid, the equipment to carry and how to go.

"Another important objective will be to make a preliminary test of the possibility of developing trade routes across the Arctic with submersible vessels. If it is eventually found practical for commercial submersibles to make their way underneath the ice, trade in the Far North could be kept up for at least 10 months in the year instead of the mere four months, as at present."

It is in the science of meteorology that Captain Wilkins is particularly interested. He visions the time when the North and South Poles will be surrounded by meteorological observation stations which will cooperate with the stations in the more temperate zones in the study of atmospheric conditions with the idea of making long-range weather forecasts.

"It is known," Captain Wilkins said, "that there is a direct relationship between conditions in the Arctic and Antarctic and conditions in other parts of the world. But much work remains to be done to determine the full scope and strength of the influence the North and South Poles exert on the weather of other sections."

Captain Wilkins started his polar exploration work in 1913 when he joined the Canadian Arctic Expedition of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, another famous explorer. Stefansson's expedition was made up of a northern and southern group.

His Career With Stefansson

Captain Wilkins served with Stefansson for three years. Although he was born on the southern edge of the tropics in Australia, he showed himself well fitted for work in the North and became one of the most efficient men on the expedition.

Stefansson's aide and photographer then entered the World War. Joining the Australian forces, he went to the western front in France as a photographer. He was promoted to Captain, was placed in command of the Australian airplanes, was cited several times for bravery and at the end of the war was cited by the Commander-in-Chief of the Australian forces as the combination of the bravest and most useful man of that entire great army.

After the World War he began to plan his own Polar work in earnest. In 1919 he made his first trip to the Antarctic as second in command of the British Imperial Antarctic Expedition. The expedition did its exploring by foot and by boat. It was beset by great hardships.

Knighted by King George

Captain Wilkins continued his polar work. It was his aim to fly across the Arctic. He encountered many difficulties in his efforts to accomplish this but he was finally successful in 1928 when he and Eielson made their memorable flight from Alaska to Spitzbergen. They were the first and are still the only men who have flown the entire way across the Polar Sea from the one continent to the other. He was knighted by the King of England for this achievement. It was in the same year that he started on his first aerial expedition into the Antarctic.

Because of the great public interest in the polar regions Captain Wilkins is often called on to speak over the radio on his experiences there, his latest radio talk being from New York on May 28 over WEAF and 29 associated NBC stations as the feature of the Mobiloil Hour.

Captain Wilkins, who in 18 years has never lived for more than 6 weeks in any one house, now is in New York City laying plans for his submarine trip in the Arctic. He expects to board the Graf Zeppelin when she arrives in the United States early in June and make the return journey with her.

Outstanding Features of Sir Hubert Wilkins' Career

THE SHOE "DRUMMER" AT HOME

The young son is cuddled in the proud father's arms and sent forth for a walk and a sun bath that will most assurdely bring the wished-for nap.

The lullabys crooned by the father, who for several years has been the pupil of one of Clanton's song birds, certainly are well fit to attract the powers of the slumber god.

Regulating his pace that it may be atuned to the meter of his whispered song in soothing notes, Ross presses the sleep-god to come. The little pinktoed wriggling bit of humanity expresses a desire to get into a different position.

The father turns. The baby is turned. The hopeful father finally beholds his labors apparently rewarded with restful, peaceful sleep. To make assurance double sure, the fond parent whispers: "Baby are you asleep?"

Then, believe it or not, that eight-day-old, mischievous youngster looks up into father's face, the same as to say: "This is all a big old joke. You could easily cut it out and it would make no difference, for I will have my sleep anyway. You ought to know that I do my sleeping by day, and have my entertainment at night."

"I hadn't thought of that; but since I come to think of it, I believe you are right," said father Ross.

A BLOODLESS BATTLE IS REPORTED

It was several days ago when a bloodless battle was fought. The victor yet suffers a wounded hand that bears mute testimony as to the heat of the encounter.

Just another story of the "Didn't know it was loaded" type. In this instance however, it was a gasoline stove instead of a shot gun. It was Mrs. S. J. Kicker's stove, and it needed refueling. True the flame had flickered out. So sure was Mrs. Kicker of this "Fact" that she proceeded to re-fill the tank.

Then came the explosion which would have frenzied a less heroic woman. A battle with the flames that threatened to consume her home was waged for several minutes. Mrs. Kicker fought valiently and alone—and won, after sustaining slight damages.

Upon receiving expressions of thankfulness from her friends for her escape from material loss and painful physical suffering, Mrs. Kicker promptly replied to queries in this manner:

"Certainly I expect to continue using my gasoline stove. There is nothing like it. My carelessness is responsible for the accident. I should have made sure the flame was out before attempting to refill the tank."

The Intermediate Sunday School Class of the New Salem Church was given a picnic by their teacher, Allean Gore, Saturday afternoon on the creek near the church. Everyone had an enjoyable time swimming and playing games. Late in the afternoon lunch was served to the following: Mrs. T. D. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Burber Bean, Curtis Hay, Eula Mae Riggins, Julia Cox, Ellen Riggins, Pauline Cox, Margarete Price, Mary Cox, Clessie Argo, Voncile Jackson, James Cox, Herlie Bean Howard Melton, Hermon Bean, Margarete Bean, Earlston Nelson, Arthur Jr. Cox, Francis Gore, Lera Burnett, Lotus and Henrietta Bean, Hilda Mae Smith, Zalia Hall, Renfroe Price, Bernice Cox, Vera Burnett, Harvey Morris, James Bean, and Kathleen Smith. Everybody of New Salem community and elsewhere are cordially invited to attend Sunday School with us every Suunday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

HAS THE LAXATIVE IN YOUR HOME A DOCTOR'S APPROVAL?

Some things people do to help the bowels whenever any bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, or a lack of appetite warn of constipation, really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what will cleanse the system without harm. That is why the laxative in your home should have the approval of a family doctor.

The wonderful product, known to millions as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. BABY OF MR. AND MRS. WHITE DIED LAST THURSDAY

Little Marianna, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horsley White, died last Thursday night, after it had been carried to Montgomery for the atention of a specialist.

The child was born Wednesday morning. Some time Thursday it became ill, and all that doctors could do would not bring it any relief.

The little body was prepared for burial by Mell Martin Friday morning, and laid to rest in Clanton cemetery Friday afternoon. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. White deeply sympathize with them in the loss of this cherished young flower of their home.

A brief burial service at the grave was conducted by Rev. Ernest Childs, pastor of Clanton Methodist Church.

Where Revolution Came to Its Glorious Finish

If Germain had done that; if Burgoyne had done this, if Clinton had done something else, and Cornwallis had been left free to do what he deemed wise in the circumstances, there would, in truth, be no reason for the pilgrim to historic shrines to tarry in Yorktown, because the McClellan siege of April, 1865, was inconsequential.

But Germain ran true to form; Burgoyne followed instructions at Sara-

Doorway of General Nelson's home, which was Lord Cornwallis' headquarters during the siege of Yorktown in the war of 1776. The home has been purchased by a wealthy Chicagoan, who intends to thoroughly restore the buildings, servants' quarters and other relics of the period as perfectly as possible.

toga; Clinton vacillated and issued and countermanded orders, and harried Cornwallis did the best he could. But it wasn't good enough, and so that quaint hamlet on the York river bulks large to those who tour the tidewater country of Virginia.

The community had its inception in 1691, when Benjamin Reade, who inherited the land from his grandfather, was ordered to sell 50 acres for a town site. In 1698, Yorktown became the county seat, and the oldest house there, according to local chronicles, was built one year later, and still is standing.

There also is the oldest customs house in the United States, built in 1715, the Moore house, where Cornwallis signed the surrender, October 18, 1781, and the Nelson house with Revolutionary cannon balls still sticking in its walls.

But outside the village and on the way to Hampton, just a bit off the main road and alongside of the National cemetery, is that which imparts a thrill to him who pays his first visit to the spot.

Here, in a field perhaps a mile from the inner fortifications of the British, and after a seven days' siege, Cornwallis, by the hand of General O'Hara delivered his sword as a token of surrender to General Lincoln, whom Washington had designated to accept it. Perhaps it was a coincidence, perhaps not, but at the surrender of Charleston, Lincoln had handed his sword to this same British earl.

Where Paine, Great Lover of Liberty, Passed Away

An old frame building at 309 Bleecker street in New York city, which is reputed to have stood there for more than 125 years, once was the rooming house of Mme. Bonneville, where Thomas Paine spent his last days.

When clergymen visited Paine and sought to convince him of the error of his beliefs, Mme. Bonneville is reputed to have met them at the door and refused to admit them. Another story is to the effect that while Mme.

Where Tom Paine spent his last days.

Bonneville was liberal in her views, she still was influenced by pressure brought to bear upon her by the church for harboring Paine in her household, and she took another house. This version contends that Paine moved voluntarily to 59 Grove street, her new location, in order to spare his landlady from further annoyance on the part of well-meaning clergymen. At any rate, Paine died a month later in his new quarters at the age of seventy-two.

Cavalry Had Its Part in Revolutionary War

One of the latest discoveries concerning the War of the Revolution is that imposing cavalry forces were among the factors that won independence for the Colonies. The general belief was that ragged, uniformed infantry waged the struggle.

Robert W. Chambers, preparing historical data for a fiction serial in Woman's Home Companion, found that four regiments of cavalry were actively engaged. The light horsemen were gorgeously arrayed, with leather or steel helmets heavily ridged with fur or feathers or profusely plumed with red, white or black horsehair. At Cowpens and Eutaw there were pitched cavalry battles, wherein the troops operated with such success that many military observers believe that more use of the cavalry would have shortened the war by many months, if not years.

Among Chambers' other discoveries were the facts that the colors buff and blue, usually supposed to have been those of the Continentals, were seldom seen except in the uniforms of certain officers. The Colonial soldiers were uniformed according to the designs of their governments but it was seldom that they fought in homespun.

Nation Slow to Honor Memory of Doctor Craik

After more than 100 years a fitting tribute to the services to his country was paid Dr. James Craik of Port Tobacco, Md., by the erection of an imposing granite monument over the grave of this famous patriot of the Continental army, in the burying

Doctor Craik was appointed chief physician and surgeon of the Continental army and is the man who attended George Washington on his deathbed. Doctor Craik's grave was forgotten and unmarked for many years in the weed-grown burying ground of the quaint old church in Alexandria. Finally a small brass tablet was provided by the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, but through an error it was placed in the wrong location. Now the grave has been suitably marked by a monument by a committee of his descendants, headed by Mrs. John D. Patten of Washington, D. C.

Keep Independence Day

Citizens of Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, of which Charlotte is the seat, celebrated Independence day May 20.

On May 20, 1775, so North Carolina historians affirm, farmers of Mecklenburg county signed a declaration of independence from British rule. Local historians contend this was the first such declaration to be made in America.

WHO KILLED COCK ROBIN?

John Martin Wants To Know Some of the Wherefores of the Lett Case

Editor Union-Banner:

I have been thinking for some time that I would write the people of this county a letter and ask for information. We have had some kind of a law suit over our primary ever since our County Executive Committee met and fixed qualifications for candidates and voters.

What is it all about? What interest has Democrats in our primtry? Who put up all the money to have this law suit before Judge Smoot, and after he had ruled that our committee was inside the law and had a right to investigate all candidates and that the voters had a right to know ho wall candidates had been voting, before we voted for or against them? Then the Democrats were not satisfied and carried the case to the Supreme Court, and the Supreme Court said that our Committee acted according to law. These Democratic lawyers were still not satisfied, and asked the Supreme Court to reconsider the case. Now the court has refused to reconsider the case, so it is final that the Republican County Executive Committee was within its rights when it said that all candidates must tell how they voted in 1928 before their names could be placed on the Republican ballot.

Mr. Editor, I was a member of the County Executive Committee when Judge Reynolds introduced the resolution to make all candidates tell how they voted in 1928, and not a word was said against the resolution. There was some argument about the part of the resolution that referred to voters deliberately going into a primary and then voting for candidates in another party. The resolution said that it was dishonorable to do this, and some of the committeemen made a motion to strike the word "dishonorable" out of the resolution, and as I remember only one vote was cast for this motion. Now, after our committee unanimously passed this program for us to go by, I cannot understand who put up this money to pay all the law suits there have been about it. Why were the Democrats so worried about our primary?

For my life I cannot understand why any candidate would object to the voters knowing how he voted. In the name of common sense I ask, how can anyone vote intelligently for any candidate unless he knows what the politics of the candidate is, and we know the politics of people by the way they vote. If I am going to vote for a Democrat I will be sure and go into the Democratic party to vote for him. I cannot understand why any Republican or Democrat can complain at the action of our Republican Executive Committee. It is the most liberal call that I ever knew any party making. Every qualified voter is invited to go into our primary, if they will pledge their honor to support the nominees, and every qualified voter in the county can run for office in our primary. All the committee required them to do was just to tell the voters how they voted in 1928. If this is not liberal enough, then in the name of common sense, how much more liberal could the committee ever be, and yet, some people are telling over the county that certain candidates have been barred from running in our primary.

Mr. Editor, I am a Republican and I always vote the Republican ticket without hesitation, and I cannot understand how any candidate could expect Republican voters to vote for him if he did vote for the Republican nominees.

As was argued before the Republican Executive Committee, the people who have been voting the Republican ticket are due the credit for us having a Republican party at this time. Suppose all Republican voters had decided at past elections to scratch the ticket. We would not have any Republican party now.

I am a candidate for County Commissioner in the first district, and I want to be elected; but I am more interested in the success of the Republican party than I an in my own election. I promise the people of this county that if I am elected I will manage the Commissioners office the very best I can, and I will try to spend their money to the best interest of all the taxpayers of the county. I will give the work in my district to the people who live in the district and the nearest to the road where the work is to be done.

Mr. Editor, I hope that you or Judge Reynolds one will explain in your paper what the law suit I have referred to above was all about and I would like to hear an explanation from Mr. Omar Reynolds and Percy Pitts, the attorneys, who have so successfully defended the attack made on our committee and our party through all the courts of the State.

I hope the Republican voters of our county will turn out to our primary on August 12th and that each one will vote his honest conviction, and then after the primary, I hope all Republicans will go to the general election and vote for the men nominated on the Republican ticket.

I promise you that if I am nominated that if I live I will go to the election and vote the Republican ticket from top to bottom.

Voters, we have some complaint made against our county officials, but I ask you, what kind of complaint will be made if the Democrats were to elect the officers of the county?

Just read the State Democratic parers and where the Democrats make dollar complaints against our officials. They are making almost a million dollar complaint against their own State officials. If Chilton County is to ever be managed like the Democrats are managing the State affairs, God pity the tax payers.

Yours for peace and harmony in the Republican primary, hoping that all Republicans will stand together after the primary and that our entire ticket will be overwhelmingly elected. Yours truly,—J. H. Martin.

NOTE.—The ways of some Democrats are past finding out. We do not profess to know all about what was behind the famous Lett case which Mr. Martin refers to above. But in response to his request, we shall be glad to take one good wholesome guess at it next week. Our opinion as to what was behind this case may not be worth anything; it may not even be right. But we are willing, yes indeed glad, for Mr. Martin and the voters of Chilton County to know what we think about it. Watch for it next week.—Editor.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

MERCIFUL JESUS ON THE PLAIN OF GENNESARET

This morning we continue to study the most spiritual book ever written. It teaches distinctly and undeniably the Deity of Jesus Christ. We have now reached the 6th chapter of this Gospel according to St. John. This chapter can be called the "miracle chapter." Some call it the "bread of life" chapter while there are still others who call it the "compassion chapter."

In the chapter you have first a great miracle; second, a great need, third a great multitude, fourth, a great savior, fifth, a great boy, and sixth, a great compassion. The place is in the plain of Gennesaret extending northwest from Magdala toward the Great Sea. When we think of Magdala in connection with this plain we at once think of the saving love of Jesus to the beautiful, kind, and gentle Mary of Magdala. Then you think of the devotion of this lovely character to Jesus.

Now Christ has been speaking to crowds all day. No doubt he had spoken that very day at Bethsaida just before He crossed over the sea of Galilee and went up the mountain side. Philip of Bethsaida, and also Andrew were with him. But Jesus cannot be hid from the multitudes. They followed Him because they had seen Him minister to many around, about in the different towns of Galilee. We see that Jesus and His disciples knew the territory.

Philip comes up to Christ, and as Jesus lifts up his eyes, and looked upon a multitude of people approaching Him he is addressed by Christ. Andrew, one of the first disciples of our Lord was there and we find that it was he who brought the great boy to Jesus. Here Jesus looked upon the hungry multitude of people in great compassion. There are hundreds of thousands of hungry and needy people in our own country today. Jesus turned and said to his disciples, "Give them to eat". That command is just as much to us today it was to the disciples on the plain of Gennesaret.

Jesus multiplied five barley loaves and two small fish into as much as five thousand men could eat. That this was a great event is proven in that it is recorded by all four Gospel writers. Also this was emphasized that this scene was an important one. Then again it shows that the Christ who made heaven and earth and the seas and all that in them is also made the bread and gives it to the people. He made also the waving fields of wheat, barley, and oats.

Next we see a great boy, a boy who gave everything which he had to Christ. My friends, he gave everything to Christ. He did not have much but he gave it all to Christ. O dear boys, many of you, like me, have little to give. I beg you to give it all to Christ as did the little boy who gave the biscuits and two small fishes to Jesus on the plain of Gennesaret. Just watch what Jesus does. Another thing in this miracle is the proof of Christ's readiness for any emergency, or that there was no emergency for Him. O my friend, it was the preeminent Jesus who was ready to do.

Notice that here was the bread and fish. The fish were like sardines yet they were dried no doubt. The bread was no doubt sun-dried or cooked on a rock. Some people say that this young lad had gone to preaching and his mother had given him this lunch because the journey was long and he no doubt would want to stay late to hear Jesus' words. Others say that he went there to sell those small fish and barley loaves to make a living to support his mother. But the point of consideration is the great fact that when Christ spoke to him he obeyed and gave to Christ all he had. O did I give to Christ in Raleigh all that I had? Did I give to Christ in Princeton all that I had? Have I given to Christ in Birmingham all that I have? If I have kept back anything I want to come with you this morning and lay it all on the altar.

"My life, my love, I give to thee, thou Lamb of God on Calvary."

The bread and the fish were natural foods as God gives us daily. Christ showed that He was a supernatural Christ by multiplying them into enough to feed thirteen thousand people. Think of this great boy who gave everything he had to Christ. Boys, are you giving all that you have to Christ? O what a blessed thing it is to give to Jesus all you have. Did you ever feel lonely? May be you are lonely because you do not give all you have to Jesus and ask Him to be with you.

When you give to Jesus all you have you serve Him likewise. Are you doing this? On the other hand do you ever read books or story magazines which you would not have Christ see you do? Do you ever look upon and sanction the ways of the world and yet if Christ stood in person near you, you would be ashamed? I do not suppose that this great boy did such things. No doubt there was nothing angelical about him. He was indeed great in thta he did what Christ asked him to do. O just to do what Christ asks you to do.

When you think of these emergencies we think of how the need is to be met. The disciples said, "Let these people go down to Bethsaida and buy bread and meat. They have had nothing to eat since early morning." Then we are thrilled with Christ's willingness among these hungry people. He lifted up His hand and blessed the bread and fish. One of the writers speaks of this miracle being late in the evening, another speaks of it at sunset, and still another of being the time when the sun had nearly gone behind those western hills of Palestine.

Christ blessed the bread and break it. He blessed the fish and break them. Another lesson right here we are to observe is that all this was done in an orderly way. Christ told His disciples to have the people sit down in companies. Then He gave them the bread and fish. That is, He gave them something to do that day. Christ gives you and me in the great task something to do. How faithful we ought to be in obeying Him. He said, "Have these tired, hungry people sit down in groups of fifty and hundred in number." They sat down, the Greek interpretation of which is that they "reclined."

There they were feasting on the plains adjoining the Sea of Chinnereth, the Sea of Gennesaret, the Sea of Capernaum, the Sea of Tiberas, the Sea of Galilee. Christ was there, the people were there eager to see, hear, and be near Him, the bread and fish were there, the disciples were there, the young lad was there. And everyone had something to do. For the people to receive the blessing they had to recline. Also the disciples had to do something and also the little boy had to give all he had. It seemed a very little to him no doubt. But Christ can use the little things in a great way. O to be just a broken and empty vessel for the Master's use. The one talented person can be used by this blessed Christ. No use to think that it matters little because you are a one talented person. O for more one talented persons to be used in Christ's kingdom building.

The great spiritual lesson here is that God not only cares for His people by giving them their daily bread but that He gives them the Bread of Life. After Christ had gone back to Capernaum with them and was in the synagogue there He looked over at the pot of manna in the ark of the Lord and said, "Your fathers yonder in the wilderness did eat bread to sustain their physical life under Moses' leadership, but verily, verily, I say unto you, Moses gave you not that bread from heaven. Only my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven."

God who gives bread to hundreds and thousands of people is looking down in compassion today. O God, thou who givest bread to the thousands, give work to these thousands. Answer the cry of these outstretched hands and uplifted heart for food today. May they find Christ, the bread of life, which cometh down from heaven to give them eternal life. Jesus turned and said, "I am the bread of life, I am the water of life. He that cometh unto me for bread shall never hunger, and he that cometh unto me for water shall never thirst. He that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." O Jesus I pray thee help us read this chapter and find it precious to our souls. Go thou with us this day and help us that we never give up but look to thee always. O bless and help the tired, weary, and discouraged that they do not give up.

When A CLEANSING MEDICINE Is Needed

"I HAVE taken Black-Draught all my life, whenever in need of a medicine for constipation," says Mrs. G. C. Burns, of Buna, Texas. "My mother and father used it in their home for years, and I was raised to think of it as the first thing if I had a headache or was constipated.

"At one time I had indigestion real bad. I was all out of sorts; my skin was sallow, and I had gas pains. After a course of Black-Draught, I got all right. I have given Black-Draught to my children, whenever they needed a medicine of the kind."

SCIENCE AND CRIME

There is a great deal of meat for crime reformers in an exhaustive new work on the crime problem called "500 Criminal Careers," by Sheldon Glueck and Eleanor T. Glueck.

The work shows though general statistics and individual case-histories, the complicted, manifold factors that contribute to crime and points out our outstanding failure in handling it. It offers no ready made panacea other than emphasizing the need for colleting facts, scientific research and expermintation with methods.

One of the impressions the unbiased reader will take awy from it is the futility of attemting to solve a problem created by physical, social and mental diseases, by passing laws. Poverty, lack of education, unemployment, low standards of family life, weaknes of character, surroundings—a multitude of separate and distict causes such as these have contributed to growth of crime. And we in America, have actually been of the opinion that the cure for law-breaking lies in more laws.

We must bring science into the crime problem, as we have brought science to industry problems. Is it a coincidence that the most law-ridden of the wirld's great nations is likewise the most lawless?

Jesse Mitchell of near Providence brought in a sample of apricots, grown on a peach tree. Mr. Mitchell grafted a limb from an apricot tree on to a peach tree, and the results is that he gets peaches and apricots from the same tree. He lives on the old Uncle Mose Robinson place near the river.

IN MEMORY OF VERNON ROBINSON

On Thursday night, June 12, Mr. Vernon Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gantt Robinson, passed to the great beyond when he was suddenly struck by a moving train.

Vernon's funeral was conducted by Rev. Harry Doran, of Lomax Primitive Baptist Church.

Vernon had been at work for the Farmers Hardware for over a year, where he had made a host of friends. Vernon was liked by all who knew him. He is survived by his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Gantt Robinson. Three sisters, Mrs. Pauline Ellison, Margie and Ola Mae Robinson. One brother, Howard. And several friends. We join in sympathy with the bereaved ones.—A friend.

AT LAST—A TARIFF

After long months of so-called deliberation, the tariff bill has finally been passed by the senate and house and signed by the President. It is generally agreed that the bill is far from a masterpiece, but it is the best that could be hoped for in view of the present political situation.

"Meritorious remand for further protection to agriculture and labor which have developed since the tariff of 1922 would not end if this bill fails to enact," said President Hoover, in signifying he would sign it. "Agitation for legislative tariff would necessarily continue before the country. Nothing would contribute to retard business recovery more than this continued agitation."

The bill will act as a stabilizing influence. It at least does away with uncertainty. Whether or not the new tariff will protect American industries without adding appreciably to the cost of living remains to be seen.

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or even increasing the dose.

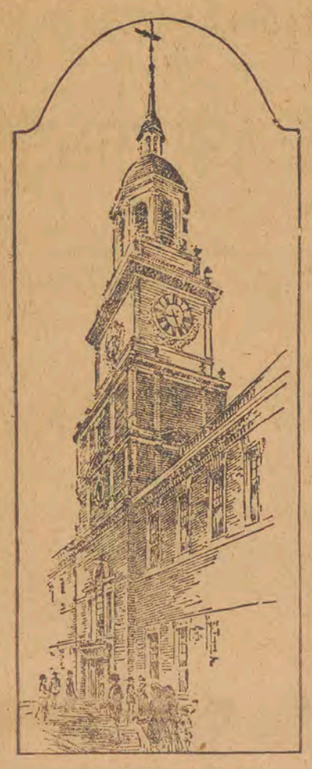
CONCORD HYMN

By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,
Here once the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard round the world.



The foe long since in silence slept;
Alike the conqueror silent sleeps;
And Time the ruined bridge has swept
Down the dark stream which seaward creeps.

On this green bank, by this soft stream,
We set today a votive stone;
That memory may their deed redeem,
When, like our sires, our sons are gone.

Spirit! that made those heroes dare
To die, or leave their children free,
Bid Time and Nature gently spare
The shaft we raise to them and thee.
—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Famous Meeting House Preserved as Memorial

Two hundred years ago the last service was held in the Old South Meeting house in Boston. It was a small structure of cedar, two stories in height, with a steeple and modest interior with the conventional high-backed, square pews and lofty pulpit of olden church times. A few days later this structure, famous as the one in which Benjamin Franklin was baptized and in which Judge Sewall made public repentance and confession for his part in the Salem witchcraft delusion, was demolished and the present structure commenced.

Churches during the American colonial period were often used for public mass meetings for the discussion of important political questions; and the first meeting of this sort was called in 1745, during the French and Indian wars. A French fleet of 40 ships was on its way to Boston intent on destroying the entire town, and Bostonians called a meeting for prayer and fasting and for a discussion of means of defense. The subsequent destruction of the French fleet by a storm at sea probably saved old Boston from the torch.

But many other meetings were held here in subsequent years, particularly during the days preceding and during the American Revolution. When neighboring Faneuil hall overflowed, the surplus crowd invariably adjourned to Old South; and it was after such a meeting on December 14, 1773, that some of the Boston citizens dressed up as Indians in preparation for the famous Boston Tea Party.

It was used as cavalry headquarters by Lord Burgoyne during the British occupation of the city in 1774, but in March of 1776 it was again taken over by Bostonians and retained by them for regular services until 1872, when during the great fire, the government took over the building temporarily. Although no regular services have been held here since that time, it has been preserved as a memorial in charge of the Massachusetts Historical society.

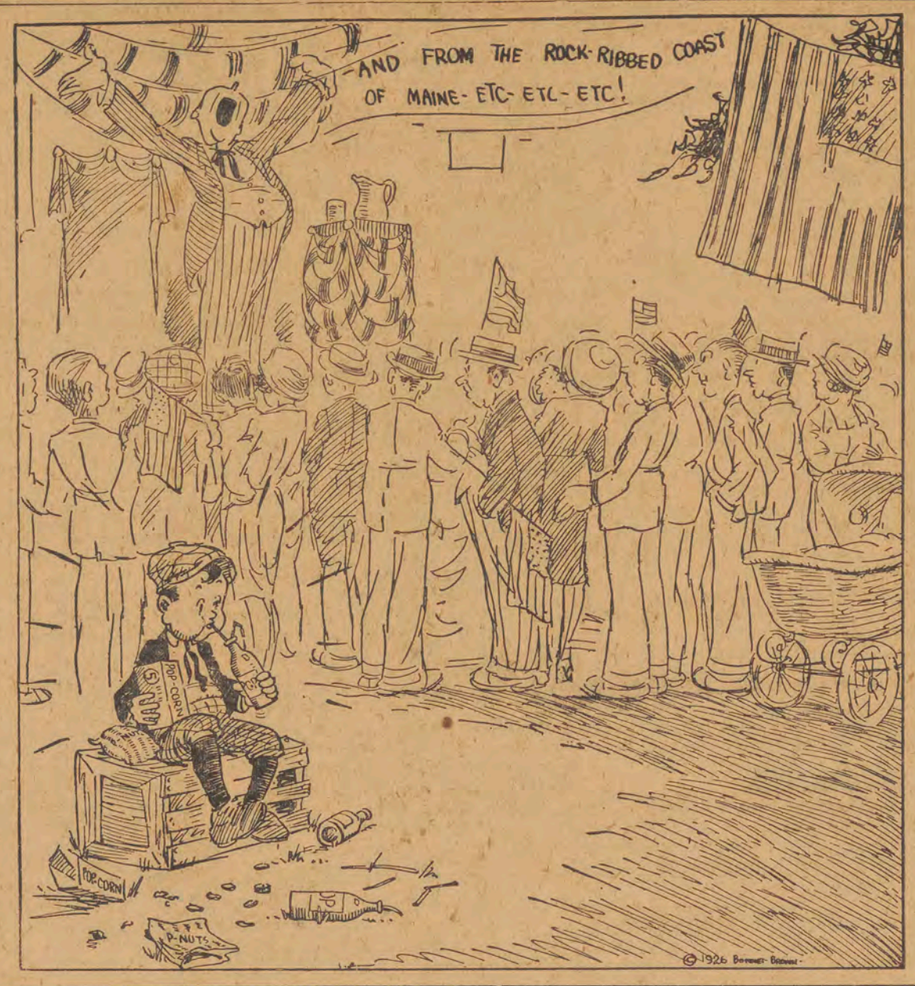
Belgic Races

The inhabitants of Belgium belong to two different races, known as the Flemings and the Walloons, speaking two different languages. The Flemings of the North are of Teutonic origin and speak Flemish, which is similar to Dutch. The Walloons of the South are largely of Celtic origin and speak a dialect of French. The name of the country is derived from that of the Celtic group, the Belgae, whom Julius Caesar mentioned in his book on the Gallic war.

Shellfish Long Food

In northern Africa, shell heaps have been found dating back 25,000 years; in Denmark, 10,000 years, and in Great Britain, over 5,000 years. All the way up the Atlantic coast from Florida, traces of shell heaps have been found in great numbers, and those engaged in research work have ascertained that these heaps exist along the coast to Greenland, and in Iceland, as well as Britain and the north of France. The Chinese coast is also rich in these mounds.

Daily Thought



There are certain fastnesses within our soul that lie buried so deep that love alone dare venture down; and it returns laden with undreamed-of jewels, whose luster can only be seen as they pass from our open hand to the hand of one we love.—Maurice Maeterlinck.

Try and Do It!

It used to be hard to find a needle in a hay stack; now it is just as hard to find one in a woman's hand.

Hard to Do

It was all on account of the labels. Doctor Gass had to send a box of pills to a patient, while there were half a dozen live chickens to be delivered to one of his friends.

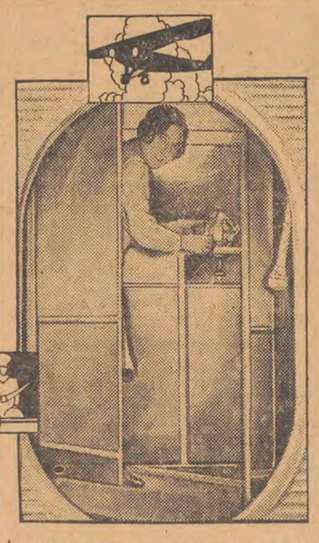
The labels got mixed and the messenger delivered the pills to the doctor's friend.

So far not much harm had been done, but the patient was pained on receiving a hamper of live fowls and an envelope containing the following instructions: "Two of these to be swallowed every half hour in water."

Let Fortune Escape

How a fortune was missed as the result of a Gold coast prospector's ignorance of geology was revealed by Sir Albert Kitson at a meeting of the British association.

The prospector in search of gold dug a hole and unearthed manganese ore. Thinking it was iron ore, he took no notice of it.



A geologist found the old hole and realized the value of the ore. The spot has since proved to be one of the largest and richest deposits of manganese ore in the world.

NOW COMES THE FLYING DINER

Seated in Lounge Chairs, the Guests on This Initial Flight Are Awaiting Their First Course as They Soar Over Manhattan.

Looking Through the Entrance to the Cabin, Miss Mary Griffin of the W. K. Kellogg Company, Who Acted as Chef, Is Seen in the Plane's Kitchenette.

THE first aerial train has crossed the continent. Captain Hawks, seated in a glider, was towed by a fast plane from the Pacific coast to Roosevelt Field. For an over-night journey by air, it is possible to reserve a "lower" and instruct George to call you at seven. Commercial air lines link up every point in the country, as well as the two American continents, and tens of thousands of paying passengers are patronizing them regularly. Aviation is moving forward more rapidly than ever.

Now, marking the latest addition to the comfort and convenience of air travel, the familiar cry, "last call to dinner," is to be heard in the cabins of giant transport planes as they soar through the clouds. Such an experience was given recently in New York to a group of home economics experts, editors of women's magazines and newspaper women, specially invited guests of the Ford Motor Company, to what undoubtedly was the first complete meal prepared and served in an airplane.

To Be Standard

This event was no mere experiment. It was the result of careful study and planning on the part of both the plane designers and dietetic experts. The plane, a new Ford de luxe club plane, is literally a flying Pullman with complete kitchenette and serving facilities. Its equipment will be regarded as standard for the big tri-motored transports that are to offer diner service. And, recognizing the effects that flying has upon the normal individual, Miss Mary I. Barber, director of the Home Economics Department of the W. K. Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Michigan, who acted as hostess on this maiden flight, prepared a menu ideally suited to the gastronomical needs of the human in mid-air.

New Type Menu

Height affects many persons. Flying is still a new experience to the great majority and in spite of attempts to be nonchalant, most air passengers find themselves subject to the nervous tension of excitement. Consequently, Miss Barber's menu called for light, crisp and savory foods. Since when flying there is no incentive to linger at the table, she chose at the same time dishes that may be served quickly and simply.

The menu comprised consomme, olives, celery, vegetable salad, all-bran muffins, macaroons, fruit and decaffeinated coffee.

The de luxe Ford club plane's equipment includes seven overstuffed chairs and a well-appointed two-place davenport so that seats for nine are provided. Special sockets on the arms of the chairs hold individual serving trays. Music is provided by the plane's loud-speaker radio.

The kitchenette, which would capture the heart of any woman, is one of the most interesting features of the plane. It is situated just opposite the entrance door of the plane and partitioned off from the remainder of the cabin. Though compact, it is a model of efficiency and convenience.

A combination aluminum sink, drain board and hot plate, with shelf and closet space above and below, provide the working place for the chef. Water is provided from a tap supplied from an overhead tank, with a gauge to indicate the amount available. There is a small refrigerator and space for utensils.

Kitchenette Complete

The hot plate is heated by a concentrated gas carried in a tank concealed in a small cabinet. Small round windows furnish light to the compartment. There are also a small dome light, ventilator and electric fan.

Specially constructed felt-lined racks are provided for cups, saucers, plates and glasses, while linen and silver ware are available in special drawers.

Gregorian Calendar

The term "calendar month" is applied either to the months as divided in the Gregorian calendar—such as January, February and March—or to the period between the date of one month and the corresponding date in the succeeding month; as, from March 15 to April 15. When the succeeding month does not have a corresponding date the last date of that month is taken; as, from Jauary 30 to February 29.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Indians Are Born Artists

Art is racial to the Indian, not local. When the Amerind works in materials that afford him scope for selfexpression, such as blanket weaving or basket making or pottery, his product equals any folk product in the world, and excels much that we import at great expense from Russia and the Balkans.—Mary Austin in the Forum.

Money Highly Rated

Money is held in very high opinion by most of us. In fact, we usually think more of it than we do ourselves. We count it the greater asset. When we send it out to work for us we expect it to earn more than we do.—Grit.

DeMABEL'S THIRD BIRTHDAY

July 1st marked the third anniversary of the establishmet of the business of DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe in Clanton.

Starting out as a new venture, the first business of the kind ever attempted in Clanton, Miss Howard has devoted herself to a careful study of the many things of interest to women. Adapting her equipment to the needs of the business, her clientele has steadily increased, month after month, as many women have come to realize that DeMabel's Beauty Shoppe offers them the most convenient and economical means by which one may "Look Your Best Always."

Beginning this new year of her business Miss Howard wishes to express her appreciation for the splendid potronage she has received at the hands of the women of Clanton and Chilton County. If you are not already a patron of DeMabel's, Miss Howard extends to you an invitation to come to see her and talk over your problems.

The shop of Miss Howard is located in the new Mullins Building upstairs over Tiffin-Klinner Furniture Co., next to Exchange Hotel.

POLITICAL SPEAKING AT CANE CREEK

There will be a political speaking at Cane Creek Schoolhouse on Saturday night, July 15th. An excellent string band that has made a big hit over the radio has been engaged to entertain the people. All voters and candidates are invited to attend.

Yours very truly,
W. T. BEAN.

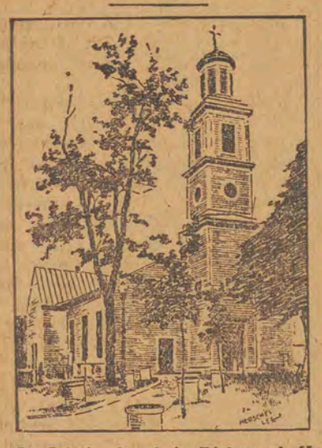
LIVE STOCK

WARM WATER FOR STOCK IMPORTANT

Experiments by the various agricultural institutions have proved over and over that the cheapest of food for all kinds of live stock is a plentiful supply of clean, palatable water available at all times. A horse needs 12 gallons of water per day, a dry cow 10 gallons, while a cow producing a heavy milk flow needs from 30 to 40 gallons per day. Drinking cups in dairy barns add from two to five pounds per day to each cow's milk production over the open-tank method of water supply, and experiments in swine feeding have shown that plenty of water increases the rate of gain.

Yet the winter season, when milk and dairy products are the most valuable and production the hardest to keep up, is the time when cows and other live stock suffer most from lack of water, either because the tanks or other sources of supply are frozen over, or the water is icy cold and only a little can be drunk without chilling the blood and retarding digestion and milk flow and growth. The tank heater is the logical solution to this problem, since they are inexpensive in first cost and to operate, and are comparatively long-lived.

Tank heaters come in many different types and sizes. Probably the most widely known type is the one with the firebox entirely under water, as this type uses the heat very efficiently. Almost any kind of fuel can be used, such as waste wood, corn cobs, coal, kerosene, and recently some have been successfully burning waste crank-case oil. The heater should be well weighted down with concrete if its own weight is not sufficient, as it is rather disheartening to have it upset with the temperature about 20 below zero. Lately a tank heater has been developed using the heat from fermenting stable manure, which seems to give satisfactory service.

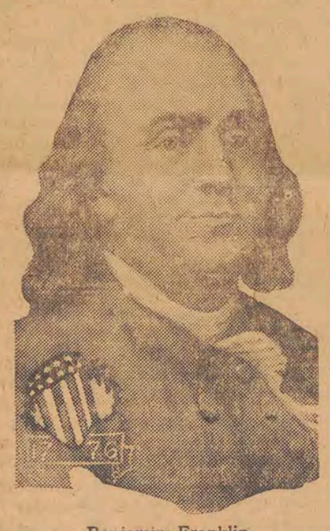


Disease Same in Humans and the Lower Animals

George H. Glover of the veterinary division of Colorado Agricultural college tells of a certain dairyman who lost more than 20 calves from a disease known as "White Scours of Sucklings." At the same time a child in the family was quarantined for scarlet fever. It never occurred to the dairyman that the same principles would apply in the control of an infection in his calves and his children. Each calf, before it was a week old, contracted the disease and died. Every one of them was doped with useless nostrems suggested by neighbors. The child was kept in strict quarantine and under the care of a physician. The simple expedient of removing every one of the pregnant cows from the infected environment a month before the calf was born would have saved his calves and controlled the infection. Most people are slow to grasp the idea that the same fundamental principles apply in every aspect of disease in the lower animals as in man.

Minerals Are Important Nutritional Demands

Results from the use of certain minerals with live stock are so well marked that it leads us to conclude that minerals are one of the most important nutritional requirements of all animal feeds. The results that occur in cattle from which common salt is withheld is one of the most striking. When salt is not given for a few months the animals become unthrifty and suffer a complete breakdown.



FOREVER FAMOUS

St. John's church in Richmond, Va. Here Patrick Henry made his famous speech in which he said "Give me liberty or give me death."

Franklin Won Fame Both as Patriot and Citizen

Everybody knows Poor Richard; how many remember that Franklin was the man who, when the final touches were being put on the Declaration of Independence, was the man who insisted on spelling "United" with a capital "U" in the billboard poster which was published, announcing the event, and so fixed the capitalization of United States? He was not only one of the signers of that document, but one of the committee of five charged with drawing it up. He was a member of each of ten committees of the first Continental congress, and a member of the Constitutional convention. Through his Philadelphia Gazette he was instrumental in organizing the police force of Philadelphia, a pioneer undertaking, and later its militia, and the fire and street departments, also an experiment in municipal government. He established the academy which has become the University of Pennsylvania, he made Pennsylvania's first public library possible, and he was in the advance guard of the movement for public hospitals. The total compensation he received for all his public services constituted hardly a tithe of his personal expenditures in the public behalf. He supported himself by his own efforts as printer and publisher, being a master of both vocations. He gave lavishly of both money and time, and it is significant that the conception of thrift for which he is famous included both.

Important as is thrift, it would be a mistake to restrict observance of Franklin's memory to this single aspect. The many-sidedness, the shrewd common sense, the unselfish patriotism of Benjamin Franklin deserve study, too.

Mrs. D. A. The relatives enjoying this hospitality were Mr. and Mrs. Millard Terry and daughter, Shirley; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Terry and sons, Coy Eldon and Orvill Ray; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Terry and son, Wendell.

The friends present were: Mrs. T. N. McCutchan, Mrs. J. N. McCutchan, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wilson, and Mrs. Joe Tomlin. These friends and relatives were from Whitehouse, Texas, the former home of Mrs. Terry and Minnie.

The Tyler friends enjoying the occasion were Mr. J. W. Williams, Mr. Hollis Philpott, Misses Emma Cook and Joye Bostick.

A delightful dinner was served at 12 o'clock, after which everyone enjoyed talking about old times. In the conversation it was learned that Mr. Wilson was an old resident of Maplesville and a first cousin to a friend of Miss Mize.

Other features of the day's entertainment were the taking of pictures, the serving of ice cream and a visit to the new Tyler Airport, which was then being dedicated.

The day was a happy one for those present and they are looking forward to another such gathering on the Fourth of July.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at the home of Mr. Cleve Billingsley on Saturday night, July 12th. Proceeds will go to the Indian Grave Baptist church. Everybody invited to be present. Don't forget the time and place.

CAPITAL DRY GOODS COMPANY
(Reedie Taylor)

The management of two of the leading stores of Clanton and one at Jemison is the business of Mr. Reedie Taylor, who is considered one of the leading merchants of Chilton County. He is at the head of the Capital Dry Goods Company and Chicago Sales Company, of Clanton, and the Chicago Sales Company, at Jemison.

Mr. Taylor is a young man, unmarried. He is the son of the late L. M. Taylor. His mother is Mrs. W. M. Poole, of Clanton. He is a business man by inheritance. His father before him was a successful farmer and business man.

Associated with him in his business enterprises is his uncle, T. M. Taylor, who occupies the place of silent partner. Tom Taylor is himself recognized as one of the firmest business factors of Clanton.

Capital Dry Goods Company is located at the place formerly occupied by the store of "Parrish's." In fact the business known as "Callen's," which was established by Reedie Taylor and Frank Callen, was consolidated with "Parrish's in April 1929. Frank Callen withdrew from the connection, and Reedie and Tom Taylor continued the business at the Parrish place under the name of Capital Dry Goods Company. Mr. Jim Dunlap and Mrs. Bob Baker constitute the sales force at the Capital.

Chicago Sales Company is the older of the business operations of Mr. Taylor. It was established by V. J. Elmore. Several years ago he sold it out to Reedie and Tom Taylor. The location is next to the First National Bank. About a year ago Mr. Taylor established the second unit of Chicago Sales Company at Jemison. The Clanton store of Chicago Sales Company is in charge of Miss Etta Baker and Miss Kate Aldridge. Mr. W. A. Kemp, formerly of Clanton, is in charge of the Jemison Store.

At the stores of Mr. Taylor, both in Clanton and Jemison, there is carried a general line of dry goods, clothing, shoes, ready-to-wear. Capital Dry Goods Company features men's clothing, which line receives the personal attention of Reedie Taylor. Curlee Clothes constitutes the popular line of ready-made-suits at this store. The Ed. V. Price line of tailored to measure clothes is also handled.

Reedie Taylor is a member of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, the Town Council of Clanton, a director in the Peoples Bank, of Jemison, and a stockholder in the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton. Before going into the mercantile business, he spent several years in the employ of the Peoples Savings Bank, at Clanton.

The stores of Reedie Taylor have gained a wide popularity with the buying public of Chilton County.

ELECTRICITY

Costs Less Than Even Mule Power

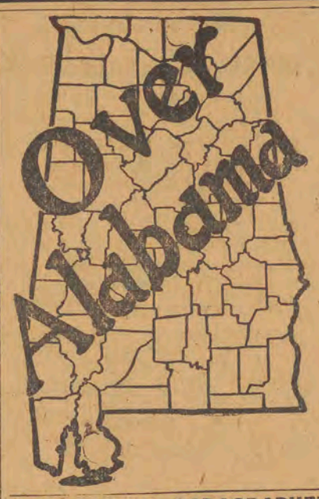
STRANGE as it seems — the Alabama mule — long regarded in the South as the cheapest worker on the farm, has been revealed as an expensive source of power in comparison with economical, dependable, efficient electric current.

The difference in the cost of ELECTRIC POWER as now used on Alabama farms and the corresponding amount of ANIMAL POWER that would be required to do the same amount of work is $3,500,000 annually.

As shown by a farm power survey made by the United States Department of Agriculture, mule power costs, on the average, SEVEN AND A HALF TIMES AS MUCH as electric power on Alabama farms.

Bulletin 1348, giving the results of this survey, shows that the average cost of WORK ANIMALS on farms in Alabama is 28 cents per horse-power hour.

The average cost of ELECTRICITY on farms in Alabama is only 3.6 cents per horse-power hour.



Alabama Power Company service to rural customers is expanding rapidly. During the first half of 1930, the company added 53 new rural lines, bringing the total number completed to 469.

Twenty-four more lines were projected and approved and will be completed during the remaining months of this year.

By the end of 1930 Alabama Power Company will have brought the benefits of electricity to more than 23,000 rural customers, including those in small communities of less than 1,000 population.

STATE CAPITOL News

Charges alleging an $11,000,000 deficit in the state's finances were exploded by Governor Bibb Graves in an address delivered before the Alabama Association of County Commissioners at the Exchange Hotel, June 25. Governor Graves pointed out that during the past year and for the present year the state is decreasing and not increasing its indebtedness. He also called attention to the fact that farm property and equipment acquired by the state for its convict system by the present administration more than offsets in value the balance against the treasury at the beginning of the present fiscal year.

On October 1, 1928, there were outstanding warrants for the amount of $3,640,070.43, while cash on hand was $1,049,780.03, leaving a deficit at that time of $2,600,000 in round numbers. This condition was brought about by the fact that the legislature of 1927 made a number of appropriations for immediate and pressing needs effective at once, while the new revenue bill to raise the money did not go into effect until October 1, 1927. The appropriations referred to included $600,000 to extend school terms, and the expenses of the legislative session, about $600,000. These and other appropriations, made nine months before the revenue bill went into effect, together with buying property for convicts since then, contributed to the unfavorable balance on October 1, 1928. During the last fiscal year, ending September 30, 1929, the state put into its treasury $500,000 more than it took out. There was paid into the treasury for the year $49,634,103.08, while total warrants drawn during the period were $49,131,206.77. At the beginning of the present year, October 1, 1929, outstanding warrants totalled $2,810,789.71, and cash on hand $723,395.62, cutting the unfavorable balance to $2,100,000. A further reduction will be made during the present year, the Governor said.

The present administration has invested about $2,500,000, in property to take care of convicts, of which $750,000 was put into Moffett Farm, the new modern prison farm near Atmore. These increased convict expenditures were necessitated by removal of convicts from the mines, which gave the present administration a greater problem than any previous regime has had to cope with. Governor Graves pointed out that the convict property is all paid for and represents an asset to the state which is showing results.

Another reason cited by the Governor for the existing financial condition was the doubling of Confederate pensions, which hits the general fund during the four years of his administration for approximately $3,000,000, over and above what the one-mill soldier tax brings in. During the last complete year of the Brandon administration, ending September 30, 1926, pension payments totalled $1,399,374, and the one-mill soldiers tax produced $989,455.95, leaving a balance of $409,918.05 to be paid out of the general fund. During the first full year of the Graves administration, ending September 30, 1928, pension payments were $2,289,802.50, while the one-mill tax brought in $1,081,978.75, leaving $1,207,823.75 which went for pensions from the general fund for that year. The pension list is rapidly decreasing, and this year it will take only about $600,000 from the general fund. The total from the general fund for pensions for the four years will approximate $3,000,000. Pension payments and appropriations by the legislature hit the treasury hardest during the first year of the administration, and created the debt which is being cut down as the administration draws to a close.

"We knew that it would put us into the hole to do it," Governor Graves said in speaking of the increase in pensions. "But many of the veterans needed shelter, they needed food and medicine and they were too proud to ask for it. And I'm here to take criticism with the legislature for saving the lives of those Confederate veterans before it was too late."

CHEVROLET ASSEMBLED WITH ACCURACY

"Hand built throughout" used to be the hallmark of American industry, the "tiffany touch" to the quality output of American manufacturers everywhere.

Today, such are the precision demands of mass production in the automobile and many other industries, that to call a product hand-built would be to brand it as a crude product indeed.

When parts are put together at the assembly line they must fit to hair-breadth accuracy, else the efficiency of the whole unit is destroyed and delays are occassioned that are far above cost limit. Such a variable factor as the human equation must play only a minor role in measuring variances, for research engineers have found the light ray infinitely more exacting than the human eye. And so they have developed many wonderful instruments to displace the old-time workman with his calipers—instruments tens and hundreds of times more accurate.

Concrete examples of the exactness required in precision manufacture are provided every few steps along the assembly lines of the motor plant of the Chevrolet Motor Company, at Flint, Michigan. Here every motor has to undergo 5,162 separate precision inspections, and one man in every six is an inspector.

"Check and double-check" has become a part of the American vernacular, but in the Chevrolet plant it is the law and the statute. Without it the enormous volume of the company would be impossible, for precision is the first law of volume production.

Among the thousands of inspections in the plant, the following prove of unusual interest to visitors:

Cylinder bores are subjected to individual tests to determine accurate smoothness, straightness, size and the correct right angle of each bore to the cylinder block, with a size tolerance held to less than one-half thousandth of an inch. The cylinder head is hydraulically tested under high pressure to make certain that all water passages and openings are correct.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drugstore has the genuine, prescriptional product.

HAVE YOU PLANTED ANY HAY?

It is geting late to be planting, but one still has about 10 to 15 days in which to plant peas and soy beans for hay. I find many farmers in the county have planted no hay crop at all. There should be at least one acre of good hay for every mule and cow in the county.

$1.15 will buy sufficient amount of Laredo soy beans to drill one acre. Soy beans drilled, even this late, and given about two light workings will turn out lots of hay almost equal to alfalfa in feed value.—C. E. Stapp, county agent.

Judge Reynolds declared the boys of juvenile estate, and placed them back in the custody of their fathers, Richard Wilson and Eugene Scarbrough. The order of the court was that they be held pending good behavior and brought back before the court on August 4th.

BUNKER HILL

By JAMES B. TAYLOR
(Ode sung at the dedication of the monument, June 17, 1843.)

Lonely and still were the wood and hill
And the waves below yet slumbered.
The breezes light of a summer night
All the dewy hours numbered.
The sentry's tramp from the foeman's camp,
With his tone of hasty warning,
Came low and clear to the yeoman's ear
As he watched the early dawning.

The heroes thought, as they bravely wrought,
Their country's altar rearing,
Of a noble land by valor's hand
Made free and home endearing.
In firm array when broke the day
The deadly charge they waited,
And side by side in silent pride
With skill their prowess mated.

Then waved the sword, then blood was poured
Oppression's host dismaying;
Death rent the air and the cannons' glare
O'er freedom's birth were playing.
And that green height, with the evening light
Its crimson turf o'ershading,
Had holy grown as freedom's throne
Like her starry crown unfading.

Once more the skies with summer dyes
Above the fields are bending,
And the waters still beneath the hill
Their crystal waves are blending;
But peace diving around the shrine,
Her boundless harvest wearing,
Bids us proclaim to a deathless fame
Our fathers' matchless daring.

Today a throng with festal song,
The sacred mount o'erflowing,
Have gathered there with pomp and prayer,
All hearts with rapture glowing.
On the gory bed of the martyred dead,
Its shade majestic sleeping
Stands freedom's pile in glory's smile,
Eternal vigil keeping.

Youthful Patriots

For the most part, the signers of the Declaration of Independence were young men, the youngest being but twenty-seven years of age, and the average age being less than forty-four But they were men of poise, judgment and discretion. They likewise were men of conviction, purpose and courage.

Through them and their successors there has come down to us this wonderful material heritage, a land indescribably rich in soil, minerals climate and scenery, needing only the intelligence and industry of men to make easily available that which will supply every physical need.

Each Chilton County W. M. S. is asked to help those churches nearest them or to bring individual lunches each day as preferred.

Now is the time to prepare so as to make this a great institute. Mark these dates on your calendar—make your plans to be there. Of course, every member of a W. M. S. is expected to come. If half the membership of your society enroll in these classes, it will count as your study course for the year. Bring the children, there will be a class for each age. Bring the men, or better, have them bring you. Dr. Ezell will have something special for them each day. Bring your pastor. Every preacher who lives in, or works in, either association is given an urgent invitation. Any young man or young woman, who is interested in boys and girls, and is willing to be of great service to Christianity, will have an opportunity to be trained for this service. We beg for volunteers. Every church in Unity and Chilton County Association is invited, whether enlisted in W. M. U. work or not. Come, lets make this a great meeting.—Mrs. S. J. Ezell, supt. NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The British try to put the fear of the Lord into the common people by naming their ships Dauntless, Victory, Fearless, Courageous and Unconquerable, so we came right back at 'em and launched the Chicago!—Sacremento Slam.

An English clergyman breaks into print with the prediction there will be a war between the sexes. We weren't aware the present one was over.—Muskegon Chronicle.

If some people are so desirous of having another national holiday, let's select the day that Congress adjourns.—Indianapolis Star.

THEIR NATURAL ATTITUDE

In weighing the outcry of American international industrialitst and financiers against any increase of tariffs to the point where they will represent the difference on competitive articles between labor costs at home and abroad, it must be kept in mind that since 1914 American capitalists have invested four and one half billion dollars in foreign industries. Two thousand factories have been moved from American high wage markets to foreign low wage markets.

Heads of the Ford, General Motors and General Electric industries have recently been widely quoted as opposed to any tariff revision upward. General Motors own the Vauxhall Company in England and has bought the Opel Company of Germany. It is negotiating for the Citroen Company of France. Ford has established plants in England and Ireland and is negotiating for properties throughout Europe. He has assisted in the erection of immense motor and tractor plants in Russia.

General Electric, headed by Owen D. Young, who is speaking in behalf of "international economic intregation," says we are "too rich to be loved," and that America must sink to the economic level of the rest of the world unless our eight per cent of the world's population can lift the remaining 92 per cent to our level though we break our back in the effort, has acquired virtual control of the German General Electric, and has large holdings in the Italian and French companies.

To such capitalists tearing down of tariff barriers means the stabilization of their foreign investments, the building up of foreign at the sacrifice of domestic industry, and the right to plant their factories in the world's cheap labor markets, thus dragging the American wroker and farmer down to the coolie, peasant and peon level. It is natural that these international capitalists and financiers should keep foreign interests first in mind. It is just as natural and as proper that Americans whose prosperity, whose employment, whose standard of living is wrapped up in the welfare of the United States, should resist the demands these international financiers and industrialists are making through their metropolitan mouth-pieces.

The recent exchanges of words between the statesmen of Italy and France have served once more to call the attention of the people of the United States to the fact that the dove of peace is not altogether in command of the situation in Europe in spite of the agreement reached by the naval powers at London. Mussolini started the present excitement by intimating that in spite of the talk about covenants of peace, guns and ammunition were still very desirable. The speech was greeted with great cheering and some remarks from the populace which were not entirely complimentary to France. The French foreign minister later replied and intimated that there was nothing in particular which the French government had to be afraid of at this time.

The remarks of Mussolini and the French reply may have been in part for home consumption but the excitement which followed at least served to emphasize the divergence of interests in Italy and France and the danger of war which Europe may run into at any time. Even so conservative and sound a critic of European affairs as Mr. Frank H. Simonds admits that there is danger of real trouble in the future.

It is to be remembered that Italy has a rapidly growing population and one which needs additional territory while the French population is more or less fixed. But France has succeeded in colonizing most of the available land in Northern Africa and Italy up to this time has been able to get but a comparatively humble share for her overflow population. The Italians claim that they were promised more territory for joining the allies during the World War but have failed to receive it. The French deny this and say that they see in the rising tide of Italian nationalism a menace as great as that of Germany in the days before 1914.

Now it is hardy likely that war is going to break out directly between France and Italy over territory in Northern Africa. But it is to be remembered that the World War did not start directly between the two chief enemies, France and Germany. There is still plenty of loose powder in the Balkans. At the present time Italy has a virtual protectorate over Albania and that little country is always troublesome. In case of internal difficulties in Albania or in case of trouble between the Albanians and the Serbs, Mussolini might think it necessary to land troops in Albania to protect Italian interests. This action could easily push the fat into the fire. The feeling between the Italians and the Serbs is none too cordial as it is, and such action might well cause hostilities between the two nations. The French who have an alliance with the Serbs could hardly keep out of the trouble, and the Balkan states might then enter the conflict on one side or the other, as there is no telling just how many secret agreements have been made by the little European nations. Then Poland and Germany might become involved and back of all is the sinister shadow of Soviet Russia ready to deliver at any opportunity what it hopes to be the knockout blow to capitalist civilization everywhere.

The American people do not want to get into any new European war. That is why our government has been so slow to join international organizations which might hamper our freedom of action in case of trouble. Our people feel that they can best preserve the interests of peace and their own safety by remaining aloof politically speaking, and doing what they can when the time comes, to prevent the scourage of war.

DARK CLOUDS IN EUROPE

According to newspaper reports Horace Liveright, well known New York publisher who went to Europe some months ago as a "good will diplomat," observed a great many things of which the American people might learn with interest.

On his return to New York, Mr. Liveright is quoted as saying:

"France isn't fighting the last war, she is preparing for the next. Germany isn't supposed to have a standing army, yet every youth has full military equipment. In England they are freely predicting an American panic, and seemingly rejoicing that its reaction will benefit them.

"The Danes hate the Norwegians and Swedes; the Norwegians hate the Swedes and the Danes, and the Swedes hate the Danes and Norwegians."

"I was never so appalled in my life."

Mr. Liveright is evidently a good observer. At least he is not alone in reporting conditions in Europe in a pissimistic way. For example: all of the recent dispatches from Europe, touching on Franco-Italian relations have declared there is danger of real conflict between these two countries unless there is a quick "about face." Many European observers declare that France is now feverishly preparing for war and that in case of trouble she will depend on her allies, the Jugo-Slavs, and if necessary, the Poles. And on the eastern horizon is the forbidding countenance of Soviet Russia armed to the teeth and waiting for a favorable opportunity to hurl its well trained legions against the armies of the capitalist world.

These are conditions which the theoretical pacifists are apt to ignore in their calculations. Many of them seemed to be fondly deluded into the belief that if Uncle Sam will only scuttle his navy and disband his army there will no longer be danger of war in the world.

This attitude is so foolish that even a child should comprehend its absurdity. With conditions in Europe "getting no better fast" to use a homely expression, it is certainly up to Uncle Sam to watch his step, and so far as possible to remain at home, politically speaking, and mind his own business.

PERMANENT QUARTERS

It is a good idea to get under way with the building of the laying houses and winter quarters of the flocks as early as possible because careful planning and construction is like most everything else of the kind, in that it usually takes a lot longer than figured on.

Certain general principles apply to all poultry-house construction, although individual conditions will govern a lot of the details. Comfort is the first essential in housing chicks or chickens. To provide comfort, a house must have plenty of room first of all, be well supplied with fresh air and sunlight, and be always dry and sweet in every kind of weather. The ventilation is a more serious problem than one realizes at first, due to the fact that birds are lacking in sweat glands and kidneys, and consequently require about three times the amount of air and ventilation that ordinary animals require.

A poultry house does not need to be expensive in order to be good. Most state college experiment stations have diagrams and complete building suggestions that they will send you upon request. A house, however, should be carefully planned and solidly constructed. One of the largest poultry farms in the world, the Monticello farm just south of Seattle, Washington, which is being constructed as a strictly commercial laying proposition by Seattle capitalists, has houses of concrete foundations, heated floors, etc. Reasonably good construction pays for itself, or the largest and most succesful poultry plants would not have their money so invested.

In building, bear in mind the labor of caring for your chickens. Build the houses high enough so you can at least stand and walk erect, or your work in the house will be terribly fatiguing. Refer to the "Poultry Tips" column that we printed about the second week in April on "A Home for Your Chicks," as most of the suggestions there apply also to your permanent quarters.

Be sure to provide a good drainage of water and circulation of air, so that the floor and yards will always be dry. Don't build in a low pocket or hollow in which cold air settles. Face the house to the south or southeast if possible. A well-drained, light loam soil is probably the best poultry yards. A heavy clay is not so good. Health and success with poultry is a matter of common sense and experience as much as anything else. Your own good judgment is a reliable guide.

SEVEN-IN-ONE WORD

Believe it or not, here is a clever poser both Ripley and Hix missed, strange as it may seem. What word of only six letters contains exactly six words within itself, without transposing a single letter? Before reading on for the answer or "seven-in-one" word—Stop! Put on your thinking cap and if you care to, get your dictionary and make a thorough search. If you searched long enough perhaps you would discover that this queer word is the simple little word "HEREIN." And the six words contained herein are: He, Her, Here, Ere, Rein and In. At any rate it is an excellent poser to ask your friends.—The Pathfinder.

THE JACK POT

BY "JACK" HIMSELF

That at least one newspaper, The Montgomery Advertiser, seems to have taken Republican promises of 1928 for all they could possibly be worth. Turn, with us, to a recent issue of The Advertiser, and read thus: "The Advertiser, for one, wishes that Mr. Hoover had turned out to be the rain-maker he and his crowd claimed in '28 that he would be." They WOULD say that, even if they HAVE been panning the administration all along. Of course, "Grandma" was trying to be funny, but so far we haven't heard of any casualties caused by this tickler. But now, folks, that WAS a dead give-away that the Advertiser had been expecting great things from Republican leadership. Don't you think so?

Where an American negro doctor has been appointed as the private physician of the Emperor of Ethiopia, and was to sail a few days ago to take up his duties as such. It's a pity we can't send all of 'em back home like that, along with a bunch of other foreigners, isn't it? But then on second thought, that never would do. Our good old Democratic friends wouldn't have a leg to stand on then. As it is, when everything else fails, they can still fall back and holler "nigger." Even if it doesn't do any good it gives the good old brethren something to kick about, and who would be so heartless as to want to take ALL the joy out of their lives. Not us! I'ts too funny. And we do like a good laugh every now and then.

Where the great and exalted pope of Rome has officially put himself on record as being against the progress being made in Italy and adjoining countries by our American Protestant missionaries. Now, isn't that just TOO BAD. We never would-a thunk it of his highness. That's just awful that he is so displeased! Really!

Where a tennis champ has married a golf champ in England. Now, somebody is getting all set to get mixed up and start reporting where somebody teed off with a hot one just over the net, or somebody lobbed clear on the green for a shot of 200 yards or more. And before they get it all cleared up, somebody is bound to get hurt. Champs are very, very temperamental you know. Serves 'em right, though. They ought to know better than to go far as to marry two of 'em into one family.

Two big headlines side by side, 'way over on the stock market page. Maybe you thtink that's a queer section of the paper to be looking over for something really interesting, yet we found it—right there. One of these heads reads: "U. S. STEEL LEADS STOCKS ADVANCE"— the other: "COTTON SHOWS SHARP DECLINE." Now, just wouldn't that be like the big boys? In other words, if you want to sell cotton, it's on the down-down—if it's a plow you need, they're on the up-and-up.

After looking over most of thte big papers of Alabama, we notice that lots of these so-called editors are splicing in on their editorial pages with a lot of jokes. Some of 'em have a regular joke column. But the funniest part of it seems to be that, although it is not so intended, the whole dog-goned page is just a big joke, or a kind of series of jokes. Read one some time, and see for yourself.

Here's where one of 'em is conducting a straw vote on the state's candidates. When will these straw votes be stopped? Nobody takes them seriously until his own private favorite view is borne out, and even nobody is sure that it really means anything, any way. Most folks don't think it does.

Guess that will be enough to go copying out of other papers. Else somebody will be saying we are copy-cats. That's one name we want to be left off our list.

That just made us think. Not that anybody who quotes us would in any way be classed as a copy-cat, yet the different departments of The Union-Banner have got that good that they have recently been quoted by other papers of the state. No! We don't want 'em to stop. Fact of the business is, we feel just a little bit proud of our column is so highly esteemed by our inky brethren that they want to pick up some of our little squibs and pass them on to their readers.

Mr. J. N. Dennis surprised us a little the other day. Reckon what we found him doing? Buying a complete fishing outfit. Imagine! He said he was going to get Mr. John Robinson to go with him and teach him the art. And we saw him again after he had taken his fling at the finny tribe. Said he came out second best alongside the fish. But some of the other "good" fishermen were out at the same time, and their luck was nothing to rave over, so Mr. Dennis still holds hopes of better luck.

Like "Bill Casper" of The Progressive Farmer, the POTTER will take a little trip of some 2,800 miles in the next week or two. At least that is the plan, if we can just manage to get a grip on the proper amount of greenbacks to furnish our old gas buggy with the proper materials.

Just dropped that little hint so that you won't be surprised if you happen to get all bogegd down in a story of the trip when you settle down to your copy of the POT in the near future. We'll try to make it interesting from time to time after we start the series of the trip.

Expect to tell about the new bridge over "The Father of Waters" at Vicksburg, the Grand Canyon, the deserts, "old Mexico;" and then when we finish the trip we'll come through with stories of "the end of the trail" where the land touches the old Pacific Ocean at Los Angeles, a trip in the glass-bottom boat to look at all the flowers on the bottom of the Pacific, a trip up the coast to see the golden gate, the great redwood forests, the big tree with a highway through it, film-land, and a number of other interesting subjects.

The good old Union-Banner will be following us, too, to keep us "in the know" as to how warm the candidates are getting, etc., so you needn't be surprised if we drop back now and then to comment on that old race. Of course, after August 12th we'll have lots to say about the boys.

And then—oh, boy—isn't it going to be fun to have a nice big, wide, thick border of mourning put around the POT after the big day in November? That mourning border will be in memory of the Democratic party in Chilton County which will, of course, be buried, as usual. You remember that, now, and watch for that border.

Lots to do now, so we'll be seein' you later.—"JACK."

We don't know how Mahatma Gandhi is going to pan out as a revolutionist, but he ought to be a big success as a back-to-nature dress reformer if he could be induced to come to this country.—Detroit Free Press.

If these vest pocket size golf links keep on spreading and taking up corners, this country is going to be confronted one of these days with the serious problem of where to put its filling stations.—Ohio State Journal.

MORE NEW SHIPS

Here is still more good news for those who believe in a big United States merchant marine, and this includes about ninety-eight per cent of the citizens of the United States. The United States lines recently signed a contract with the New York Shipbuilding Company for the building of two great liners, the largest ever built in America. They will become a part of the United States merchant marine. The two great vessels will be of thirty thousand tons each and they will cost $21,000,000. They will be "laid down" immediately, which means that construction will start at once.

The two liners will be modeled after the great Leviathan but will be even more luxuriously equipped. They will be 705 feet long, with an eighty-six foot beam and each will have accommodations for 1,300 passengers.

The construction of other great liners is to follow and other ships are to be built for the trade with Europe, with the Orient and with South America. It has been a long time since the United States had a merchant marine of which it could justly be proud, but the day is at hand again. In the good old days of the Yankee clipper ships American shipping could be seen all over the world, but with the development of the steamship and the coming of the war between the states our shipping began to lag. After the Civil War was over our merchant marine had practically disappeared and the greater part of the ocean carrying trade had been seized by Great Britain. Attempts were made to revive the American merchant marine from time to time but these were all in vain. But the World War taught us a lesson as to the value of a merchant marine and it was a costly lesson. With the close of the war there was danger that we might again lose interest in our merchant marine, but pride and national safety and self interest have won out over foreign opaganda and we are again about to take our rightful place on the seas. And every true American thereby has cause for rejoicing. The importance of this fact cannot be overestimated.

A THREAT OF WAR

Sometimes the Englishman is not so stolid and so dumb as deriders would have one believe. Sometimes he is "there" with the snappy comment. Nobody has done better than this from Punch: "What this country seems to need just now is a war to end war books."

Probably one of the unavoidable horrors of war is the flood of war books that follows the end of the fighting most of them—fortunately—to be short lived.

In time, we have to be some distance from a war before we, with finally verified information, are able to judge it and its events with reasonable accuracy. Our general view is not likely to change. We can be fairly sure about fundamentals; but the details of the war picture are cleared only by time. And that is true even though the recorded testimony of eye-witnesses is a necessary part of that picture.

In the emotionalism of newly restored peace, our war books are apt to be slushy and melodramatic. Later the real, the great and the powerfully appealing drama of the event will be written.

Until that time, many would be glad to enlist in a "war to end war books."—Syracuse Post-Standard.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

Yes, it CAN rain; or rather it DID rain. The showers of Monday and Monday night furnished a very welcome refreshing to the parched fields of Chilton County.

I had about made up my mind like the boy who went to Tennessee to get a job. He was back home in less than a week from the time he left. One of his friends asked him how he found things in Tennessee. "Nothing doing up there. Things are so dull that the Tennessee River is running only three days a week."

Since the good rain of Monday, which brought a "season" to most parts of the county, we may expect "laying-by" time in a very few days. In fact, it will be here soon after the Fourth. Most farm work will be finished in the first days of July.

From the Fourth of July to the Twelfth of August it will be watermelons and politics. I don't know which is the worse for the system; and a mixture of the two may likely prove fatal in some instances, especially to most of the candidates. My prediction is that there will be a heap more defeated candidates than the other kind after August 12.

"Believe nothing that you hear and half that you see," is an old adage. If you will go to Mitchell Dam Club House and get Jim Bosworth to show you his pet optical illusion, you will come away fully convinced that you can't trust your eyes at all. Try it next time you are down there.

It is definitely settled now that the Fourth of July crowd in Clanton Friday is to have the pleasure of seeing Charley McCall and his campaign contraption in action. Mr. McCall is a candidate for Governor of Alabama. He has an automobile equipped with loud speakers so he can throw his speeches all over town, while he sits in his car and talks in a natural tone of voice.

Some of the State Democratic candidates for Governor seem to have directed a great deal of attention toward capturing the vote of Chilton County. That would not be such a telling factor, even of one of them should get it all. By the time you figure off the Republicans of the county and then take off the Heflin-Locke Democrats, there will not be a great many left to divide up between Miller, Davis, McCall, and the other candidates for Governor in the Democratic primary.

Mell Martin was showing his friends a very unique and beautiful flower (I mean a bloom, or what you may call it) Tuesday morning. Everything was all right with this flower until Mell managed to get you to smell of it. Then it was just too bad. "Dead Man's Cactus" was the name Mell gave it, and I think it was very appropriate, considering the way the thing smelled, and also the fact that Mell is an undertaker and therefore looks after the interests of dead men.

Hon. A. F. Harman, State Superintendent of Education of Alabama, was a visitor to Clanton last Thursday, and made a brief talk before the Kiwanis Club. He spoke only about five minutes, merely outlining the speech he said he would like to make, if he had plenty of time. I would like to hear him limber up on that speech for about an hour. "The Things that Make a Town," was his subject. He struck one note that particularly impressed me: Cleanliness.

I guess by comparison with some of the worse towns of the State, Clanton would be considered a fairly clean town. But I have often thought how much better our town would look if it were cleaner. There are many places that could be cleaned up and thereby remove a bad appearance. This is particularly true of that part of the town which can be seen along the Highway.

I wish that every property owner in Clanton could realize just how his home or business or vacant lot looks to the man from somewhere else, who has never seen Clanton before. That would be a revelation that would move some of us to instant action.

"What are you going to do for the Fourth?" In reply to this question Prof. J. L. Wilson said: "I am just going to stay out of the way of everybody else the best I can." A very good idea, I thought.

FOREIGN TARIFF PROTESTS

In connection with the pending tariff bill, much twaddle has been printed about the "retaliation" which may be expected from foreign nations should the measure become a law.

It is not generally known that the tariff and other restrictions placed upon American exports to the countries which have been doing most of the protesting, are more obstructive than those prevailing against imports in the United States.

France and Canada are two of the governments which have been played up most strongly as proposing to "retaliate." Canada already has a tariff higher than our own, and while the balance of trade between Canada and the United States is in favor of this country, the quarter of a billion dollars spent annually in Canada by American tourists brings it about that more American money is spent in Canada than Canadian money in the United States. The same is true of France. Both countries, without awaiting the outcome of the pending tariff legislation in this country, have raised their tariffs against American imports.

It is not generally realized that two-thirds of the imports into the United States are on the free list. We place no handicap on the foreign producer when we impose tariffs approximating the difference in labor costs at home and abroad on competitive articles. We only put them on a fair competitive basis. Experience has proved that as we build up domestic industry we increase both our imports and exports. We increase our imports because the wealth thus accumulated enables us to buy abroad more articles of necessity and luxury we do not produce at home. Our exports are increased because with employment general, our great consuming power enables home industry to produce on so large a scale that the surplus can be profitably sold abroad.

It is doubtful if the liberal exploitation of foreign protests against our tariff has helped the cause it was intended to serve. The man in the street knows that these protests come from commercial competitors with a reputation for sharply looking after their own interests, and handing out no advice intended for the good of their competitors. The American people are capable of settling their own domestic policies without accepting the dictation of interests which have no concern in American prosperity.

QUICK WORK NEEDED TO CONTROL WEBWORM

Auburn, Ala., June 30.—Quick action on the part of tree owners is necessary if attacks of the fall webworm, known ravager of 120 trees and shrubs, are to be stopped, according to Prof. J. M. Robinson, head of the department of entomology and zoology of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He said that the first generation of the fall webworm is now devouring the leaves of pecan, forest, and shade trees. Control is not difficult, he said.

The larvae, or the stage of the insect which does the damage, live in groups and spin a web ahead of where they feed on the leaves, he explained in describing the method of attack. The webs or tents are constructed of silk secreted by the larvae. As the insects eat the leaves surrounded by the web more web is developed. The process continues until sometimes small trees are completely surrounded and defoliaged. On large trees many colonies are often established, resulting in complete defoliation.

"The first generation of the larvae are usually on leaves of the lower limbs," Professor Robinson said, "and should be removed and mashed. Another measure of control is to burn the webs with torches."

The entomologist warned that if the first generation is not destroyed the second generation will appear in August and may completely destroy the leaves of the trees. There are three generations and the third lives over the winter, he added.

Arsenical sprays are not effective against this insect on account of the web which acts as a protective covering, he continued.

WINTER LEGUMES TO BUILD STATE'S SOILS

Auburn, Ala., June 30.—Encouraging farmers to plant more winter legumes, said to be the key to better and more profitable farming in Alabama, is the aim of an intensive campaign to be conducted during the summer. The planting of seed of Austrian peas and hairy vetch will be made in the early fall, or from late September through the first half of October.

Experiment station representatives farm bureau officials, extension workers, and others will be in the forefront of the campaign and will present to farmers the results of experiments conducted by the station at Auburn and also splendid results obtained by thousands of Alabama farmers during the last decade.

Results show that farmers got an average increase of 356 pounds of seed cotton per acre due to one crop of winter legumes. The increase in corn on acocunt of one crop of winter legumes amounted to 22 bushels per acre. These figures are based upon the initial crop of winter legumes.

Thus it is an established fact that the best and cheapest way to add nitrogen and humus to the soil is to plant seed of winter legumes in the fall. Fields of cotton and corn now growing in the state promise to make big yields because they were planted after a crop of hairy vetch or Austrian peas.

Either superphosphate or basic slag may be used as a fertilizer for winter legumes. Preferably basic slag should be used because it gives better results. Furthermore, it is an Alaama product. It is a by-product of the steel industry of the Birmingham district.

One thing we never could understand is how some of these fellows get a shortage of a million dollars.

ACREAGE REPORT BROADCAST ON JULY 8, 1930

Alabama farmers and others interested in the cotton acreage report for this state and for the entire South will greet with interest the announcement to be made by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician who will broadcast the report at 12:35 p. m., on July 8.

The Alabama Department of Agriculture has a direct leased wire from Washington, D. C., ending in the office of Commissioner Storrs. A skilled operator will receive the message in a secret code, which will be recoded by Mr. Gist and later broadcast over stations WSFA and WAPI, from the studio of the latter station in the offices of the Department.

Price indications of cotton futures point to a large acreage this year and this view is supported by Alabama farmers who bought nearly the record application of fertilizer for this crop. The report given by Mr. Gist will deal with acreage and acreage only. The first report on condition of the crop will not be given until August 8, in accordance with laws passed by Congress.

"Safety first" has been applied to travel mostly until recent years. Today, "Safety first" can well be applied to farming. With the present prices for cotton, those level headed farmers who are raising enough food and feed crops to play safe are assured of a comfortable living.

Alabama farmers have proved that they can raise foods and feeds far cheaper than they can buy them from farmers in Kansas and other states. There yet remains time to secure and save the above necessities in sufficient amounts to help out during the coming winter.

A total of 647,700 tons of fertilizer tags were issued by the State Department of Agriculture for the crop 1930, according to figures made public by S. P. Storrs, commissioner of Agriculture. 1930, Therefore, stands third from the top in amount of fertilizers manufactured. In 1929, a total of 675,350 tons were made, and in 1928, the year of highest record, 692,318 tons were manufactured.

Fertilizer sales this year are therefore only 44,618 tons under the record for all time in Alabama. Alabama therefore is but 6 per cent under the greatest amount of fertilizer ever applied in the state.

When Babe Ruth hits a foul it doesn't mean much, but when Jack Sharkey hits one it's just too bad.

GROWING THE FALL CROP OF POTATOES

Auburn, Ala., June 30.—Much interest in growing a fall crop of Irish potatoes in Alabama is reported by Julian Brown, extension horticulturist of Auburn. He said that most efforts along this line have not been very successful because it has been difficult to secure a stand with seed from the spring crop.

Mr. Brown pointed out that it is necessary for potatoes to go through a certain rest period after digging before they will sprout, and, due to the short lapse of time, it is necessary for this rest period to be broken by the use of some materials. For this purpose he recommends ethelene cholorohydrine.

The treatment is as follows: Cut the potato into pieces ready for planting. Put them in a solution of one pint of 40 per cent ethelene chlorohydrine to four gallons of water. Allow them to remain just long enough to make sure they are thoroughly wet. Then place in a fairly air-tight container and allow to remain from 24 to 26 hours before planting.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The sale by manufacturers of farm equipment to American buyers continues to increase. In 1929 sales aggregating $455,492,598, as against $402,841,282 in 1928, and $391,868,822 in 1927.

HUNDRED SOURCES OF FARM CASH ARE NAMED

Auburn, Ala., June 30.—Alabama's soil and climate makes it possible for farmers to produce and sell more than 100 different products. This is revealed by a list prepared by the College of Agriculture of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Each farmer must decide for himself the products which he can produce and sell to best advantage. Ask your county agent and your home demonstration agent to help you.

Of course no one will try to produce all. Conditions and facilities for production and opportunities to sell should be considered. Select for yourself and increase your income.

POWER PREFERRED SHAREHOLDERS GET DIVIDENDS

Birmingham, Ala., June 30.—Alabama Power Company will pay the forty-first consecutive dividend on its preferred stock on tomorrow when approximately $487,000 in dividend checks will be mailed to its fourteen odd thousand preferred shareholders.

The dividend to be paid on July 1st will be to holders at the close of business on June 14 of preferred shares entitled to dividends at the rate of $7 per annum and $6 per annum, it was announced.

An additional dividend of approximately $38,000 will be paid August 1st to some 1,3000 holders of its preferred shares entitled to dividends at the rate of $5 per annum.

The Power Company inaugurated in 1920, and has continued from year to year the sale of preferred stock to its customers' employees and other citizens of Alabama for the purpose of obtaining within the state as large a portion as possible of the vast sums it requires for the construction of new plants and the extension of its system.

TELLS OF PLANTING RUTABAGAS IN JULY

Auburn, Ala., June 30.—Among the vegetables that Alabama home gardeners should plant in July are rutabagas, according to Julian Brown extension horticulturist at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He suggests that they be planted in lowland, preferably near a creek or branch where there is plenty of moisture. Planting in rows is better, he said, since it facilitates spraying or dusting.

"This vegetable is not grown by many Alabama home gardeners due to the usual drouth of the July planting season and the attack of insects," Brown added. For these reasons he suggested that they be planted on lowlands.

The horticulturist also mentioned that gardeners who have not provided plants for growing the late crop of tomatoes could start these plants in July by the use of cuttings. "Cuttings should be taken from the tender shoots, cut into pieces four or five inches long, and planted in a bed prepared for rooting them," he recommended. "This bed should consist of clean sand, several inches deep located in at least partial shade where it can be watered often. Immediately after placing the cuttings in this bed it should be watered frequently, but the watering should be gradually reduced before moving the plants to the field or garden in order that they may become hardened so as to withstand field conditions. The plants may be transplanted to the field about ten days after the cuttings are made. They should be set deep, leaving only the main bud and perhaps a couple of branches above the ground."

Home gardeners are urged by Mr. Brown to give continuous cultivation to vegetables from now on in order to prolong their usefulness. He said that the bearing period of such vegetables as New Zealand spinach, peppers, okra, eggplant, and the like, may be extended over a longer period by shallow cultivation.

A great thing has come to Thorsby, to which all who care for information on almost any conceivable subject "fit to print," can have free access. The new Encyclopaedia Brittannica, just added to Thorsby Institute Library, is not only a collection of exceedingly attractive books, but they are a veritable mine of information, and far more easy of access than any previous edition of this world famous publication.

There are 24 volumes of good size substantial binding and elegant print. The books are remarkably thin and light for the amount of text which is contained in each ook. This is accounted for by the fine quality of the paper used. For instance there is one volume not over one and one-half inches thick which contains a large number of beautiful maps, and in addition to that 900 pages in index, so arranged that one can readily find any subject treated in any of the books in the set. The volumes each bear on the back in plain figures a number. Subjects are alphaetaically given in the index, together with their subdivisions, each title bears the number of the volume and the page where it may be found.

These books, of course, being for reference and study, any one who sees these books will understand at once that they are not to be handled by people with soiled hands or clothing, they are worthy of the best of treatment, that they may long be available and desirable for all who would profit y their aid. They will reward one richly for proper use.

Opportunity Schools Now Being Arranged

Several Communities Have Met the Requirements, A Few More To Be Given

Prof. H. A. Harris, who is conductor of the Opportunity Schools of Chilton County, stated Tuesday that he has already closed agreements for Opportunity Schools for white people in the following communities:

Coopers, Mt. Pisgah, Smith Schoolhouse, Mountain Springs, Flint Hill, Mars Hill, County Line, Shiloh, and Vermont. Other places which are considering the location of schools are Shoults, Mineral Springs, Minooka, Pate's Chapel, Oak Grove, Pleasant Grove, and Baker. There are only four more white schools to be located. The communities which are to get these schools must act quickly.

Negro schools have been definitely located at: Stanton, Jemison, Clanton, County Training School, New Convert. Other colored schools in prospect are Big Springs, Verbena, and Johanna.

All locations for the schools must be definitely settled by the 10th of July, Mr. Harris stated. The schools are supposed to open on July 14th. Definite announcement as to the opening of the schools will be made by Mr. Harris next week, together with the publication of the list of teachers who will have charge of the different schools.

A conference of the Opportunity School teachers has been called by Mr. Harris to be held at Clanton on July 11 for the white teachers and on July 12 for the colored teachers.

Some additional contributions to The Opportunity School Fund have come in this week, bringing the total very close to the required amount of $58.75, which was to have been raised by public contribution. States Loosely Bound at Revolution's End

On June 11, 1776, congress resolved that a committee should be appointed to prepare the form of a confederation to be entered into between the colonies and on the next day a member from each colony was selected for this duty. The Articles of Confederation were formed and in time ratified by the several states. The second article contained the following: "Each state retains its sovereignty, freedom, and independence, and every power, jurisdiction and right which is not by this Confederation delegated to the United States in congress assembled." In May, 1785, a committee of congress recommended an alteration in the Articles of Confederation, but no action was taken upon it, and it was left to the state legislatures to proceed in the matter. Virginia took it up in January, 1786 and the conclusion was the convention which gave birth to the Constitution.

Signers Lived Long

Edwin F. Hill says: "The longevity of the signers of the Declaration of Independence is remarkable. Three lived to be over 90, 10 over 80, 11 over 70, 14 over 60, 11 over 50, 6 over 40, and 1 died at 30. The signers represented many vocations. Twenty-four were lawyers; 14 were farmers; 4 were doctors; 1 was a minister; 3 prepared for the ministry; 1 was a manufacturer, and 9 were merchants."

Mr. R. W. Scott and family, Mr. Tom Lessley of Birmingham and Mr. Willie Scott of Montgomery were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rushon Gibbons Sunday.

Mr. Rushon Gibbons has been transferred from operator at Coopers to Agent at Mt. Creek. He expects to move his family there soon.

Misses Mary Ella and Iola Gerald and Mr. Leonard Moody were visitors at a week end party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Hansen at Lay Dam. While there they enjoyed a swimming party at Gore's Pond.

Master Earl Morgan of Wylam is making a visit with his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Soberg.

Messrs. A. E. Reagan, M. J. Soberg and Arnold Soberg were visitors in Birmingham last Thursday.

Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald was a visitor in Birmingham Monday.

World Owes Great Debt to Benedictine Monks

Some of the most wonderful books on earth are in the monastery founded by St. Benedict at Rome 1400 years ago. During the dark Middle ages when barbarians were sacking libraries the Benedictine monks of Montecassino patiently copied immortal works and thus preserved for today priceless books that would otherwise have been lost forever. Among them are "The Golden Ass" and the "Metamorphoses" of Apuleius; the history and Annals of Tacitus; Cicero's oration "Pro Cluentio" and his essays, "Republica" and "About the Laws," "The Nature of the Gods" and Ovid's "Fasti." The oldest grammar in history was also preserved intact by the Benedictines. This was Varrone's "Latin Language." Montecassino kept unharmed the only original copy. Upon this all grammars down to the English grammar taught in schools, have in part been based. The work of the Benedictine monks in preserving priceless books of the church has been even more remarkable. Original works of St. Jerome St. Augustine, St. Cyprian and St. Ambrose; the most ancient papal decree that of John VIII; the oldest text of a decree by Gratian, famous codifier of laws, have all been saved from the depredations of time by the Benedictine brethren.

Early Substitutes for the Modern Toothbrush

Toothbrushes are quite a modern invention. In the Vernel Memoirs we are told that in 1649, Sir Ralph Verney was asked by a friend to inquire in Paris "for the little brushes for making cleane of the teeth, most covered with sylver, and some few with gold and sylver Twiste, together with some Pettits Bouettes (? Boites) to put them in." There is another reference to these, in a later volume of the Mehoirs, as "teeth brushes."

"Turkish toothbrush" occurs in a list of "utensils" in the Musaeum Tradescantianum in 1656. This was probably a stick of dragon root, which, in common with other roots, was used for that purpose down to the Seventeenth century or even later. Not only the Romans, 2,000 years ago, but also our own Queen Elizabeth, used a rough cloth, wrapped round a stick or a finger for her teeth.—Weekly Scots

Section 133, Article 6 of the School Code of 1927 provides that the County Board of Education shall appoint for every school of the County from six discreet, competent and reliable persons of mature years nominated by the patrons of the said school, three persons residing near the schoolhouse and having the respect and confidence of the community, to serve as rtustees of the school.

The County Board would be very glad if the Code provided that three trustees should be elected by the patrons of the respective schools but since this is not true we are asking that the patrons meet at the respective school houses of the county on Friday night, July 11th, at 7:30 for the purpose of nominating six persons from whom the County Board will select three persons to serve as trustees.

New Ford Car Wins Favor

Ford Phaeton

THE Ford Phaeton, shown above, is equally popular as a family car and as a sport car for young people. The seating arrangement provides for the driver and one passenger in front and three passengers in the rear. Seats are upholstered in two-tone cross cobra grain artificial leather.

The top is of the quick collapsing type, easily handled by one person, and folds flat. The windshield, of Triplex shatter-proof glass, is of the folding type and can be laid flat forward. The windshield wings fold over it, emphasizing the sport effect of the car.

DEVAUGHN MADE PRES. OF SINGERS

County Singers Meet in Spring Session at Jemison High School Sunday

The Chilton County (Modern) Singing Convention met in regular annual session at Jemison, in the high school building, last Sunday. Probably the largest crowd of people ever gathered at a singing in Chilton County was present on this occasion. To say that there were two thousand people and three or four hundred automobiles there is making a very conservative estimate of the attendance. Everything that goes to make a big singing was in evidence at Jemison—hot weather, dust, gnats, shove, push, scrouge, listeners, quartets and singers galore.

To say that there were plenty of singers is not half expressing it, for there were a score of good directors who could not even get in sight of the program. However, that was only to be expected, and no one was disappointed on account of this fact.

The meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock by Prof. Luther T. Grant, vice-president of the convention. A public prayer was offered by Rev. M. Lockhart, and the chair appointed an arrangement committee, which consisted of Akins Collins, J. W. Cagle, M. Lockhart and P. B. Shaw. While the committee was arranging their report, two songs were sung by Prof. W. M. Devaughn. By this time the committee had reported, and the singing proper began with the following directors occupying the floor: O. L. Devaughn, O. R. Robinson, P. B. Shaw, J. R. Robinson, Johnnie Stamps, Amie Boswell, James Blackmon, and M. C. Jones. During the morning three quartets were sung, two by M. C. Jones and group of ladies from Bessemer, and one arranged by C. F. Hull of Coosa County, near Titus.

Before dismissing for dinner, E. L. Glasscock spoke a few words of welcome to those composing the convention, and also invited everybody to spread their dinner underneath the trees near the school house. So far as we know, everybody had plenty to eat, as no one was heard to complain of being hungry.

Promptly at 1:15 Prof. Grant called to order by singing, and announced that the election of officers for the convention for the coming year was in order; this election resulted as follows: W. M. Devaughn of Clanton Route 2, president; L. T. Grant of Verbena Route 2, vice-president; and T. E. Wyatt, Clanton, secretary. It was decided by the convention, as per the by-laws, that an executive committee be appointed by the incumbent officers whenever same was deemed necessary.

Immediately upon the election of W. M. Devaughn as president, he came forward and took charge of the convention. The committee reported again for the afternoon, and the following directors sang: J. B. Hammond, Sam Stone, J. R. Baxter Jr., A. H. Glasscock, Marion Easterling, F. O. Moore of Bessemer, C. F. Hull, Henry Godfrey of Bessemer.

We would do an injustice if we did not make special mention of Prof. J. R. Baxter, Jr., of the Stamps Baxter Music Co., of Chattanooga, Tennessee, who was present with his charming wife. Before singing the first time Prof. Baxter made a short and appropriate talk relative to his company, his schools, books, etc., which everyone enjoyed. And Prof. Baxter's splendid directing was the leading feature of the day. Besides directing twice, Prof. Baxter and Mrs. Baxter sang a duet, which was very beautifully rendered.

The convention was very glad to have Prof. Baxter present, realizing what a great sacrifice he was forced to make in order to attend.

During the afternoon five quartets were given; one by the Melody Four of Bethel, near Birmingham, composed of Bill Cofer, Henry Ray, Clarence Wilson and Curby Stewart; three by the unknown quartet, composed of Asa Collins, Akins Collins, Clyde S. Lackey and T. J. Sims, the first and the latter two being from Birmingham, and of course everybody knows our own, Akins. Mr. M. C. Jones and his lady singers also gave one special number in the afternoon.

To sum up the affair by saying that it was a "howling" success is not half expressing it. The people of Chilton County and Alabama are interested in singing, and there is no doubting it. The problem that confronts us most is a place big and roomy enough to house such gatherings. Some solution of the matter ought to be made if somebody knows how to proceed.

It is pretty certain that a fall session of the convention will be held somewhere in the county; however that will be announced later. Any community wishing the convention may get in touch with any of the officers.

COUNTY OFFICERS ARREST FEW OVER PAST WEEK END

Last Saturday morning Sheriff Collins and his deputies raided the home of Lorenza Mims, seven miles southwest of Clanton, and found a small quantity of liquor. The 12-year old son of Mr. Mims was seen to run from the house with the whiskey when the officers approached.

Mims was arrested for violating the prohibition law and was released on making bond.

Assisted by Police Sergeant Jim Beasley of Fairfield, County Officers arrested a negro woman in Mullins Quarters Friday morning; she had 20 bottles of home brew in her house. She was released on making bond. Her name was Hattie Roberts.

The officers located some whiskey in the woods 150 yards from the house of Lee Mims near Poplar Springs, on the old Tom Powell place, Saturday. They watched the liquor with the hopes of someone coming for it, but no such happened. The liquor was destroyed.

MRS. CROSWELL DEAD

Many friends were saddened over the passing away of Mrs. R. H. Croswell, of Montgomery, on the Fourth of July.

The Croswells formerly resided at Clanton, and have many friends in this section, who sympathize with the family in this bereavement.

Mrs. Croswell was reared to womanhood in Clanton, and was married here.

The body was buried in the Duke lot in Clanton cemetery on Saturday morning, July 5th, the day of the second anniversary of the death of her mother, rMs. Duke, and following within two weeks the death of her brother, Mr. Edward Duke of Prattville.

AIR LITUTENANT IN CENTRAL ALA. HOSPITAL

Lieutenant and Mrs. D. A. Crandell of Pensacola, Fla., were in an automobile wreck near Verbena on the night of July 2nd. Both were pretty badly injured and were carried to the Central Alabama Hospital. Late reports say that they are making gradual improvement.

Cato Roebuck Killed Instantly In Wreck

Instant Death Comes to Young Man in Wreck on Highway Near Stanton Thursday

Cato Roebuck, age 17, son of the late R. N. Roebuck of Mulberry community, was instantly killed in an automobile accident about eleven o'clock last Thursday night. The wreck occured on the Selma Highway near Stanton.

The young man who was killed was driving the car, a new model Ford. With him were his older brother, Buster Roebuck, and Morris Kemp. Early Thursday night the boys had left the Roebuck home to bring the wife of Mr. Kemp to the home of her mother, near Baker Schoolhouse. Mrs. Kemp drove the car to her mother's. On the return home Cato Roebuck drove the car.

On the way back home it is said the Roebuck car engaged in a chase with another car, and instead of stopping at Mulberry, continued on down the highway through Maplesville and on toward Stanton. The wreck is said to have been caused by the driver losing control of the car when it was running as fast as it possibly could run.

Briggs Crumpton, on his way from Greensboro to Clanton, came along a few minutes after the wreck occurred. He picked up the dead boy and the two companions who were slightly injured, and took them to the home of the boy's mother. From there he brought them on to Clanton, where the body of Cato Roebuck was turned over to Mell Martin, and Buster Roebuck and Morris Kemp were given medical attention at the hospital.

Cato Roebuck was killed instantly when the wreck occurred. He was dead when his companions got to him. His head was crushed, his chest was mashed in, and one of his ears was cut off. Mell Martin prepared the body for burial. The funeral was held at Mt. Carmel Saturday, conducted by Rev. Grady Williams. Martin had charge of the burial.

The deceased young man was considered one of the finest young boys in Mulberry community. He was a member of Mulberry Baptist Church, and a student at Isabella High School, where we understand he would have graduated next year. He is survived by his mother and three brothers, Kent, of Tuscaloosa, and Otto and Buster, at home; two sisters, Misses Cleo and Ruth Roebuck, at home.

WHAT WAS THE LETT CASE ALL ABOUT?

Some Other Questions That Are Pertinent to the Republican Primary of August 12th

[EDITORIAL]

In accordance with our promise of last week, in response to the request of Mr. John Martin, The Union-Banner is ready to give our answer to the question: What was the Lett Case all about? To state our answer briefly, before going into some other details which we want to discuss, we will say that the Lett Case, from the standpoint of Republican politics in Chilton County, was all about NOTHING. For proof of the correctness of this answer we refer you to the result which the case accomplished, which obviously is NOTHING more than that which was already established before the case was instituted.

Now, let us see a little further. We believe that Mr. Martin did not state his question just as he perhaps intended to do. The answer to his question as stated would not bring out the information which he wants to get before the Republican voters. Here is what we think he intended to ask, if you strip the thing naked: What shall the Republican voters of the county do about voting for a candidate in the Republican Primary this year, say for instance, if that candidate did not support the whole of the Republican county ticket in 1928?

We do not propose to tell the Republican voters of the county what they should do about this question and such a candidate. That is a matter which the voters must settle for themselves, in view of the complete facts in the case, and what they consider as a safe course for the future of the Republican party in the county. It is possible, easily so, for any voter to settle this question, if he happens to be dissatisfied or in doubt about it.

The facts are available. They were made available by the resolution which the County Republican Executive Committee passed last December. We believe, as we have said before, that the Committee was justified in passing this resolution, because it provided the means of getting before the voters the facts which we believe they are entitled to have before they cast their votes in this Primary.

The right of the Executive Committee of a political party to prescribe rules and regulations governing its candidates and those who participate in its primaries is upheld in the judicial decisions which terminated the Lett case.

As stated above, all the Republican candidates have complied with the resolution. When they announced as candidates in the Republican primary, they filed with the County Chairman, Mr. J. N. Dennis, affidavits stating how they voted in the General Election of 1928. Their statements in those affidavits were published in The Union-Banner on May 15. The Lett case had no effect on the action of the Republican candidates in complying with the requirements of the resolution of the Republican Executive Committee.

So far as we know, there was no objection or hesitation on the part of any of the Republican candidates in complying with the requirements of the resolution. We maintain that no candidate could have had any just grounds on which to object to complying with the resolution.

Now we come back to the real question: What shall the Republicans of Chilton County do about voting for and nominating a candidate this year who admits under his own oath that he did not support all the Republican county candidates in the General Election of 1928?

We would say if any voter has any question which he wants to ask any candidate about that candidate's past, present, or future allegiance to the Republican party, the proper one to ask is the candidate himself. The past political record of a candidate may, we think, be properly considered when he becomes a candidate for public office, to the extent that his past record may throw light on his future activities in that respect.

The Union-Banner has always supported the Republican party and the nominees of the Republican party in this county. We take pride in the record that has been made by the Republicans which the party has put into office for many years. We hope that good record will be continued and heightened by those Republican officials whom we expect to come after.

We have confidence that the Republican voters of the county, in spite of the Lett case, and every other confusing influence that has been broadcast among them, will continue to put men into office in this county who will be faithful to the Republican party, jealous of its good record, keepers of its councils, firm in its principles, and above all else, honorable and conscientious in the service of the people of the county, regardless of what their politics may be. An officer owes his election to the political party with which he is affiliated. He owes his services in the office to all the people, regardless of politics.

In addition to his election to office, a Republican official owes the Republican party a faithful and proper performance of trust in those things which must be held inviolate to secure the solidarity and harmony of the party in the future.

We would not attempt to say whether a man who failed to support the Republican County ticket in 1928 is unworthy of being nominated for office by the Republicans in the primary of 1930. That is a question which each and every voter must answer for himself. With the facts before them as they are we do not see how any Republican can fail to arrive at the proper answer.

It goes without saying that any man who is not going to be true and faithful to the Republican party when he gets into office, had better not be put into office by the Republicans. If we are to have a Republican party, we must depend on our county officials whom we put into office to make such records as will furnish the proper foundation upon which the future of the party may stand. If those officials are not going to keep sacred and inviolate the tenets of the party, we can not preserve and continue the party as a functioning medium of good government for our County.

If you are uncertain as to whether you will be playing safe to entrust the future of the Republican party in the hands of any candidate in this primary, we say the proper thing to do is have the candidate explain himself, and then judge for yourself.

BOARD OF EDUCATION TO RECEIVE BIDS, TRANSPORTATION

Many people have been asking about when the Board would consider the matter of transportation for another year. The Board will meet on the last Friday in this month for the purpose of considering transportation and anyone wishing to bid on any route may send their bid to me on or before Thursday, July 24. Of course if one comes early enough Friday, July 25, it may be presented at that time but it would have to be done before the Board opens the bids on the respective routes.

It is the wish of the Board to furnish transportation where necessary but at the same time they wish to eliminate all possible expenses in every phase of our school program. In view of this let me urge that the entire citizenship of the county cooperate with us and we would be very glad if you would not ask for transportation except in those instances where it is absolutely necessary.

MENS CLASS PICNIC JULY 17TH

The long-looked-for picnic of the Mens Bible Class of Clanton Baptist Sunday School will be held Thursday afternoon, July 17, at the new Ferry below Mitchell Dam. All men who were enrolled in the class during the special attendance campaign of last Quarter, are invited and expected to attend. The pastor of the church and all other men who are officers of the Sunday School are invited.

All who expect to go are requested to meet at the church at 2:30 in the afternoon, from where the trip will be made to the picnic grounds.

Detailed arrangements are being worked out by a number of committees which have been appointed for that purpose. A committee will provide for the refreshments; another for the entertainment features; and another is to secure the fish to feed the crowds. Besides fish, the list of eatables will also include barbecued chicken.

This bids fair to be one of the best outings of this summer, and every man who has his name in the pot will surely be sorry if he fails to be on hand to get his part of the fun, the entertainment, and the eating.

Overflowing Well In Isabella Community

Real Artesian Well Produces Sixty Gallons of Water Per Minute

Of the many interesting and valuable things of Chilton county, we think one deserving our notice, is in the Isabella community near Cross Roads. Mr. J. W. Suite, who tried his utmost to secure a good well of water, had two or three wells dug, and could not use the water. He finally decided to have a well bored, and secured Mr. Frank Nelson of Thorsby to do the work. After Mr. Nelson was shown where the well was wanted, work was begun. When a depth of sixty-five feet was reached, it was thought that overflowing water could be had at a slightly deeper point. When the depth of seventy-five feet was reached overflowing water resulted.

The output of the well at first, through a three-inch pipe, was sixty gallons per minute, but it was necessary to reduce the size of the pipe to one and one-half inches, which reduced the output to thirty gallons per minute.

The family and neighbors are happy and thankful for the well. It really makes one feel thankful to stand by that wonderful clear and cool stream, as water is forced up nine or ten feet above the ground.

Mr. Suite has fresh running water in the house from this well.

You will not regret your trip to go and see this, the only overflowing well in Chilton County. Mr. Suite lives one-half mile southeast of Isabella School.

BILLINGSLEY OUT OF PRIMARY RACE

Will not Compete in Primary to be held by Republicans On August 12th

Mr. William J. Billingsley, of Thorsby, announces this week that he has withdrawn from the race for Tax Collector of Chilton County. In making his anonuncement to this effect, Mr. Billingsley authorizes the following statement to the Republican voters of Chilton County:

"After making a pretty thorough canvass of the County I find a goodly number of good and loyal friends who are and have been very zealous in my behalf as a candidate for the office of Tax Collector of Chilton County and for which loyalty and support I cannot command words to express my sincere thanks.

"On the other hand I find a great number of my friends who had before my announcement pledged themselves to one or the other of the candidates for the tax office for which I am running and they have expressed a regret for having done so and for these friends I am grateful for their confidence. But taking all things into consideration I have fully decided that it would be to my interest at this time and probably to the interest of many of my friends that I withdraw from the race. Coming to this conclusion as I have I take this means to let my friends know my mind that they may have time to re-adjust themselves and pick them out a man of their liking for which to cast their vote for Tax Collector. I desire here to let my friends know that they are at liberty to cast their ballot for the person of their choice and for the one they think best qualified for the office and most deserving and that they are no longer under any obligations to me in this race at this time; nevertheless having a desire as I do, to serve the people in the capacity of Tax Collector, I hope in the future when so many of my friends are not obligated to give them an opportunity to assist me in achieving this honor.

"My opponents are all good men and are my friends and I am sure the good people of the County will get them a good man for the office out of this number of candidates.

"I truly hope that all my friends will willingly concede me the privilege of acting in this matter as my judgment directs and that they will not in the least feel hurt over the matter. I hope that they will all go to the polls on the 12th of August and cast their vote for the person of their choice of the remaining candidates and I assure you that your choice on that day will be my choice and that I will be ready to help elect the man that is nominated on that day.

"Again expressing my thanks to all my friends for their faith and confidence in me. I desire to remain, Yours for the Republican party.—W. J. Billingsley."

CHILTON WILL HAVE HOME ECONOMICS OPPORTUNITY SCHOOL

Chilton County has been selected as one among about half a dozen counties of the state to have an opportunity economics school this summer. This county was selected for this work by the State Department of Education, and County Superintendent B. Lawrence was informed of the fact Tuesday of this week. Miss Bertha Dennis, daughter of Mr. J. N. Dennis, has been selected as the teacher for this school. The term will be six weeks, same to begin next Monday, July 14th. This work will be for adults, similar to the way the other opportunity schools of the county are taught.

The place for the school has not been determined yet, but it is understood that it will be in one of the rural communities near the center of the county.

It is a fact worthy of attention that Chilton has been selected as one of the few counties of the State for this work. It goes to show that the State recognizes our county as one of the foremost, which fact we should and do feel proud of. You will recall that Chilton was one of the ten cunties of the State to be selected last year for home economics work which was taught at the Jemison High School.

Mrs. Duke, mother of Mrs. Grady Heflin, returned to her home at Randolph Tuesday. She took with her little James Duke Heflin. Mrs. McMillan of Birmingham, accompanied them.

Julian Evans of Atlanta, Ga., was in Clanton a few days recently with his mother, Mrs. J. E. Evans.

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

We are approaching another very important election. This election is important not because the offices to be filled are so important, but because there is a great question involved that will, in a way, have a great influence on this county.

The Republican party has long since set a precedent that not over two terms in office would be given any officer in the same office where was some one equally as well qualified to fill that office as old officer. There have been but few exceptions to this long established custom.

The question is to be considered by the voters in the coming primary is this: Will we adhere to this custom or will we break away from it and just put one set of men in office and keep them there until time wears them out? This is the question that the voters are confronted with today, and one that I contend will have a great influence on the future of the Republican party of Chilton County. I have reference to the question of what are we going to do relative to continuing the present tax assessor and tax collector for another term or probably several more. To continue them for another term sets an example for other officers in the future. To put in new men serves notice that we are not going to break away from our long established custom of two terms.

I have no ill will toward the present assessor and collector. They are my friends, but I am strongly of the opinion that it is not best for the Republican party nor to the interest of the county as a whole to continue them in these offices longer than their present terms. Ten years in offices at a salary of five of six thousand dollars a year is long enough. Another term, making fourteen years in the best offices in the gift of the people is entirely too long.

I believe that a majority of the people of the county is of the same opinion that I am. Then the question naturally arises, what shall we do? My suggestion is that we pool our efforts and get behind the strong man or men who can beat them. Of course this is hard to tell, but where there is an outstanding man who is favorably known all over the county for genteel qualifications, for good judgment, for thorough qualifications for his outstanding faith in the Republican party and who has a record for excellence in every respect like Prof, Bean has, it seems that common judgment would sanction that he is the most logical man to center on for assessor. Prof. Bean is known to almost every voter in the county and he has done more for the party than all of his opponents combined. He has been on the fireing line in every campaign for the last several years and has gone to much expense and loss of time in working for his party. I feel that we would be ungrateful to him for what he has done if we did not give him our support in the August primary. Voters, do you remember to whom we gave credit for saving our party from defeat in 1922 when Judge Reynolds beat Messer by only thirty four votes? The cry went all over the county that Prof. Bean had saved the day and prevented another Democratic disaster like the Deason administration. Are we going to forget him or are we going to reward him for his untiring efforts in 1922.

Who are we to look to for leadership when the old leaders have passed away? Do you believe that either of Prof. Beans opponents could make a speech for the party as he can and has done several times in the past? Below I am giving reasons why I think we should vote for Prof. Bean for tax assessor:

First; He is a high toned gentleman in every respect.

Second; He is qualified to fill the office.

Third; He is loyal, true blue Republican.

Fourth; He has given much time for the principles of the Republican party.

Fifth; He has proven himself to be a competent and courteous officer.

Sixth; He has made a success of everything he has undertaken.

Seventh; He is a man with a conviction.

Eighth; He has given the better part of his life to the training of the boys and girls of Chilton Colnty.

Ninth; He would be a great asset in holding the party together in the county.

Tenth; The Republican party owes him a debt of gratitude for what he has done for the party.

Now, if Mr. Bean is not the logical man for us to center on why not? He has every qualification to make a good assessor. Do you believe that the voters are going to ignore his record, his ability, his service in the past and center on a man who has done nothing but somply vote the ticket.

The question that I am asking you now is; "How can we know who will be the strongest man to center on?" We should remember that rarely has anyone been elected to office the first time he ran except when all candidates were new. I concede that everyone asking for assessor place is a gentleman in every respect and probably well qualified, but do you believe that any of these gentlemen who have never been in politics before could possibly be a logical man for us to center our efforts for a change than Prof. Bean? What have either of the other men asking for this place done other than just vote? Prof. Bean's record as Superintendent of Education is above reproach. And I am persuading that he would make as good a tax assessor as he did Superintendent.

A few people are contending that Mr. Pate made a good officer, that we have had no trouble with our taxes, etc. since he has been in office and for that reason he should be continued in office. That same argument would be just as good four years hence. Furthermore Mr. Pate has only done his duty when he kept our assessments straight and we have hundreds of men who can do the same thing.

Finally may I ask if you think such continuation of office is right to the party and to the rising generation?

The present assessor and collector are fixed financially for life. Yet it seems that they are not satisfied with what the people have hone for them. I contend that unless there is some new blood put into the Republican party of Chilton County that it is doomed to ruin. You well remember what happened to Shelby County a few years ago by just continuing one set of men in office and I predict the same thing to happen to Chilton County if we follow Shelby's example.

The Republican party of Chilton County is bigger than one man or set of men. The offices of this county are a gift of the people for peoples benefit.

Again I say let us get together on a strong man for collector and nominate them next August and elect them in November. The interest of the party is at stake. Think the matter over seriously and see if I am right.

I have suggested that the voters come together and select the most logical man who can defeat the present incumbent for assessor and collector. I have also suggested that Mr. Bean, taking everything into consideration is by far the most logical man for assessor. But if the voters decide that one of the other men in the race is the most logical then I say let us get behind him and nominate him. I am open for conviction.—G. W. Wilson.

ABILITY OF THE FORD CAR

The ability of the Ford car and truck to stand up under hard usage is constantly maintained by an ingenious testing device designed by Ford engineers and erected in the general assembly building at the Dearborn plant.

From time to time a rear end assembly is taken at random from the production line and placed upon the testing machine so that the rubber-tired wheels rests upon a motor shaft that is off center. The rear end is weighted down to approximately the weight of a loaded car or truck and the machine is put in motion.

From then on the testing machine works automatically. Simulating what would happen under actual driving conditions, it starts out slow then whips up to a speed of 45 miles an hour, slows down, increases its speed again and then stops, only to begin over. As the wheels are spun around the off-center motors cause them to bounce up and down as they would on a rough road thus giving a severe test to the shock absorbers as well as to the rear end assembly. Meanwhile a blower sends a draft of cool air over the tires and axle housing so that the test run is made under conditions approximately as closely as possible those encountered on the road.

Every rear end that is tested this way is operated for at least ten thousand miles, and frequently the test runs are for the equivalent of much greater distances.

The parts are then disassembled and checked to determine the amount of wear and distortion. The extremely delicate gauges with which this is accomplished can detect varation as fine as a tenth of a thousandth of an inch. Other instruments determine the hardness of the metal and still others measure the angles with infinite pression.

If these tests show the slightest deviation from the requirements laid down by the engineers staff, the cause is detected and corrected.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. EMILY MIMS

On July 2nd God saw fit to call from our midst Mrs. Emily Mims. She was sick ten months. Her suffering was great but she bore it with all patience. Bright's disease was the cause of her death.

She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, four daughters, Mrs. Leon Howard, Mrs. R. C. Miller, Mrs. Elijah Ingram, and Miss Ellen Mims. Four sons, Joe Mims, Jeff Mims, Alphus Mims, and Dewey Mims, and a host of friends and relatives.

All that doctors and loving hands could do didn't keep her with us. She continued to grow worse. God saw that she had suffered enough, and she had finished her work. God said, come up higher. She always had that unselfish law. She always thought of others more than she did herself.

She was laid to rest at Corinth. Bro. J. D. Hughes conducted the funeral services. She had been a faithful member of this church a good many years, where she lived a devoted Christian life. To know her was to love her. Her loss is heaven's gain. If we will follow in the footsteps of mother, we will meet in that great beyond, where there will be no good bys, nor sickness and death.

It is a consolation to know she is at rest. She is not dead, but is living over youder, waiting for all the Christians to gather around the throne of God. Her voice is still. There is a vacancy in the home that never can be filled. She said that she was ready to meet God, that she did not fear to meet her God. That is such a consolation to know she is at rest, and is only awaiting our coming.—One who lover her.

CARD OF THANKS

We take pleasure in thanking each and every one for your help and sympathy during the long illness and death of our dear mother, Mrs. W. L. Mims. You all did work so faithfully to keep her with us, but God knew her work was finished, and that she had suffered enough. And we can say truthfully she did her work well. We will never forget your help and sympathy. Our prayer is, that when you have such sorrow, that we can do for you just like you have done for us. Again we thank you all.—Her children.

The preacher had given up his charge and gone into the poultry business with the hope that it would prove a better way of keeping the wolf from the door. A few months later he met one of his former deacons on the street.

"Well, parson, how's the poultry game?" asked the deacon.

"Not so good," his former pastor sighed. "My hens seem to be as opposed to lay work as some of my former officers and members used to be."—The Witness.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the people of Pinedale and Cane Creek communities for their kindness and help extended us during the illness and death of our dear mother and grandmother. Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

I DO ALWAYS THOSE THINGS WHICH PLEASE THE FATHER

I wish you to study with me this morning the 8th verse of the 29th chapter of the Gospel according to St. John. There Christ says: "I do always those things which please the Father." The 1st chapter of this Gospel is rightly called the "word chapter." The 2nd chapter is the "first" miracle chapter, changing water into wine by Christ at a marriage feast in Galilee. The 3rd chapter is the "change of heart," the regeneration chapter in which Christ taught Nicodemus and us that we must be born again. The 4th is the "woman at the well" chapter in which Christ seeks and saves the soul of a poor, ignorant, sinful woman saying "I am the water of eternal life, and if thou wilt ask me it shall be given thee." The 5th chapter is the chapter of Christ's mercy on the poor impotent man at the pool of Bethesda. Jesus told him that he need not wait for the moving of the water but to take up his mattress and walk. The 6th chapter is the "loaves and fishes" chapter the teachings of which is so important that it is recorded in the four Gospels, and also spoken of by Paul in the Corinthian letter. It is so interesting to me that it seems after reading it once you are just compelled to read it a dozen or more times.

But in this lesson today we find that Christ's enemies are still trying to entrap Him, trying to make it appear as if He were a mere man and not the Son of God. Christ says to them, "I just wish to tell you that before Abraham was I am." Then He also says, "Now all men who were saved before my coming in the flesh and dwelling among you were saved because they believed in me. Abraham rejoiced to see my day, and he saw it." And so every man, every prophet from the time of Adam until the time of Christ's disciples were saved by seeing Christ with the eye of faith, Christ who would, out of a heart of love for us, die on Calvary's cross of a broken and crushed heart on account of sins, the sins of the whole world.

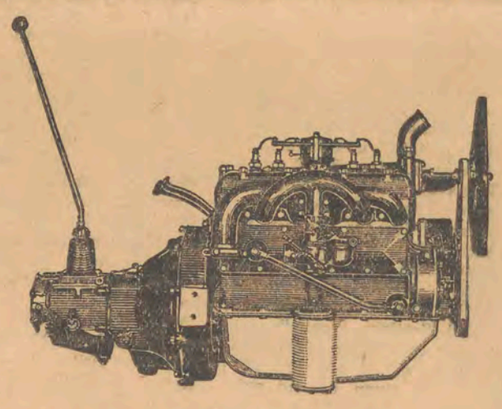
Christ was just telling them that Abraham rejoiced in my day and was saved. It was accounted unto Abraham for righteousness writes the apostle Paul a good while after this. Then Christ moves on with the haughty accussers and persecutors which swarmed about Him by saying, "I just want to please my heavenly Father. You just be quiet for all these things are done in no other motive but to please God." Then He gives them the thrilling statement which is also to us, "My Father worketh, hitherto, I work. But remember that when I work I am going to please the Father. I want everything I do to please the Father."

Paul must have heard Him say that because when he wrote the Galatian letter he says, "If I sought to please man I would not be a servant of the Lord." This just thrills me. I have no right to preach this Gospel of Jesus Christ, to conduct funerals, to try to help a broken heart, unless I am sure it pleases the Father. My friend, this teaching of Jesus is none other than that of a higher holier life. If Jesus Christ had to say that how much more you and I need to say it. The things I would do I must do all to please the Father. I am not sure that pleases mortal man. I am not sure that I ever did anything to please mortal man.

If you work because your heavenly Father worketh, if you have and are conserving your strength for the spread of Christ's kingdom you are doing that which pleaseth the Father. If you have dedicated your business, your home to the Lord you have pleased the Father. If you read His word, the Bible, pray, and live a true life to His church you please Him. O my friends, whatsoever we do whether we eat or drink let us do all giving thanks to God by the Father doing all for the glory of God, the Father. This means that whatsoever I do I must do it to please God. "Whether we eat or drink, or whatsoever we do let us do all giving thanks to God by the Father."

We hear so much about believing Jesus, trusting Jesus, having faith in Jesus. My friends, we are saved by faith in Christ, both heart and intellectual faith. Faith is receiving Christ into your heart, faith is trusting Christ, believing Christ, having confidence in Christ, holding on to Christ and loving Jesus Christ. And just here we must remember that we cannot please Christ unless we love Him. If we love Christ we will not break His commandments. We will not desecrate the Sabbath by participating in worldly pleasures such as Sunday picnics, golf playing, merry making. I must love Jesus Christ with all my heart, my soul, my strength, and my mind.

A man or woman who loves Christ loves their family. To love Christ is to also love each other. It follows as the night the day that when we love Christ we love each other. I claim that a man does not love Christ and his family unless he will go with them to church. He may be working hard for them but he cannot please the Father by neglecting his Christian duty. Jesus Christ said, "I do always the things which please the Father." There is something about this which I fear we have not yet fathomed.



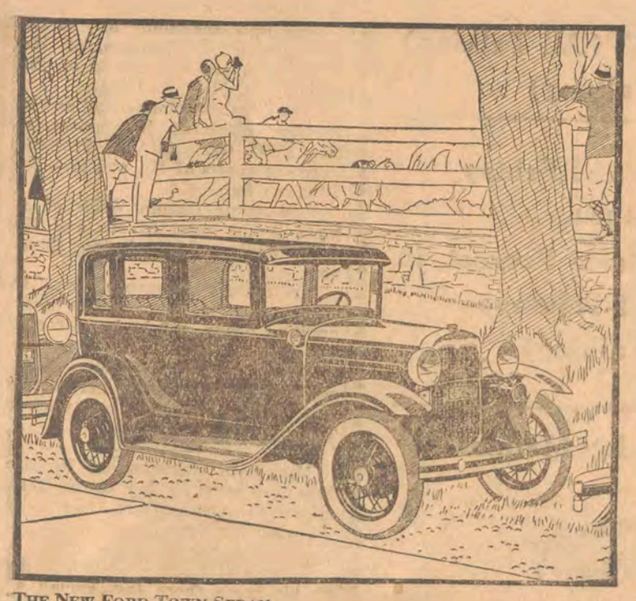
Christ pleased the Father when He worked day and night and His own loved ones said that He was crazy. He pleased the Father when He preached the Gospel to the poor, when He said, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, He hath annointed me to preach the Gospel to the poor, to heal broken hearts, to help the faint-hearted." Then on Calvary's cruel tree He pleased the Father by His spriit of forgiving men their trespasses when He said, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." He pleased the Father there in His merciful attitude toward the sinful, penitent dying thief. He pleased the Father there by committing His spirit into the hands of the Father. "Father, into thy hands I committ my spirit."

No doubt many times Christ looked up into the face of the Father and said, "I do not wish to please these Pharisees and Essenes, but Father I want to do those things that are pleasing only to thee." He pleased the Father in His submission. Listen to His humble prayer, "Father, nevertheless not my will, but thine be done." Then we see that Christ pleased the father in His prayer life which was one of submission to His will. Prayer is asking God for what you want and submitting to His will. Truly we are in a very low state of spiritual life when we cannot submit to God's will. We ought to ever pray, "Father, thy will be hone on earth as it is in heaven." That is pleasing to God. Seeking things which please the Father, reading the Bible daily, and praying always to God is a wonderful well-pleasing life to our gracious heavenly Father. Do you feel today that you are doing the things which please the Father? Is your life in your home pleasing to the Father? Do you attend the weekly prayer meeting to please the Father who says, "Neglect not the assembling of yourselves together for prayer."

O my friend, are you pleasing the Father in your prayer life? Really the most helpful, encouraging, and thrilling letters or calls I get are those which say, "I way praying for you." It is the spiritual life which we must be reaching out for because this is the thing which pleases the Father. We cannot think of doing that which is pleasing to man but instead we must do that which is pleasing to God. A man or woman who does not do that which is pleasing to the heavenly Father ought to go back to nature's mint and be branded over, be washed in the blood of Jesus Christ. God help us to do the things that please thee.

THE VALUE OF SOUND DESIGN

New Ford engine gives outstanding acceleration, speed and power without sacrificing reliability or economy



THE good performance of the Ford car, so apparent on every highway, is due largely to the sound mechanical design of the engine.

It has outstanding acceleration, speed and power, yet that is only part of its value to you. Greater still is the fact that it brings you all these features without sacrificing either reliability or economy.

That is the reason the Ford car has given such satisfactory service to millions of motorists all over the world and has been chosen by so many large companies that keep accurate cost figures. In every detail of construction it has been carefully planned and made for the work it has to do.

The design of the compression chamber is an important factor in the efficiency of the Ford engine. It is built to allow free passage of gases through the valves and to thoroughly mix the fuel by producing turbulence within the cylinders during compression. The spark thus flashes quickly through the whole fuel charge, resulting in quieter and more effective engine performance. Other factors are the direct gravity gasoline feed, the specially designed carburetor, the new hot-spot manifold, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves of larger diameter, statically and dynamically balanced crankshaft and flywheel, the simplicity of the electrical, cooling, lubrication, and fuel systems and accuracy in manufacturing.

BUSINESS today requires that the successful man be physically fit and mentally alert. Men, especially, forget themselves physically. Their work demands practically all their time. They do not exercise enough. They get little or no sunshine. They are robbed of a good appetite . . . and when their red-blood-cells fall below normal their flesh becomes flabby, their nerves unsteady. Their strength must be reinforced.

Soundness of body and peace of mind depend upon the proper number of red-cells in the blood—5,000,000 to the cubic millimeter. They give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. It is dangerous to let the red-cell count remain below normal.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. SALLY JOHNSON

On Sunday, June 30, the death angel visited the bed-side of Mrs. Sally Johnson, wife of John Johnson of Pleasant Grove community and took her to the great beyond, where she will have no more pain. She had been ill for over a year with cancer. She had been staying with her two daughters quite a while, Mrs. Lula Giles and Mrs. Nola Giles, but was at the home of Mrs. Nola Giles when she died. Her children believed her to be getting better for two days before she died and when her time came she just went to sleep to awake in heaven where there is no more suffering or pain. She said just a few hours before she died that death would seem sweet to her; that she was ready any time the Lord felt ready to call. She was a good Christian woman and was loved by everyone who knew her. She always gave everybody a hearty welcome who went to see her, although she was suffering death most all the time. She was a member of the Pleasant Grove Baptist church.

Before her marriage to John Johnson, she married Mr. R. T. Fiering of Chicago, who is the father of her two children. She had 9 grand children, 4 sisters and 2 brothers. She was laid to rest at Pleasant Grove cemetery, Rev. Gibson officiating, Martin in charge.

FROM ALFRED F. MIMS

To the Republican voters of Chilton County:

As I am a candidate for the office of Tax Collector of Chilton County in the Republican Primary of August 12, I want to have just a few words with those of you who are readers of The Union-Banner.

For the past few weeks I have been busy going around over the county in the interest of my candidacy. I have seen many of the voters. Between now and the time for the primary, I expect to make a complete canvass of the county, and hope to see everyone who will cast a vote in the Republican primary.

As you perhaps knows, I was a candidate for this office four years ago, and was defeated in the primary. But that was all right with me. I have been a Republican all my life, and have always been satisfied with the verdict of a majority of my fellow voters.

Again this time I am asking you to vote for me for Tax Collector for a number of reasons. First, I would like to have the office. I believe I deserve it, and believe that I am able and qualified to fill it to the satisfaction of the people of the county.

I submit for your consideration the fact that I have always been a faithful and loyal supporter of the Republican party. I have never sidetracked on a single issue.

My business is farming. I have been a farmer all my life. I was reared on a farm near where I now live, in Beat 9, just south of Thorsby. Personally I have always tried to conduct myself and my business relations in an honorable and upright manner. I am willing for my neighbors to bear testimony as to how I have conducted myself.

I am asking for your consideration for this office on my own merits. I am not making a fight against any of my opponents. I went into this race with friendliness for all, and I want to go out of it the same way, whether I win or lose.

In conclusion, I want to say that I will greatly appreciate the support and influence of every voter who can favor me in the Republican primary. If I am nominated, I will put forth every honorable effort and hard work to win in November. Then I will use every ounce of my ability to fill the office with satisfaction to the people of the county.

Yours truly,
ALFRED F. MIMS.

MANAGEMENT SUGGESTIONS WHEN HOGGING OFF CORN

The corn should be sufficiently mature to be in the glazed stage when the pigs are turned into the field. Soft corn has a tendency to scour pigs.

Hogging off corn is a fattening process and it is advisable to use pigs for this purpose that will be finished when the corn is cleaned up. Spring pigs with growthy frames and weighing 100 to 125 pounds when turned in the field give best results.

Corn when fed alone does not constitute a satisfactory ration for any kind of hog. Corn is deficient in both protein and mineral. Soybeans grown with the corn will supply the protein deficiency. A simple mineral mixture of equal parts of charcoal, lime, and salt will supply the necessary mineral. If no feed such as soybeans are grown with the corn it is advisable to place a self-feeder containing both tankage nad mineral in the field with the hogs.

Hogs that are nearly almost should be removed from the field when there yet a few scattered grains and part of ears on the ground. Breeding animals and early fall pigs make good use of any corn left by the fattening hogs.

A field of corn yielding 40 bushels per acre will carry twenty 125-pound pigs for about 15 days.

Plenty of clean water and some shade will increase the rate and cut down the cost of gains. This is particularly true during the early fall when the weather is hot.

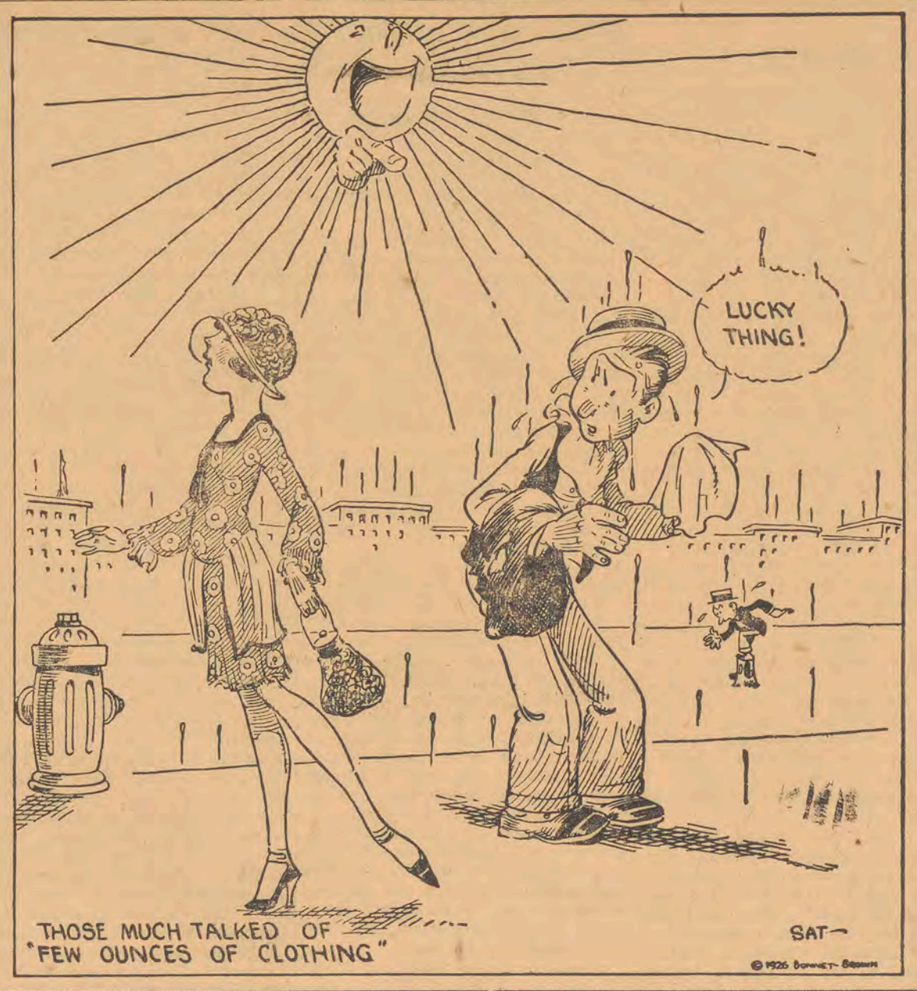
It is good farm management to let hogs harvest some of your corn while you pick your cotton. For additional information consult your county agent or write the Animal Husbandry Department at Auburn.

FROM L. H. BEAN

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a space in your paper to say a few words to the voters of this county. I am a candidate for the County School Board of Education. If I am elected my term will be six years and I want the common people of this county to feel like they had a friend on the school board, one who will look after their interests and protect them against depression of high taxation. I believe in school government for the people and by the people. I believe the rural district ought to have the eighth and tenth grades taught in their schools if they want it. I also believe seven months ought to be taught in all our schools. This is the only fair way for all the children to get the same service for their money. There is empty desks in the rural districts and the town schools are crowded out. It seems that some of our people want to rob the rural districts and give it all to the little towns. And when you do this you are cutting the throats of the people who are feeding you.

When Howard L. Foshee was our County Superintendent of Education we had good schools and the people was satisfied, and to day there is more unrest and dissatisfaction than ever before in the world. I am by the old time schools like I am by the old time religion—there is nothing that will take its place. The word is coming to me from all parts of the county that Bro. Lawrence is telling the people not to vote for L. H. Bean, that he will be a stumbling block to the schools. Now Mr. Voter, I will prmoise you this: If I am elected as a member of the school board I will never be as big a stumbling block as he is. I stand 100 per cent for good schools.



I will never advise or persuade any citizen to violate the laws of our country. It will be my policy to clean up the bad practice that is now being used. We have school officials to day who cannot make a clean report to the people on account of incriminating themselves. On August 12th, 1930, if you want to make a start to clean up the bad business being used in the schools just vote for L. H. Bean. This will be making the first step to prosperity for our schools, and if you have confidence in me to elect me on the school board, I will be with you in the sixth trouble and will not forsake you in the seventh.

My motto is to put all the schools in the county on a clean record basis, and at the end of the schools in the county have the trustees to make a report of all the incidental fees that has been collected and what you spent them for, and show a balance, if any. All we are asking for is a square deal, just show the patrons that you are treating them honest or dishonest as the case may be.

Now since Bro. Lawrence has taken the steps against me that he has, I want to ask all my one mill tax friends who stayed with me on April the 8th, 1930. I am expecting you to put me over the top on August 12th, 1930. Lets show Bro. Lawrence a thing or two.—L. H. Bean, The man behind the schools.

CARD OF THANKS

June 24 the death angel visited our home and took away our darling baby and brother. Little Edgar was eight months of age. He was laid to rest at Collins Chapel cemetery. Rev. Jones of Thorsby preached the funeral. We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for their help and kindness during the illness and death of little Edgar. We thank those who brought flowers. We are hoping to meet him in the sweet by and by.—G. D. Melton and family.

THORSBY SECTION

The Fourth of July was celebrated in a manner very satisfactory to a large contingent of Thorsby citizens past, present and future.

What was called an "Old Settlers Picnic" was staged in the beautiful grove on the farm of Conrad Carlson, north of town. An ideal place for such a gathering. Considerable preparation and careful attention to all details had been given by the committee on arrangements, consisting of Chas. A. Peterson, Mrs. C. S. Howard and Mrs. J. O. Johnson.

Thorsby was founded in 1907 by northern people. The site being practically the geographical center of Alabama, midway between Birmingham and Montgomery, on a plateau of rolling land, the highest in the State south of Birmingham, and having good natural drainage, thus a healthy location. While considerable of the land selected had been denuded of its virgin pine forests, still there was plenty of clearing to be done to make a home.

The lot of these pioneers for several years was a hard one and many with resources exhausted gave it up and with the help of friends back home returned. Others stuck to it, got acclimated, learned the science of living among strangers, sometimes unsympathetic, and laid the foundation for one of the most prosperous small towns within the State.

Last winter Mr. Sam Thorson, one of the original settlers, with his wife from Minnesota, who left Thursby about 25 years ago, returned to visit old acquaintances and kinsfolk. He was simply amazed at the changes introduced since he left, and was loud in his praise of the spirit and enterprise of Thorsby people. He suggested that having recollection of Fourth of July picnics held by Thorsby citizens in the early days, it would no doubt be interesting to have another sponsored by those who today might be called "Old Settlers," residents of Thorsby twenty years or more, and such as could be induced to come who lived here as long ago as that. The idea was taken up and carried out in fine shape.

But there was this difference. Because of the spirit of co-operation and good fellowship with the native element in and around Thursby it was to be no "Close Communion" affair. All bars were down; those who cared to come were welcome; and they did come, a united people; Praise God.

Men and women who were present and who lived in Thorsby 30 years ago as grown-up were: Mrs. A. K. Horn, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Peterson of Thorsby, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Sarber of Elmore, Mrs. Martha Grothe, Mr. J. A. Lindquist, Fred Howard, Mrs. Bena Husby, J. L. Foss, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Soberg, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Peterson, Augusta Turnquist Peterson, Naemi Turnquist, Anna Werniss, Earl Mead.

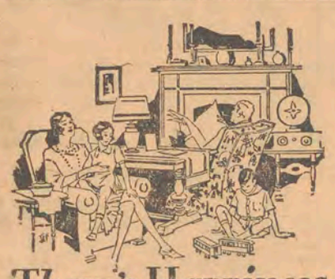
DO YOU HARVEST ANY CORN WITH HOGS?

An average of the Alabama Experiment Station figures for the past 15 years shows a profit of $4.06 per acre or 28 cents per bushel in favor of hogging off corn compared with harvesting and marketing corn.

Hogging off corn was more profitable than marketing corn in all but three years out of the past 15 years.



Average Alabama yearly hog prices were used in this study. Corn-fed hogs will bring from 1 to 1 1-2 cents above these prices on most markets.

Six and one-half bushels of corn and 36 pounds of tankage fer 100 pounds of pork were used. Experiments at Auburn prove this to be sufficient under field conditions.

An average price of $1.32 per bushel for corn in the field would have been realized during the past 15 years if corn had been marketed through hogs.—C. E. Stapp.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at the home of Mr. Cleve Billingsley on Saturday night, July 12th. Proceeds will go to the Indian Grave Baptist church. Everybody invited to be present. Don't forget the time and place.

ROBERTA CURRY IN EUROPE

While we folks in Clanton swelter in the terrific heat of one of our most torrid summers, a refreshing letter comes from Roberta Curry, who is traveling in Europe. "I wish you could come over here. The waters are fine in the Swiss-Alpine regions," she says. It is easy for us who know her to imagine how Miss Roberta is enjoying the dips into Lake Lucerne.

Continuing her description of the country which she is "exploring," Miss Curry says: "The floating clouds of the blue sky are reflected in the clear, cool waters of the lakes, as also are the snow-capped peaks of the nearby mountains. Interlaken, up in the topmost parts of the Alps, is perfectly entrancing. Nearby is the famous Jungfrau Mountain.

"Lord Byron's chateau in Chillon is not far from here. We went through the mansion, and greatly enjoyed the inspection. In Geneva we will see Mt. Blanc, also Fete of the Flowers, which I know will be beautiful.

"This is a perfectly grand trip. I am charmed with Paris, so unlike New York. Not a building more than four stories high. Everyone must be happy over here, for they look it; and life with them seems to be a matter of play.

"We fly over to London on the second of July. I wish that my Clanton friends might enjoy the raptures of this trip with me."

And so on for several pages, Miss Curry continues to write of the magnificent scenery of Switzerland, the cleanliness of the Swiss Capital, the beauties of the various landscapes and the city of Paris in particular.

CAPITAL DRY GOODS COMPANY
(Reedie Taylor)

The management of two of the leading stores of Clanton and one at Jemison is the business of Mr. Reedie Taylor, who is considered one of the leading merchants of Chilton County. He is at the head of the Capital Dry Goods Company and Chicago Sales Company, of Clanton, and the Chicago Sales Company, at Jemison.

Mr. Taylor is a young man, unmarried. He is the son of the late L. M. Taylor. His mother is Mrs. W. M. Poole, of Clanton. He is a business man by inheritance. His father before him was a successful farmer and business man.

Associated with him in his business enterprises is his uncle, T. M. Taylor, who occupies the place of silent partner. Tom Taylor is himself recognized as one of the firmest business factors of Clanton.

Capital Dry Goods Company is located at the place formerly occupied by the store of "Parrish's." In fact the business known as "Callen's," which was established by Reedie Taylor and Frank Callen, was consolidated with "Parrish's in April 1929. Frank Callen withdrew from the connection, and Reedie and Tom Taylor continued the business at the Parrish place under the name of Capital Dry Goods Company. Mr. Jim Dunlap and Mrs. Bob Baker constitute the sales force at the Capital.

Chicago Sales Company is the older of the business operations of Mr. Taylor. It was established by V. J. Elmore. Several years ago he sold it out to Reedie and Tom Taylor. The location is next to the First National Bank. About a year ago Mr. Taylor established the second unit of Chicago Sales Company at Jemison. The Clanton store of Chicago Sales Company is in charge of Miss Etta Baker and Miss Kate Aldridge. Mr. W. A. Kemp, formerly of Clanton, is in charge of the Jemison Store.

At the stores of Mr. Taylor, both in Clanton and Jemison, there is carried a general line of dry goods, clothing, shoes, ready-to-wear. Capital Dry Goods Company features men's clothing, which line receives the personal attention of Reedie Taylor. Curlee Clothes constitutes the popular line of ready-made-suits at this store. The Ed. V. Price line of tailored to measure clothes is also handled.

Reedie Taylor is a member of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, the Town Council of Clanton, a director in the Peoples Bank, of Jemison, and a stockholder in the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton. Before going into the mercantile business, he spent several years in the employ of the Peoples Savings Bank, at Clanton.

The stores of Reedie Taylor have gained a wide popularity with the buying public of Chilton County.

IN MEMORY OF LITTLE TOMMIE WATSON

On last Thursday he was taken sick. All was done that willing hands could do. On Sunday he was carried to the Central Alabama Hospital where it was pronounced appendicitis, where the doctors and nurses did all that could be done.

He was operated on Monday morning at fifteen minutes till eleven o'clock, and at two, God saw fit to take him home where there will be no more pain and suffering. The flowers were beautiful. His little grave was covered with flowers.

He leaves to mourn his loss his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Watson, three little brothers, four little sisters, and a host of friends and relatives.

Weep not dear ones for our loss is heaven's gain. He was 12 years and eleven months old.—One who loved him.

GRANT'S SINGING SCHOOL AT FRIENDSHIP GOING ON FAIR

Prof. L. T. Grant opened up his singing school at Friendship church 1 st Monday morning, according to previous announcement. The prospects to begin with were rather slim, but attendance is continually picked up. A number of children who had signed up to attend were not through work, but hope to come in in a day or so.

Prof. Grant is as good singing teacher as can be had anywhere, and it is the duty of the people in reach to lend him your support. And the school is not only for children, but for grown-ups as well. Three weeks time could not be better spent any where than in a singing school.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cagle of Mitchell Dam are on their vacation this week. They are spending the time with their friends and relatives around over the country.

Nurse Tells How CARDUI Helped Her

Mrs. W. A. Cox, a well-known professional nurse, of Burnside, Ky., writes:

"I was in very bad health, and only weighed 110 pounds. I read in the papers about Cardui, and thought I would give it a try-out. After I had taken one bottle, I could see that I was improving. After I had taken it a month or two, I began to gain, and I weigh at present 168, and have weighed that for some time. I am now 55 years old, and can do as much work as the average middle-aged woman can.

"I would advise any woman, who is weakly and in a run-down condition, to try Cardui, but not to expect one bottle to make her well. I take two or three bottles a year, now, and I feel fine."

Things Seen Along the Way

By J. Toy Williams

One of the many interesting features of the Union Banner, is The Man On The Corner, "Some of the sights he saw and some he saw not." If the editor finds a place for this outside the waste basket, I shall tell you of some of the things that I saw along the road on that ride I took across the country in the Shantung Province. (I told you about the ride a few weeks ago.)

Wheelbarrows. All along the road over which I went there were wheelbarrows carrying everything imaginable and some things that you would not imagine. A man holds the handles and keeps the things standing up and does the pushing, but the main power that carries it along is a donkey that is hitched to the machine by means of a rope tied to the gear and to the wheelbarrow. They carry anywhere from six hundred to a thousand pounds at a load. At one place I saw several of them carrying 800 lbs. of coal each. At one place we met about twenty of them loaded with Standard Oil products, most of it being kerosene. There were from ten to sixteen five gallon cans on each wheelbarrow.

Soon after we started out into the country from the R. R. station we passed a string of these wheelbarrows. One of the donkeys decided he did not like the looks of the motor-bus and began to show his feelings in the matter by pitching and jumping. The chauffeur of the wheelbarrow was not prepared to run in high, for he was afraid he would turn over and break something. Since he could not get hold of the donkey, and since he did not have any brakes, he just ran the wheel off into a little ditch and the donkey had to stop, for he could not pull it out of the ditch.

At one time our bus was making good time along a smooth piece of road when all at once we slowed up and stopped. Everybody looked to see what was the matter, and what do you supose it was? Somebody had cut a ditch about eight inches across the road and put spikes in the bottom of it. It was all for the benefit of the bus tires. But fortunately the driver saw it in time to stop before running over it. They told me that sometimes the village people would do this in order to cause the bus people all the trouble they could. Then at other times they do it thinking the bus will run over it and have a couple of puctures and while the tires are being prepared the robbers come out of their hiding and rob the passengers.

Yes, there were crops along the way. The most interesting crop at the time was wheat. It looked like miles and miles of wheat fields but when one is close to it he sees that there are only small plots of wheat with numerous plots of other things in between. Kaoliang (Millet) had been planted in many of these places and was coming up. Peanuts were just being planted. About 50 years ago a missionary brought over a handful of peanuts (big goobers) and gave them to a chinese farmer. The next year he divided seed with his neighbor and finally the seed of these fine peanuts were scattered over a large area. Now tens of thousands of tons of peanuts are raised in the province. About four million dollars worth of peanuts are shipped from Tsingtao to foreign countries.

Down the road we saw two big heaps of something and they seemed to be moving. When we were near we saw that it was two wheelbarrows heaped high with bundles of straw braid. Perhaps your next summers straw hat will be made of this straw that I saw on the road. The best and most white wheat straw is plaited into braid and immense quantities of it are shipped to Europe and America. The plaiting is all done by hand. On the side of the road in a village you may se old men and women and their children working away with it . They will gaze at a forigner and carry on a conversation about him while they go on with their work.

In one town we stopped I visited a girls school that is run by the Lutheran missionaries. There were about a hundred girls and they are doing fine work. But what I started to tell you about the buildings now being used for the school were formerly used as a hair-net factory. Since so many women in the world bobbed their hair and quit wearing nets the business failed and many thousand women were thrown out of work. The world is very closely knit together. What is done in one part of the world will affect the people in another part of the world. But there seems to be progress. Where once women worked long hours for a few cents a day making hair nets, now girls are going to school and preparing for better service and best of all are studying the Bible and many of them are becoming useful Christians.

Many other interesting things were seen, but we must not impose upon the good nature of the publishers of the papers there at home. If the Man on the Corner ever gets out of anything to write about, tell him to come over here and I will put him on a corner where he can see enough to fill several papers.

Women Become Silent Sex

Women of England, especially professional women, have acquired a new virtue—silence. Newcomers into the profession are outdoing the men in their desire for professional etiquette and refuse to advertise. Many people have declared that successful professional women are less "human" than successful professional men. It is claimed that they suffer from a "superiority complex" and a sort of "divine right of queens," hemming themselves in impenetrable barriers of silence and self-importance.

Poison Arrows of Indians

The bureau of ethnology says that the arrow poison used by the Indians was of vegetal and animal origin. Among the vegetal poisons there were sap of the yucca angustifolia, a preparation of aconite and a plant called Mago, the milk of which was poison. Some tribes, such as the Shonshoni and Bannock Indians, obtained a deer and caused it to be bitten by a rattlesnake. The deer was then killed and allowed to putrify. Then the arrows were dipped into the matter.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

JACOB, A SELFISH MAN, TRANSFORMED

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 25:29-34; 28:18-22; 29:18-20; 33:1-4, 18.

GOLDEN TEXT—For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?

PRIMARY TOPIC—Learning to Be Unselfish.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning to Be Unselfish.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Does It Mean to Be Honest?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Learning from Experience.

I. Jacob's Birth (25:21-26).

In answer to Isaac's prayer, a seed was given unto him. Before Jacob's birth God revealed unto Rebekah the fact that he should have the place of pre-eminence. "The elder shall serve the younger." In this God reversed the ordinary law concerning the position of the elder son. The act of taking hold of Esau's heel as he was born, indicated Jacob's nature. The name Jacob means "supplanter."

II. Jacob's Schemes (25:27-34; 27:1-29).

1. He secured Esau's birthright (25:27-34).

It was right for Jacob to have the birthright since it was according to God's plan as revealed to Rebekah, but his scheme to get it was reprehensible. He took advantage of a brother's weakness to drive a sharp bargain.

2. Secured his father's blessing (27:1-29). (1) Was requested to get venison for his father. (2) Rebekah's scheme (vv. 5-33). It was God's plan that Jacob should be at the head, but He did not need the sin of Jacob and his mother to bring it about.

III. Jacob's Flight to Haran (ch. 28).

Jacob's deceit and cunning got him into trouble. He was compelled to flee from his outraged brother. He now began to reap what he had sown.

1. Jacob's vision at Bethel (28:10-15).

Jacob not only had to flee to save his life, but he had to leave home and mother. When night overtook him, he was obliged to sleep in a field with a stone for a pillow. It was under such circumstances that the Lord gave him the wonderful vision at Bethel. (1) He saw a ladder reaching from earth to heaven (v. 12). Jesus Christ is the ladder, connecting earth and heaven for us (John 1:51). (2) He saw angels of God upon the ladder (v. 12). These angels were divine helpers to render needed assistance along life's way. (3) The Lord standing above the ladder (vv. 13-17). To show Jacob that the ladder did not reach merely into space God appeared and talked with him. a. He declared that He was the God of Abraham and of Isaac, thus assuring Jacob that the same favor that was over his fathers was over him (v. 13). b. He renewed the covenant as to the land. Though Jacob was now fleeing from the land, the covenant would not fail. (v. 13). c. He assured him of a numerous seed (v. 14). d. The divine presence with Jacob (v. 15). Though he had sinned, God was with him. e. Jacob should be brought again into the land (v. 15).

2. Jacob's vow (vv. 18-22).

His vow included three things. (1) Dedication of himself to God (v. 12). (2) Establishment of worship (vv. 18, 19). (3) Consecration of his substance (v. 22).

IV. Jacob's Return to Canaan (chaps. 31-33).

1. The Lord instructs him (31:11-21).

Twenty years have elapsed since his experiences at Bethel. These years were spent in Padan-aram with his mother's people. Here he served Laban for twenty years. Though it was the purpose of God for him to return, he took clandestine leave of Laban. Laban pursued him in anger, but God appeared to Laban and forbade him to lay hands upon Jacob.

2. Jacob on the way (Gen. 32).

Though Jacob fled from Laban's pursuit, a more formidable enemy faced him in the person of Esau. (1) Jacob meeting the angels (v. 1). (2) Jacob praying (vv. 9-12). Not receiving a reply from Esau, Jacob cast himself upon God in prayer. (3) The angel wrestling with Jacob (vv. 24-32). He continued to wrestle until the approach of morning, not knowing that it was God in human form wrestling with him. God humbled him by dislocating his thigh. When thus humbled, he quit wrestling and clung to God. He got the blessing when he, conscious of his weakness, laid hold upon God. (4) A new name (v. 28). He was no longer Jacob, the "supplanter," but Israel, a "prince of God." His new name was given him after he had a new nature.

Finding God

If we cannot find God in your house or mine, upon the roadside or the margin of the sea, in the bursting seed or opening flower, in the day duty and the night musing, I do not think we should discern Him more in the grass of Eden or beneath the moonlight of Gethsemane.—James Martineau.

WEST CHILTON

One week ago we were very dry in this section. But on Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning the refreshing seasons came. In the neighborhood of Free Springs there was a severe hail storm, beginning near the Southern Railroad at the J. N. Ervin farm, then continuing northeast. The crops on several farms in this territory are apparently ruined. Some whose crops are seriously injured are H. G. Cofer and tenants, N. G. Crumpton, the crop on the J. G. Payne old place, Arch Crumpton, R. K. Langston and probably others.

There was a nice little gathering at L. G. Posey's on the afternoon of the Fourth. Eating ice cream was the leading pastime feature of the occasion.

E. H. Waldrop and Pratt Crumpton made a business trip to Montevallo and Aldrich Wednesday.

There was quite a wind storm at Randolph Tuesday morning.

Mr. John H. Martin, candidate for commissioner, was here last week shaking hands with the voters. Mr. Martin is one of the progressive, public spirited citizens of our county. A man of unquestioned loyalty.

It is reported that Manson Poe, on a recent fishing trip scored great success in angling for the finny tribe. The catch reaching into hundreds of pounds.

This section is gradually growing into a truck farming district. More evidence than usual this year, along that line.

H. H. Armstrong was out last week hustling after the school census.

John Davis of Jemison was here last week getting up a truck load of roasting ears for the Birmingham market.

Rev. E. A. Childs is in Eutaw, Ala., where he is conducting a revival at the Methodist church.

Rev. S. J. Ezell returned last Friday from Guin, Ala., where he had been engaged in a revival meeting for ten days.

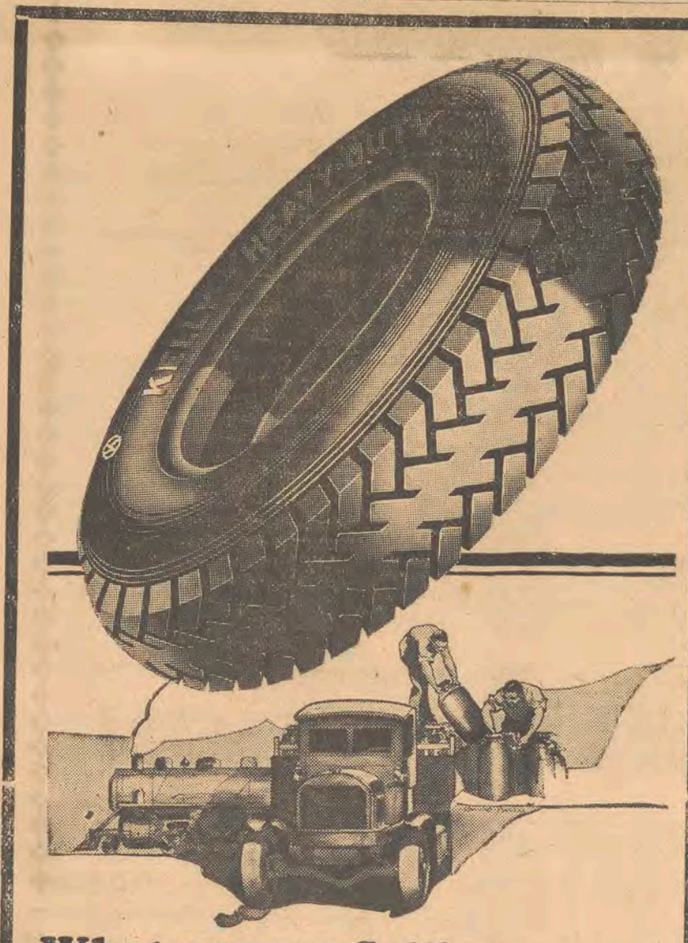
OVER WORKED NERVES

UP TO your ears in work—every nerve at high tension. No wonder you snap at the wife and bark at the children.

Watch out! Overworked nerves may lead to Sleeplessness, Nervous Headache, Nervous Indigestion and a host of other unpleasant disturbances. Why don't you try Dr. Miles' Effervescent Nervine Tablets?

Just one in a half glass of water makes a pleasant, sparkling drink delightfully soothing to over-taxed nerves.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is now made in two forms—Liquid and Effervescent Tablet. Both are the same therapeutically.



DR. MILES Effervescent NERVINE TABLETS

The families of Mr. L. F. Gerald and Mr. Phillip Horn will leave next Saturday for a motor trip that will include a number of points of interest in Florida. The party will go first to visit relatives at Belview. From there to Daytona Beach, and then for a few days' stay in St. Augustine.

Mr. L. F. Gerald and family will attend the marriage of his sister, Miss Iola Gerald, to Mr. Leonard Moody of Birmingham, which will be solemnized at Thorsby on next Saturday.

Mrs. Florence Huett, of Enterprose, widow of the late James Alfred Huett, who was stricken with paralysis the first of last week, is reported much improved, and is expected soon to be up again.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Robinson, son, James, and Mrs. P. W. Shelfer, mother of Mrs. Robinson, spent several days with relatives in Clanton during the past week. They were here for the Fourth of July celebration.

What we are Selling Is MILEAGE

It is easy to claim big mileage for any tire. To get it out of a tire is a different matter.

The Kelly Heavy-Duty pneumatic is one tire you can be sure will give mileage. We honestly believe there is not another tire of its type being built today that will stand up alongside it. We have watched enough heavy duty tires in service to know what the various makes will do, and we will back Kellys to beat any of them. That's why we sell Kelly-Springfields.

PRICES REDUCED

30 x 5 Kelly Heavy-Duty, 6-ply	$18.50
30 x 5 Kelly Heavy-Duty, 8-ply	23.50

FALSE PROPHETS

Cole E. Morgan, Washington staff correspondent of the Universal (Hearst) Service, writes to his newspapers that "tariff experts" declare that the Hawley-Smoot bill will increase the American workingman's cost of living 20 per cent. These are doubtless the same experts in misrepresentation who made the same prediction as to the effect of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill in 1922. Official figures show that the decrease in wholesale price of commodities entering into the cost of living, other than farm products, was substantial under that law.

"The cost to build the house of the $4,000 to $5,000 class, it is estimated, will increase to from $4,500 to $6,000, due to duties on cement, lumber, hardware, etc.," writes this sapient correspondent. If the entire duty laid on lumber were added to the present price of lumber, which it will not be, the increased cost of timber in such a house would be less than $10. Freight rates make the tariff of 6 cents a hundred pounds on cement ineffective away from the seaboard, and you can figure for yourself what such a tariff, even if added to the price of cement, would add to the cost of construction of a $4,000 house. The additional cost of a ton of cement if the tariff were added would be all of $1.20. The truth is that the new tariff bill will add little or nothing to the cost of constructing such a home.

A year hence the predictions made by the expert romancers who have been misrepresenting the new tariff law will make quite as laughable reading as the predictions of the 1922 attackers of an increased tariff do today. There has been an orgy of misrepresentation of the new tariff law which will react against its authors when the American people learn by experience how preposterously inaccurate their statements have been.

The new tariff law will not materially increase the cost of living but it will improve the wage-earner's chance of making a living by ensuring a larger use of commodities grown and made in America rather than in the cheap-labor markets of the rest of the world.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

We have heard quite a little, since the taking of the 1930 census about the disappearance of the American hamlet from our national life. This is to a great extent true. We can many of us remember, in the days before the automobile became common and we took our outing behind the old reliable family horse in that red-wheeled rig, that every few miles down the dusty pike we would run across one of those typical American hamlets, including a general store, a blacksmith shop and perhaps a half dozen dwellings. A great many of these hamlets have disappeared.

But it is not to be assumed because of this that the American village and country town are disappearing. According to Dr. C. J. Galpin, agricultural sociologist of the bureau of agriculture economics, the towns of from 1,000 to 10,000 population are not only prosperous and growing, but in most instances more prosperous than ever. Dr. Galpin said recently:

"Although the general trend has been for farmers to shift their buying from stores at country crossroads, in hamlets, and in small villages, to larger retail trading centers, the shift in farmer buying to towns ranging from 1,000 to 10,000 in population is increasing the trade area of these towns, increasing the trade and icreasing their purchasing fulcrum."

But the decline of the cross roads hamlet and its half dozen homes clustered about the general store is not to be denied. It is due to more than one reason. First, the rural population has been declining during the past two decades, and with the advent of the automobile the farmer can get to the nearest sizeable town to do his shopping without taking more if as much time, as required to drive to his neighboring hamlet in the early days. And the modern road makes the trip a pleasure instead of an unpleasant undertaking as was the case in the old days especially in inclement weather.

It is said that the farm population of the country has decreased four millions in the past ten years. But the 27,000,000 living on the frams now, have the same income as the 31,000,000 who lived on the farms in 1920, so that the standard of living is undoubtedly becoming higher. So the disappearance of the little hamlet of bygone days does not mean the disappearance of rural and small town life, a calamity we do not like to consider as possible. In fact there are more prosperous towns and middle sized cities than ever before. And the villages and towns of today have advantages little dreamed of by the big cities a generation ago. The difference in the advantages in the big urban and the rural centers is becoming smaller each year and in time this is bound to have a salutary effect. Indeed the change now does not seem far away. While our middle sized cities are growing at a rapid rate the census returns show that the great cities of the country, with few exceptions, did not increase in population so rapidly during the ten years just completed as during the ten before.

People in the big centers are moving out into the suburbs and the suburbs are going back farther and farther into the rural districts. Rapid transportation is doing its share to bring about this change. We are not going to lose our country and small town life if we will see to it that the people in the country have their fair share of prosperity and progress. After all, man is a social animal and his social instincts can be better satisfied in smaller communities than in the great metropolitan centers of wealth and population.

NOW TO BUSINESS

The passage of the tariff bill is the signal for releasing two great forces in America—business and politics.

Regardless of the details of the new law, American business recognizes it as a protective measure. Industry is safe. The wages of labor will remain high. Agriculture is benefitted. Doubt is removed. Business, therefore, of all kinds is in a position to close contracts and begin the execution of long suspended plans.

It is not in the nature of Americans to look backward and sulk They are normally eager to go forward. Business never bothers with politics unless politics interferes. What is supremely important to politicians in Washington is utterly ignored in the business world. Business men will not waste an hour in complaining over any disappointments they may feel in regard to the tariff. What they have wanted is certainty, whether good or bad. Now that they know wheere they are standing they will dismiss the subject and get busy.

The country has been wronged by the long tariff doubt. After the big slump of last October it was especially desirable that congress should enact a protective tariff law without delay. Business has long ago received courage, but it dared not to make commitments until it could be sure that industry, labor and agriculture would be protected. Prosperity in full volume could have been restored before this, so far is business was concerned. It was politics that held prosperity back.

The tarif as passed is a guarantee of American prosperity. It protects all workers in factory and field. It favors American factories against foreign factories. It holds the American market for the Americans first. It adheres to the rule that has built up the greatest industrial nation in the world, with the highest wages, the best standard of living and the broadest opportunities to brain and brawn that humanity has ever seen.

Politicians who may attempt to convince their fellow citizens that the protective tariff is bad for them will be wasting their breath. All the advantages gained by months of misrepresentation by these politicians will be swept away by the facts. The United States can not be kept down. It enters in upon a new era of prosperity in which even the opponents of protction will have an equal share. One of the fudamental pledges given by the Republican party and Herbert Hoover has been made good.—Washington Post.

The Department of Commerce reports that more people are buying bath tubs than ever before. This in spite of the fact that most folks hate to be seen in one.

"Under the threat of the present tariff bill," say the Scripps-Howard newspapers, "our exports have fallen off 21 per cent." Just how the "threat" of a tariff bill could produce a decline in exports is not revealed. Nor is it explained how the exports of other nations have fallen off as much or more. Of course world-wide depression and a decline in commodity prices has nothing to do with it. But it is evident that the office-boys and sporting editors are writing a lot of the tariff editorials appearing in metropolitan newspapers, and their productions would be more appropriately printed in among the comic strips.

One of the troubles with general low prices for the consumer, which the free traders are always talking about, is that when the low prices come the consumer usually doesn't have any money to spend.

Once upon a time the United States endeavored to observe a "safe and sane" July Fourth, but now it needs more of the same on any old week-end.—Indianapolis Star.

TWENTY MILLION SOLDIERS

When the war to end war closed in 1918 Europe had about 13,000,000 men under arms.

Today, twelve years later, Europe has 20,000,000 men in its standing armies or reserves.

That is 7,000,000 more than when the armistice was signed.

The increase is interesting.

The new armies are equipped with implements of destruction that make the old armies of 1914-18 look like savages armed with bows and arrows.

Ever since the era of "perpetual peace" was ushered in science has been busy in laboratories, discovering new devices for slaughtering mankind.

Some of these, especially the new gases, are known to the public. Others, considerably more deadly, are, of course, secrets jealously guarded in war offices.

Air fleets grow bigger and better each year, except in the United States.

Soviet Russia has the largest army of all—1,500,000 with the colors, 4,500,000 more in reserve.

Behind all the peace talk, all the leagues of nations and league courts and Kellogg pacts and similar scraps of paper there are twenty million in Europe trained, armed and equipped to fly at one another's throats.

This is seven million more than in 1918.

Don you want to get mixed up in that mess?

BY "JACK" HIMSELF

Yep! We lived through it all—the Fourth. It was a great day, especially around about the High School building. It's a 100-to-1 shot that you were there—nearly everybody else was—but in case you weren't, we'll tell you a few things about it. Perhaps you'll get as big a kick out of it as we did.

As said before, the people were there—and HOW! And Judge Miller was there, too. Judge Reynolds said that Judge Miller was so tight that he had his wife's false teeth in his pocket so she couldn't eat between meals while he was away from home, but Judge Miller denied the charge just as soon as he got a chance. Maybe he thought the "dear people" might get the idea that he was TOO tight.

And the way Judge Miller "put 'em to bed" was a caution. Yep! He tucked all the candidates away in bed, nice and comfy, just like "ma" used to do you so-and-so years ago. He has an idea they'll stay put, too, for the next few years. And, from the applause he got, quite a few others must think so, too. No fooling, the Judge got a good speech out of his system, and it went over big.

And Charlie C. ("Windy") McCall was there too, big horns and all. Charlie sprayed the grounds at the High School with "speechment" just like pouring peas on a dry cow-hide, only it didn't rattle that bad. We don't know how much effect his words had on his audience, but by the speed with which he turned "talks" loose, we believe he would even win in a women's talking convention. Guess you know that's GOING SOME.

And those horns! Charlie had the players in the ball park all messed up part of the time. They could hear him—oh, so well—and every time he'd yell "out" some one of those guys would look up to see if it wasn't thee "umps" talking to him.

And, speaking of ball players made us think of the two baseball games we saw in the afternoon. Clanton won both of them—of course, that made 'em much better from our point of view—but, any way, if we live to look at lots and lots of games in the future, we have no hope of ever seeing a better one that that first one. It certainly was a stem-winder, although there was some bad playing in it.

But, we've got to hand it to those boys from Montgomery who furnished the opposition for the local team. That's a classy little team. They were the boys who make up Montgomery's American Legion Junior team, none of them being over 17 years of age—some of them were only 12 or 13 years old.

Come to think of it, that's a good work the American Legion Posts of the country are doing, that of sponsoring and pushing the formation of the Junior League teams. In one way it helps boys of the teen age in good, clean sport, and, too, it is helping to bring on a fresh crop of big league timber for future use. Lots of those young fellows just getting their first taste of real competitive play will later make good in major league baseball. We think it's a great idea, and would like to see the local Post succesful in forming a team of this kind.

Getting back to the festivities at the High School, now, all in all, the program put on by the ladies was a grand success. The eats and drinks were plentiful and varied. Anything from duck meat to roasted kid. It was a great day.

There was plenty of "bull" for everybody, some of it roasteed nicely, while some of it was just being shot—some of it was to be eaten, and some of it had to be listened to, if you expected to get anything out of it. Some of the big crowd liked one kind, some another, and some took in both kinds.

The instrumental quartet from the Foursquare Church helped to liven things up and break the monotony now and then. A little of every kind of music was given—the national anthem, other Independence Day selections, marches, solos, duets, trios and even good old sacred hymns all came in for a part in the musical program. One time Charlie McCall had the players move over and sound forth over his amplifying horns, and then they DID ring out. Considering the size of the ensemble, they did exceptionally well.

Mr. Dennis (Jasper) wants folks to know that he isn't dishgartened because he wasn't so successful on his fishing trip. "I'm not done—I'm not done—I'm going again," he said. But that's like him. He just will not give up, once he has undertaken anything. That's one of many reasons why he is considered one of the best farmers in Alabama.

"John Barleycorn" didn't have such a hot day of it on the Fourth. We saw only a few who looked like they had been sipping, and they weren't so bad—just a little to liven them up. Everything went along pretty smooth so far as the liquor was concerned.

Well, the endurance fliers finally came down, after 553 hours of continuous flying. If you ask us, a guy certainly is air-minded to fly 23 days without stopping. We've seen lots of fellows up in the air, but the Hunters acted like they might just cut loose and give the buzzards, etc., some real competition.

We hope you kept before you the reason we celebrated July 4th while you were doing so. Last Friday, you know, was "Uncle Sammy's" birthday. Just think of it. Only 154 years old, yet the United States is the greatest nation on the face of the earth. Trying out a new system of government, the experiment has been very successful. Think of it! The other nations of the world have been going on for centuries, struggling along, winning and losing wars, and making one grand mess of the whole affair, while the United States, in the comparatively short time of 154 years has become by far the richest, strongest and most highly respected country in the world today.

And, though we are rated the strongest nation on earth, yet we are considered so fair and square in our dealings with the rest of the world that even the very smallest of nations hold no FEAR, only the greatest respect. People of the Old World can't understand the WHY and WHEREFORE of the rapid growth, yet they can readily see that it must certainly be an exceedingly sound form of government, and every time one of the old-time countries get a chance, they up-root their old, worn out governmental systems and adopt one as near like ours as they can.

When you seriously consider these things, there is no wonder that you thrill with pride to be an American when you see the stars and stripes of "Old Glory" flowing in the breeze and signifying all that the American flag represents. It's a "grand and glorious feeling"!

Next week's POT will come to you from "way out West," from New Mexico or Arizona. At least, we hope to be that far by that time. So long.—"JACK."

When the other fellow is set in his way, he's "obstinate;" when you are, it is just "firmness."

A colored man went to his pastor and handed him a letter to the Lord, which read: "Please send this old darky fifty dollars right away." The pastor called together several of his friends and said: "This poor man has so much faith in the Lord we should not let him be disappointed. Let's make a collection for him." They contributed $42.00 which was sent to the ingenious petitioner.

Next day the colored man gave the pastor another letter. This one ran: "Dear Lord, de nex' time you send dis darky money, don't send it through no parson—send it direct to me."

Judge Adams addressing the graduating class of the Connecticut College for Women, declared that woman was the first development of the early industries and occupations slipped out of the hands of women and to the regret of us all, became mechanicanized by men. Still it is doubtful if the girl graduates feel so strongly about this that they will insist on settling on abandoned New England farms and emancipate themselves from hateful mechanism by boiling soap scrubbing the washboard, moulding candles, spinning and sewing the family wardrobe, riding horseback to church, baking bread, churning butter, canning fruit and all the other little chores that went to make up a woman's sixteen hour day before all this "regrettable" mechanization got in its deadly work on womankind.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

The most serious and decorus performances always have a funny "slant" for somebody. I heard this expression from a prominent Clanton Democrat concerning the Fourth of July political speaking here. "Imagine how I smiled behind my ears," he said, "as I sat there on the platform with the big Democratic guns booming, and the biggest Republican in Alabama acting as master of ceremonies. I thought the Democrats of Chilton County have come to a funny cross in the roads when they have two of their big candidates for governor come here to speak and have to depend on Judge Reynolds to introduce them to the audience. But that was all right. Judge Reynolds did it very nicely, perhaps as good as one of us Democrats could have done."

What has become of all the fellows who were playing with the yo-yo about a couple of summers ago? I couldn't guess where all of them are; but I think you can find a lot of them at the miniature golf course.

As a political prophet, Charles Cooper of Mt. Creek seems to be the most amusing of the present season. A man who can figure that Will Bean will get as many votes for Tax Assessor as all the other candidates for that office combined, is in my opinion, going some. I would not attempt to say that Mr. Bean will or will not be nominated. But such estimates as that made by Mr. Cooper are certainly far fetched and overdrawn.

Occasionally I go to Mr. Wade's picture show, just to pass away a bit of the time on a dull, hot evening. I find it is a nice cool place, and the pictures are most always good. Wonder why the attendance at the shows is so small. I hear some people speak of going to Birmingham or Montgomery to see a show. Don't see why that is necessary when you can see just as good shows here as in the city. Going to the city to get your entertainment and leaving the home theatre out is just the same as going to the city to get your shoes and clothing and leaving the home merchant out.

A colored "gentleman of leisure" was walking down the street. A storekeeper said to him:

"Mose, where are you working,"

"Boss, I aint workin'," said Mose.

"Why aint you working?"

"Well, I reckon when Mr. Hoober tuck his seat, he told the rest of us to set down too."

I was disappointed with the rain last week. I thought it was general over the county, but found out later that it was only very limited in its extent. Most parts of the county are yet very dry, and the corn crop is suffering badly.

Jim Moore went through Clanton Tuesday morning, his Chevrolet headed north, making about ninety to nothing. "That fellow must be after something," remarked a man who happened to see him before he went out of sight over the hill. "Yes," I said, "he is after the office of Commissioner of Agriculture of the State of Alabama." That's all right, Jim. Clanton does not place any speed limit on candidates. We let them run as fast as they can and ask no questions.

Among the visitors to Clanton on the Fourth of July were a number of my friends from Coosa County. I regret very much that they did not find The Man on the Corner. But I received a word of greeting which they left for me. Now that the new road to Rockford is completed and the ferry across the river is in operation, I hope these friends will become frequent visitors to Clanton. And I also hope the next time they come they will be able to find The Man on the Corner.

Thames Forsyth has turned in favor of a clean-up campaign. He hasn't said so, but I know he has by the visible evidence that he recently got a haircut. I wouldn't joke Thames this way, but he is a good friend who used to work with us in the old Clanton Press office when we were boys. In spite of our age, I am sure we can still enjoy a bit of fun now and then. And really a haircut occasionally does make one feel better, especially in such hot weather.

Cato Roebuck, a fine young man of Mulberry community, suddenly killed last Thursday night in an automobile wreck. Just another instance of careless and fast driving. A minute before life was snatched from him he remarked to his companions: "I have got her wide open." If those boys had heeded the warning of the mother to come straight home, it would be a different story. But they were lured by the desire for fun and excitement and chased another car down the highway toward Stanton. They were not drunk; just simply out having a good time, and forgot to be cautions. While I regret the unfortunate death of the young man, and am sorry to record the tragic story, I would also add a word of warning to those who may read this: Take time to be cautious. Death and tragedy lurks in every turn of the modern highway. Don't be lured into the snare of the deceiver.

And a while ago a truck driver was arrested for violating this regulation. "But," he explained to the magistrate, "my truck does not have a windshield." He was told that made no difference. In fact, it only proved the case aganist him: that he had no windshield wiper. And therefore he was fined. County Farm Agent's Notes

BUREAU RETURNS $8.62 FOR EACH $1 COLLECTED IN DUES

For each $1 collected in membership dues from farmers in 1929 the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation returned to the county farm bureaus $8.62 as dividends and handling charges which in turn was prorated by the county farm bureau to the member in proportion to the amount of cooperative business transacted, according to statistics released by Edward A. O'Neal, president, yesterday.

Upon releasing these statistics President O'Neal asserted that "the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation is absolutely owned and controlled by Alabama farmers and is non-profit organization through which farmers transact a business of cooperative buying and selling at a very low cost." To bear him out in this statement he gave figures showing that the bureau did a $3,500,000 business in purchasing and miscellaneous marketing at an expense of $1.68 per $100 volume or 1.68 per cent. These statistics were taken from the audit by H. C. Crane, certified public accountants, Montgomery.

Touching upon the fact that the state bureau returned to the county bureaus $8.62 fer every $1 collected in membership dues, Mr. O'Neal explained that collective bargaining power made this possible. "When farmers pool their orders and purchase or sell collectively it gives them bargaining power which in turn makes and saves them money," he said.

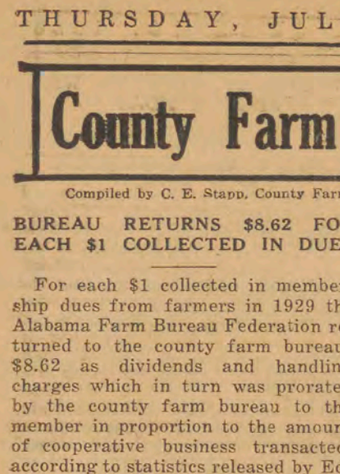
Diving into the audits on file at the bureau headquarters it was found that for each $1 of membership dues collected the state farm bureau has returned to the county farm bureau the following for the years ending as indicated:

July 20, 1926, $2.40; July 21, 1927, $3.00; July 20, 1928, $7.00; July 20, 1929, $8.62.

In each case this money was prorated by the county organization back to the members in proportion to the amount of business transacted.

Statistics also show that during the past seven years the state farm bureau has sent to county farm bureau over $800,000 as dividends and handling charges, "based upon the total number of members," said Mr. O'Neal, "this is a record equal to that made by the states which pride themselves in the fact they have returned to the members over a million dollars in dividends. This $800,000 dividend and handling charges have been distributed on various commodities such as fertilizer, vetch and Austrian peas, calcium arsenate, grain drills, windmills, inoculation, explosives and poultry."

After concluding his remarks about how farmers can profit by using bargaining power in cooperative purchasing and marketing President O'Neal turned his attention to how the $5 membership fee paid by bureau members is spent. He said that $2 goes for purchasing a life insurance policy for each member ranging from $40 to $200, depending upon age; fifty cents pays for the Farm Bureau News, which goes to each member twice monthly; fifty cents goes to the American Farm Bureau and the other $2 goes to the county farm bureaus to defray the operating expenses of the county farm bureau.



WILLIAMS AND WHITE TO SPEAK AT BUREAU MEET

Carl Williams, cotton representative of the Federal Farm Board, and C. R. White, president of the New York Farm Bureau Federation, will be two of the principal speakers at the ninth annual meeting of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, July 31 and August 1, announced Edward A. O'Neal, president, who yesterday afternoon said that over 1,000 farmers and farm leaders are expected to attend the meeting.

Mr. Williams will represent the farm board and is expected to tell how the board plans to cooperate with cotton farmers working through the American Cotton Cooperative Association in the marketing of their future cotton crops. Mr. Williams has visited Alabama once since becoming a member of the farm board and made very impressive talks at Montgomery, Birmingham, and Decatur.

In addition to being president of the New York Farm Bureau Federation, which has a membership of some 40,000 farmers, Mr. White is a member of Governor Roosevelt's agricultural commission. The purpose of this is to advise and work with the New York governor in solving the agricultural problems of the state. President O'Neal reports that Mr. White is a very able speaker and that he plans to tell how the greatest indusrial and urban center of the world in a legislative way is solving the agricultural problems. He will represent the American Farm Bureau Federation of which he is a member of the board of directors.

Confined to Bed Four Long Months

"I'm planning to make a trip to another city now just to show the rest of my family what Sargon has done for me. I suffered with rheumatic pains for three years and finally had to 'take to my bed' for 4 months. Nearly everything I ate gave me indigestion and I hadn't had a natural bowel movement in over two years. Sargon drove the rheumatic pains from my body so I get about as good anybody and I never have a trace of indigestion."

NEW BULLETIN TELLS EFFECT OF LEGUMES

Auburn, Ala., July 7.—The effect of legumes on yields of cotton and corn for a 34-year period is a story told in a bulletin published by the Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. It gives detailed information on how Alabama farmers can make poor lands rich and thereby enlarge their income and profits by planting winter legumes. The title is "Experiment with Legumes in Alabama." It is bulletin No. 232 and was written by R. Y. Bailey, assistant agronomist, J. T. Williamson, associate agronomist, and J. F. Duggar, research professor in farm management.

Data are quoted to show that winter legumes maintained the yield of corn on land cropped continuously to corn for 34 years. Without legumes corn yields declined more than 50 per cent. over a 34-year period. Yields of cotton and corn in a three-year rotation with legumes were four times as great as those in the same rotation without legumes.

It is revealed that phosphate and potash when applied alone in a three-year rotation did not increase the yield of corn and increased the average yield of seed cotton only 19 pounds per acre, but that when these fertilizers were applied in the rotation with legumes the yields were increased by 293 pounds of seed cotton and 11 bushels of corn per acre.

Another experiment was conducted to compare legumes with nitrate of soda as the source of nitrogen and the data quoted show that corn following legumes turned under March 25, April 5, and April 15 produced greater average yields over a five-year period than corn which received 200, 300, and 400 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre. Cotton following vetch turned March 25th produced a greater average yield than that following vetch turned April 5 or April 15.

NATIONAL CANNING CONTEST INTERESTS CLANTON WOMEN

Six hundred dollars for a quart jar of canned food. Can one jar of food be worth that?

This is a question that is agitating Clanton home-makers since word got around that six hundred dollars in cash would be paid for the best jar of fruit, vegetables or meat entered in the second National Canning Contest which is being held at Shenandoah, Iowa, under auspices of the Household Science Institute.

The contest seeks to further the work of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the home demonstration agents throughout the country by focusing the attention of American housewives on the economy and healthfulness of home canned foods.

First prize winner in the National Canning Contest last year was Mrs. Mary Hvass, Kennan, Wisconsin, farm woman, whose entry of a quart jar of green peas was chosen as the best entered by the girls and women from all sections of the United States.

The holding of the contest in Iowa this year is due to the influence of Henry Field, Shenandoah farmer, merchant and KFNF announcer, whose career is one of the romances of American life. Imbued with the spirit of thrift, he readily agreed to serve as president and to oversee the innumerable details connected with a project of such size and scope.

NEW FORD CARS IN STATE INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR

Registration of new Ford passenger cars in Alabama up to June 1 of this year showed an increase of 26.1 per cent. over the number registered in the corresponding period of last year, according to the Ford Motor Company. This is exclusive of trucks and commercial cars.

There were 6,603 Ford passenger cars registered in the first five months of this year, compared with 5,234 in the first five months of 1929.

Of the total number of cars of all makes registered, 50.7 per cent. were Fords.

AN ENJOYABLE PICNIC

Miss Ethel Baker entertained a group of friends on a picnic at old Union Point Church, near the river, on July 4th. A truck load of boys and girls left Clanton about 10:00 o'clock, and the trip was enjoyed by all. A nice dinner and lemonade was served at 12:00 o'clock in the shade near the spring. The afternoon was spent on the river boat riding and swimming. The only accident of the day was Buck Bice falling in the spring.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Baker and family, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Mims, Delia Bice, Ola Mims,, Lena and Irene Traywick, Edna Wyatt, Alvin Davis, Buck Bice, Ernest Baker, Howard and Chester Wyatt, Arnold Cox, and Matthew Mims. Every one thanks Miss Baker for her kindness and we hope to have another picnic next Fourth.

POULTRY COURSE SET FOR FARMERS' WEEK

Auburn, Ala., July 7.—Instruction in poultry will be featured at farmers' week exercises at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, July 28 to August 2. An outstanding speaker will be Prof. Frederic H. Stoneburg of Memphis, Tennessee. Opportunities for poultry production in the South will be his subject at a general session, July 28, and he is expected to point out many advantages which this section offers. Later, those especially interested in poultry will hear him speak.

Professor Stoneburg organized the first poultry department in the United States at the Connecticut Agricultural College at Storrs, Connecticut, and has been active in poultry work for many years.

Prof. George A. Trollope, head of the poultry department, has announced that the program calls for three days of instrioteunn-.—v now istiro days of instruction on poultry during the short course. He said that nearly all phases of the industry will be observed. Special problems on incubation, management, feeding, culling, disease prevention, and breeding will be considered. In the morning lectures will be made and in the afternoon demonstrations given. Special attention will be given to vaccination for fowl pox, he said.

Speakers will include Dale F. Ging, associate professor of poultry, H. R. Bailey, extension poultryman, C. T. Bailey, manager, egg laying contest, R. B. Jones of the State Department of Agriculture, Montgomery, and others. More than 1,000 farm people are expected to attend farmers' week here where instruction on all major problems will be featured. Entertainment features have also been planned and it is expected that many farm people will consider the week a vacation.

Mr. Albert Neeley of Bessemer was in Clanton a few days last week, on account of the illness of his sister, Mrs. Florence Huett at Enterprise. Mrs. Huett is said to be suffering a slight stroke of paralysis.

A POLITICAL FORECAST

Mountain Creek, Ala., July 7.

For several years past the Literary Digest has forecast the results of the national elections. This year was notice The Birmingham News is conducting a "Straw Vote" for the State candidates, for the purpose, I presume, of giving their readers an insight into the misty future of the August Primary.

Now, in humble imitation of the above news agencies, and in keeping with the promise I made to hundreds of my friends throughout the county, I beg to submit to the Republican voters of Chilton county a partial forecasts of theultimate results of the August primary.

This forecast is not a personal imagination of the writer, but is the result of first-hand information gathered from voters in almost every section, nook and corner of the county.

My observation convinces me of the fact that there is no special interest in Chilton County this time except in the race for sheriff. Our tabulation in this race seems to indicate that Mr. Walter Gillespie will receive more votes than both of the other candidates combined. We found one section of the county where it seems that he will get every vote cast. We heard several people say that they were not very much in love with Walter, but they believed he would make a real good sheriff; that they felt confident he would do his best to break up the liquor traffic in Chilton County.

The race for Tax Collector seems somewhat divided, and for that reason we cannot at this time forecast the result with any degree of accuracy.

The race for Tax Assessor seems to indicate that Mr. Willie Bean is far in the lead. It is thought by many voters that Mr. Bean will receive more votes than the combined votes of all the other candidates.

The race for Representative seems to indicate that Mr. Percy M. Pitts has very little opposition; we predict that he will receive more than 75 per cent of the votes cast.

It seems that there is not very much interest in the races for commissioners nor for members of the school board.

We told several of our friends that we would make the above report when we had gathered our information. The above relates to conditions as we found them, and we are passing this to the voters as a news item only.

I am indeed sorry that the information gathered did not indicate that all of the candidates would be elected. It really breaks my heart to realize that so many will be defeated.

With best wishes to all, I beg to remain, yours for a continued clean fight.—Chas. Cooper.

YOU HAVE A DOCTOR'S WORD FOR THIS LAXATIVE

In 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he saw the harm in harsh purgatives for constipation and began to search for something harmless to the sensitive bowels.

Out of his experience was born a famous prescription. He wrote it thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, feverishness, nausea, gas, poor appetite, and such disorders, are relieved by the prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original effective and harmless formula. All drugstores have it.

"ALWAYS IN TROUBLE" TO BE PRESENTED

Wednesday evening, July 2, "Always in Trouble," a 3-act comedy drama was produced at Verbena in the high school auditorium. The play met with such splendid reception and was so admirably performed that it was decided to present the show again on the evening of July 10 at the same place. Prices for admission will be only 10 and 15 cents.

Much could easily be said of the fine performance by each individual actor of his or her part, but we shall be content with the statement that the rendition of the various roles was easily the equal of any other past performances in Verbena. This is in itself quite an accomplishment for any group of actors, as in the past many fine plays have been pronounced successes.

"Always in Trouble" takes its name from the various predicaments in which a hoodooed coon finds himself, interwoven with a nice little plot of a wealthy heiress being sought by a son of her life-long father, the wedding of these two being the point on which a handsome dowry rests. Dances, clogs, and choruses add interest and color, rounding out an evening of splendid entertainment.

Proceeds of the past performance, as well as that to be given Thursday evening, July 10, are to be applied to repairing the Methodist parsonage. You are assured of a good evening's entertainment. Come to the show; enjoy a comfortable seat in a large cool auditorium; relax, and laugh, and forget the "depression." Remember, prices just 10 and 15 cents.

THOMAS SINGING SCHOOL MAKING PROMISING START

Prof. W. M. Devaughn reports that the opening of the singing school Monday morning at Thomas Jr. High School was very encouraging. Although rather small the first day, only 46 enrolling, Tuesday there were 51; and a number more are expected within a few days.

Prof. Devaughn said Wernesday morning: "Tell the folks that our school is starting fine, but we still have room for several more. O. L. Devaughn and I are used to work, and we want to keep busy in the school room the same as we do in the cotton patch."

We are proud to report the successful beginning of this school, for there is nothing, in our estimation, any more beneficial to a community than a good lively singing school. There are always knockers, however, knocking a good thing only serves to strengthen it; so just let them knock all they want to do and the promoters of the good cause of singing will just continue to reap the benefits of their misguided efforts.

SCHOOL PATRONS REMINDED TO ELECT TRUSTEES

The patrons of the Clanton School District are reminded that they should meet Friday night of this week, and make nominations for Trustees of the Public School. The suggestion is offered that the meeting be held at the courthouse, inasmuch as there is no suitable auditorium available at the public school building.

The patrons of each school in the county are requested to meet on Friday night and recommend six persons suitable for Trustees. From the six who are thus recommended the County Board of Education will select three whom they will name as Trustees.

This is a very important matter, and it should be attended to with care and deliberation on the part of the patrons of every school in the County.

NEED OF LANDING FIELD HERE EMPHASIZED PAST FEW DAYS

The need of an airplane landing field in or near Clanton was emphasized Tuesday of this week, when Lieutenant Fish of Pensacola, Fla., came here in his plane and tried to land and visit his comrade, Lieut. Crandell, who, with his wife was in the Central Alabama Hospital from automobile injuries.

Lieut. Fish circled around all over the territory near here, and never could find anything like a safe place to land; so he went back to Montgomery and landed down there. The people there told him of a place near Verbena where he could likely make safe landing, so Lieut. Fish headed back up there, and managed to land. He procured automobile transportation on up to Clanton and saw his friend in the hospital.

A Lieut.-Commander from New York was also here the first of the week to see Lieut. and Mrs. Crandell. He flew to Birmingham and came by auto on down here.

It would often be a great help to flyers to land in Clanton, if there were only a suitable place here. Would it not be a good investment for the municipality to fix up a suitable landing field in or near Clanton?

Mr. Paul Fiquett and wife and baby and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Brown of West Point, Ga., were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mell Martin the past week-end.

Miles of Conveyors in Ford Plant

AN ENDLESS chain conveyor, three and a half to four miles long, said to be the longest in the world, has just been completed at the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company at Dearborn, Michigan. On it parts of Ford cars in the process of manufacture are transported from one building to another and completed parts are carried direct to railroad cars for shipment to branch assembly plants.

The conveyor, which carries its cargo on suspended hooks, has a daily capacity for 300,000 parts weighing over 2,000,000 pounds. It supplants freight cars and trucks which have been used for the transfer of many parts from one point to another in the Ford plant.

This longest conveyor of them all is a development of the Ford policy that nothing should be done by manual labor that could better be done by machine.

In the early days of his manufacturing career, Mr. Ford devised the assembly line—a moving track on which cars in the process of assembly went to the workmen instead of the workmen carrying parts to the car. The assembly line, perfected in many ways, is now used by automobile manufacturers generally.

The value of the conveyor in reducing physical labor, in saving time, in preserving system and in cutting costs soon became apparent and its use was extended to other purposes about the plant. Now there are literally miles of conveyors of various types in the Ford plant. Some of them carry parts from one building to another and are carefully synchronized so that the parts arrive at precisely the right moment and in the exact spot where they are needed. Others transport red hot ingots of steel weighing nearly a ton each. Still others move outgoing shipments.

If it were not for the conveyors, according to officials of the Ford Company, mass production would not be possible on its present scale.

IN MEMORY OF OUR LOVING MOTHER, MRS. WILLIAMS

On the evening of June 12th the snowy angel of death crept into the home of Mrs. W. B. Vance and carried away the sweet spirit of our darling mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Williams. All the children were present at the time. Oh, how hard it was to see mother suffer; so all was done for her that tender hands could do, until God said, thy work is finished here and He gave her ease.

She was a faithful worker and was ever ready to do something for the sick and afflicted, or anyone in need of help. Oh, how we will miss her sweet smiles and tender words, for she visited in all our homes. But how it does comfort our hearts to know that each child gave sweet mother our best cushioned chair at all times. She was so kind and true and loved us all. We in turn showed mother that it was our whole heart's desire to please her and make her happy. She was a mother that appreciated all that we did for her or gave her.

It seems as if we can't live here without our dear mother. Oh how we loved her, but Jesus loved her more, and He has carried her home to that bright and happy shore.

If mother could have lived until July 16th she would have been 74 yeare old. Oh how sad it is as mother's birthday draws near, as we had planned to give her another grand day. But God had already prepared for her better things than we could give her. Oh, what a consolation it is to know that mother is feasting on the manna and drinking at the fountain that never will run dry.

Lord help us all to live so when our work is finished here that thou wilt say, "Well done, come up higher and live with mother, father, and many other precious ones. May we all sit on the great white throne together an unbroken family singing praises with out blessed Saviour all throughout eternity.

We thank Dr. Arthur Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. Odom and all that lent helping hands and spoke comforting words. We thank all for the sweet flowers. May God pour out His richest blessings on each and every one, is out prayers.—Mrs Sam Jones.

The Orrs have just returned from a trip to Lookout Mountain for a few days. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Harrison of Birmingham and Mrs. Hoag of Miami, Fla. They report a lovely time.

AND VERY GREEN, TOO

She was very haughty and considered herself among the elite. As she walked through the park, she saw a common laborer apparently approaching the same bench as she had chosen for herself. She decided to hurry up and get it first; then to freeze him out. "Hey Lady!" he called just as she was about to be seated, "Don't don't!" But she in her self confidence, was seated and would take no notice of him. Finnaly exasperated, he said, "All right lady, sit there, but I'll be darned if I'll paint that bench again today."

Moore's Will Move To Hodges Stand

Mr. H. T. Sims has bought out the stock and fixtures of Moore's Drug Store, and has rented the Fenn Jones Building, formerly occupied by W. Z. Hodges, as the permanent home of the business. The move to the new location will be made about the first of August.

Mr. Glenn W. Moore, former owner of the business will be associated with Mr. Sims in the future operation at the store. The building at the new location is being thoroughly reconditioned by the owner, Mr. C. Fenn Jones. The front has been rebuilt with a large steel beam supporting the upper structure. New plaster and finishing has been put inside, with water and sewer connections, and everything to make it an ideal place for a drug store business.

The business will be continued at Moore's former location until everything is in readiness at the Fenn Jones Building, which, it is stated, will be about the first of August.

SHRINERS TO HAVE OUTING AT LAY DAM

Montgomery Shriners and their ladies are promised another treat, according to announcement made in The Montgomery Advertiser by Potentate Raymond P. Reeves and Rabban Thomas M. Thursday, July 24, has been selected as the date for this outing, and Lay Dam will be the scene of festivities, which will include a barbecue and a dance.

The Alabama Power Company has tendered to the Shriners for this occasion their facilities at Lay Dam. The arrangements and accomodations there are ideal. The entertainment will be planned and executed under auspices of the Clanton Shrine Club.

The Montgomery Shriners will leave that city in the early afternoon and come in a motor caravan to Clanton. Upon arrival here they will stage a parade, and then proceed on to Lay Dam where a six o'clock barbecue will be served.

From seven to ten o'clock an orchestra will provide dance music at the open air pavillion.

Statement From the Board of Agricult'r

Denial Is Made Of Charges That There Is Politics In The Department

In view of the resignation on July 5th of Mrs. S. M. Dunwoody, a clerk in the Statistical Department, in the State Department of Agriculture, as well as previous resignations of J. M. Moore and H. L. Flurry, all of which were given wide publicity in the press of the State. all charging in effect that the laws administered by the Commissioner of Agriculture have been improperly and laxly enforced and that the Department of Agriculture has been made a political machine, the following statement of facts is made:

While the Board welcomes at all times constructive suggestions or criticism leading to improvement in the service rendered by this Department, each of these letters of resignation was given to the press without any previous suggestion or complaint having been made to any member of the Board or to the Commissioner. All of these employees had ample opportunity to have advised the Board of any irregularities coming to their attention and it was their duty to have done so, but which all failed to do.

The Board of Agriculture has made a careful investigation of the charges made and has had personal interviews with the heads of all divisions and their assistants, allowing free opportunity for presentation of complaints or irregularities. The Board has found that the laws and regulations have been uniformly, properly and fairly enforced in accordance with the intent and purposes of the law and the policies of the Board.

The present personnel of the Department consists of 81 employees, 40.7 per cent. of whom were appointed by J. M. Moore during his administration as Commissioner, 34.5 per cent. were appointed by S. M. Dunwoody, and 24.7 per cent. were appointed by the present Commissioner. Of the appointments made by the present Commissioner, a large proportion were replacements on account of voluntary resignations. With exception of two employees released, the present Commissioner has discharged none of the employees appointed by former Commissioners.

While there is a division of political support among the employees of the Department, no instance of coercion nor of undue political activity has been found. In view of these facts the charge that the Department has been made a political machine can not be sustained. Further, it has been and will continue to be the policy of the Board of Agriculture to retain efficient employees in their respective positions without regard to their political affiliations.

While there may have been some minor changes in procedure, the laws and regulations of the Department are being enforced efficiently and satisfactorily in accordance with the policies originally formulated by the Board of Agriculture. These policies have been effective during previous administrations and are being carried out by the present Commissioner.

The above statement is presented to the public in the interest of fair play. It is left to the public whether it will accept this statement of facts by a non-political board responsible for the efficient operation of the Department and to whom no profit may accrue, or whether it will give ear to the statements of those who may have political ends to serve.—M. J. Funchess, Auburn; Glenn Foster, Tuscaloosa; R. J. Goode, Gastonburg; W. F. Garth, Huntsville; J. Lloyd Abbot, Spring Hill; J. H. Witherington, Dothon. All the members of the State Board of Agriculture.

General Hines and Party From Veterans Bureau Here Tuesday

Inspection Made Of Proposed Site For Million Dollar Veterans Hospital On J. N. Dennis Farm Near Here.

General Frank T. Hines, director of the United States Veterans Bureau at Washington, accompanied by Admiral C. E. Riggs, surgeon general of the United States Navy, L. A. Warren, engineer of the Veterans Bureau, and Col. Dallas B. Smith were in Clanton Tuesday making an inspection of the J. N. Dennis property south of Clanton, as the proposed site for the location of the million dollar veterans hospital in this locality.

The party arrived here by automobile early Tuesday morning, and were joined by a party of local citizens who carried them to the Dennis place. After looking over the Dennis place, the party proceeded on to Montgomery where they were to view other sites for the hospital.

The new Veterans hospital for Alabama will cost approximately $1,-100,000, and will be so constructed that new units may be added later to take care of a soldiers home which the federal government expects to build in the future. This was gathered from statements made by General Hines since he arrived in Alabama.

Since the passage by Congress of the Act consolidating all the different agencies having to do with veterans, it will be necessary, he said, to look to the future when a soldiers home and such other institutions may have to be provided at the same place as the hospital.

General Hines said Monday that the committe would probably see all the proposed sites in Alabama this week, and within a few days after returning to Washington the committee will submit its report to the Federal Board of Hospitalization.

It is probable that definite announcement of the selection of the site will be made within a few days after the committee returns to the capital. When the site has been selected, bids will be called for and actual work on the project will begin.

"Everything we have seen is awfully dry. Crops fairly good in Louisiana and part of Mississippi. Lots of cotton looks well. In some places it hasn't rained in 65 days. Have not had a puncture so far. Will write you when we get to California."

Dr. Marcus and his party will likely be away for a month on this trip. We hope by next week to have a long letter from them telling of the many interesting things they have seen.

Mad Dog On Wild Spree Sun. Night

One of the German police dogs of John Browder went mad last Sunday night, broke his chain, and staged a wild spree in the community before he could be killed.

The dog had been kept tied for several days under suspicion, since he had killed a number of chickens the first of last week. On Friday night Mr. Browder carried the dog to Dr. Parrish for treatment.

When he broke his chain Saturday night he went straight back to Dr. Parrish's and proceeded to attack everything in sight. He hit two dogs, a cow, and killed some chickens. The disturbance among the barnyard population waked Dr. Parrish. When he went out and saw the big police dog in his wild spree, he phoned for Mr. Browder. Mr. Browder came and shot the dog with his pistol. The head was sent to Montgomery for examination, and Tuesday morning a positive report of rabies was made.

Dr. Parrish says he will treat the cows and other animals on his place, and keep them closely confined to await developments. He does not know how many animals the mad dog bit.

CROP OF YOUNG SPORTSMEN

It may not be generally known, but there are a number of young huntsmen within the limits of Clanton. Marvin, son of Claude Reynolds, probably excels in the hunting and capturing of bumble-bees. Truly, that boy understands the art of the game; he vouches for this fact by frequently showing his "catch" imprisoned in a fruit jar.

But it takes Pattie Nell, John and Junior Plyler, together with Sam Johnston and young Thad McSwain and their gang to round up June bugs. A few days ago, when these vigilant youngsters were out on their trail, enjoying their daily pastime, Thad mistook and caught, instead of a June bug a bumble bee. Thad held on—for he could not turn loose.

None of the boys knew just how much pain went with the catching of the bumble bee, for Thad was man enough not to flinch. He stood the crucial test for endurance of pains silently. He has thus clearly proved that he is as big a man as any of the bunch.

From now on, it is a safe bet that four-year-old Thad always will be found with the gang of young hunters when they go out on their June bug quests, for Thad is every inch a man—he certainly is no sissy.

Boys, Are You Ready for Camp?

Annual Outing Of 4-H Club Members Will Be Held This Week

County Agent, C. E. Stapp, has sent out the following letter to all members of the 4-H Boys Club of Chilton County concerning the annual camp to be held this week:

"We will go to camp Thursday morning, July 24th, and break camp Saturday afternoon, July 26th. I am asking that the boys who disobeyed camp rules last year, especially the three or four who gave trouble not to come to camp this year. We want to have the best camp we have ever had and want only boys who are willing to obey camp regulations.

"I want all the boys to meet at the County Agent's office in Clanton between 8 and 9 o'clock, Thursday, July 24th. We will check in the supplies here at the office and load them on the truck. Bring your lunch for Thudsday separate from your other supplies as you may carry it on to camp with you.

In order that the boys on the camp may be assured of plenty to eat, Mr. Stapp has sent to each boy a list of the things that each one is supposed to bring.

He also instructs each boy to bring a tin plate, fork, spoon, and cup, also a bathing suit or a pair of short pants to wear in swimming. Bring one change of clothing, soap and towel, and blankets or quilts to sleep on.

The place where the camp will be held is not announced. Mr. Stapp will have the matter worked out satisfactorily by the time the boys get assembled at his office Thursday morning.

A country like France which has exceedingly high tariffs of its own, and is receiving a good deal more from the United States than it is spending in the United States, might well sing a little low on the subject of tariff retaliation.

Young Woman Dead Early Monday A.M.

Found Lifeless In Room By Her Father About Three O'clock

Mrs. Ella Belle Connell was found dead in her room, about 3:00 o'clock Monday morning. She was at the home of her father, R. N. Barron, on Mitchell Dam road near Corinth church.

Mr. and Mrs. Barron were awakened about 3 o'clock by the crying of Mrs. Connell's two children, who were sleeping in the room with her, across the hall from the room of Mr. and Mrs. Barron. When calling the woman failed to get any response, Mr. Barron entered the room and found his daughter lying on the floor dead. Dr. Strock of Verbena was summoned and pronounced that she had died about midnight of heart trouble.

Later in the day the folks decided that perchance Mrs. Connell had been choked or injured in some way by someone; so the coronor, J. Mell Martin, was called for. Upon examination, Mr. Martin decided that the woman died of natural causes and that an autopsy was unnecessary.

The remains were buried at Corinth cemetery Monday afternoon, Rev. J. D. Hughes in charge.

Mrs. Connell was 24 years old; was the mother of two small children. She was not living with her husband at the time of her death.

CLANTON LAD AT CAMP HORN

As a reward for diligence and achievement in scholarship, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Reynolds, gave to Sidney Lewis Reynolds a trip to Camp Horn, situated about four miles from Tuscaloosa. So pleased was the boy's uncle, Harry Tarpley, with the child's weekly promotions from "tender-foot" upward, that Sidney Lewis is now on an indefinite stay at the camp.

Sidney Lewis is the only boy there from Chilton County, and enjoys modestly the honor of representing his home county over there. He has been there four weeks.

JAMES GOING ON TRIP TO CANADA

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. James, of the James Sign Shop, leave to-day on a trip to Toronto, Canada, where they will attend the annual convention of the United Sign Contractors of North America. They will make the trip in their automobile, accompanied by some friends from Birmingham.

"We will be gone for about two weeks," said Mr. James, "and while I am away there will be no signs painted at the James Sign Shop. However, our shop will be open every day, and anybody who wants to buy paint or any of the things we keep in stock, will find someone at the shop to wait on you. We expect to have a big time, and hope to see all our friends happy and prosperous when we return to business after the convention."

AFTERNOON SINGING AT FRIENDSHIP JULY 27TH

The revival at this place will begin the first Sunday in August; Rev. James Shelby Holland of Tallassee will assist the pastor in the preaching. There will be no service the fourth Sunday in July, the regular preaching day.

Prof. Luther Grant reports fair progress with his singing school at Friendship, which has been running a week and a half. The school will run one week after this week. The appreciation of Prof. Grant and the people of Friendship is extended to those outside the community who have lent their aid to the school.

Don't forget the singing the fourth Sunday afternoon in this month.

DAD MIGHT SHOO HIM

She—"At first he demurred because he didn't want to lose me, but I explained that he could have me, and that he could have you to boot."

First Classman—"That sounds allright, except for the 'to boot' part."

McElderry To Speak Here Next Saturday

The Union-Banner is requested to announce that Mr. G. T. McElderry of Talladega will speak at the courthouse in Clanton on next Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. He invites everybody in the county to come and hear his address.

Mr. McElderry is taking an active interest in educational affairs of the State of Alabama, and it is assumed that the subject of his address will be concerning the state's school business. Along with the anonuncement of his speaking here next Saturday, we received a letter from him in which he analyzes a recent letter by State Superintendent Harman, which was published in The Montgomery Journal.

Referring to Mr. Harman's letter, Mr. McElderry says:

"I readily concede all he says about his youth in South Carolina, of his ancestors, and his splendid wife and boys, to be absolutely true, are excellent people, and that personally Mr. Harman is a fine man; but it is Mr. Harman's record as a public official which we propose to discuss.

"For more than thirty years he has served in Alabama public schools; from Brewton to Florence. He has taught English, but does not know enough English to stop when he has finished the subject. He has been superintendent in city schools in Florence, Decatur, and Selma. He has been superintendent of Montgomery County, where he has made the schools of that county famous as far as Boston. He has served under Dr. R. E. Tidwell, by far the poorest superintendent Alabama has ever had, and under whose administration there has been more graft, waste, and extravagance, in the misuse of school funds than under the administration of all superintendents that have preceeded him for the past forty years, and it is alleged that Mr. Harman promised to carry out Dr. Tidwell's policies, and the Governor Graves promised to appoint Mr. Harman as State Superintendent of Education before Dr. Tidwell would hand in his resignation.

"Mr. Harman tells us in his letter that for thirty years he has been connected with the school system of Alabama, he must therefore be familiar with the misuse of the school funds, as the writer knows for forty years there has been manipulation of school funds, and misapplication of trust funds by the Department of Education at Montgomery, contrary to the written statute, and in utter disregard of the Acts of the Alabama Legislature, making the appropriation for the public schools of the State.

"It was not necessary to take trust funds to build memorial halls to Bibb Graves, the $12,000,000 defict the Governor will leave when he retires from office, will be a memorial for generations to come to the taxpayers of Alabama.

"Normal schools for many long years have been absorbing the lion's share of the money appropriated for education of the illiterate children in the state. With 2,160 teachers applying for 100 places in the schools of one county, it does not seem necessary to keep the children in the state ignorant in order to build Bibb Graves monuments.

"If Mr. Harman is as familiar as he would have you believe, relative to the school system of Alabama, he is unfit for State Superintendent, because the present system has kept Alabama right at the bottom in illiteracy. Mr. S. R. Butler of Madison County is the first man in 20 years to oppose the present system of building up the higher institutions of learning, at the expense of the schools for the removal of illiteracy. Mark Twain is alleged to have said, "Room at the top is not needed, room at the bottom, where all the folks are, is where the room is wanted." Alabama owes no child a college education, or a normal school education, until every child has an opportunity to get a common school education. Dr. Butler is right, put the money in the primary schools where it is needed, and spend less at the top where it is not needed."—G. T. McElderry.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rhodes, of Orlando, Fla., have been visiting friends in Clanton this week.

FARRELL O'NIEL GIBBONS

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Gibbons are the proud parents of a fine baby boy, born Sunday, July 8th, in their home at Thorsby. They have named the youngster Farrel O'Neil.

Mr. Gibbons is employed by the L. & N. Railroad Company at Clanton as clerk in the depot.

SCOTT FAMILY REUNION AT CENTER HILL CHURCH

There was a reunion on last Sunday of the E. L. Scott family, better known as Bud Scott. He was the father of sixteen children 8 boys and 8 girls. One boy and one girl have crossed over into the sweet beyond, one at the age of one year and the other at the age of eleven years.

We had present at the reunion last Sunday eleven of the fourteen remaining children. There were about 60 grandchildren present, and the total connections present numbered about 150. We had a wonderful day, such as never before with the Scott family.

We had some old songs led by W. R. Scott. Then I stated that Bro. R. M. Honeycutt was present. He was my first school teacher, and the one who taught me my A. B. C.'s, and that I had always loved him since.

Brother Honeycutt came forward and gave us a forty-minute talk that was full of the Holy Ghost. He talked about heaven and the great love of Jesus for his people, and the promise that he had made that he was going back to his father and there he would prepare a place for all of them and would come back again and receive them unto himself; that where he was they should be also.

It was a wonderful and inspiring message. Everybody enjoyed it. He went back to his younger days and talked about the old time religion and the old people of these days, and his associations with my grandfather, and how they loved to praise the Lord, and how happy the people were in those days. He mentioned the difference in the training of the children those days and now. I want to say that Brother Honeycutt's message was seasoned with the Grace of God, and everyone seemed to enjoy it.

Then we had some good talks by some of our brothers, which I enjoyed greatly. Then came dinner and all the people present were filled with the good eatables that were spread, and everyone enjoyed it.

We had with us Rev. J. B. Price and wife, and our old life-time friend, E. G. Cofer. And we were so glad to have with us my three sons and their families, R. R., J. J., and S.S. Scott; also C. W. Scott and family; R. F. Langston and family; Jeffrey Scott and family from Bessemer; O. P. Scott and James McGraw and families from near Oxmoor in Jefferson County. We planned to have this reunion annually on the second Sunday in July.

The next thing was a watermelon cutting given by the writer at his home. To say the least for our gathering, it was a happy day for the writer, and I tried to make it pleasant for all who were there. May the Lord bless each one that was present, and if we meet no more here, I hope we may meet around the throne of God, and there give praise to His holy name forever.—J. N. Scott, Jemison, Ala.

Makes Life Sweeter

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia!

When tongue or breath tells of acid condition,—correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this universal sweetener—more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it.

Phillips is the genuine, prescriptional product physicians endorse for general use; the name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

PHILLIPS Milk of Magnesia

IF ICHABOD CRANE HAD A FLASHLIGHT

By JOHN G. LONSDALE
President American Bankers Association

John G. Lonsdale

WE ALL remember the story of Ichabod Crane and the headless horseman. There was the dark form by the side of the road—thundering hoofs on the Sleepy Hollow highway—and Ichabod fleeing in confused terror before this terrible monster. If Ichabod had only known that his hobgoblin was an inventive rival disguised with a a pumpkin head, he would have had a good laugh and gone on with the business of vanquishing his competitor.

What Ichabod really needed was a modern flashlight. Then he would have discovered the trickery at once. Many business men need the flashlight of analysis to uncover the hobgoblins in their business and then they might sit back and laugh at their rivals who hesitate to investigate and learn the truth.

At this time, when business and banking are making strenuous efforts to have a clear vision ahead, it is especially important that the power of research and analysis be employed to their fullest extent. When these twin brothers of good management have been pressed into service in all fields, I am confident we shall see a further lessening of periods of stress. However, I believe business in general has learned the valuable lesson that any prosperity that is not leavened with a little adversity would not seem basically safe or sound.

RESERVE SYSTEM'S DIVIDENDS ANALYZED

Bankers Find Increased Payments to Member Banks Would Be Small Inducement.

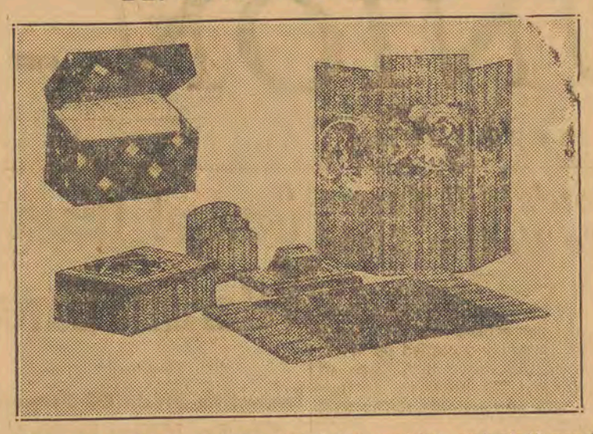
Various proposals that member banks in the Federal Reserve System should participate more largely in its net earnings through an increase in the dividend rate above the present fixed 6 per cent "would be a very small financial inducement" to them, it is declared in a recent study of this subject by the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association. This is shown, the commission says, by a theoretical forecast, on the basis of the past six years, of additional earnings that would be disbursed to member banks during the next six years under two plans introduced in bills before the United States Senate.

"The Fletcher bill provides that Federal Reserve Bank earnings, after present 6 per cent dividends to members and completion of a 100 per cent surplus, should all be distributed as extra dividends to the stockholder banks," the report says. "If the earnings of each Federal Reserve bank were distributed among its own members there would be no extra dividends in the Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago and San Francisco districts during the next six years, but the other six Federal Reserve Banks would pay annual extras at the following rates: Richmond, 6.08 per cent; Atlanta, 4.09 per cent; St. Louis, 3.50 per cent; Minneapolis, 9.51 per cent; Kansas City, 5.48 per cent; Dallas, 4.83 per cent.

"If the earnings were pooled and paid out to all members in all districts each member would receive an average annual extra dividend of .78 per cent. Under this plan no franchise tax as now would be paid by the Federal Reserve Banks to the Federal Government.

Another Plan Analyzed

"The Glass bill would provide that, after present 6 per cent dividends, one-half the remainder should be paid to member banks as an extra dividend with the residue going to surplus and Federal Government as franchise tax. The average annual extras to members would be as follows: Boston District, 2.51 per cent; New York, .48 per cent; Philadelphia, 2.05 per cent; Cleveland, 2.09 per cent; Richmond, 3.26 per cent; Atlanta, 4.67 per cent; Chicago, 3.20 per cent; St. Louis, 2.02 per cent; Minneapolis, 4.75 per cent; Kansas City, 2.74 per cent; Dallas, 3.31 per cent; San Francisco, 1.87 per cent.



"If these extra funds were pooled the result would be an extra average annual dividend of 1.73 per cent for each member. Under this plan the system would still pay as now an annual franchise tax, amounting to $1,941,996 on the average."

By way of concrete instance, the report says, a member bank having capital and surplus of $200,000, therefore holding Federal Reserve Bank stock amounting to $6,000 on which it is receiving $360 under the present 6 per cent dividend arrangement, would with the addition of each 1 per cent to the dividend rate receive an additional income of $60 a year.

"If each member bank will figure out for itself the dollar-and-cents gain it would enjoy we are confident it will be agreed that the gains are small as against the economic disadvantages which can be pointed out," it concludes.

Miss Anna Lee Smith, of Birmingham, is visiting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. P. T. Hinkle this week.

Make Pretty and Useful Articles at Home

Your spare time can now be utilized by building these pretty and useful articles with no more trouble than following these clear and simple instructions.

For this lovely desk set, the materials needed are: One sheet of gold paper, four prints to suit taste and the articles shown above. Clean, smooth and shellac all pieces. To construct the telephone screen, remove the hinges and decorate each panel separately. Cut the gold stripes for all edges wide enough to lap over one half inch on both sides. Cut the gold panels for the back and plaid the panels for the front one fourth inch less than the actual size of the surface. Glue in place, let dry and apply a thin coat of shellac.

The blotter pad can be made by cutting the gold panel large enough to cover the top and base and then, folding over the edges, lapping one half inch all around and underneath. Spread the liquid glue across under the ends of the base and push the pockets into place. To complete, let it dry and shellac.

For the ink well and penholder, first remove the glass cup, then cut gold strips for all the edges and for groove, allowing one half inch lap over on both sides. Then cut gold panels one fourth inch less than actual size for various surfaces of the base and the well. Now cut the plaid strips for the edges of the cover, top and bottom, and lepage in place. Let it dry, and shellac.

To make the letter holder, cut the gold strips for all edges and for the top of the base with one half inch to lap over both sides. Cut the gold panels for the backs of the uprights and plaid panels for fronts, one fourth inch less all around than the actual size, except the bottom edges of front plaid and back gold panels, which should lap over one half inch on the bottom. For the underside, cut the gold panels one fourth inch less all around and glue in place. Let it dry and apply a coat of shellac.

The box can be made by cutting gold strips for all outside edges and inside joints, allowing one half inch lap over on both sides. For the inside bottom cut gold panels one fourth inch less all around than the actual size of the surface. Now cut plaid panel, width one half inch less than the outside depth of the box, and long enough to go all around outside one half inch at the joint. Spread liquid glue in place, let dry and shellac.

For the box cover, cut gold strips for inside corner joints wide enough to lap over one half inch on both sides. Cut gold strips long enough to encircle outside sides and ends of cover and overlap one half inch at the joint and wide enough to lap over one half inch all around both sides and outside of the top. Coat with liquid glue and apply first around the sides and ends of the box leaving one half inch over at the top. Now slash at the corners, fold over and smooth down the top and inside. Cut the gold panels for the outside and inside of top, leaving one fourth inch less all around than the actual size of the surface and lepage in place. To complete, let it dry and shellac. It is important in making these articles to use only the best quality liquid glue to assure a stronger and more permanent article.

WAS HE SCOTCH?

A live-wire salesman rushed up to the home of a doctor in a small village about 3 a. m. and asked him to come at once to a distant town.

The doctor cranked his flivver and they drove furiously to their destination.

Upon their arrival the salesman asked, "How much is your fee doctor?"

"Three dollars" said the physician in surprise.

"Here you are," the blamed garage man wanted $15 to drive me over when I missed my train."

EDITORS TO HOLD SCHOOL AT AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., July 14.—For three days (Aug. 21, 22, and 23) Alabama editors will be in school at Auburn. The occasion will be the second annual press institute conducted by the Alabama Press Association and the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Program for the institute has been arranged by a committee of which Marcy B. Darnall, of the Florence Herald and vice president, is chairman. The aim is to make the program interesting and each feature has a practical objective.

Speakers from other states will be Professor John Casey, professor of journalism at the University of Oklahoma; Russell Kent, well-known Washington newspaper correspondent and recent president of the National Press Club; and John E. Allen, editor of The Linotype News, New York. Dr. Bradford Knapp will speak at the banquet.

Professor Casey is well known as a teacher of journalism and is the man who selects annually the "All-American Newspaper Nine." Mr. Kent and Mr. Allen are well known in Alabama. Mr. Kent is Washington corresondent for the Birmingham News and Age-Herald and the Montgomery Advertiser.

The editors will assemble at Auburn the afternoon of August 21 and will be welcomed at the first meeting by President Knapp. Emmit Brooks, president of the Press Association, will preside at the session.

During their three days stay at Auburn they will room in dormitories and live as students during the regular session of college.

COTTON CLOTHES

Cotton clothes are growing in popularity.

Cotton blouses are quite new and different.

Cotton sports are quite the best for sport wear.

Undergarments made of cotton material are cooler.

Cotton evening and dance frocks are lovely made of net, organdy and embroidered batiste.

Cotton hats, shoes, and pocket books blend with the cotton frocks to make a complete cotton outfit.

Cotton material that is soft, thin, and absorbent is cooler than material woven from animal fibers.

Don't forget the lovely cotton hose. Call for French chiffon lisle. They do not fade nor pick easily.

The small foot hemmer in your box of sewing machine attachments makes most attractive seams for net organdy and batiste dresses. Trim seam to one-fourth of an inch, turn small hem, place in foot hemmer and stitch. Seam is small and does not pull.

DAIRYING COURSE SET FOR FARMERS' WEEK

Auburn, Ala., July 14.—How to produce quality cream will be one of the stories told by lecture and demonstration to the farm people of Alabama during farmers' week at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, July 28 to August 2. Burke, head of the dairy department, and his associates will have on exhibit during the week two complete sets of milk handling equipment. These will include boilers, milk coolers, cream coolers, washing vats, cans, and other utensils.

As a part of the qulaity cream demonstration the agricultural engineering department will actually construct two milk houses to show the farmers how the job should be done.

Speakers on the dariy program include J. H. McClain, dairy speccialist, United States Department of Agriculture, and W. J. Kedgan, field representative, American Jersey Cattle Club. They will discuss the application of sound business principles to dairying. Other lecturers on the program will be Prof. J. C. Grimes, head of the animal industry group, Professor Burke, Prof. W. H. Eaton, F. W. Burns, and C. M. Ling, all of Auburn.

J. BICE WRITES REGARDING CHAS. COOPERS' LETTER

After reading Charles Cooper's communication to the voters of Chilton County in last week's Union-Banner. I feel that said communication is unfair to some of our candidates, and also untrue. I think well of all our candidates and am glad I have such a fine bunch to pick my choice from. I want to say for Mr. Pitts and Mr. Jackson I think well of them both. But Mr. Jackson is my choice for Representative.

I have spent some time in talking to the voters of Chilton County in regard to his candidacy and ability to fill the office. I have been over a good portion of the north-western part of the county and find that Mr. Cooper's forecast does not speak for that part of the county. I find a large majority in favor of Mr. A. A. Jackson.

I think Mr. Jackson is better qualified to represent the farmers of Chilton County than any lawyer would be because he is a farmer and knows what laws would be good for the farmer, and what would be detremental to the farmer. And he also has the grit to stand as Stonewall did for right and honesty. Mr. Jackson is a man of strong personalities and knows how to command respect and attention of opposition. I think the 12th day of August will prove to Mr. Cooper that Mr. Pitts had enough opposition to save him of the trip to Montgomery.

Yours respectfully,
J. BICE.

LETTER FROM W. G. SHAW

As the date for the primary will soon be here, and the voters of the county will render their decision as to who will serve them for the next four years as their Commissioner, I think they are entitled to some expressions from the candidates to their view of the duties of the Commissioners Court.

Being one of the five Republican candidates from the First District, it is encouraging to know that the defeated one will have company. Should I be one of those, I feel sure I would be in good company though, for I have always found them to be good men. But if I should happen to be the lucky one to be elected I will serve the county to the best of my judgment.

I believe the Commissioners Court should use all the economy that is consistent with good business. I believe that each member of the Court should exercise his privilege in giving expression of his views on anything that comes before the Court, and vote his conviction on all matters as to his judgment, and will be for the interest of the County.

I think each member of the Court should be open to suggestion of each other, or to any suggestion from any body who is interested in the affairs of the County, but they should not be subservent to the will of anyone.

Sincerely,
W. G. SHAW.

FAVORS O. H. McDOWELL

Lots has been said about our candidates, so I want to say a few words about O. H. McDowell, who is in the race for member County Board of Education.

I have known Mr. McDowell all his life, and have always found him to be honest and truthful in every way, and I know him to be well qualified for the office he is asking for.

If he is nominated to this office, and elected to this office, he will conduct it in a way that the voters will be satisfied with their vote.

His community has never had a representative on the Board and I think it will be right for his community to be represented.

Knowing him sa I do, and knowing of his ability, I do recommend him to the voters of Chliton County with the highest of honors.—J. W. Patterson.

WEST CHILTON

No need to tell how hot the weather is; everybody knows that.

This section is generally dry; a rain would be welcome. One night last week the section just east of Randolph had a local rain.

Edwin, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Posey of Bessie, Ala., has been spending a week with relatives here, mainly with Mrs. Hubbard.

Mr. T. A. Maddox, commissioner in the second district, was here last week. Mr. Maddox has a goodly number of friends in West Chilton.

Friday afternoon Mr. Hall Leach, living just south of Mars Hill on the old R. J. Langston place, lost his home by fire. Very little was saved of the household; a trunk, sewing machine and mattress were about all that was saved. We presume that it caught on fire from a stove.

It is a pleasure to read the letters from Rev. J. Toy Williams in far away China, which appear from time to time in the Banner. The older people will remember Mr. Williams's father back in the Seventies and the Eighties.

We hope that "Jack Pot" gets a view of the Grand Canyon in Arizona, so that he can tell us about this great western wonder.

Mr. W. G. Shaw was here last week seeing the voters. Mr. Shaw is a hustler, an honest, big-hearted man, and one of the stirring candidates from the first district.

In less than thirty days the long talked of primary will be over. Then we can look back and see what might have been. But in this as well as all primaries, the thought of defeating cadidates should be eliminated. This is a family matter. Not to defeat one of the family politic, but to select a standard-bearer for the battle in November.

Aside from our friendliness toward all the candidates is, who can, and will do our official work properly? is the question that directly confronts us all, whether we vote or not. That is what we pay for, and that is what we need.

The successful candidate will need the co-operation of the unsuccessful ones in November. In fact he cannot do without their assistance entirely. Then let's abandon all thoughts of defeating some one in a fair contest, and let the voters rule.

Mrs. Maggie Latham, widow of the late Walter Latham, unfortunately fell and broke one of her arms last week.

Last Sunday at a certain church there was only one coat in the entire congregation, and the preacher had that one on. But when he began to preach he pulled it off. So, preacher and people were all alike: In striking contrast to the good old days when the men would come to church on hot days in a long Prince Albert or Cut-Away, also a vest. But there was no more complaint of hot weather then than now. Sure we are creatures of habit.

The present campaign seems very free from "knocking." That is as it should be.

Rev. Lawrence filled his appointment at Macedonia Sunday.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless thay may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

ONE ASPECT OF TARIFF PROBLEM

We have heard recently of a German chain of one-price shoe stores which is gradually spreading throughout the United States. This company sells to the public only shoes made in Germany and at a price that is under four dollars a pair. A Dubuque manufacturer who visited one of the stores in a neighboring city—and it happens that he is not a shoe manufacturer—claims the shoes are of excellent quality and compare with the high-priced American shoes on the market. The manufacturer stated that there isn't a doubt that this company is bound to ruin the shoe-manufacturing industry in this country if shoes continue to be imported free of duty, or even with an inconsequential tariff on them.

In the discussion of the pending tariff bill, some metropolitan newspapers, in their drive on the protective tariff system are making the claim that this country is now suffering from overproduction, and that our only chance to dispose of our surplus production is to seek markets abroad we must admit the further invasion of our markets by the cheap labor products of foreign lands.

Many will wonder how it can be said that we are suffering from over-prduction. It is a fact that hundreds of thousands of wage earners have been thrown out of work through their inability to compete with foreign cheap labor whose output crowds the shelves of stores in the United States. Is there not a more immediate and profitable prospect of consumption by these unemployed persons were they back at work than among the peasants, coolies and peons of foreign lands who are now doing the work of supplying a large part of American necessities?—Dubuque Telegraph-Herald.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

No matter what one may think of the results of the London Naval Conference and how far the conference went toward giving Uncle Sam parity with Great Britain in naval strength, the conference aside from the treaty had one beneficial effect. For it stimulated interest and understanding among the people of the United States as to our merchant marine and its importance to the national welfare.

In the many discussions of parity both here and abroad, attention was frequently called to the fact that the United States could not gain real parity because the British government has a greatly superior merchant marine. Merchant ships, it was pointed out, are a valuable aid to the navy in case of war, and the great liners can be converted into cruisers and raiders of enemy commerce. All of which is of course true. It was well to center the attention of our people on the fact that the British outclass us so far as a merchant marine is concerned. When the people get to thinking about it they will decide that, since it would be foolish to ask John Bull to reduce his merchant marine, the sensible thing is to build up our own.

Now the naval treaty fixes no limits on the merchant marine. It is up to us to do our best toward remedying this inferiority in merchant ships. A fine start has already been made, and if, as a result of the publicity given the subject by the naval conference, we accelerated the growth of our merchant marine, the conference will not have been held in vain no matter what the results of the Senate struggle over the naval treaty may be, although it is of course extremely likely that the naval treaty will be ratified sooner or later.

European shipping interests have been paying some attention of late to the results we are achieving in remodeling our merchant marine. Most of the European experts are inclined to believe that our reawakened interest in the question of a merchant marine is only a passing fancy. They say that Americans are full of moods and impulses, and that after awhile we will get tired of developing our merchant marine, and will let it deteriorate again, permitting the ships of Europe to carry our trade just as we did in the days between the Civil War and the world struggle.

Now is is up to us as patriotic Americans to show thees Europeans that they are mistaken. We want to develop our merchant marine, not alone because it could help our navy in time of war—although that is an important reason—but because a merchant marine is highly useful to us in time of peace, too. We know something about foreign combinations of capital and resources. We know what the international rubber combination tried to do to us. Now if the carrying of our foreign trade gets into the hands of European shipping interests there is no reason why such interests cannot charge us whatever freight rates they please, and give us just as good or just as poor service as they please.

Again, national pride is at stake. We ought to show our critics on the other side of the Atlantic that we are not the emotional, changeable people that they think us, and that American enterprise can build and carry on successfuliy a merchant marine as good as the best. A fine start has already been made. As Irving Glover, assistant Postmaster General, said recently at Washington:

"Chapeau off to the gallant Europa of the North German Lloyd Steamship Line on her wonderful performance in crossing the Atlantic in 4 days, 17 hours and 6 minutes.

"But slip them back quietly to be ready to take them off again to one of the giants of the new merchant marine of the United States which is fast coming to being and will soon wrest gently the 'blue pennant' from the present 'Queen of the North Atlantic' and place it where it properly belongs at the mast-head of an American-built ship, built by the brains and brawn of American workmen in the shipyards of America."

ATTACKING AMERICAN LABOR

Albert Thomas, director of the socialist Internatioal Labor Office of the League of Nations, returns to the attack made last year on American organized labor, and refers to the United States as a "brake upon progress."

It requires considerable effrontery for a European labor politician to attack the United States and the American labor movement as a "brake on progress" in the solution of the labor problem, in view of the fact that European labor, with wages from one-fifth to one-half those prevailing in the United States, measured in purchasing power, is living just a little above the starvation level, while in the United States admittedly exists the highest standard of wages and living in the world.

One cause of this is that European labor depends upon politics rather than upon business-like methods of improving its conditions. European socialist labor leaders think of labor leadership as a means of getting place, power and prominence in politics. They prefer doles, pensions and other forms of state charity to compensation of a sort that would make of the wage-earner a self respecting and respected factor in industrial and social life. Inheriting the spirit of servility from past ages, they seek now only to exchange servility to a state machine for servility to an industrial oppressor, who seeks cheap production through the cheapening of the worker.

What this "labor" League of Nations functionary is really peeved about, as he shows later in his statement, is the unwillingness of American organized labor leaders to join the Geneva office in helping that international capitalism which sticks to the cheap labor idea, drag the American economic level down to that of Europe, by exposing the American standard of wages and living to destructive competition with far lower European and Asiatic standards. It never occurs, apparently, to the socialist leaders of Europe to propose that relief be found in the European industrial situation by following the example of increasing wages and thus providing consuming power for the output of the machine and mass production system. Their thought of relief is centered on the furtherance of the program of cheap labor exploiters both in the United States and Europe to drag all labor down to the Old World level.

The value of any labor movement must be judged by its results in the conditions prevailing among workingmen. The results of the European system of labor politics is apparent—a low standard of wages and living for labor. The result of the American policy is also apparent—a high standard of wages and living. In the statement of Mr. Thomas, failure reproaches success. The system of low wages and low living standards reproaches the American system of high wages and high standards of living as "a bar to progress." It is indeed a bar to the progress of the European idea of treating the workingman as a social and economic mud-sill, encouraged only by the socialist hope that through politics he can yet grab government, institute a class dictatorship and set up a political tranny under which the state becomes the master and the citizen a slave, the state a gigantic jail and poorhouse and the citizen an inmate.

The news columns of the New York Daily mouthpieces of the international bankers and industrials, importers and foreign producers, have been filled with yarns about the big increase in cost of living that the new tariff law will bring about. The news columns of the same pewspapers of June 22 carried the information that one of the principal chain store combinations of the country had marked down heavily the retail prices of all the commodities in which it deals. Editorial fooling of the people all the time becomes a bit difficult with journals whose news columns give their editorial utterances the lie direct.

Our idea of a real vacation is an electric refrigerator, a couple of electric fans, the latest mystery novel and a comfortable seat on the shady front porch at home.

Maybe senators object to senatorial candidates spending so much money because they realize it is not worth it.

Well the tariff passed the Senate by a margin of two votes but it must irritate the free traders to know that the bill would have gotten more votes if more had been needed to pass it.

A correspondent in the New York Times declares there is a county in England in which the people boil their tea and open their oysters with a dagger. We don't know anything about it but we would be willing to guess that the people in this country are not in favor of naval reduction.

American prosperity depends much more on keepnig the American wage earner at work supplying our necessities, than on keeping the foreign wage earner at work by buying his output. Three million idle men put back on the job in the United States supplying our necessities make a better output for American production than three million men employed abroad at from one half to one tenth the American wage scale. The wealth of the American people has been created by production and not by barter.

THE JACK POT

BY "JACK" HIMSELF

Yes, we have no Jack Pot this week. The Potter left here Monday a week ago for California, and promised to send The Pot for this week, containing a lot of things picked up on his way out to the land of the Sunset Sky. I guess it is all right to call it that. The publicity agents have called it everything that sounds good. Whether it is really as good as it looks remains to be learned when we hear the verdict of Jack.

We had hoped to get The Pot by air mail. Jack said he would send it that way. I guess the air mail goes so fast they couldn't put it off at Clanton, and carried it on up the country to Washington, New York or somewhere else.

We had a couple of cards from Jack Monday morning. That is all we have had from him since he left here. The cards were sent from out in Arizona some place.

One of them showed a picture of Apache Lake, "Apache Trail," Arizona. On the back was written this very brief note: "Not so nice as it seems." We wonder just what is meant by that. Surely the Potter is not disappointed with the way things looked to him in Arizona.

The bear went over the mountain to see what he could see. And when he got over the mountain, the mountain was all he could see.

Another card from The Potter said: We are in Miami, Arizona to-night, July 10th.

Notice in the paper that gasoline is selling as low as four and five cents a gallon on the Pacific Coast. The statement is made that the price is expected to go down to where there will be no price at all. The customers will only have to pay the three-cent state tax to get it. Wish we could have a western gasoline war in Alabama once in a while.

We hope to have the real Jack Pot for our readers next week. The Potter must have found it too much to drive his flivver five or six hundred miles a day and at the same time think up things to put in the Pot. By this time he is probably well rested from the worry of his long trip, and we expect some good reading to give the Pot Lickers from now on.

EXPORT AGAINST HOME MARKETS

By George B. Lockwood

The chief argument made against recent increases in the tariff is that they will reduce our exports. There is nothing in the history of the last increase in the tariff to prove this; the contrary proved true.

The exports the industrial and financial internationalists are thinking about are exports of American capital, methods and machinery to foreign cheap labor markets, which must inevitably destroy not only our foreign, but under low tariffs, our domestic markets.

Among these exports are two thousand American industrial establishments in Europe, which through the application of American production methods to cheap labor have intensified European competition in our own and foreign markets.

Among these exports also are several hundred million dollars worth of industrial equipment and technical service from the United States to Russia, with the result that Soviet Russia is being put in position, with huge textile, metal, tractor, farm machinery, flour, cement and other plants to flood our markets and the markets of the world with commodities made so cheap with expropriated property and serf labor that no competitor can stand up against them. We are already feeling the effect of Russian coal and timber imports. With state mechanized farm and labor working at a few cents a day the grain and cotton farmers of the United States will soon begin to learn something about the relation of all this to the disposition of their surplus crops.

All of the unemployment now existing in the United States is due to the inability of many domestic industries to operate on the basis of American wage and living standards against low foreign wage and living standards now being coupled to American methods of large-scale production. But under the spell of the high power propaganda of the international bankers and industrialists millions of Americans have been fooled into the belief that no necessity for increased protection exists, despite the fact that many hundreds of idle factories in the United States, and many hundreds more slowed down, bear evidence to the blighting effect on the American masses of competition between unequal living standards.

THOSE FOREIGN PROTESTS

William C. Durant, well known in the motor industry, takes issue with other automobile manufacturers, upon his return from Europe in stating that the new tariff law will not hurt the American motor industry, but will materially help industry in general and thereby help all industry. The harm done in connection with the new tariff law, he declares, was in the long delay in enacting it, which created an uncertainty extremely harmful to business.

Mr. Durant declares that the United States needed a protective tariff to counteract the legislation of some of the European countries. Austria, for instance, permits only nineteen Durant cars to come into that country each year, and between thirty-five an dforty American cars of other makes. Other European countries have similar legislation.

In connection with French protests it is recalled that when the French ambassador to the United States called attention with pride to his American car, he was denounced in the Paris press for owning one. Mussolini, whose government organs have loudly denounced the new American tariff, recently threatened that he would compile a list of Italian owners of foreign cars and publish it as a means of bringing odium on those sufficiently unpatriotic not to patronize home industry. Mr. Durant calls attention to the fact that there is no unemployment in France, but a scarcity of labor.

The outcry about foreign resentment and reprisals on account of the new tariff law is chiefly hokum inspired by our own industrial and financial interests, their export agencies in foreign lands, and European correspondents of American newspapers who out do the natives in loyalty to the lands in which they are stationed. It is refreshing to hear some common sense out of an American industrial chiefly interested in this country, and who does not fulfill the Amos and Andy idea of a "big business man."

25 YEARS AGO

News Items as published in The Union and in The Banner, issues of July 13, 1905

F. W. Johnson of Billingsley was in Monday and brought The Banner a forty-pound watermelon.

Doc Robinson's dog, Hamp, got away again the other day, and was recovered in Woodlawn last Sunday morning.

Mr. R. J. Lake of Clanton has just painted the schoolhouse at Pine Dale. He did a fine job on it, and the house now looks attractive.

V. J. Gragg acted as secretary of the Sunday School convention held at Cane Creek last Sunady. Other notables on the program were: E. H. Parrish, G. C. Weldon, E. L. Smith, Judson Strock and Miss Julia Parrish.

A big crowd met at Shiloh the 4th and celebrated with Miss Howard, the teacher.

Route No. 6 from Clanton will commence September 1st. The total length of the route will be 27 miles and 453 people will be served.

The price of cotton in Clanton today is 10 cents a pound.

Jim Thacker underwent an operation for appendicitis in Birmingham Monday.

Thomas L. McKee was married to Miss Zora Marcus last Sunday.

A picnic and dance were held at J. H. Roberts's sawmill the Fourth. John Vinson, age 45, and John Mims, age 40, showed their fighting qualities by attacking Lee Kicker and beating him up severely.

Following his declaration that the new tariff law would hurt business and cause unemployment in the United States, Henry Ford anounced plant improvements costing $16,000,000 to be made in 1930 with projects now in the hands of architects to cost $40,000,000, which explains the difference between talking politics and talking business.

The politicians and journalists who predicted in 1922 that an increased tarif would boost the cost of living, reduce wages, cause unemployment and destroy our foreign trade—all of which prophecies were fulfilled by contraries, will not be at all embarrassed when their recent lugubrious forecasts about the effect of the new tariff are similarly discredited because by that time they will be out with an entirely new set of prophecies.

American international oil companies which are bringing one hundred million barrels of crude oil into the United States each, are limiting American oil production and successfully fought the imposition of a tariff on crude oil, are increasing their output in Soviet Russia and other foreign oil fields under their control. Thus we see how the thimble-rigging international financiers and industrialists really promote our foreign trade by marketing our surplus when they are able to put an American commodity on the tariff free list.

The Man On The Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not.

The Man on the Corner is living fat this week. Uncle Charley Walker came across with the sack of home-made flour which he promised last spring. That with plenty of good fresn butter from Ervin Wilson's every day, and a shower of rain now and then makes the world look pretty. Mr. Walker harvested his wheat crop and got it ready for the mill in grand style, no rain to hinder. That was good for the wheat, but perhaps bad for the other crops that were growing. He had it made into flour at a mill up about Brierfield.

Moore's Drug Store is open for business again, after going through a financial squeeze. We understand that Mr. H. T. Sims has bought it out, and will move it to the Fenn Jones Building, formerly occupied by Hodges. That is a fine location for a drug store. It will be the only drug store on the north side of Second Avenue, and right in the busy section between the banks and Farm Bureau office and the courthouse. Doubtless the drug business will be better there than where it has been.

The political forecast of Chas. Cooper last week seems to have got the boys kindly stirred up. They are predicting that Tug will be the nominee for Sherfif, in spite of everything. The race for Sheriff will be hotly contested to the very finish. Go to it, boys. And may the best man win.

Cleve Armstrong has taken over the management of the A. & P. Store in Clanton. He has been connected with that business for the past four weeks. I think it is a wise move on the part of A. & P. to put him at the head of the business. The chain stores ought to have men in charge of their stores who are interested in the affairs of the community. This is true of Cleve Armstrong. He is a man who is willing to give his community something in return for what his community gives him. That kind of a spirit is very much to be desired on the part of all business men and citizens.

J. P. Crumpton, popular salesman at Hill Grocery Company, is taking his vacation this week. With his wife as a vacation partner, he will spend a few days fishing on Lake Martin, after which they will visit Mrs. Crumpton's mother at Autaugaville, and finish their vacation with a few days visit with Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Duncan, in Birmingham.

J. W. McEathern, Robert Alred, Loren Smith, Renfroe Jones, Will Jones, Mr. Duke and Mr. Johnson of Siluria, returned Monday morning from a fishing trip to Panama City. They report a very enjoyable trip, but found the water a little rough for fishing. However, they managed to catch plenty of fish. Smith says he is going back to the Gulf to attend the State Fishing Rodeo next month. Smith lived in the Mobile district for about three years, and he got the fishing fever that lures him back to the salt waters quite often.

Jeff Ruffin says that "Purina" is still going fine. You know what "Purina" is, I am sure. If you know Jeff Ruffin you can't help but know something about "Purina." Jeff is the chicken man, and "Purina" is the chicken feed. If you want te sell chickens or raise chickens, Jeff Ruffin is the man you want to see.

Folks of Clanton are taking on to the miniature golf idea right along. It seems to be a very popular pastime. Some of our most austere business men have broken their complacency and gone in for the sport. Friday night of this week a match game will be played between a team selected from Clanton players and a team from Birmingham. Lamar Calloway, the midget manager of the course is proving to be a good projector.

General Hines, director of the United States Veterans Bureau, together with Col. Dallas Smith, Admiral Riggs, and Engineer Warren, were in Clanton a while Tuesday. They are making the round of inspection of sites proposed for the new Veterans Hospital in Alabama. Wouldn't it be nice if Clanton should get that million dollar hospital? It is too good for some of our folks to believe, but I would not be surprised if we get it. I believe the advantages of Clanton for the location of this hospital are so outstanding above any other place in the State that even a blind man could see it. And we know that General Hines and the men who are associated with him are not blind.

OUR POLITICAL CAMPAIGN

It must be evident to the readers of The Union-Banner that the Republican Primary campaign is getting considerably warmed up in recent days. The candidates are active in their canvass among the voters and lots of pepole are taking advantage of the opportunity to express themselves through the columns of the paper.

The political forecast of Charles Cooper last week has brought out a good deal of comment concerning the race for Sheriff and Tax Assessor. "The Man on the Corner" is not the only one in the county who thinks Mr. Cooper "stretched the blanket" in his forecast.

L. H. Bean, candidate for the School Board, in his letter last week, cut a little deeper on the school business than he has done in previous communications along that line. His charge that we have some school officials who can not make a clean report to the people without incriminating themselves seems to be going too far. We do not believe that our school officials are criminals, and Mr. Bean will doubtless have to crawfish on this statement before the present campaign is over.

It seems that about all there is to politics is for some lucky man to be able to get into an easy office, and the really vital institutions such as our schools to get all the backwash and bad effects of the personal prejudices that are engendered by politics.

Superintendent of Education, Buford Lawrence, is challenging the statements of Mr. Bean in a long letter published in this issue of The Union-Banner. It seems that the school business in Alabama and in almost every county in Alabama, is the biggest racket of the present campaign.

G. T. McElderry of Talladega, one of the most active opponents of the present school system in Alabama, will make a public speech at the courthouse next Saturday afternoon. In this paper there is a letter from him in which he sets out some of his opinions about the way our school business is being mismanaged.

LOVELY TEA GIVEN IN HONOR OF MISS LORENE PARRISH

A lovely social affair of yesterday afternoon was the tea with which Miss Annie Hill Joiner entertained at her apartment on Adams Street honoring Miss Lorene Parrish, bride-elect and some visitors in the city, Mrs. W. W. Cook of Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. H. H. Harwell, of Newberry, Fla.

Miss Joiner's becoming gown was of sky blue chiffon, fashioned on princess lines and trimmed effectively in rhinestones.

Of pink lace was the stunning frock worn by Miss Parrish. The long full skirt was even length and the short waistline was accentuated by a narrow belt of the material.

Mrs. Cook's lovely gown was of flowered flat crepe, the neckline trimmed with a pleated bertha of the material.

Of Nile green organdy was the frock worn by Mrs. Harwell. The full skirt dipped in the back, and was trimmed at the waistline with a satin bow.

Throughout the rooms where the guests assembled quantities of garden flowers in shades of yellow and white were arranged. In the dining room where refreshments were served, the color note of yellow and white was carried out in every detail. The tea table was covered with a handsome lace cloth and centered with a colorful arrangement of garden flowers surrounded by four silver candlesticks holding yellow tapers. Compotes and platters contained mints and cakes in pastel shades. A dainty iced course was served.

Receiving the guests were: Miss Sallie Boone and Mrs. A. P. Montague.

Assisting in serving were: Misses Marie Branan, Martha Brown, Emily Thigpen, Louise Sandefur, Mabel Price and Mrs. Fred L. Jones.

Approximately 50 guests were invited to call from 6 to 7 o'clock and meet the charming honorees.—The Macon Telegraph.

Bearded Ladies

Hokkaido, on the island of Hondo, off the coast of Japan, is considered the original home of the "bearded lady." The women are really not bearded, but they wear on their upper lip a tattooed mustache that reaches almost to the ears. The men do not shave or cut their hair after a certain age, hence their beards and bushy heads are conspicuous. The women allow their hair to grow to their shoulders in a fuzzy bob.

Perfect Proportions

The Society of Directors of Physical Education set forth the following standard for the perfect man: Height, 63½ inches; breadth of neck, 3.8; girth of neck, 12.1 inches; breadth of shoulders, 14.7 inches; breadth of waist, 8.6 inches; girth of waist, 24.6 inches; breadth of hips, 13.1 inches; girth of hips, 35.4 inches; girth of calf, 13.3 inches; girth of upper arm, 10.1 inches; girth of thigh, 21.4 inches, and forearm, 9.2 inches.

ECONOMY OF THE NEW FORD

Saving a penny, a nickel or dime in the cost of making an automobile may seem insignificant. Yet when small savings like these are multiplied in the production of thousands of cars a day, the results runs into millions of dollars in a year.

It is the little economies, the daily development of some new and better way of doing a job, that makes possible the periodic reductions in Ford car process, the increasing of wages, and the constant improvement of the car itself. Quantity production alone, according to Ford officials, could not do it.

In the plants of the Ford Motor Company, the employees, from the highest officials to the more progressive of the machine operators, are always trying to improve methods of manufacturing. Typifying the Ford idea that nothing is permanent but change, they cast precedent to the winds. Because a thing has never been done before is no reason, they feel, why it should not be done now.

For instance, push rods made in two pieces with reads of chilled iron formerly were purchased from other concerns. Engineers of Ford Motor Company developed a new iron. The push rods are now made in one piece, with the results that they give better service at a cost of 1.46 cents less per rod. Since there are eight rods to a car it is a saving of 11.68 cents on each car produced.

The reservoir of the Houdaille shock absorber, which weighs one pound eight and one-half ounces, formerly was machined from a rough forging weighing three pounds six ounces. Seeking a simpler way of making this part, Ford employees contrived to shape it from a casting weighing one pound thirteen ounces. As a result only four and one-half ounces have to be machined from the casting, whereas formerly it was necessary to machine nearly 2 pounds from the forging. That represents a considerable saving; but on top of it is a reduction of six cents of the original cost of each reservoir, or twenty-four cents on a car.

New methods of machining the fly wheel permitted the elimination of a number of expensive machines and tools, considerably reduced repairs to machinery, and at the same time increased production 1,000 wheels per shift. The saving amounted to $1,062 a day.

Formerly the fender bracket was a forging. Someone suggested a change in its design so that a hot rolled strip could be used. This resulted in increased strength and rigidity and at the same time afforded a saving of 66.4 cents per car.

A change in the milling of the cylinder block resulted in a variety of economies. The output of the mills was increased 20 per cent; the re-milling of blocks to remove rough surfaces, which formerly ran about 10 per cent, was eliminated; ten men were transfered to other work; and cutter heads were changed only three times a day instead of 100 times.

These are but a few of the manufacturing economies effected between last November when prices were cut and the minimum wage raised to $7 a day and June 1 when prices were reduced again. But they serve to illustrate how it is that the Ford Motor Company can apparantly wipe out all profits and yet make money.

C. W. WADE

THE WADESONIAN THEATRE

And now, boys and girls, we present you this week with a sketch of Mr. C. W. Wade, the man who furnishes you with your entertainment at the Wadesonian Theatre. He was evidently in a good humor when Jack Douglas drew this picture, for it turned out to be a mighty good likeness of our picture show manager. I am sure you could name him correctly even if he were not holding in his hand the placard telling you about The Wadesonian.

Mr. Wade established The Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton in 1920, almost exactly ten years ago. It was first located in the old Baptist Church Building across the street from the courthouse. It was there that Mr. Wade first planned to build his modern picture house; but some legal complications changed his course. Therefore he chose the property which he now occupies just west of the railroad on Second Avenue. In 1927 the present picture house was built.

Mr. Wade is 63 years old. He is a native of the State of Mississippi, having been born at Starkeville. A long period of his active business life was spent as a contractor prior to his entry into the picture show business.

The home of Mr. Wade is at Calera, where he has another picture show, a hotel, and various other business interests. He is a member of the Woodmen of the World, the Knights of Pythias, and the Elks.

From the beginning of his business here Mr. Wade has sought to keep up with the very best that could be provided for his patrons in the way of picture show entertainment. About a year ago when the talking movies came to be a permanent thing, he was among the first in this part of the State to provide and equip his theatre for showing the movietones. Patrons of the Wadesonian are provided with the very best pictures available. Many of the big hits of the screen are presented here while they are fresh and new.

It is no longer necessary for people of Clanton to go to the cities to see the best talking movies. They are being brought right to us in Clanton at the Wadesonian. It is always comfortable at the Wadesonian. The auditorium is well ventilated and cooled by a battery of electric fans and ventilators. There is no need to fear going there on a hot day or night. In fact it is the very place to go, because it is always cool and comfortable.

We believe the Wadesonian Theatre deserves the fullest measure of patronage from the people of Clanton. It is a home concern. Mr. Wade has invested heavily in property and equipment here to make the show possible, and he deserves the support of the public. His show is an asset to our town and community, because it affords the best of modern theatre entertainment.

DEATH OF AN INFANT

At one o'clock Tuesday the death angel visited the home of Rev. Howell and took their grand-baby, the 8-months old baby, Francis, of Mr. and Mrs. Erskin Burkhalter.

The sweet soul was laid to rest at Floyd cemetery Wednesday at 10 o'clock. Services were conducted by Rev. Tucker.

The many friends mourn with Mr. and Mrs. Burkhalter and relatives over the loss of their baby.

We love the words:

The little babe is gone to rest,
To reign with God for ever blest.
Its little tongue will always praise,
A Saviour's love, redeeming grace.
Far from a world of sin and strife,
It now enjoys a heavenly life.
And joins to praise and shout, and sing,
And make the heavenly arches ring.
Could we but hear its little tongue,
So sweetly sing the heavenly song.
Could we but see its smiling face,
Delighted with the happy place.
We could not wish it back again,
But say, dear babe, with God remain.
We'll try to gain that peaceful shore,
Where those who meet shall part no more.
Now let us strive the prize to gain,
Let's come to Christ, with Him remain.
Then we shall share in Jesus' love
And meet the little babe above.

Mr. T. C. Littleton of New Salem was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday. Mr. Littleton moved back to Chilton County last year from Shelby. This county is his original home. He lived in Shelby about 25 years.

ANOTHER POLITICAL FORECAST

We noticed in last week's paper that the primary election came off down at Mr. Chas Cooper's and Mr. W. H. Gillespie was elected. Now, Mr. Cooper, how come you to go to so much trouble and expense to search every nook and corner of this county and to report to hundreds of your friends how the people were going to vote. Now, Mr. Cooper, if you hadn't said that as was not an imagination of yours, it might have looked another way, but it showed very plain that you and another one like yourself got together and planned that stuff of yours, just for a boost to try to make the minority look like the majority. Now, Mr. Cooper, isn't it a fact that you and Walter saw very plain after making a little inquiry, that Walter was so far behind to what he expected to be that he was drowning, and Walter said, "Take this and throw me a straw." So, you didn't have no more forethought than to do it. Because anybody that is in public business like you are, that will slur and throw off on people publicly hasn't got any forethought. So, now, Mr Cooper, if you will come up where Chilton County spreads out we can show you different tricks to what you are trying to play. For we believe that J. M. (Tug) Willis is going to be our next Sheriff.

We sure do believe that he will make us a real Sheriff, and we certainly do believe that he has got the right kind of feeling for his fellow men, and we have known him long enough to know that he is truthful, and we do believe that he will give the people a fair deal.

Now a little to the voters of this county. This is the first thing that Mr. Willis has ever asked us for, and he needs, and deserves it, and let's give it to him this time. If you will pardon us for the illustration: Suppose you had three mules and you had tried 2 of them and they didn't give satisfaction, what would you do when you went to hitch up again? Would you go and get one of those two, or would you try the third one?

Now people, Mr. Willis tells us that he is going in the office, if elected, with his hands untied so he will not be under any obligation to any body, so far as enforcing the law is concerned, and we certainly do believe that he will enforce it sensibly, and fairly.

Now a little bit for the people's benefit who do not know Mr. Willis as we do. There has been some rumors about his drinking that we know to be untrue. Now we know that Mr. Willis has been guilty of drinking a little, which he says that he has never denied, but we do know that he has laid that down, and done it at least three years ago. Now, we have been right here with him all of the time and we do know that there is some few that trying to nag him wrongfully. Mr. Willis is of a nature that he would always, unhesitatingly own up to his faults. And we do know him to be a man that would not try to cloak his meanness by lieing.

We just felt like it was our duty to say this much in his behalf, for the benefit of those who do not know him as we do. If anybody wants to know anything about what is rumored on him go to him and I will guarantee that he will tell you the truth about it if its against him. That is why we have got confidence in him. He will not lie. We have never heard Mr. Willis running down and slurring his opponents. So now, we are not writing this for any slanging. We are just answering Mr. Cooper's slurring and slanging, and this is all we are going to say. And if he can get any consolation out of his throwing-off way let him go ahead.

Yours for a fair and square campaign, and success to the Republican party.—Lee Ellison, Cornelius Caton.

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

It is but a few days until the primary and I feel that our choice of men to fill several vacancies in our county offices will in a large measure vitally effect the future of our party and the general welfare of our people. I heartily agree with Mr. G. W. Wilson, whose article appeared in last week's paper. I am fully convinced that a continuation of the same set of men in office will, in time disrupt any party, to say nothing of the unfairness of such practice. I believe that we are just now in danger of defeat if we persist in putting back some of the men who are asking for a third term. The ones I refer to is the Assessor and Collector. They are good men to be sure, but their opponents are good men also.

So, as Mr. Wilson suggests, let us pool our efforts and get squarely behind the most logical men for these places. He suggested that Prof. Bean was, in his opinion, the most logical man for Assessor, and gave his reasons therefor. After mature thought, I have arrived at the same conclusion for the very reasons he set forth in his letter.

Personally, I am no better friend to Mr. Bean than I am to his opponents, but with due respect to Mr. Pate, I feel that it would be to the interest of the Republican party in the future to nominate Mr. Bean in the coming primary.—R. N. Wilkins.

SINGING SCHOOL AT SARDIS

The singing school at this place will begin Monday, July 21, for the benefit of the young people. And even for the old who want to come. Mr. Johnnie Lowery will teach. We hope a large crowd will meet him and come throughout the school term of twenty days.—Meldie Sansom.

COUNTY BRIEFS

Sidney J. M. Webb, member of the County Board of Education, was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday.

Raymond Duffey, rural mail carrier, of Mt. Creek, came to Clanton Monday to get a haircut.

Charley Wilkins of Bethsalem was in Clanton Tuesday. No. rain yet at his place, he says.

Rev. M. J. Parrish of Providence, Beat 16, reports that his community has received some rain this week, thus relieving a very serious long spell of hot dry days.

Andew Easterling and family of Laferia, Texas, are here on a visit with relatives for a few days. They arrived the middle of last week and will be here for another week.

Mr. Taylor Thompson, formerly of Verbena, now of Montgomery, was stricken with paralysis Sunday about 4 o'clock. He has been unconscious ever since, and death is expected at any time.

Well, under the new tariff bananas will come in free of duty. This will make it possible for the politicians to get their banana oil as cheaply as ever.

REV. LOWERY ANNOUNCES SERIES OF REVIVALS

Rev. Lowery states that an arbor will be built at Shiloh in oredr to take care of the people who will attend. An invitation is extended to the public to attend any and all of these services.

FROM CHAS. COOPER

In our forecast of the August primary in Chilton County, in last week's issue of The Union-Banner, it seems that "The Man on the Corner" seems to think that we stretched our blanket just a little when we made the assertion that Mr. Willie Bean would in our opinion receive as many votes as the other four candidates combined.

The information gave out was predicated upon heart-to-heart talks with voters in various parts of the county.

A lot of people seem to think a lot of Mr. Pate, they claim that he has made us a fine officer. The only objectionable feature connected with his case is he has been in office long enough.

Some spoke well of Mr. Akins Collins. It is generally conceded that Mr. Collins is a fine singer, but so far he has not sung very many Republican songs. And, too, it seems that most people think that it would have been better for him to have asked for a less important job at first.

The other two candidates were not spoken of very much in my canvass.

It seems that the most of the people appreciate the long time service that Mr. Bean has given to the Republican party in Chilton County. For years he has been right on the firing line. In our opinion, and the opinion of hundreds of others, Mr. Bean has done more for the Republican party, and received less out of it, than any other man in the county.

We believe he is entitled to consideration at this time. and we should tender him our appreciation at this time.

We approve of Mr. Wilson's letter in last week's Union-Banner. We believe he expressed the sentiment of the majority of the Republican voters of Chilton County.

In conclusion we might mention the fact that the above is written on our own volition, based upon our deep personal interest in the Republican party of Chilton County, and in Mr. Bean as a real worker in the Republican party.

With best wishes, I am, yours very
CHAS. COOPER.

WILL BE ON AIR SATURDAY NIGHT AND SUNDAY NIGHT

Announcement is made that Mr. Gresham Lowery and Mr. Luke Denton, known among the radio fans as the Melody Pals, will sing over Station WBRC at Birmingham Saturday night and Sunday, at 7:00 and 8:45 respectively. OAK GROVE CEMETERY

There will be a working at the Oak Grove cemetery Friday morning, July 18th. All interested are asked to come and bring tools.—G. W. Littleton.

The revival begins at this place Sunday, July 20th.

J. W. Cagle of Mitchell Dam had a birthday last Friday. He spent it at Crumpton's Camp on Walnut Creek near the river. Accompanying him were Mrs. Cagle and their daughter, Ethel, T. E. Wyatt, wife and baby, and J. M. Wyatt. All had a very enjoyable day.

ENOCH MIMS BACK IN CLANTON

The many friends of Mr. Enoch C. Mims, the barber, will be glad to learn that he has moved back to Clanton, and is now located at his same old place with Mims and Gray at the Service Barber Shop.

Mr. Mims has been in Montgomery barbering for the past year.

We are glad to have him back in Clanton.

IN BEHALF OF OLLIE H. McDOWELL

I can truthfully say I have known Mr. McDowell all his life, and find him to be an honest, promising young man with great ambition.

He has always been true to the Republican party. His father before him was a loyal Republican.

That is the kind of man we need for officers. One who will deal on the square with the people. So don't think any one will make a mistake to vote for him on August 12.—J. G. Downs.

ABOUT THE STRAW VOTE

Editor Union-Banner:

We saw in last week's issue an article and also straw-vote taken by one Charley Cooper. As you probably know, we have two Charley Coopers in Chilton County. We would like to know if this is the one who ran for commissioner in 1916 and got 30 first-choice votes and 2 second-choice votes; and was also found talking to one of his opponents early next morning, who was also defeated, trying to get him to quit the Republican party and join the Democrats, telling him he was the one who should have had the office. Ever since, you could not tell whether he stood with the Democrats or with the Republicans.

We also note his straw-vote. He surely did not come up in the north end of the county; if he did he must have taken it like he did in 1916, in a way that was misleading. I feel sure that he is badly wrong as to the way he gave it, especially in the sheriff's race. We are for Murrah for sheriff—a man who has always stood for the Republican party.

For the Party,
A VOTER.

NEW SALEM CEMETERY

All who are interested in the cemetery at New Salem are requested to meet on Tuesday, July 22, for the purpose of cleaning off the grounds. Come early and bring necessary tools.—T. A. Maddox.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A new booklet published by the United States Department of Agriculture shows that the poultry and egg industry of the United States has had a total income in recent years of more than one billion dollars annually, or approximately one-tenth of the total farm income of the nation.

A vast army of rats, migrating from Sibera, is sweeping eastward and southward through western Manchuria and northern Mongolia, devouring all crops in its path and even attacking human beings, according to dispatches from Manchuria received here by Russian sources. According to eye witnesses, armed horsemen have failed in their efforts to check the advance of the hunger-maddened rodent hordes.

PROF. AND MRS. MONTGOMERY AT AUBURN

Prof. J. P. Montgomery and Mrs. Montgomery left Monday morning for Auburn, where they will be for the next three weeks taking special courses of study at Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Mr. Montgomery is teacher of vocational agriculture at the Jemison High School.

CAGLES VISIT CLANTON MONDAY

Mr. C. E. Cagle, of Stanton, was a visitor to Clanton Monday morning. He was accompanied by his brother, Prof. J. B. Cagle, who is Principal of the Pisgah High School, in Jackson County. The latter is spending a while visiting his brother at Stanton.

Mr. Cagle continues to feel optimistic over the prospects of locating the U. S. Veterans Hospital at Stanton.

Mr. Walker L. Horton, proprietor of the Verbena Service Barber Shop, was a visitor to Clanton Monday. Mr. Horton has put up a nice Barber Shop at Verbena, and extends an invitation to the people of that territory to give him their patronage. His price for haircuts is 25 cents, and for shaves is 15 cents.

MRS. STAPP WILL RETURN

Mrs. C. E. Stapp, child welfare worker of Chilton County, will be in her office regularly again, commencing with next Monday. She has been at the University of Alabama for the past six weeks taking a special course under direction of the Alabama Child Welfare Department.

MT. NEBO NEWS

Bro. Larse Headley preached a good sermon at Mt. Nebo Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sanders and little son, Elvin, Mr. Chester Pruitt of near Fayettville, spent part of last week with his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sanders.

SOMEBODY GOT THE WRONG PACKAGE

The Union-Banner has received a letter from Mr. J. L. Peters, of Clanton, Route 1, concerning a package that was taken by mistake last Saturday. He says:

"Last Saturday I left a pair of ladies slippers in Alred's Drug Store behind the door. Somebody got my slippers and socks and left another package in its place. Will the one who got my package please write to me or bring it to Alred's Drug Store, and I will return the package I got. I know it was done through a mistake. The slippers were No. 4, between a tan and suede in color. I will appreciate the return of my package, and will be glad to exchange the package which I got.—J. L. Peters, Clanton Roote 1."

Reedie Taylor made a business trip to Montgomery Tuesday.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE CO. WILL CONTINUE TO OPERATE

Mr. Reed Mullins, president of The Peoples Telephone Co., has requested us to state through the paper that arrangements have been made by the Board of Directors, assuring the continuance of the operation of the Central office in Clanton for the balance of this fiscal year, which ends November 15th.

Mr. Mullins urges all phone holders to pay their central fees for the last half of the year, upon the assurance of the Board of directors that the business will continue to operate for the time they are asked to pay for.

The further suggestion is made by Mr. Mullins that the rural lines should be fixed up during this summer and put in good shape, so that the continuance of the telephone business may be made possible and profitable for the phone holders after this year ends.

ALL-DAY SINGING AT LIBERTY—AUTAUGA COUNTY

On the third Sunday in July, July 20, there will be an all-day singing at Liberty Church, in Autauga County. There will be a number of good singers, with several quartett bands on hand, and a good singing is expected. All singers and lovers of music are invited to attend. YOUTH IS KILLED IN AUTO MISHAP

Cato Roebuck, 18, outstanding athlete and student at Isabella High School near Maplesville, was buried recently at Mt. Carmel, victim of an automobile accident. He was killed almost instantly when a roadster driven by himself leaped the highway, while going at a high rate of speed. A blow-out caused the crash.

The dead youth is survived by his mother, Mrs. Della Roebuck, of Maplesville, Kent Roebuck of 1524 Twenty-third Avenue Tuscaloosa, Buster and Otto Roebuck, brothers, and Cleo and Ruth Roebuck, sisters, of Maplesville.

Funeral services were held at Mt. Carmel Baptist Church with the Rev. G. G. Williams of Clanton, officiating. Mell Martin, Clanton undertaker, had charge of interment.

Former senior clasmates served as pallbearers for Cato Roebuck. They were Crit DeRamus, James Deason, Luther Mims, O'Neal Turner, Marvin Durbin, Hannah Owens and Homer Morgan. Roebuck was a star football player and basketball center at school as well as an outstanding member of the Mulberry Baptist Church and Sunday School. — Tuscaloosa News.

THE PROFIT LINE

Everything that has been treated in this column for the past number of weeks is vital to the success of every person who raises any poultry whether on a large or on a small scale. We are approaching the parting of the ways, however, when those whose primary interest is in the broilers and market poultry will want to start to develop their chicks along different lines than those whose bread and butter are in egg production. Of course, the first essentials are that the chicks should live and grow along healthful, normal lines. Poultry science in recent years, however, has taught us great deal that can and should be done to bring the poultry enterprise to the point of maximum profit, along either the market or the egg production line.

Most poultry raisers are interested primarily in egg production. In raising birds for egg production, government figures give us some interesting facts that in turn give each hen her quota, a kind of a "budget" idea applied to poultry profits.

State figures vary slightly, but in the state of Washington the feeding cost per bird is the equivalent of the price of 130 eggs and this is a pretty representative figure. The United States government tells us that the average American hen lays a total of less than 100 eggs a year. From this we easily gather that there are a lot of poultry flocks operating at a net loss to the owner, and by totaling up the average yearly lay of all birds maintained, anyone can easily calculate roughly the number of eggs his average hen is either above or below the profit line of 130 eggs.

The problem of every egg farmer is to get his average yearly egg lay per hen above and well above that 130-egg mark. As it costs as much to feed a poor producer as a high producer, we can calculate roughly that a 150-egg hen, laying 20 eggs above the prafit line, is twice as profitable as the 140-egg hen, laying only 10 eggs above the profit line.

So it is frequently by narrow margins that victories are won even in the humbrum of everyday work. The breeding, of course, is of the primary importance in egg production, because "like begets like," but great deal can be done by scientific and conscientious care and it will be our purpose in this column for several weeks to point out some of the best principles of development of both market and egg production poultry.

Few Insects Absolutely Enemies of Human Race

Some insects, says a writer in John o' London's Weekly, are beneficial, such as bees and silkworms; some are altogether injurious, such as those mosquitoes that carry the malaria organism, and the tse-tse flies that carry the cause of sleeping sickness. But most insects are half and half, partly helpful to man and his interests, and partly prejudicial. Thus, if we consider wasps in a broad way, we must admit that while they spoil a lot of fruit, they destroy many insects that are pests of plants. While the world of life is on the whole "friendly" to man, we need not expect it to be always on our side. And as regards particular insects, such as earwigs, it is often impossible to get a true bill, for there is a "con" to every "pro." So we turn with mental satisfaction to clothes moths, for they are altogether on the black list, except to the naturalist, who finds them very interesting.

Community of Silence

This is the secret of our intercourse with those persons of whom our friends will say, or think, what can you find to talk about? Talk about? Why, nothing; the enigmatic person remains, with us as with all the rest of the world, silent, inarticulate, incapable, sometimes, of any nice making of formula. But we know that our companion is seeing, feeling, the same lines of the hills and washes of colors; the same scudding or feathering out of clouds; is living, in the completest sense, in that particular scene and hour; and knowing this, it matters nothing how long we trudge along the road or saunter across the grass without uttering.—Violet Paget, in "Hortus Vita."

B. Lawrence Answers Charges Made Against Him by Mr. L. H. Bean

Editor Unian-Banner:

In the first place I wish to apologize to the public for the necessity of bringing before them matters which perhaps should be settled other than in a newspaper. I have never made any reply to any article that has ever been written in a newspaper criticising my administration or otherwise simply because I have a horror for that sort of thing but I believe the public feels that I have endured criticism sufficiently to justify me in giving a statement to the press for publication. It is always my wish to do and say those things which will make friends instead of bringing about unpleasant and unnecessary ill feeling.

Hundreds of people will bear testimony to the fact, I am sure, that I have always sought to be courteous to the public. In my official life I recognize the fact that I am a servant of the people and as such wish to give them the benefit of every thing that is in me for the betterment of the county and as an official of the schools to do all possible to make our school system what it ought to be.

For some time Mr. L. H. Bean has been making an effort to lead the people of the county to believe that I am inefficient, incompetent and dishonest in the administration of the affairs of this office. I am not seeking to blow my own horn but for the benefit of Mr. Bean I am quoting from audits made of my books by state officials during my tenure of office. Two audits have been made since I have been here. The first one was made by Sasser and Creel, a report of which was filed in the Governor's office on July 14th, 1927 which read as follows: "The Superintendent's records and books were neatly and properly kept thus aiding us in the examination and demonstrating efficiency as an officer. All contracts, scholastic and calendar pay rolls were passed on by the County Board of Education and recorded in the minutes.

"The Superintendent has been very cautious to execute contracts and pay rolls in compliance with the law which is commendable. Much progress is being made in the educational work of Chilton County. From our insight of the outline and program which the Board and Superintendent is putting on and anticipate to put into operation we feel sure that the county will set a pace in educational advancement."

The second report was made by Mr. R. V. Allgood and filed in the Governor's office on January 7, 1930 which has the following to say: "The writer (Mr. Allgood) feels that it is due the officials involved to state that the educational affairs of Chilton County are well managed as shown in this report. In the table setting forth the outstanding obligations of the County Board of Education, they are practically out of debt."

The above statements are quoted from the auditor's reports referred to above and are the opinions of men who are unbiased and whose business it is to audit the books of officials of the state. Now I understand that Mr. Bean has made the statement that these reports are not here. It is simply his other misrepresentations about facts concerning the schools of Chilton County.

Mr. Bean would have the public believe that if he were elected he would give the people greater authority in the administration of the schools. At the same time he is ready to question the honesty and ability of trustees of the county to handle their local financial affairs. I believe that the trustees of the county are honorable men and are competent to handle the affairs of their schools without intereference. It seems that he wants their books audited and a number of other things done. According to a statement of the trustees of his own school their books have already been audited by the same state auditor who audited my books and a report of that audit is on file in my office regardless of the fact it is my understanding he questions the report being here.

In his letter written to The Union-Banner and published Thursday, July 10th, false and malicious statements, which are as follows, are made:

"I will never advise or persuade any citizen to violate the laws of our country. It will be my policy to clean up the bad practice that is now being used. We have school officials today who cannot make a clean report to the school on account of incriminating themselves." Since this statement involves a great moral principle it gives me the right to ask Mr. Bean to please name these officers. I am hereby doing so.

If Mr. Bean, in this statement is referring to the County Board of Education or myself it shows his ignorance of what has been going on. Each year a complete account of all the receipts and disbursements of the monies handled by the County Board of Education is published in the paper. Not only is this done but an itemized account of the transactions of the Board is published in pamphlet form. There is on file in this office now a copy of these reports dating back several years. These reports are available each year to those wishing them. I have known L. H. Bean for a number of years. His community knows that he is continually opposed to every forward movement in the community in which he lives. He has been a stumbling block in the way of the growth and development of his own school. In view of the fact he is running for a county office I think the public is entitled to know the facts and if he is not able to operate his own business in his own name I am wondering how he would be able to operate the business of the county.

As to the matter of advising people not to vote for Mr. Bean for member of the School Board I have done this only indirectly when people would ask me about what sort of a fellow he was. As a matter of fact I have done practically nothing for either of the candidates running for member of the School Board. This is a matter that belongs to the people of the county and I have not had anything to do with it because I feel that it is a matter for them to settle as to who shall serve them in this capacity but in view of my knowledge of Mr. Bean's life and attitude and his constant harangue in the paper about school affairs I am unable to understand how he could expect me to do otherwise than to advise folks not to vote for him. Some people think of him as W. T. Bean. L. H. Bean is not even related to W. T. Bean, who formerly served as Superintendent of Education. W. T. Bean is running for Tax Assessor.

I have only written this article because I have found that some people were inclined to believe the accusations of Mr. Bean on account of the fact I had not replied to his articles. These people did not understand me and did not know that I had a perfect horror for paper controversies. You need not expect me to carry on this argument through the papers but there is a better way of settling this matter instead of embarrassing and tantalizing the public. I cannot give my best services and spend so much time writing such newspaper articles and in order that I may give you my best services I shall refrain from doing so.

In conclusion I will say that my association and work with members of the County School Board in their present personnel leads me to say that they are a group of gentlemen worthy of the trust the people of the county have placed in them and men who are trying to handle the school affairs of the county to the interest of those to be served. My association with the trustees of the county leads me to make the statement for them and I resent any insinuation against the integrity of the trustees of the county or the County Board of Education.

With deep humiliation for the necessity of having to write the article above and assuring you of the best that is in me for the children of the county whom the schools are to serve, I am, faithfully yours,

B. LAWRENCE,
County Supt. Education.

MOODY-GERALD WEDDING SOLEMIZED

One of the prettiest home wedding ever held in Thorsby was that of Miss Iola Bethel Gerald of Thorsby and Leonard E. Moody of Birmingham.

The home was beautifully decorated with greens and cut flowers, the color scheme of pink and lavender being carried out in artistic mannersa Pink tapers and artificial lights added to the beauty of the occasion.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Kathryn Foss sang, "At Dawning" and "I Love You," accompanied by Miss Ruth Gerald at the piano.

The bride and groom entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, entering between streamers of pink tulle held by little Marion Joyce Howard and Helen Louise Mead.

L. F. Gerald of Clanton, brother of the bride, gave the bride away. The ring ceremony was read by Rev. J. E. Each of Thorsby.

The bride was lovely in a dress of blue chiffon and hat of the same color with accessories to match, and carried a beautiful boquet of white lillies.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald and has lived her whole life in Thorsby, where she is well known and loved. She is a graduate of Alabama College of Montevallo and has taught in Jemison the past year.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Moody of Decatur, Ala., and has lived in Birmingham for several years, where he is employed by the Pan Am Oil Co.

Only the relatives and a few inimate friends were present at the ceremony, after which a short reception was held.

They will be at home after August 1 at 1406 Cotton Ave., Birmingham, Ala.

The out of town guests were Mrs. J. E. Moody of Decatur, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Gerald, son Lawrence, Jr., and daughter, Celia, of Clanton, and Mr. and Mrs. Bina Busby of St. Elmo, Alabama.

Deadly Poison Found in Plant of Castor Bean

The castor bean, source of one of the most useful of medicinal oils, contains also the most deadly of all known vegetable poisons, writes Dr. Frank Thone in the Providence Journal.

In stem, leaves and fruit—in all parts of the plant—there are minute amounts of an exceedingly toxic substance. Many pounds of castor bean tissue, after long and elaborate chemical extraction, will yield a few crystals of this stuff, innocent as salt to look at, but so powerful that a speck no bigger than a needle-point can kill a cat or a rabbit as quickly as a thousand-volt live wire. The substance has been called ricin, from the Latin name of the castor bean plant, Ricinus.

Ricin has its fullest and quickest effects when it is injected directly into the blood stream, but it can cause severe sickness and even death when it is swallowed.

Yet though there is rather more ricin in the seeds of the castor oil plant than there is in its other tissues, the oil pressed from the bean contains none of it. The reason is that the ricin is held by the non-oil-bearing tissues, and at the temperatures of "cold pressing" it does not come free. "Hot pressing" would yield more oil, though of a poorer quality, and it might also liberate some of the ricin.

SINGING SCHOOL AT COLLINS CHAPEL BEGINNING JULY 28TH

Prof. W. M. Devaughn requests the Unoin-Banner to announce that he will begin a singing school at Collins Chapel on Monday, July 28th. Prof. Devaughn desires the wholehearted support of the citizens of the community in this singing school.

Late reports from the school which O. L. DeVaughn and W. M. DeVaughn are now teaching at Thomas High School indicate that this school is going fine. There are around sixty on roll, and the average attendance is very good, Prof. DeVaughn says.

In Washington the other day one motorist used tear gas in an effort to beat another motorist to a parking place. We knew it was only a question of time until something like this would happen.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.
M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

25th Anniversary Congregatnl Church

In spite of the extreme heat which has prevailed in Thorsby as well as elsewhere throughout the nation durthe past week, there has been a good deal of activity among the people of this section.

An event of considerable importance to many people was the celebration of the 25th annversary of the organization of the United Protestant Church of Thorsby, (Congregational.) We shall not attempt to give in detail all that occurred during a program which lasted from six to nine-thirty last Wednesday night. The first item was a banquet with 86 plates, furnished by the ladies of the church, this was served in the twilight on the lawn between Campus Cottage and the dormitory. Dr. Charles R. Peterson, one of the charter members of the church, was at the head of the table. Other charter members present were, Mrs. A. K. Horn of Montgomery, Dr. Lorenzo V. Stabler of Greenville, who came with his wife, brother Clyde, and son Vastine, a former member of the church, now located in Birmingham. Dr. Stabler and party drove from their home in Greenville, just for the occasion and returned the same night. Mrs. Charles Peterson and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Norton were other charter members present. Following the banquet there was a short Vesper service, conducted by Rev. J. E. Each of the Church. Rev. Fred C. Ensminger, who succeeds Rev. Neil McQuarrie as Superintendent of Congregational activities in Alabama and West Florida was present as an invited guest.

Dr. Ensminger brought with him and loaned to C. A. Peterson, Chairman of the General Committee of Arrangements a unique Gavel, made from timber taken from the tower of "The little Brown Church in the Vale" at Nashua, Iowa, while the tower was being repaired. That church known in song the world over, is a Congregational Church and the Gevel was presentd to the Congregational churches of the southeastern States of which the Thorsby church is one.

At seven thirty the people retired to the church where a very interesting program was rendered, including special music gy Mr. A. N. Laurell, church organist, Misses Ruth and Mary Ella Gerald who sang a Duet. The pastor gave a brief welcome to all present and there were Hymns by the congregation. Reports were given; some of them of special interest, showing the origin of the church and its various departments, their growth and prosperity and the accumulation of material property and activities along the lines of benevolences. Mr. Norton, as clerk gave a historical sketch showing how the church came to be oganized, with 28 members from 9 denominations and a steady growth until 232 members have been enrolled of whom 80 are still members, 55 resident and 25 absent.

Rev. Butler, as treasurer told of the finances both for home use and for benevolences, spoke of the purchase of our church building, the parsonage and a large Reed Organ, all paid for, together with liberal contributions of members and church to many objects of benevolence.

Rev. Ensminger gave an interesting talk. He gave a talk in which he outlined the essential qualities of "A Congregational Church." As each church an independent unit, governed by majority vote of its members, and its individual members free to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience. Where there are so many Christians of all creeds and beleifs branded together as a working force each with equal rights there is little chance of controversy and Thorsby Congregational is a fair sample of how bretheren may dwell together in unity. In all the 25 years of its experience there has never been a church row.

Rev. W. P. Lowery spoke of the church and the community, his praise to the spirit of Christian fellowship with other denominations and interest to the general welfare of all things that tend to make the community a better place to live.

Mrs. Butler, who was to have told of the Sunday School was suddenly called away to take a friend to Calera to catch train No. 4 who had received message from friends back home in Wisconsin.

Mrs. Norton gave an interesting report of the work in the primary Department, of which she has been superintendent ever since they were organized and which is now receiving children of former members of the Primary Department. Alta Each made the report for the Christian Endeavor Society showing how helpful it is to young people.

After an opportunity had been given to hear letters from absent, former pastors, and members which were quite numerous and mostly dealing with personal reminiscences of life and spiritual help from contact with this shurch and brings expression of good-will from some not on the program, all stood and sang together, "Blest Be The Tie That Binds." The pastor pronounced the benediction and the "Love Feast" was over. But will not be soon forgotten.

On Thursday morning at nine-thirty the Board of Trustees of Thorsby Institute held their annual meeting in Jenkins Hall.

For several years there has been consideration of establishing in connection with Thorsby Institute a Junior College. At this meeting, Rev. Ensminger was elected a member of the Board to succeed Rev. Keller, resigned.

After considerable discussion, the matter was taken up in the form of a resolution.

Look With Disfavor on Abnormality of Genius

The aberrations of genius have not invariably confined themselves to mere fears of genial absentmindedness. The lives of Bunyan, Swift, Byron, Beethoven and even Thomas Carlyle are examples of the tragic forms which the abnormality of genius will sometimes assume. Genius, especially musical, poetic and literary genius, has often been allied with a pathological condition of the mind which borders upon insanity. And the fact that the eccentricity of genius did not more frequently cross the border line must be attributed to the social conditions under which those men of genius lived; for society in the past was more tolerant of eccentricity than it is today.

And here, perhaps, is the real cause of that lack of genius which, we are so often told, is characteristic of the present age. It is possible that the Twentieth century, with its tendency to standardize not only means of production but even ways of thought, will not tolerate that independence or eccentricity of mind which has so often been the accompaniment of creative genius. If John Bunyan, for example, had been living today, he would have been cured of his melancholy or else incarcerated in an asylum; in neither case, it is safe to say, would he have produced the "Pilgrim's Progress."

Difference in the Sexes at Periods of Growth

"There is a marked difference between boys and girls in the way they grow, particularly during adolescence."

This is the opinion of a well-known woman authority on child welfare, who has observed about 5,000 children over a period of eleven years and has followed about 700 of them to adult growth.

"Growth in the girl practically ceases between fifteen and sixteen, and in many cases earlier," she said. "But in the boy this is prolonged until eighteen and often later. The girl, having to get her growth over in a much shorter period and doing it in rather a jerky way, tends to go through a phase lasting from twelve to eighteen months when she is disinclined for any physical or mental exercise, and welcomes group control and routine.

"The boy, on the other hand, tends to have a marked freeing of energy and wants to undertake some particular individual task outside routine and tends to resent group control."

Some Call It a Depot Now

Uncle Hiram was coming to visit his city nephew and the nephew was looking forward to the visit with some uncertainty. He had warned Uncle Hiram that he had changed since the days on the farm. But he didn't realize just how tremendously he had improved till he read Uncle Hiram's telegram.

"Meet me at the Grand Central depot at 2:15."

"The Grand Central depot," he laughed. But the laugh had a guilty sound.

It hadn't been so many years, he remembered, since he had called a station a depot, and made fun of the Uppitys, the town snobs, who were very superior and called it the "terminal."—New York Sun.

Teacher:—If you subtracted fourteen from a hundred sixteen, what's the difference?

Johnny—Yeah, I think it's a lot of foolishness, too.

E. N. Bentley is finishing up the building between his garage and the Town Hall. We are not informed what use he intends to make of it.

The garage building that is to occupy the site of the burned Thorsby Hotel, is progressing in spite of the heat. If you want to see a good job of bricklaying, walk around there.

Another long contemplated improvement in Thorsby is the three store buildings W. H. Goodgame now has under construction at the corner of the Highway and Summit Avenue. The Highway front will be 78 feet long, and the depth varying according to the contour of the angling lot to be covered, the extreme length of the Summit Avenue side will be about 100 feet. The building is to be one story high and the walls made of concrete blocks with stucco finish. Plate glass will be used for each of the stores and a considerable space between the building line and the Highway will be paved with contrete for parking cars. The corner store has already been leased for five years for Thorsby Drug Company, and is expected to be ready about October first.

SEES HEAVY CLAIMS ON FUTURE BANKERS

American Bankers Association Official Declares That Banking Changes Creating Large Bank Systems Will Call for Broader Social Viewpoints.

Larger scale group or branch banking will inevitably bring a new era of banking organization and operations to the United States and bankers will have to develop "new conceptions, new administrative methods and new economic views," Rudolf S. Hecht, Chairman of the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association, recently told the members of the American Institute of Banking.

The institute is the educational section of the association and he emphasized the point that the new era in banking demanded "that we must step up our education so that banking shall be fortified for new responsibilities."

What the Future Calls For

"We must broaden our social conception of banking," Mr. Hecht said. "Not only for the technical operations of the new banking must we fit ourselves, but both as individuals and an organized profession we must charge ourselves with serious consideration of the social problems that are involved. Already we hear murmurings and fears and doubts as to whether the changes that are coming about in banking in the extension of group and branch systems do not constitute the looming of a new financial menace, a monopolistic threat not only to the individual unit banker, but to the financial liberty of society in general. I am stating these things merely as facts that must be taken into consideration in our studies.

"Public opinion cannot be ignored by any business, least of all by banking, which is admittedly semi-public in character and is, therefore, subject to special supervision by the constituted authorities. If banking develops tendencies that give rise to public fears, we must so conduct ourselves as to reassure all doubts.

"For this is true,—that business succeeds only by serving society—that no business can permanently prosper which does not both render service to the public and at the same time convince the public that it is rendering that service. Banking, therefore, must take cognizance of what the public is saying of this new era in its development.

"It must be part of the technique of modern banking administration, whatever form our enlarged institutions take, to avoid the creation of monopolies, or even the appearance of such a centralization of financial power as to be able to exercise an undue influence over public or private finance or other lines of business. The public's right to the safeguards of fair competition must be observed.

Must Preserve Individual Initiative

"It must also be an item of management that individual initiative and opportunity shall be maintained. If America has outstripped other nations in the distribution of the benefits of its progress, it is due to the fact that there are no barriers of social caste or business tradition against advancement for character, ability, and initiative. American business has learned that it serves itself best by encouraging by every practical means individual ambition and initiative, and hurts itself most by repressing or neglecting them. Competition for efficiency, both within an organization and between organizations, will prevent any institution from long enduring in which maintenance of opportunity and recognition of initiative are not controlling principles of management. As heads of the greatest of our financial and industrial institutions stand men who started from the humblest of beginnings. Through all the grades of executive authority and reward stand men in positions in keeping, generally speaking, with their individual merits. I, personally, see no reason for fearing that the enlarged banking organizations which the future may hold would necessarily supply future bank employees with any less opportunity for achievement than unit banking.

"Again, a major consideration of administration in any multiple form of banking organization must be its public relations in every community it touches. Its foremost consideration must be actually and visibly to serve the economic upbuilding of that community. No system will be long tolerated whose local members work, or are suspected as working, to draw economic strength from one place to enlarge the finanical power of another. The local unit bank has always been part and parcel of the communities where it lives—and no system can last which does not make it a major principle of operating technique to serve, and not exploit, the communities into whose business lives it enters."

Growth of Banking Education

DENVER, Colo.—At the American Institute of Banking convention held here last month the growth in the effort among bank employees to provide themselves with banking education was shown by the fact, as reported by one speaker, that 12 years ago the institute had 80 study chapters, today 208, and that its enrollment in the study courses had grown from 11,000 to 45,000, or an increase of over 300 per cent. The graduates number nearly 14,000. The institute is the educational section of the American Bankers Association through which bank workers are given instruction in theoretical and practical subjects relating to their business.

Wealth Showered Upon Favorites of Fortune

An American artist named Mott traveled to the Pribilof islands in a sealing vessel a year ago to paint some pictures of seals in their native home, and one day noticed a curious bank of sand lying close along the shore. He dug into it, and found beneath the sand a mass of bones. They were seal bones—millions of them—which had been flung up by the sea in the course of centuries. Further search has shown that there are miles of these bone deposits along the shores of the islands. One pile is a mile long, half a mile wide, and six feet deep. Now, bones are one of the best of all fertilizers, and the value of the find is simply gigantic—far greater than that of any gold mine. This brings to mind the case of the wandering prospector who, years ago, while crossing a desert in Wyoming, came across the body of a horse which, though it must have died long ago, was still fresh and sweet. The body was covered with a layer of fine dust, which the prospector recognized as borax. He saw the value of the discovery and sold it to a large packing firm in Chicago, who kept the secret for a long time. Today the uses of borax are innumerable, and range from the preservation of food down to dressings for tired feet and lotions for inflamed eyes.

Leaders of Tomorrow Among Boys of Today

He is a person who is going to carry on what you have started. He is to sit right where you are sitting and—when you are gone—attend to those things you now think are so important.

You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they will be carried out depends upon him. Even if you make leagues and treaties, he will have to manage them. He will assume control of your cities, states and nation.

He is going to move in and take over your churches, schools, universities and commercial undertakings. All your work is going to be judged and passed on or condemned by him. Your reputation and your future are in his hands.

All your work is for him, says Boys Club magazine, and the fate of the nation and humanity is in his hands. So it might be as well to pay him some attention.

Dog Made Small Town Famous

Karasjok is a small town in northern Norway, above the sixty-ninth meridian in the center of the region known as Lapland. It lies a few miles west of the confluence of the Karasjok and Tana rivers, the latter forming the boundary between Norway and Finland.

The town's population is made up mostly of Laplanders and is the home of the Balto family, made famous by an Alaskan malamute, named in honor of one of the members of the family. Balto was the lead dog of Gunnar Kasson's famous team that carried diphtheria serum on the last 60-mile lap in the 600-mile sledge race from Nenana to Nome during the epidemic of February, 1925.

Music Helps Efficiency

As far back as 1886 the head of a southern factory, where cigarettes were rolled by hand, placed good singers in his workrooms to increase efficiency and contentment in the plant. There are today several hundred American industrial organizations that encourage musical activities among their employees. A survey conducted by the National Association for the Advancement of Music reports that 32 companies allow the musical programs to be conducted on company time, while 132 allow them to be conducted half on company time. Experiments prove that under the influence of music more work is done and fewer mistakes are made.

Put the Safe First

A man called on his stock broker and found him grumbling about lack of business and recent financial complications in the city.

He was about to leave his office for the day. As they were going out, the caller noticed that the door of the safe—a large, majestic piece of furniture—was open.

"Surely," said he, "you lock your safe for the night, don't you?"

"As a rule, yes," replied the broker, "but as things are at present, I would much rather that any one should take the contents than break the safe!"—St. John Telegraph Journal.

A Balfour Anecdote

In it she speaks of him in a not too kind manner.

Meeting him shortly after its publication, she said, "I do hope you will forgive me for what I said about you in my book." Lord Balfour answered, "What book? I did not know you had written one."—Weekly Scotsman.

Whiskers

"Whazzat?" said he, pointing to the twigs on the limb.
